The other two treaties are between France and her Eastern allies, Poland and Czecho-Slovakia. They provide that if Germany fails to keep her word with France, Poland and Czecho-Slovakia, and her failure is accompanied by an unprovoked recourse to arms, France and her two Eastern allies shall go immediately to one another's assistance. France and her two Eastern allies also agree to lend one another aid, no matter what country should make an unprovoked attack on one of them, which the League Council failed to prevent.

Neither the security pact nor any of the other six treaties will have the effect of outlawing war. In point of fact it is made clear that there are circumstances in which war is legitimate: the treaties simply strive to define these circumstances, limit their number and do as much as is conceivably possible to prevent war-like conditions from arising.

One of these circumstances is self-defence. If Germany attacks France, France is entitled to fight back, and she would have the assistance of Belgium, Italy and Great Britain in defending herself, even if war must be made on Germany for the purpose. In the same way if France attacks Germany, Germany would be protected by the others.

Germany has also agreed that the Allies can consider it a hostile act if she violates her Versailles undertaking to abstain from military works and war preparations in the demilitarized Rhineland zone.

And there are various cases where resort to armed force is legitimate under the covenant of the League, even under the orders of the League Council, should that body decide that force is necessary to make a disturber of the peace behave.

So, while war is not outlawed, the circumstances which bring it within the law now seem fewer and more easily defined than ever before. And what is more important, the statesmen of Europe seemingly think that such circumstances are less likely to arise than was the case in by-gone days.

Indeed, in the final protocol of the Locarno Conference—a sort of preamble to the treaties—the statesmen who assembled there express the conviction that treaties will create a peaceful atmosphere, in which something further can be done about disarmament.

The concluding paragraph of the preamble says: "The representatives of the Governments represented here declare their firm conviction that the entry into force of these treaties and conventions will contribute greatly to bring about moral relaxation of the tension between nations, that it will help powerfully towards the solution of many political or economic problems in accordance with the interests and sentiments of the peoples, and that, in strengthening peace and security in Europe, it will hasten effectively the disarmament provided for in Article VIII. of the covenant of the League of Nations.

"They undertake to give sincere co-operation to the work relating to disarmament already undertaken by the League and seek realization of this in a general agreement."

The treaty imposes no obligations upon the British Dominions or India unless freely undertaken by such dominion or India.

The protocol bears the signatures of Dr. Hans Luther and Gustav Stresemann for Germany; Emile Vandervelde, Belgium; A. Briand, France; Austen Chamberlain, Great Britain; Benito Mussolini, Italy; Count Skrzynski, Poland, and Eduard Benes, Czecho-Slovakia.

GEN. H. N. RUTTAN DIED IN WINNIPEG

Was a Native of Cobourg—Served With Forces Against Rebels.

COBOURG, Oct. 20.—A former citizen of Cobourg, Brigadier General Henry N. Ruttan, who was long actively associated with the Canadian Militia, died at his home in Winnipeg last Tuesday. He was born at Cobourg on May 1, 1848, of a well-known U. E. Loyalist family. Deceased was a grandson of the late Henry Ruttan, familiarly known as "Sheriff Ruttan," who was one of the first presidents of the Upper Canada Agricultural Association, which years later merged into the Canadian National Exhibition. He was also for some years Speaker of the Ontario Legislature. Gen. Ruttan at the age of sixteen years, joined the old Cobourg Rifles. He carried arms in the Fenian Raid and served in the Northwest Rebellion with the 90th Rifles, taking part in several engagements. In 1895 he was appointed to command of the 90th. In 1915 he was appointed officer commanding of Military District No. 10, but seven years ago retired from active service with full rank.

But General Ruttan was otherwise actively associated with the history of Canada. In 1874 he made the first surveys for the Canadian Pacific along the north shore of Lake Superior, and later had charge of the first survey through Yellowhead Pass. He also held engineering positions with the Grand Trunk and Intercolonial Railways. For a number of years General Ruttan was City Engineer for Winnipeg.

CITY 5-PIN LEAGUE.

The proverbial apple cart was up set last night at the Water street alleys when, in the opening game of the new league, Harold Freeman trotted out a bunch of Lawn Bowlers who took three straight games from "Shiner" Johnson's "village belles," who on paper looked to be the class of the league. In the best rolled games of the season 'Nels.' Routley turned in hig three with 685, including a real single of 279. Forler turned in 648 for three and Jack Green 625. This league promises to develop into the fastest now-rolling in the city.

To-night, LeBarrs meet the Canadian Woollens.

WMS MEETING HELD LAST WEDNESDAY

About Fifty Ladies Were Present at Home of Mrs. James Might.

MILLBROOK, Oct. 20. — The October meeting of the Women's Missionary Auxiliary of the United Church was held at the home of Mrs. James Might on Wednesday afternoon, about fifty being in attendance.

Mrs. Howard presided for the opening business period, and Mrs. A. J. Brown was appointed to take charge of the Watch Tower, the "Heralds" being: Mrs. China, Mrs R. H. Edmunds; Japan, Mrs Brown; French work, Mrs J Hatherly; Indian work, Mrs. Freelove; Temperance, Mrs. P. Stinson, Austrian and Oriental, Mrs. Luxon. Stewardship, Miss S. Hetherington, World, Miss Burnham.

On November 11, at 8 p.m., the president announced Miss Clazey, for some years a missionary in Formosa, will address a public meeting in the church, the members recently welcomed to the Auxiliary from the former Presbyterian Church having this service under their charge.

Group G, Mrs. Hilliard Lang, convenor, was responsible for the programme at Wednesday's meeting, Mrs. Howard giving the introduction to the new study book, "Building with India." Mrs. Lang and Mrs. Harry Dawson gave an interesting outline of the first chapter, and Mrs. Thos. Douglas read the Scripture lesson from the 17th chapter of John, followed by a helpful devotional leaflet.

A paper on "When Leadership Fails," was read by Mrs. Offa Williamson, lack of "oil" and the entrance of foreign matter in the leader's heart being the reasons stressed. The oil of consecration faith, tact, humility, willingness, fidelity, punctuality, patience, self-control, courage, love and prayer will set the seal of success on any leader's effort, so long as no poison of criticism, with the train of evils it brings into heart and life, is refused expression, she said.

Among those present were: Mrs. W. H. Byam, Mrs. J. L. Byam, Mrs. T. Luxon, Mrs. W. Larmer, Mrs. B B. Dawson, Mrs. Harry Dawson, Mrs. E. S. and Mrs. G. E. Burnham, Mrs. H. Rea, Mrs. F. W. Smith, Mrs. C. W. Richards, Mrs. J. Turner, Mrs. C. C. Garside, Mrs. W. Tremaine, Mrs. J. McKnight, Mrs. G. Locke, Mrs. J. Hutchison, Mrs. Harold Tate, Mrs. W. G. Rowland, Mrs. John Rowland, Mrs. W. Krieger, Nellie and Estelle Hetherington, A. Hampton, and others.

Mr. L. H. Winslow is attending the Provincial ploughing match at Brockville this week, leaving on Monday morning. Mr. Winslow is one of the directors of the Provincial Association: R. H. Abraham of Chatham is president, and J. Lockie Wilson managing director. The horse pulling contest is a new feature, borrowed from the West and used for the first time this year. A tented village houses the exhibits, implements, and gives accommodation for serving meals. Being a director prohibits Mr. Winslow from taking part in any of the contests. No others from Cavan appear to be attending the competition this season. Grounds of the Ontario Hospital, and the Dr. E. A. Clarke farms, are being used for the event, which is attended by thousands from Canada and the States daily.

Grace Presbyterian Church is changing its hour of service from 7 p.m. to 2.30 p.m. on Sunday, Oct. 18, on account of the anniversary services in the United Church, at which Rev. A. K. McLeod of Brighton will preach morning and evening.

The Cosmos Club, a social organization, taking in the majority of the young men of Millbrook and Cavan, has reorganized for the fall and winter season, the following officers being elected:

WHO KISSED BARBARA?

"Who Kissed Barbara?" an entertaining one-act playlet, was an added attraction at the Capitol Theatre last night, opening for a three days' run with the feature picture, "A Slave of Fashion."

Under the capable direction of Mrs. W. McKee Bingham, it is well staged and well acted, with a cast of clever local players. The stage setting is artistic and attractive, with a cheerful grate fire and a lighted lamp to give high lights to the general very effective lighting scheme.

"Who Kissed Barbara?" is a farce comedy, light and somewhat thin in spots, but entertaining enough to rouse a good deal of merriment in the audience. It revolves around the vow made by a young lady that she will never be kissed except by the man she is going to marry. The opening moments show a moonlit living-room, into which the young lady comes and receives a kiss from an unknown man, prowling about in the darkened interior. She screams and he swears and makes a hasty exit. The only clues she has to his identity are the "damn" and the smell of peppermint from his breath. However, it transpires later that all three of a trio of young men in the house possess these characteristics. The visiting brother, the man who is to be married on the morrow to the young lady's best friend, and the butler, all are guilty of saying "damn" later on in the piece and all have breaths that smell of peppermint. The plot thickens, with the friend on the point of breaking off her marriage and the young lady weepingly suspecting the butler, until finally everything is smoothed out satisfactorily.

The cast is composed of a quintette of players, all of whom are exceptionally good and well suited to their roles. Mrs. W. McKee Bingham, besides directing the play, takes the part of Katherine Blake, about to be married on the morrow to Horace Gregory (Fred. Hudon), and Miss May Perry is Barbara Nicholls, who becomes engaged to Katherine's brother, Paul (J. M. Gaiger), the villain of the piece. Mrs. Bingham and Miss Perry are charming in their respective roles, which call for a good deal of dramatic emphasis, and both show the results of stage training in their pleasing voices and excellent acting. They wear lovely gowns, Mrs. Bingham in turquoise blue charmeuse, touched with silver, and Miss Perry in a very pretty frock of flame-colored satin, trimmed with white georgette. The young men are in full evening dress and present a very dignified appearance. Mr. Gaiger makes an admirable brother, and Mr. Hudon is splendid as the bewildered bridegroom to be.

A notable character in the cast and one entirely new to Peterboro audiences, is Mr. Ted Crowe, who is a real hit as the butler, James. Mr. Crowe's long experience in connection with the stage at the Grand Opera House must have given him plenty of opportunity to study the methods of stage butlers, and he is a notable addition to a very fine cast.

Orchestra music, "A Kiss in the Dark," and the Wedding March, add to the interest of a very attractive little playlet that will be repeated this evening and to-morrow night.

At the close of the performance last night, Miss Perry received a beautiful bouquet of flowers. — Jeannette.

GEORGE STREET MEN ORGANIZED

Church Association Starts Winter Activities With Enjoyable Supper.

ADDRESS HEARD.

The lecture room of George Street United Church held last evening a goodly gathering of men of the church, drawn together to listen to an instructive address by Rev. John Coburn, of Toronto, of the Social Service Department of the United Church of that city.

After an enjoyable supper, at 6.30 p.m., served by the ladies of the Ladies' Aid, which arm of the church service is diligent and most competent in such, as well as other ways, formal business of the association was transacted and committees named and ushered into office and activity. The aim of the association is to try and interest in the work of the congregation, the many young men now attending the Sabbath services, and indicating that if a place for them can be found a good accession to church membership would follow, and recruits gathered to assist in carrying on.

Rev. Mr. Coburn's address was thoroughly practical, helpful and inspiring. For nearly an hour he held the floor and it was with reluctance that the meeting agreed with him that he had occupied a full quota of the time at disposal. He urged that George Street Church should take hold and do such work as was being done by the several societies, ever faithful and efficient, in extending a helping hand, in the city. The church had gradually left to such societies the function and opportunity to bring into friendly association young men, and men older, who coming to the city had to form acquaintances at almost haphazard. This was the very field in which the church should excel, and would do so if those who appreciated the opportunity took hold and lifted. Day by day it was being realised that the firmest and best bulwark against the insidious influences that were being handed out, the distorted views of life, the willingness to live and not learn, the amazing prevalence of crime and disorder, was the Church.

All churches were interested, in that memberships held the cream of the citizenship, and it was the plain duty of the men of the churches to stand between what was debilitating the lives of young manhood and better things and guide and influence to a better end. In thousands of families there seemed a marked indifference to parental control, advice and example, but when the young people passed out into the world there should be some friendly, sympathetic and thoughful influence ready to keep them in the path of right living.

In pithy sentences he spoke of what should and might be done. Not in competition with other good influences, but as applicable in each environment, and in each church. Results would follow. Men responded to cheerful advances, and the better path would become the easier to follow.

The usual vote of thanks to the speaker was heartily approved. Mr. Elward Jones contributed a fine song, a lyric of the Welsh people, "The Song of the Harp," giving a brief verbal introduction to the song. Mr. Chas. Allison, president of the association, was in the chair, and discreetly steered the proceedings.

are: Mr. and Mrs. H. W. Johnston, Mr. and Mrs. F. W. Fallis, Rev. Joseph Wilks, Mrs. J. H. George, Miss M. E. Needham, Mrs. (Dr.) Rea, Miss Nellie Hetherington, Mrs. F. H. Howard, Miss Margaret Howard, Dr. A. Jemison, Mr. W. G. Hetherington, Mr. E. Howard and Mr. G. E. Burnham.

FROM MR. DONOGHUE.

To the Editor The Examiner.

Sir,—Having read advertisement in your journal that a gentleman named Mr. T. P. O'Connor was to lecture in All Saints' Anglican Church on the conditions of Ireland under Free State, I attended his lecture which he delivered on 14th for the purpose of hearing how Ireland was progressing, but to my surprise his lecture was against the Church of Rome. I fail to see what purpose he served by trying to convince his audience that the Catholic Church had failed the people of that country, having quoted Fr. O'Flanagan, who has been suspended for the past 6 or 7 years being a paid official of the Sinn Fein organization. He also mentioned Archbishop Mannix, who no doubt is a great Irishman, who was denied the privilege of visiting his aged mother for the simple reason as the British Government of the time declared he would cause dissatisfaction in Ireland, while they were preaching freedom for small nationality themselves, but Mr. O'Connor was a Sinn Feiner himself and being such, received the blessings of the Catholic clergy which was not lost on him as he saw the light afterwards. He also laid stress on the fact republicans were not excommunicated when fighting Black and Tans, but was applied when the Free State was established. But if I remember right, the first policeman shot was in Cork and the Bishop of Cork threatened ex-communication and also the late Cardinal Logue, and shortly afterwards the Bishops of Ireland at their meeting in Maynooth the joint letter from the Bishops was read in all churches, denouncing outrages, ex-communicating all who were in any way connected with any secret society. One thing I was glad to note was that the Protestants had full freedom, as he explained that the Catholics were too busy fighting amongst themselves. He has great hopes of the future, as the time is opportune to convert the Irish, but he had better put his own house in order before he ventures on such a delicate undertaking. Irishmen as a rule always like to hear how they are painted in other countries, and I shall be glad to forward a copy home of The Examiner, which will be highly amusing to my countrymen, as they seldom hear such good news from men of Mr. O'Connor's type.

Thanking you for space, I am, Sir, your obedient servant,

JOSEPH DONOGHUE.

EFFORTS TO AVOID SHORTAGE OF COAL

NEW YORK, Oct. 20 (Canadian Press).—Further efforts to relieve the coal shortage facing anthracite consumers of New York State and the metropolis will be made today and Wednesday by the State Coal Commission, it was announced last night by Charles W. Berry, chairman of the commission.

Mr. Berry emphasized yesterday that reports reaching his office indicated that conditions are growing no worse, despite a serious shortage of anthracite coal, for not while an abundant supply of bitimunious and other substitutes lasts will the commission admit that the situation has reached a really acute stage, he said. In order to avoid suffering during the cold weather, however, he again urged coal consumers to lay in stocks of substitutes and learn to use them.

THEATRES

AT THE REGENT

TENSE AND THRILLING ELECTION SCENES.

A hard fought and bitterly contested election battle for a seat in the English Parliament, between Sir Melmoth Craven, a villain of the first rank, and John Orme, Margaret Garth's sweetheart, results in Orme's being thrown into prison for violating the election ordinance.

"Without Mercy," the George Melford production presented under the Metropolitan banner, which opened at the Regent Theatre Monday for a three days' run, depicts the campaign and the workings of the opposing factions with a realism that immediately begets the onlookers enthusiasm.

Long preliminary campaigns, political meetings, scenes at the polls, and the intense excitement that reigns in opposing camps as the last minute returns come in, when one vote may be the deciding factor; all these carry the spectator along on the edge of his seat, and leave him with a human desire to aid in freeing young Orme of the charges against him.

The novel manner in which he obtains his freedom and clears his names, gives "Without Mercy" one of many claims to its rank among the seasons best productions.

AT THE CAPITOL

"A SLAVE OF FASHION."

Here at last we have a story, a cast and a convincing production. "A Slave of Fashion" which opened at the Capitol Theatre yesterday offers all three.

The story is an original, by Samuel Shipman, and if it is any indication of what a story written especially for the screen is like, it would be a very good idea to have many more of them. The theme centers around a small town girl who comes to New York to live and dress like city girls. How she narrowly averts being disowned by her family but for the timely interference on the part of her bachelor pseudo husband, brings the story to a satisfying conclusion.

Norma Shearer is delightful as Katherine Emerson. She is indeed deserving of the stardom recently accorded her for it was a most enthusiastic greeting she received from the audience. . . . She brings a sureness, a poise and a genteelness in her wake that gives her a striking and charming individuality. She has some intensely emotional scenes and others which go to the extreme of bordering on comedy, yet she is equally convincing in both.

Lew Cody is featured in the leading male role opposite Miss Shearer. Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer are wise in finding vehicles for him which make him a romantic lover instead of a heavy. He brings a clever subtlety with his work and much distinction.

William Haines plays the juvenile lead, Dick Wayne, and is ideally cast, while Mary Carr, as the mother; Vivia Ogden, as Aunt Sophie; James Corrigan, as the father; Estelle Clark, as Mayme, the chorus girl, and Sidney Bracy as Hobson are all playing parts of importance and ones to which they are perfectly suited.

The whole tone of the production follows the standard which Hobart Henley has set in his previous pictures, "Sinners in Silk," "So This is Marriage," etc. Bess Meredyth is responsible for the excellent scenario.

Cedric Gibbons is credited with the art direction and he has made his rural sets in the small Iowa village as realistic as those in smart New York, proving that he has a keen understanding of the middle west, its customs and thoughts.

Ben Reynold's photography is beautiful and he gets some unusual angles that should be given more comment than space here allows.

AT THE ROYAL.

DOROTHY PHILLIPS SEEN IN "THE SPORTING CHANCE"

Dorothy Phillips who for many years was one of the leading screen stars will be seen again for the first time since her retirement in the "Tiffany" production, "The Sporting Chance," which is coming to the Royal Theatre for a three-day run on Thursday.

Miss Phillips retired from appearing in pictures after the death of her husband, Alan Holubar, but on the insistence of Director Oscar Apfel, who directed "The Sporting Chance" Miss Phillips was lured from her retirement.

INDIAN PICTURE FOR CHILDREN—THURSDAY, FRIDAY AND SATURDAY

"The Red Rider," Universal-Blue Streak Western starring Jack Hoxie to be screened at the Royal Theatre commencing Thursday, is a romantic picture story of the days when settlers and Indians fought for the possession of the West. Hoxie impersonates the character of "White Elk" who the Indians believe has been sent to them by the Great Spirit. The picture is full of all the mysticism of the tribes. Supporting Hoxie are Mary McAllister, Jack Pratt, Natalie Warfield Marin Sais, William McCall, Francis Ford, Geo. Connors, Clark Comstock and Duke R. Lee. The director was Cliff Smith.

KENNETH HARLAN IS FOREST HERO

Triumphs in Hamlin Garland's "Ranger of the Big Pines."

"The Ranger of the Big Pines," the Vitagraph picture which opened yesterday at the Royal Theatre, concerns the loves and hates of a thrilling group of people against the grandiose background of mountain range and national forest. It is a stirring screen version of the popular novel, "Cavanagh, Forest Ranger," written by Hamlin Garland and adapted to the screen by Hope Loring and Louis Lighton. William Van Dyke directed and Alan Thompson photographed the production.

Kenneth Harlan, Helene Costello and Eulalie Jensen play the three most important characters, the forest ranger, the girl he loves and her slattern of a mother. The remainder of the cast includes Will Walling, Lew Harvey, Robert J. Graves, Eugene Paulette, Harvey Clark and Joan Standing.

Ross Cavanagh (Kenneth Harlan) meets beautiful Lee Virgina Weatherford (Helene Costello) at the tumbledown hotel owned by her mother, Lize Weatherford (Eulalie Jensen). Strongly attracted by the girl's sweetness and beauty, nevertheless he fears marriage with her because of her heritage. He unknowingly befriends Lee's father, whom everybody considers dead, and his friendship with the girl proves stronger than his family pride and his fears. After a series of thrilling adventures in guarding his forests against the ruthless invaders, Ross sees the nobility of Lee's character, appreciates that in spite of her untidy way Lize is a loyal and brave women, and forgets all scruples in the joy of his love for the daughter.

The entire cast gives excellent performances, the production has been skillfully directed and retains all the powerful drama of the book, and the shots of the majestic mountains are among the most splendid of any recent outdoor pictures. "The Ranger of the Big Pines" is certainly a photoplay that no lover of good screen entertainment should miss.

"ABIE'S IRISH ROSE"

An event of more than ordinary importance may be chronicled in the coming to the Grand Opera House for an engagement of 3 nights beginning Thursday, October 29th, with matinee on Saturday, October 31, of Anne Nichols syclonic appealing comedy, "Abies' Irish Rose", of which Miss Nichols appears in the roles of author as well as producer, and which has created more discussion and made more pages in theatrical history, and is still making them than any ten plays written in the past several decades.

In offering this truly perennial wonder to local playgoers, the management is to be congratulated in securing the Rochester Company and production intact, which has recently finished an unprecedented run of eight weeks at the Gayety Theatre in that city, breaking all records for consecutive number of weeks and performances.

Mail orders accompanied by remittance, will be filled from now in the order they are received. The regular seat sale will open October 26th.

CIVIL WAR TAKES SERIOUS ASPECT WITH WU'S ENTRY

TROOPS DESERT.

General Chang Loses Divisions From One Province to Marshal Wu.

SHANGHAI, Oct. 20.—(Canadian Press).—The renewal of civil war in China, hitherto localized to the district between Shanghai and Nanking, to-day assumed a more serious aspect with the return to the political and military arena of Wu Pei Fu, military dictator at Peking from 1920 to 1924, and the mutiny of two Kiangsu divisions who hitherto have acknowledged the leadership of Chang Tso Lin, Manchurian military leader.

Marshal Wu, who, since he was thrust from power a year ago by the combination of Chang Tso Lin and Feng Yu Hsiang, "Christian" General, has been in semi-retirement in Central China, has definitely announced his opposition to Peking and to Chang Tso Lin at Mukden.

Advices to Reuter's Agency here say that he is expected to arrive today in Hankow, and there announce his assumption of the title of Commander-in-Chief of the Central Provinces, this alliance to include Kiang Su, in which Shanghai is located, Chekiang, Anhui, Kiangsi, Hupei and Fukien.

CHAS. D. MATHIAS ON PROVINCIAL STUDIO'S STAFF

GOOD PROPAGANDA.

Chas. D. Mathias, of the Artcraft Studio, Simcoe Street, has been appointed to the staff of the Province of Ontario Pictures at Trenton, but will retain his interest in his local business at least until next spring, devoting several days a week to its demands. Mr. Ken. Blood will be in charge of the Artcraft Studio during the absence of Mr. Mathias.

Three years ago the Ontario Government purchased at about half its value the plant of a defunct motion picture company, which at its inception promised to make a new Hollywood of Trenton. When the company failed the Provincial Government decided to buy it, and Mr. Mathias says it is a most complete and efficient studio, its product being sold for the most part, and generally distributed to all parts of the world. The films and still pictures are devoted entirely to propaganda advertising the Province of Ontario, and the studio is virtually an adjunct of nearly all the departments of the Ontario Government, especially the Departments of Agriculture, Lands and Forests, Mines, Public Health and others. Mr. Mathias told The Examiner that the work is intensely interesting.

One of the productions recently completed is the story of the McIntosh Red apple in motion pictures. The studio's cameramen went up to the County of Norfolk to film the work of the Apple Producers' Co-operative Association, which was referred to by Hon. John S. Martin in his address at the Norwood Fair. The McIntosh Red is one of the few native Canadian apples, Mr. Mathias stated, and its history is one of the romances of horticulture. This picture begins with the finding of the McIntosh trees and closes with a family scene in which selected samples of the McIntosh grace a family table. The flowering and care of the trees is shown, and recently a cameraman photographed the picking of the crop in a Norfolk orchard, its various processes of grading, wrapping and all the details of marketing which Hon. Mr. Martin declared to be the secret of the big prices the producers of that co-operative association received last year.

This is only one of the productions of the Provincial studios. Another was the Provincial plowing match recently held near Brockville. This reel was quickly developed and sold to the film exchanges. The staff includes cameramen who have been with Universal Pictures, and the general work of the studio is of a high standard. Mr. Mathias is in charge of the still department, and recently completed a series of pictures for which he received a special letter of commendation.

As a means of attracting tourists and settlers, and even of acquainting the people of Ontario with the resources and beauties of their own province, the Government's studio is already performing a great work, Mr. Mathias stated, and will continue to be a graphic medium of advertising the province, in addition to its educational features.

MAN IN WATER NOT DROWNED

Blows on Head Caused the Death of Unknown Man.

HAMILTON, Ont., Oct. 21 (Canadian Press)—That the unknown man whose body was found in a mill pond at Weir, near Lynden, came to his death from being struck on the head with a blunt instrument and his body placed in the water afterwards was the verdict of the jury which investigated the case last night.

There were blows on the base of skull and the water found in the lungs would not have caused death, it was stated.

After attempting for one week to establish the identification and having failed, the police have little hope of ever learning the identity of the man or the names of the party or parties who ended his life.

BISHOP O'BRIEN HEADS PILGRIMS VISITING POPE

Party Carried Dominion Flag Which Will Be Placed in Sanctuary.

8 CANADIAN MARTYRS.

Book Containing Their Lives Was Presented By Pilgrimage to His Holiness.

ROME, Oct. 21. — (Canadian Press).—The Pope yesterday received 100 Canadian pilgrims, headed by Monsignor William Forbes, Bishop of Joliette; Monsignor M. J. O'Brien, Bishop of Peterborough, and Monsignor J. E. Limoges, Bishop of Mont Laurier.

The pilgrimage included 30 priests and 20 Zouaves. The latter carried the old pontifical flag used by the Zouaves before the fall of the papal temporal power in Rome, and also the Canadian national flag, which will be laid in the sanctuary of Lisieux.

The pilgrims presented the Pope with a book containing the lives of the eight Canadian Jesuit martyrs who were beatified in St. Peter's, Rome, on June 21 last, and to whose memory a memorial tablet was unveiled with impressive ceremony near Midland, Ont., on the same date: Fathers Jean de Brebeuf, Gabriel Lalemant, Antoine Daniel, Charles Garnier, Noel Chabanel and Isaac Jogues, and lay brothers Rene Goupil and John Lalande.

The Pope extended his hand for each of the pilgrims to kiss and addressed a few words to them in a kindly tone. He blessed Canada in its entirety, and especially blessed the episcopate and the clergy. He said he was glad that he had beatified the Canadian martyrs and thus had given new protectors to the Catholics in Canada.

REGARD OF LAW IS COUNSELLED

U. S. President Discusses Remedies For Evils That Beset Society.

RELIGION NEEDED.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 21 (Canadian Press).—More law observance and more religion are needed in this country, President Coolidge told the annual Council of Congregational Churches in an address last night.

"Lawlessness is altogether too prevalent," he said, "and a lack of respect for government and the conventions of enlightened society is altogether too apparent.

"If there are any general failures in the enforcement of the law it is because there have first been general failures in the disposition to observe the law. I can conceive of no adequate remedy for the evils which beset society except through the influences of religion."

The President said there was no form of education, government or reward, "which will not fail" that "redemption must come through sacrifice and sacrifice is the essence of religion." He besoke untold benefit through a broader comprehension of this principle by the public and continued preaching of it by the clergy.

MEIGHEN ASKS FOR MODERATE TARIFF BARRIER

SPOKE TO FARMERS.

WOODSTOCK, Oct. 21 (Canadian Press)—Pleading the cause for a moderate protective tariff in Canada, Right Hon. Arthur Meighen carried his campaign into historic Zorra township yesterday.

The Australian Treaty occupied a large part of the argument of the speakers during the day. Its effect on the dairy industry in Canada would be disastrous, it was stated. The possibility of a great increase in importation of dairy products from the antipodes was stressed, particularly on the ground that the country "down under" enjoyed the advantage of summer weather during Canadian winter.

Mr. Meighen laid emphasis on the tendency which he said had been prevalent since the Mackenzie King Government took office to frighten Canadian capital out of Canadian industry by tariff instability and the continual threat of fresh tariff reduction from budget to budget as the years went by. The success of Canadian industry, farming and manufacturing alike, he said, depended on a return to the national policy of the Conservative party.

EFFORTS AGAINST PRINCESS FAILED

Republican Guards Charge Hermine With Taking Title of Empress.

STUTTGART, Germany, Oct. 21. —(Canadian Press).—Efforts by the Republican guards to begin proceedings against the Princess Hermine, wife of the former Emperor William for alleged unlawful usurpation of the title "Kaiserin Hermine" have failed.

An attempt to lodge a criminal complaint against her under the penal code was made at Nurnburg but the court there passed the allegations along to another court, which declined to present a charge to the district attorney. Likewise, the public prosecutor would not take any action. It was charged that Hermine designated herself as "wife of His Majesty, William II., former Emperor." Also it was alleged that she was registered in the list of visitors to The Spa at Wildbad as "Empress and Queen," and that the local photographer issued picture postcards of her with the words "Kaiserin Hermine in Wildbad, 1925," on them.

MANY PLANTS MUST BE SCRAPPED SOON

British Iron and Steel Industry Nears Disaster, Says Skelton.

LONDON, Oct. 21. — (Canadian Press).—"If we do not scrap well nigh one-third of our existing iron and steel plants in the near future circumstances will do it for us," declares H. J. Skelton, chairman of the management committee of the Iron and Steel Institute, "and probably that will occur before two years are past."

Further, Mr. Skelton says: "Many of our largest units would not bear the acid test of solvency to-day, whatever may be shown by them on paper to the contrary. We are on the threshold of disaster."

EXPLORATION SHIP DAMAGED BY ICE

OSLO, Oct. 21 (Canadian Press). —The Algarsson polar expedition ship Island has been towed into Tromsoe by a Dutch steamer. The Island was last reported off Victoria Landing damaged by ice.

The British Arctic expedition, under Commander Frank Worsley and Grettir Algarsson, Canadian explorer, left Liverpool for the Arctic last June. Their vessel was reported to have arrived at Green Harbor, Spitzbergen, July 17.

How To Make Bees Work Double Shift

VANCOUVER, B.C., Oct. 21 Can bees be persuaded to produce two crops of honey annually instead of one? This is the problem which James Ballantyne, a priest of Nelson, B.C., is atttemping to solve by shipping a consignment of bees to New Zealand, where summer is beginning. Ten queens and 30 pounds of workers sail for Auckland on the liner Niagara today. If the experiment is successful, it is planned to ship colonies of the proverbially busy insects from one end of the Pacific to the other every year.

QUARREL WITH WIFE CAUSE OF DOUBLE MURDER

Eugene Berry Chloroformed His Two Young Sons When Wife Left.

CUT HIS THROAT.

NORWICH, Conn., Oct. 21. —(Canadian Press).—After spending all day alone in the house with his two dead sons, aged 4 and 6, whom he admitted he had chloroformed early yesterday morning before he attempted his own life by cutting his throat, Eugene J. Berry, 31 years old, summoned the police late yesterday afternoon and revealed the tragedy. A quarrel with his wife, after which she left the house, was the reason for the double murder and attempted suicide, Berry told the police. When the police responded to a call sent by a neighbor, they found Berry sitting in a chair in the kitchen. He showed them the wound in his throat, and with the words, "That isn't all," led them into a back bedroom where the two boys dead in bed.

R. HICKS TELLS TORONTO FOLKS CITY BUSINESS

Says Mr. Fisk's Resignation Not Caused By Rates Dispute.

LINES ARE LEGACY.

Monaghan Hydro Rates

To the Editor of The Globe: In your issue of Oct. 14 there appears a news item headed "Monaghan Hydro Rates Put on Rural Basis," in which The Globe elaborates somewhat on a news item appearing in The Peterboro' Examiner of a recent date, in which it attributes the resignation of Mr. H. O. Fisk from the managership of the Peterboro Utilities Commission to his having extended electric lines in the suburban district without sanction. This statement is not founded on fact.

When the city in 1914 acquired the distributing system of the Peterboro' Light and Power Co. there were a number of people outside the city being served with light and power at that time, and extensions were made from time to time sanctioned by the Peterboro' Utilities Commission.

The readjustment of rates to the adjoining municipalities served by the Peterboro' Utilities Commission, by the Hydro-Electric Power Commission of Ontario, no doubt is made to conform with conditions as they find them at the present time, and in this connection it might be noted that these municipalities did not supply the funds for the construcion of either their primary or secondary lines.

In some quarters Mr. Fisk's resignation has been attributed to matters in connection with the Campbell Milling Company, and these suppositions are also erroneous, and here I might say that our Council in the above case expressed the opinion that the Peterboro' Utilities Commission's records and data in this particular instance were unusually complete.

Commissioner.

PREMIER DENIES CHARGES ABOUT G. T. R. PENSIONS

HAYES DIDN'T WRITE.

Letter He Had Was Private One From Mr. Wainwright to Protect Him.

KINGSTON, Ont., Oct. 21. — (Canadian Press.)— Premier King made a warm rejoinder last night to Mr. Meighen's charges in regard to the restoration of Grand Trunk pension rights.

Speaking at Sudbury Mr. Meighen charged Mr. King with having withheld a letter written by C. M. Hayes of the Grand Trunk from the files of the Labor Department to which it rightly belonged and kept after Mr. King became a private citizen.

Mr. King denied the charge in toto.

"In the first place," said Mr. King, "Mr. Hayes never wrote to me any letter at all. The second point is that the agreement between the Grand Trunk and its employes was made at a meeting of the employees and the company. I was a witness to it. The agreement was that the men, other than those guilty of acts of violence, were to be reinstated in their positions 'as soon as possible'."

These words were considered too indefinite and after considerable discussion the time was fixed at 90 days. As the reinstatement did not take place within the specified time, Mr. King stated that he announced in Parliament what the terms of settlement, hitherto to be kept secret, were, and the letter which was private, was given him by Mr. Wainwright, vice-president of the railway to protest him in his statement that as soon as possible "meant 90 days." "Why," he asked, "did not the Meighen government act on the letter when it was before them?"

BRIDGE COST UP.

Detroit-Windsor Structure is Expected to Cost 16,000,000.

WINDSOR, Ont., Oct. 21.—(Canadian Press).—Joseph A. Bower, vice-president of the New York Trust Company and financial backer of the proposed Detroit - Windsor bridge, yesterday told local business men that revised estimates had increased the cost of the structure $4,000,000, from $12,000,000 to $16,000,000. Of this amount the Province of Ontario is expected to guarantee $6,000,000 and invest $2,000,000 in cash.

A.O.F. PARTY.

A very pleasant social evening was spent recently at the home of Mr. and Mrs. E. Freeman, 718 Elcombe Crescent, when about forty of the members and friends of Queen Alexander Circle A.O.F. gathered together. Vocal solos were given by by Mrs. G. Jackson, Miss Jessie Patterson, and Mr. A. Pink. Games and dancing were enjoyed, with Mrs. R. Bugg at the piano Mr. Harry Scott, violin, and Mr. W. Terrace, melodeon.

The evening closed with the singing of Auld Lang Syne and three cheers for Mr. and Mrs. Freeman.

WELL BABIES' CLINIC.

Open Meeting Yesterday Drew Big Attendance—October Record.

The ladies' room at the G.W.V.A. Hall were packed yesterday with the large crowd of women who attended the open meeting of the Well Babies' Clinic, when Dr. A. W. McPerhson was present to answer question with regard to baby welfare. A number of questions were asked and answered in a very satisfactory manner, and the ladies appeared to take an active interest in the queries, and their explanation. The September attendance at these Clinic meetings was considered to be one of the largest yet, but October bids fair to rival September in this regard, and in the interest manifested in the workings of the Clinic. Mrs. W. Lech, Mrs. Nappe and Miss Marjorie Best were present as voluntary workers yesterday. Tea was served by the King's Daughters.

Astor Adivses Women To Get Into Politics

NUNEATON, Eng., Oct. 21. —Canadian Press. — Viscount Astor advises men to induce their wives to take part in politics."

"It is a matter on which I am well qualified to pass an opinion," declared Lord Astor in a speech. "I have seen more homes wrecked through women concentrating on clothes and gossip than through taking an interest in public affairs. I believe the best woman, the best home maker, is one who is interested in politics. Fear not, brother husband, do what you can to make your wives take part in public affairs."

PREDICTS AERIAL CITIES.

An amazing picture of future cities built far above the earth on platforms reached by tower elevators is presented by Frederick Kiesler, a prominent young Viennese architect. He predicts that houses in the future will be built on platforms supported by steel girders several hundred feet above the ground. They will be erected above beautiful gardens, shady forests, or even above lakes or the sea. Platforms will be provided, too, as landing places for airplanes, he believes.

PARTY INTERNECINE CONFLICTS BECOME MORE LIVELY IN TORONTO

Independent Conservative Wages War on "Machine Domination of Central Body.

NO WITHDRAWALS.

Liberal Candidate Nominated By Association That "Has No Existence."

TORONTO, Ont., Oct. 21.—(Canadian Press). — Party splits, both Liberal and Conservative, continue to keep some of the city ridings here in a political flux.

The scene of the most spectacular contest has shifted from Toronto North-West to the East Centre riding. Here Cecil W. Armstrong, the newspaper man running as an Independent Conservative candidate with Hon. Edmund Bristol as his party opponent, is staging a brisk campaign avowedly against what he and his supporters term "machine domination." Mr. Bristol, official choice of the central body's convention—which the Armstrongites are designating "the machine"— has held the seat of Toronto Centre, part of which is included in the new riding, since 1905.

"If either Conservative candidate retires from this contest it will be Hon. Edmund Bristol," declared Cecil Armstrong's campaign manager yesterday afternoon. "Mr. Armstrong is in it to the end."

"There is not the slightest chance of Mr. Bristol's candidacy being withdrawn," averred Garrett Tyrrell, secretary of the Central. "We are making no efforts at conciliation, because none are necessary. Mr. Bristol's nomination deposit fee is already paid in, and he is the Conservative candidate so far as we are concerned."

The Liberal situation in Toronto North-West has been somewhat clarified by the withdrawal of the Central Liberal Association's nominee, which leaves only one Liberal candidate in the field there at present.

Conservative Deadlock.

Not until Thursday afternoon will it be definitely known whether the Conservative vote in this riding is to be split three ways. There is no sign to-day of the deadlock being broken. If none of the tentative nominees withdraw—and all have declared they are "in it to the fin-

Cow Fell Into Deep Well Gave 50 Men Night's Work

CARGILL, Ont., Oct. 21. — (Canadian Press).—A cow owned by John Keys, Brant Township farmer, residing just south of the town, became separated from the rest of the herd during a blinding snowstorm yesterday afternoon and fell into an unused well situated about the centre of the farm. The well, which is 40 feet deep, had 10 feet of water in it, and when Mr. Keys discovered the animal last night its nose was all that was above water. With the assistance of about 50 men, who worked the greater part of the night, the animal was safely rescued with a block and tackle.

CREW RESCUED FROM STEAMER

Ignacio Florio Has Been Abandoned in Sinking Condition.

OFFICER LOST.

NEW YORK, Oct. 21.— (Canadian Press.)—The Italian freighter Ignacio Florio, which sent out S.O.S. signals on Monday night, was abandoned in a sinking condition this morning after the crew had been rescued by the steamship President Harding, the United States' line was informed by radio. The message here said the President Harding was proceeding to New York with the 38 rescued members of the crew. The rescues were made after the President Harding had stood by the crippled ship all night unable to remove the crew because of the high seas which washed overboard to his death the second officer of the freighter.

The Ignacio left Montreal October 4 for Mediterranean ports.

GAME LAW CRITICIZED.

APSLEY, October 21. — A great deal of hostile criticism is being voiced among the residents of this district in reference to the regulations regarding the issuing of deer licenses this fall.

According to the game laws of 1925 a resident of Ontario must pay $4 for a license to hunt deer while a resident farmer or his son actually living upon and tilling their own land, have the same privilege for only one dollar. This discrimination seems hardly fair to the settlers of this district, it is claimed.

For instance, there are quite a number of men who own and work farms who live in the village away from their farms, and because they are not actually living upon them, they must pay $4 for a license, while a man who lives in a shack and farms an acre or two needs only to pay $1 and yet is much less of a farmer than the first mentioned.

The consensus of opinion here is that the words "actually living upon" should be deleted, or the license fee of one dollar should be issued to settlers indiscriminately whether actualy farmers or not.

Enormous Interests of General Electric in U. S. and Canada

Corporations Charged With Forming a Monopoly in Violation of Anti-Trust Laws, Have Holdings Representing Investments of Two Billion Dollars.

DEFENDANTS FILED DENIAL OF CHARGES.

NEW YORK, Oct. 21 (Canadian Press).—Interests and holdings of the General Electric Company in concerns through the United States and Canada were described at the hearing begun yesterday by the Federal Trade Commission into charges of monopoly and restraint of trade against the Radio Corporation of America, the General Electric Company, and six associated manufacturing interests.

The hearing, which will probably last several weeks, was opened in the downtown office of the Commission. Since the defendants represent an estimated total capital investment of nearly $2,000,000,000, the case is said to be the largest ever brought before the Commission.

Objections to the jurisdiction of the Commission and denial of the charges were filed at the outset by the defendants, who were represented by numerous attorneys. Examiner Wm. C. Reeves, presiding officer, over-ruled the objections.

John P. Cotton, counsel for the Radio Corporation, objected to the charges as "vague," and declared that the alleged practices of the corporation "are not unfair methods of competition," but were actually "beneficial," having created 'the modern art of radio," established a world-wide system of communication, brought entertainment to countless homes and aided in the safe-guarding of life at sea.

The widespread ramifications of the General Electric Company were revealed by the first witness, F. D Kammerer, chief travelling auditor of the General Electric, who read from a list covering 100 typewritten pages when questioned by one of the examiners regarding the physical properties of the company.

Mr. Kammerer's testimony showed that the General Electric Co. owns 94 per cent of the common and 22 per cent of the preferred stock of the Canadian General Electric Co., in addition to $76,000 worth of bonds.

The General Electric was shown to hold interests in hotels, amusement parks, cash stores, fair and exhibition companies, railways and numerous other concerns. Listed among the holdings in which the company has an interests are the New House Hotel Company of Salt Lake City, Utah, the Piggly Wiggly Stores in Tennessee, the Sun Maid Raisin Growers' Association, the Florida State Fair and Amusement Co., The Dallas, Tex., Navigation Co., The Dallas Coliseum Company and the Dallas Hotel Company.

In addition, the company was shown to have holdings in various railways and power plants, the Northwestern Electric Equipment Co., the St. Paul Athletic Club and the Los Angeles Chamber of Commerce.

PRESENTATION TO GIRL AT BENSFORT

Miss Ida Pue is Leaving to Enter Training as a a Nurse.

BENSFORT, Oct. 21 — A very pleasant eevning was spent at the home of Mr. Robert Pue on Wednesday, Oct. 14th, when about thirty of the young people of Miss Emberson's class of the Bensfort United Church met to say goodbye to their class mate, Miss Ida Pue, on the eve of her departure to Sandwich where she is taking a nurse's training course.

After a short program in which Miss Florence Beebe delighted the crowd by giving a recitation, the following address was read by Miss Lottie Perrin while the Misses Millie Nurse and Marjorie Emberson presented Miss Pue with a fountain pen and a French ivory clock.

Dear Ida,—We your class mates friends and Sunday School teacher, have gathered here tonight to express our regret at your departure from our midst. We shall miss your genial companionship and helpfulness in our class and social gatherings. Please accept this little gift as a token of our esteem and regard for you.

We wish you success in your chosen work as you go out from amongst us to prepare for a large field of usefulness. We shall consider you as still one of our number bound together by the gold chain of prayer that binds the whole round world about the feet of God.

Signed on behalf of the Girls' Bible class of the Bensfort United Church of Canada.

M. J. Emberson,
Mrs. Geo. Beebe.

After a bountiful lunch a very enjoyable evening was spent in games, music and songs.

$100.00 IN PRIZES FOR BEST LETTERS

The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co. Offer Twenty-Eight Prizes in a Letter-Writing Competition.

Some years ago the Dr. Williams Medicine Co., of Brockville, Ont., offered a series of prizes to residents of Ontario and Quebec for the best letters describing benefits obtained through the use of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People. Hundreds of letters were submitted in this competition, and yet there must have been thousands of other users of the pills who did not avail themselves of the opportunity to win a prize. To all these another letter-writing competition is offered. Thousands have benefited through the use of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills whose cases have not been reported. These will furnish the material for letters to be written in this contest. There is no demand upon the imagination; every letter must deal with facts and facts only.

THE PRIZES.

The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., of Brockville, Ont., will award a prize of $25.00 for the best letter received on or before the 21st day of November, 1925, from the residents of these provinces on the subject: "Why I recommend Dr. Williams' Pink Pills." A prize of $15.00 will be awarded for the second best letter received; a prize of $10.00 for the third best letter, and twenty-five prizes of $2.00 each for the next best twenty-five letters.

THE CONDITIONS.

The benefit derived from the use of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills described in the letter may be in the writer's own case, or that of some one in the writer's home.

More than one case may be described in the letter, but every statement must be literally and absolutely true.

Every letter must be signed by the full name and correct address of the person sending it. If it describes the case of some person other than the writer of the letter, it must also be signed by the person whose case is described, as a guarantee of the truth of the statements made.

The writer of each letter must give the name of the paper in which he or she saw this announcement.

Fine writing will not win the prize unless you have a good case to describe. The strength of the recommendation and not the style of the letter will be the basis of the award.

The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co. shall have the right to publish any letter entered in this contest, if they desire to do so, whether it wins a prize or not.

The contest will close November 21st, 1925, and the prizes will be awarded as soon as possible thereafter. Do not delay. If you know of a good case write your letter NOW. Observe the above conditions carefully or your letter may be thrown out.

Address all letters as follows:
The Dr. Williams Medicine Co.,
Brockville, Ont.

INDIAN RIVER HALL CROWDED TO HEAR LIBERAL CANDIDATE

Hon. G. N. Gordon Drew Big Attendance in Openinig Country Tour.

DISCUSSES ISSUES.

Eloquent Support Was Given By John Dewart and J. J. Duffus.

When Hon. G. N. Gordon pulled into Indian River last night, he found a cold hall but a warm welcome. And very soon the crowds that thronged the building, standing three deep along the back, chased the wintry atmosphere.

It was, on the word of the chairman, Michael Walsh, the best attended and most enthusiastic meeting that has ever assembled in the hall. Mr. Gordon spoke in the same determined manner that characterized his address in the Grand Opera House on the evening before, holding his hearers by the power of his personality and the impelling force of the facts he presented.

He and the Government he represented, he said, are ready and eager to stand on their record. It has been one of glorious achievement in the face of great odds. And though the government had some anxious months after taking office from a spendthrift administration, Mr. Gordon said he was glad to be there to tell the electors of West Peterboro that Canada is once again on the upward path, having been snatched from the very brink of disaster.

With Mr. Gordon were John Dewart, who extolled the honesty of the present government in office, and J. J. Duffus, who lauded the resources of Canada now just coming to their own through judicious treatment at the hands of the King Government.

Hon Mr. Gordon, who spoke first, in order that he might attend another meeting at Keene, explained at some length the reasons for the redistribution that had been made by the late Parliament. If Peterboro County had not been retained as a unit, he said, a member would have have been lost under the unit of representation. By the plan adopted, this district returns the same number of members to represent it, which is a decided advantage.

Telling the responsibility that rests on the electors at this time the speaker pointed to the huge debt he said the Meighen administration had piled up without arranging for the liquidation of one cent of it. The war debt was incurred without the Government imposing a tax on the incomes of those who were prospering to the extent of millions during the war years, with the result that the people are today laboring under heavy taxes. But not so heavy, he pointed out, as Mr. Meighen's budget arrangements necessitated. In 1924 the King Government collected only 75 cents in taxes where in 1921 the Meighen Government collected $1. "And then they say,' 'the speaker exclaimed, "that taxes are higher! We are collecting $75,000,000 less in taxation than was taken from the people in 1921—and we are still able to show a balance on the right side of the ledger of ordinary expenditures where Mr. Meighen could not even approach a balance."

For first time in thirty years, Mr. Gordon pointed out, the present Government has secured entry to the British market for Canadian cattle, with the result that exports have increased fourfold.

The Meighen outlook on trade within the empire was criticized, when Mr. Gordon pointed with pride to the treaty just put into effect with Australia. Canada ships to Australia $5,000,000 worth of paper alone in a year, and this business is just developing. In return for concessions that open a much vaster market to Canada than is offered to Australia, certain concessions have been made. These will not hurt Canada or Canadian farmers.

Protection Fallacy.

"They say protection will save the day," the speaker continued, "but the protection they seek is protection for certain individual classes at the expense of the mass of the people. The farms of Canada must continue to be as they are today the seat of the nation's prosperity. Anything that hurts the farmer detracts from the prosperity of the city-dweller. And if the buying power of the farmer is reduced through increasing the cost of the things he must have, then the city will suffer too."

Meighen has said he will increase the tariff on farm implements, and you can see where that will put you."

The King Government has aimed at meeting the needs of the country at large.

The export of pulpwood so much condemned by Conservative orators only amounts to about one eighth of the production, Mr. Gordon declared, adding that this should be permitted as it allows farms to be cleared and brings the first revenue to the man who takes up a piece of land.

It is also claimed that expenditures debts and taxes have all been piled up under the present Government, but as a matter of fact the expenditures are $114,000,000 less than under Mr. Meighen. This, the speaker said, is an achievement to be proud of.

The $267,000 spent by Mr. Meighen needlessly in foreclosing the Grand Trunk mortgage, Mr. Gordon said, does not bear out his claim that he protects the people. "We want a protection that will protect every man, woman and child in the home—not a protection for the Big Interests," he said. "Even the advertisements that you see staring you in the face everywhere you go are paid for by grafters and Big Interests. And in spite of it all Mr. Burnham says Meighen will be defeated by a million votes."

In conclusion Mr. Gordon appealed for the support of the electors on the record his government had made, a record that he said was free from taint and scandal, a record of success throughout.

John Dewart.

In a brilliant address delivered in his usual impressive manner, Mr. Dewart deprecated the ability of Mr. Meighen as a doctor and of his high tariff medicine as a cure for Canada —if anything ails Canada. Having recalled to his hearers attention the success that attended the Laurier regime, Mr. Dewart pointed to the analogy between that period and the term of the MacKenzie King administration.

The Fordney tariff has not worked as the United States interests hoped it would, and to-day there is a movement on foot to abolish it. The basic industries of the country must be in a healthy condition before the superstructure will stand the strain. The high tariff in the United States has not helped the basic industries, and it would spell ruin to Canadian prosperity.

In 1921, when times were harder than they are now, Mr. Meighen said nothing about raising the tariff. It is in poor taste for Mr. Meighen to talk depression now in a period of prosperity when he could not cure the actual bad times that existed during his own administration, the speaker thought.

The statistics show that conditions are improving and that the Government is making progress and when that is the case it is the logical thing Mr. Dewart said, to allow it to continue.

The Candidates.

So far as the candidates are concerned, Mr. Dewart said, they are on a par in honor and integrity. Mr. Gordon comes to the constituency with his hands absolutely clean, and is the logical choice for all right-thinking electors on the policies for which he is standing. He comes with a splendid record of achievement during the term he has represented this constituency.

J. J. Duffus.

On his arrival from the Keene meeting, where he had held the fort until Mr. Gordon's arrival, Mr. Duffus declared that although he was a Liberal he believed in everyone having his own opinion, but in times like these comparisons must be made for the country's good. "They talk," he said, of King's closing parliament without waiting for another session. He knew that if he went into this session everyone would want to talk, and would waste the country's money —even Mr. Burnham admits that Mr. King is a statesman in this respect."

"The standard of a government," Mr. Duffus continued, "is judged by the character of its members. The people of this riding should appreciate the privilege of being able to vote for a Cabinet Minister for the first time in history."

Destructive criticism, which the speaker characterized as Mr. Meighen's strong suit, is always the weapon of the mentally impoverished, he said. From one corner of Canada to the other Mr. Meighen has carried the message of the whisper of death. "How could we have an effective immigration scheme with a calamity howler in our midst? If the United States . . . to employ a man in Canada to increase their population they cannot do better than hire Mr. Meighen."

A policy of national unity is needed in Canada now to replace the rule of pessimism disseminated by Mr. Meighen, the speaker declared. The word "Canada" stands for a young and vigorous country, but co-operation is needed. "Mr. Gordon should have your vote and your influence, given in the spirit that because he has been faithful in small things he will be faithful also in large."

PARTY INTERNECINE

ish"—the riding will witness a three-party contest with a triangular "inside" fight among Conservative candidates as a further complication.

James Simpson is the Labor candidate for this constituency, the only Toronto one in which Labor is running a candidate.

No Liberal Reconciliation.

No conciliation is possible either between the rival Liberal organizations in the city, according to Charles H. Collins, president of the Men's Liberal Association, because in his opinion the Central Liberal Association, which has nominated candidates in Toronto South and East Centre, "has no existence."

Mr. Collins said yesterday that his association has full authority vested in it by its constitution. Referring to the other organization, he said:

"I don't recognize it in any way, shape or form."

He characterized the rival candidates as "outlaws," and declared there would be "only one straight Liberal candidate in the field in each riding on Thursday," after the official nominations are made.

President's Statement.

Norman McEachren, president of the Central Liberal Association, who is its candidate in Toronto South, rebutted by declaring that, far from the Central's candidates not being in it, the organization would run more of them, including some 'dark horses' to be entered on nomination day. The organization has also John Callahan for a nominee in Toronto Centre West.

Latest indications are that there will be at the very least 24 candidates contesting Toronto's nine seats.

THE ARCTIC'S STORY.

The main points in the Arctic archipelago visited by G. P. Mackenzie, newly appointed commissioner for the district of Franklin, are shown on the above map. Mr. Mackenzie travels north on the G. G. S. Arctic, which was navigated by the veteran Canadian skipper, Captain J. E. Bernier, who was making the 969th voyage of his career. The boat visited the Royal Canadian Mounted Police posts at Pangnirtung, and Ponds Inlet on Baffin Island, at Dundas Harbor on North Devon Island and at Craig Harbor on Ellesmere Island. The first of these, although well within the Arctic circle, is too far south to be seen on the above map. These four posts were provided with fresh supplies and those of the police who had been there for three years were relieved. Ice prevented the Arctic reaching its most northerly objective Bache Peninsula — but it was able to make a cache of supplies at Fram Haven, just fifteen miles south across Buchanan Bay from the site of the new post which will now be established on Bache Peninsula when the Arctic goes north next summer. In the meantime the supplies will serve as a reserve depot for Staff Sergeant Joy, who remained north to explore Axel Heiberg Island. This was the Canadian territory which the American MacMillan-Navy expedition unsuccessfully tried to use as a base for their planes. Returning southward, the Canadian party crossed to Greenland, visiting at Etah and the more southerly port of Godhavn. When the new post is established next summer, Canada will be able to boast of having the most northerly habitation of any country on the face of the globe. It will be manned by three of the R. C. M. P. Fort Conger, shown on the above map, is not a settlement, but merely the geographical name of a spot visited by Peary and other explorers in their polar dashes.

CHURCH SERVICES WELL ATTENDED

Dr. F. Louis Barber Was Special Preacher on Anniversary Sunday.

WARSAW, Oct. 21.— The anniversary services in the United church were well attended. The church was full in the morning when Dr. F. Louis Barber, bursar of Victoria College, preached on "They shall see His face and His name shall be on their foreheads." He explained very clearly what that meant, namely, that people show by their expression and even features what they are; they become like what they love and admire. There was a full choir, which rendered two selections, and Mr. Henry Batten sang "Nearer My God to Thee." In the evening the church was more crowded. Dr. Barber preached on "Laying the Foundation." He told of several beginnings, which were commercial. He told of the little child born at Bethlehem, sketched His life and how Christianity spread, how it came to England, told of the Pilgrim Fathers, and of others, and showed that to live a life worth while one must go back to Jesus Christ. Dr. Barber is one of those speakers who holds the interest. At both services, even the small children listened attentively.

The evening music was one selection by the choir, a duet by Mrs. Pollock and Mr. Batten, and a quartette by Miss Batten, Mrs. Pollock, Messrs. H. Batten and C. Watts.

The latest silo in this neighborhood was filled on Friday and the men are back at the threshing.

While some corn was extra good much was far below the average. Those who cut with corn binders had difficulty with the short, soft stuff, and when it came to silo filling it was hard to handle.

Farmers are rushing the apple and potato harvest. Much is still out and many potatoes are already housed; one man dug his potatoes and then bought six bags to supply his own needs. Others have fairly good crops, though none are reported up to what they have been.

Milk is taken at Warsaw factory every other day, though there is still a good supply going in.

Foliage is not the brilliant color this year it usually is, and has not been. Even the sumacs turned a brownish red instead of red.

FRONTIER FIGHT LASTED ONE DAY

Bulgars Hoisted White Flag —Due to Misunderstanding.

GREEKS REINFORCED.

ATHENS, Oct. 21.—(Canadian Press).—Fighting between Greek and Bulgarian soldiers on the frontier near Demirsissar ended yesterday when the Bulgarians hoisted a white flag. The fighting had then been going on almost 24 hours. The Bulgarian commander explained that the firing was due to a misunderstanding.

Trouble began when a Greek post on Beless Planino was attacked by Bulgarian regular troops.

Notwithstanding the regrets and explanations offered by Bulgaria, the Greek Government has ordered additional troops to advance and occupy points on the frontier, from which it will be possible to ascertain the strength of the Bulgarian forces. The Government, it is announced, is determined to throw full light on the Bulgarian attack, the real cause of which is still a matter of conjecture.

BOYS DISAPPEARED ARTICLES MISSING

Blankets and Bicycle Vanished When Farmer's Helpers Departed.

CAMPBELLFORD, Oct. 21. — Chief of Police Brown has been asked to locate two boys from the Barnardo Home, who disappeared from the vicinity of Burnbrae and who are suspected of the theft of a bicycle and other articles. William Horne, who was employed on the farm of John Odie, was first missed and with him disappeared a valuable blanket. Another boy, who lived at the home of Thomas Wetherill, is also missing. The boys owned a bicycle between them, but since they disappeared a bicycle has been missed from the home of James Nelson, a neighbor.

It is believed that the boys have gone to the Brighton district to secure work picking apples. Horne had a balance of wages due him when he left his employer.

Sale of Stock.

J. R. Battisby concluded an auction sale of farm stock and implements for Joseph Dickinson on the Allan farm near Warkworth, Monday, when good prices were realized especially for dairy cattle. One pure bred Holstein, the queen of the herd, was disposed of for $117.

Was Drugged By Constipation Poisons

New York City. Mr. Victor Stein writes:—"I never realized why I went around with a dopey, dizzy feeling most of the time. My head would swim and hurt, my stomach orally became upset and food had no appeal. My whole body felt wrong. All this must have been due to the poisons of constipation getting into my system, for after taking your Carter's Little Liver Pills for a while, all these troubles have disappeared."

Carter's Little Liver Pills cause the bowels to move in a gentle but effective manner. They are purely vegetable and free from habit forming drugs. All druggists, 25c, red packages. Try them.

THE BIG ACES HIDE BEHIND

The Man They Once Discarded!

The People of West Peterboro have not short memories.

They remember that ten years ago Mr. Peck's party turned him down when he appeared for nomination after four years' service in the Legislature.

Mr. Peck was elected to the Provincial Legislature and represented the riding there until 1914. Then he appeared before the Conservative party convention on his record, and his friends turned their thumbs down. His service was not such as to warrant his return—his party decided.

And the R. J. Soden who now campaigns for Mr. Peck is the very man who deliberately twisted his nose in 1914 and decided that R. J. Soden was a better man than E. A. Peck.

The opinion of the Conservative party in West Peterborough, expressed in its convention, was that E. A. Peck was not the man to represent the riding in the Provincial House.

Now with a hopeless fight on hand, the big aces are unwilling to face the beating they see coming, and are unwilling to pay the price.

The stalwarts fall back—Roland Denne, J. F. Strickland, V. J. McElderry, all the young men, the talkers of the past ten years, the boasters—and leave the field to Mr Peck. It is an open secret that any one of them could ha e had the nomination, but they, with one accord, agreed they would not be the goats, and they led out Mr. Peck to the slaughter.

The 1925 candidate dropped from public life, apparently, ten years ago, and has not been heard since. He took no part in the public life of the community, and three weeks ago was scarcely known outside his coterie of friends of long ago.

Messrs. Strickland, Denne and McElderry, on the other hand, have been active in public life. They have been Presidents and Secretaries and what-not in the Conservative Association. They are known to everyone in Peterboro.

BUT THEY ARE NOT PINCH-HITTERS.

They won't face the music.

And to his honor be it said that Mr. Peck, for his party's sake, is not flinching in leading a forlorn hope. In spite of deserters and turncoats and jesters among his half hearted supporters, he is doing his best manfully.

BUT MR. PECK CANNOT WIN THIS ELECTION.

The people of West Peterboro know they cannot afford to let him win.

Rejected by his own party, supported now by the man who put him out of office eleven years ago, since when he has been practically retired from public life, what would he do for Peterboro?

His unacquaintance with business and politics evidenced by his addresses, no less than his policies, would prevent him from properly representing the city and help ruin the country. And his dour outlook on life, shown in every meeting he has addressed, would prevent an upward glance at the possibilities that are Canada's through wise administration.

Peterboro needs a young, aggressive man; a man whose own friends respect him for his ability; a man who can impress others with his capacity as a statesman.

Peterboro Needs GORDON!

A CENSUS OF ILLITERATES.

The announcement that a census of illiterates in the United States is to be undertaken next year by the Bureau of Education of the Interior, with the active co-operation of a number of national organizations, will be heard with much interest by Canadians.

Our American cousins, Examiner readers will remember, received a rude shock when the draft for war service was made across the border.

The examination of the millions of young men called to the colors revealed illiteracy to a most unexpected extent, the percentage of those who were unable to read or write being surprisingly large in many sctions of the Republic.

The people of the United States had prided themselves upon the efficiency of their educational system, and the number of illiterates revealed by the draft was an eye-opener.

The census to be taken next year is the first step in a campaign to improve the condition of affairs discovered during the war, a campaign that undoubtedly will be vigorously followed up by the organizations who have pledged their support.

HEALTH MATTERS.

The Board of Health has decided to suggest to the City Council that the Isolation Hospital be operated as a free institution, believing that such a plan would facilitate the prevention of contagious diseases, inasmuch as it would remove one incentive that has caused some families to endeavour to conceal cases of such diseases.

As a matter of fact the hospital is already, according to Mayor Turner, operating on a four-fifths free basis, inasmuch as the annual upkeep costs $10,000 and the fees from patients run only about $2,000 a year.

If the suggested plan will make the Isolation Hospital a more useful factor in dealing with outbreaks of contagious diseases, the city can very well afford to drop all fees in connection with its use.

At the same time the full-time health department, also discussed by the board at its last meeting, would perhaps do more than the Isolation Hospital in the fight against contagious diseases. By the use of the safeguards that are now available, it is possible to immunize the community to a great extent against such diseases.

In other words, as fire prevention is better than fire fighting, prevention in health matters is more satisfactory than having to deal with periodic epidemics, affecting a large number of families.

The initial cost of a full-time health department may seem large, but the result in the long run cannot help but prove a saving.

CANADA'S BIGGEST BUSINESS.

Readers of the Examiner doubtless know that Canada's postal service has developed into a large institution, but they probably do not realize the extent of that development.

The post office, according to a most interesting booklet published by the authority of the Postmaster General, Hon. Charles Murphy, is now Canada's biggest business with 12,400 places of business and 9,000,000 customer-shareholders.

The booklet is issued because it is realized that the people of Canada who supply the money required for the government of the country are seldom told how the several departments of the Government are administered.

The statistics that are issued and the blue books that are published do not reach the general public, and it has been, therefore, thought desirable to present to the Canadian people a brief record of the Post Office Department, this department being chosen because it is pre-eminently the department which serves all the people.

It is full of interesting information, showing how the post office enters into every phase of daily life, carrying letters, transmitting money, encouraging thrift by means of the post office savings bank and taking care of old age in co-operation with the Government annuities branch.

Post offices in operation	12,400
Money order offices	5,600
Mail routes	12,700
Rural delivery boxes	201,000
Street letter boxes and receptacles	8,700

A NOTABLE AND HISTORIC SCENE.

On the principle that the news is too good to be true, the full significance of the European Peace Pact that was signed at Locarno, in Switzerland, on Friday last, is hardly yet realized. Yet there is no doubt that the signing of these peace treaties constitutes a new epoch in Europe. The old enmities have died hard. France and Germany have been inveterate enemies, and one revenge has led to another. There was a time when France became reconciled to the loss of Alsace-Lorraine, and cherished no thought of ever regaining it, but the harsh treatment and renewed insults of Germany stirred up the old spirit of hatred and revenge, and the resolute desire to recover the lost provinces.

It is apparent that Europe has at last begun to learn the lesson of peace. On Friday evening last, as th elengthening shadows of the eventide were beginning to fall across Lake Maggiore, two figures stood arm in arm in a brightly lighted window of the chateau overlooking the peaceful lake. These were Aristide Briand, the Foreign Minister of France, and Hans Luther, Chancellor of the German Republic. They had just affixed their signatures to the document which provided for perpetual peace between France and Germany, and the settlement of all disputes by judicial arbitration. It was a scene never to be forgotten. Both these men were bowed with the weight of years and the burdens of their native countries, fit emblems of Europe weighed down with the hatred and strife and sorrows of the Great War. It was the beginning of an era of peace and goodwill.

Perhaps after all the prophecy may come true that the Great War was a struggle to end war for all time. The staggering economic burdens laid upon Europe by the mad catastrophe, from which the nations are making heroic efforts to escape, have begun to have their effect, and they are at last learning the wisdom and necessity of peace. The prospect of world-wide peace is brighter than it has ever been in the history of the world. For 50 years German militarism and intrigue have been the menace of the nations all over the world. If this has been destroyed there is now hope for the era of peace and good-will. Perhaps Armistice Day, 1925, will be celebrated with a new fervor, and there may be a feeling that the terrible cost of the war has not been in vain. If so there will be universal rejoicing over the victory.

"Victory! Yes, when from blackest loss is born
most radiant gain,
When over the gory fields shall rise the Star that never shall wane,
Then, and then only, our dead shall know that they have not died in vain."

—Brantford Expositor.

DRILL AND DISCIPLINE.

Some excellent and well-intentioned people are greatly concerned about the authorization of cadet corps in our collegiates and public schools. They appear to identify the elementary degree of drill imparted to boys and youths with that admiration and desire of war for its own sake and as a means of general domination, currently known as "militarism." This, however, is an entirely erroneous assumption, unfounded in reason or experience. If there is one country in the world that would, according to this theory, exemplify the spirit of "militarism," that country is Switzerland, beyond peradventure the most pacific nation on the continent of Europe. In that liberty-loving country every man is a soldier so so long as he is actually capable of bearing arms. Beginning at the age of twenty he serves twelve years in the Federal army with an initial training of from sixty-five to ninety days, reduced in later years to eleven days. From the active army he passes into the Landwehr, or national militia, for eight years, with an annual training of eleven days. Beyond this, by a law of 1887, comes the landsturm, only called out in time of war, to which every citizen to the age of 48, not otherwise serving, is liable to be called to serve. Yet this thoroughly national system has not made the Swiss a military people, nor imbued them with the spirit of militarism.

That spirit, as disclosed in the Germany of the Hohenzollerns, is the creation of a professional military caste, of the ambition of the rulers and of education from the cradle in excessive nationalism. It does not exist among a citizen soldiery or in a nation whose ideals have not been warped by a misdirected educational system. The old volunteers of the mother country, now the territorial force, is no more warlike than the body of the citizenship from whom they are drawn. They are there, according to their old motto, "For Defence, not Defiance." Even the officers of the small standing army are indistinguishable from civilians, and get out of their uniforms into "civies" at the first available opportunity. So it is in Canada, where officers and men of the local regiments cannot be differentiated from the general body of the people. Those who join up from patriotic motives or because they like a taste of soldiering, are not thirsting for an opportunity to display their prowess in the field. The fact is that a reasonable amount of drill and discipline is a good thing for boys and young men, and learning to obey is the best preparation for posts of command. Young men who join up in their local regiments should, however, make a point of attending the musters and take their full part in the regimental activities. Duty does not end with enrolment.

Our anti-militaristic friends urge physical training in schools as if there were some necessary antagonism between that and cadet drill. That is another mistake, for these are complementary, not contradictory. To illustrate from Switzerland again. The other day a remarkable photograph was reproduced in a New York paper showing the meeting of the Federal Society of Gymnasts at Geneva, in which 20,000 Swiss members took part. Every one of these men was, no doubt, either in the active army or in the reserves. Physical training, along with a moderate amount of drill and discipline, are invaluable elements in building up a nation's manhood. The drill, no more than the training, fosters militarism.—St. Thomas Times-Journal.

EDITORIAL NOTES AND COMMENT.

Only one more week of being addressed as the "intelligent electors."

After reading the election predictions of all the experts, the man on the street has come to the conclusion that everybody will be elected—or nobody will.

And when we get this campaign over the municipal candidates will begin training for the New Year's handicap.

CHICAGO WHEAT

CHICAGO, Oct. 21 (Canadian Press).—With December delivery the leader, wheat scored a sharp advance in price yesterday, but re-acted before the finish. Talk of something akin to a corner in December wheat here was current and there were reports which were denied later that snow and rain were again impeding threshers in Canada. The wheat market closed nervous at prices ranging from 1-2c net decline to 3-4c advance, December 146 to 146 1-8, and May 142 5-8 to 142 3-4, with corn 1-8 to 5-8c off; oats unchanged to a shade lower, and provisions varying from 5c drop to a rise of 12 cents.

Throughout the day, the attention of wheat traders centered largely on the scantiness of the present stock of wheat in Chicago, and on assertions that the bulk of the meagre supply here might be shipped out at any time. Whether a material increase of domestic farm offerings would take place soon enough to relieve traders who are under contract to deliver wheat here in December was much discussed. The fact that only a single carload of wheat arrived in Chicago yesterday, and that the stock of wheat at Minneapolis has decreased 175,000 bushels in the last three days tended to emphasize the difficulties of the situation and to give a life to values. Later deliveries of wheat than December showed more or less of a downward trend in price until word was received that the weather in Canada had again become unfavorable for threshing. Then an all-round advance in quotations ensued, with some buying due also to reports of unseasonable cold in Argentina and to need of rain there as well as in sections of Australia. Besides, the world's visible supply total showed an increase of 1,887,000 bushels as against 13,906,000 bushels a year ago. Profit-taking sales, however, gave force to the subsequent reaction.

MONTREAL MARKETS

MONTREAL, Oct. 21 (Canadian Press).—There was an improved inquiry from foreign buyers in the local grain market yesterday and some business was done in oats and barley. The market for oats was unchanged, but prices were well maintained.

No new developments took place in the flour situation, prices being generally maintained with a fair volume of business. A firm feeling prevailed in the market for winter wheat, and prices were unchanged.

Business transacted in most lines of millfeed was fair and the market was moderately active, with a steady undertone. Standard grades of rolled oats were steady.

The trade in baled hay was fair, there being a steady demand from most sources for supplies and prices were unchanged.

Beans were quoted at from $2.40 to $2.50 per bushel.

A very firm market prevails in the local market for strictly fresh eggs on account of the continued light supplies and the good demand. Prices were unchanged. The market for storage eggs remains steady. The receipts yesterday were 329 cases, as against 1,740 for the same day last week, and 2,018 for the corresponding day a year ago.

There continues to be a fair amount of excitement in the local potato situation, and prices have scored another advance of 20 cents to 30 cents per bag, which is due to the very small supplies coming forward here on account of the unfavorable weather than has prevailed in the province of Quebec.

The receipts of butter in Montreal yesterday were 1,863 packages, as against 986 for the same day last week, and 2,004 for the corresponding day a year ago. The trade is better was reported quiet owing to the absence of any important demand from outside buyers for supplies.

The total exports of cheese from the whole of Canada for the month of September, 1925, according to the External Trade Department of the Dominion Government, were 226,462 one hundred pounds, as against 235,077 for the previous month, and 203,949 for the month of September, 1924, while the total shipments for the twelve months ending September 30, 1925, were 1,472,928 one hundred pounds, as compared with 1,152,434 for the previous twelve months.

The receipts of cheese in Montreal yesterday were 10,982 boxes, as compared with 9,227 for the same day last week, and 9,218 for the corresponding day a year ago. There was a lull in the foreign demand for supplies and some cable advices received were not so encouraging with the result that the market was quieter and the undertone easier.

TORONTO LIVESTOCK

TORONTO, Oct. 21.—Trading was slow again and average quality handyweight butchers were easier in price.

Calves are down $2 a cwt. from the recent top at Buffalo, and this to some extent accounts for the decline of $1 a cwt. here. Top calves here are now 12 1-2 cent. a pound common calves are 6 to 8 cents, and lassers are averaging 5 cents a pound.

The run of lambs is not too heavy for the market, and prices are holding with a bottom of 12 cents a pound for ewes, and good lambs 12 1-2 cents. A fair run of sheep sold yesterday with a top of 7 1-2 cents a pound.

Packers are united in their bid of $11.25 a cwt. f.o.b. for hogs. Commission men are having difficulty in getting shippers to accept this cut of 50 cents a cwt., and it is likely that higher than the bid price will have to be paid.

OPEN LETTER NO. 26

RT. HON. W. L. MACKENZIE KING,
Prime Minister and President of the Priuy Council, Ottawa.

Dear Sir:

A Cockney immigrant was recently berating a United States shopkeeper for asking fifty cents for a certain article. "Why, where I come from," he protested, "I could buy that for a shillin'." "Then why didn't you stay in the place you came from?" retorted the shop-keeper. "Because I didn't have the shillin'!" blandly admitted the Cockney.

The above incident suggests to me a slogan that might do splendid service in the forthcoming election—"Better a dollar and no imported bargains, than imported bargains and no dollar!"

Of course the ideal arrangement would be to have the bargains, as well as the dollars wherewith to secure the bargains. But experience has taught us that we cannot always have both, and a steadily increasing number of Canadians have been learning, during the past three years, that bargains only add poignancy to one's grief when one lacks the money to buy even necessities.

Keep on reducing the tariff, throw open our markets more and more to the dumpings of mass production from the United States and to the off-scourings of European sweat-shops where child labor is exploited, and you will inevitably bring to Canadian consumers the offer of more bargains and greater bargains!

Recalling the irresistible attraction that bargains are said to have for women, coupled with the fact that women control nearly half the pollable vote in Canada, some candidates might regard it as a good stroke of political business to bid for the women vote on a platform of more imported bargains, greater imported bargains.

But I hope—in fact I'm sure—you won't make that mistake. You know, or ought to know, that Canadian women are much too canny to swallow any such bait. The great majority of them, in their regular occupation of looking after a home, must depend upon a husband, or a father, or a brother, or a son, for the money wherewith to buy supplies needed in the home. And they know full well that when the earnings of that husband, that father, that brother, or that son are reduced by idle times or dullness of trade, the money available to them to run the home is correspondingly reduced.

Let the candidate who regards all women as inveterate hunters of imported bargains appeal for their support on the contrary slogan—"Better imported bargains and no dollar, than a dollar and no imported bargains," and see what happens!

Yours respectfully,

J. J. GIBBONS,
President.

WANT TO RETAIN MILITARY RANKS IN POLICE FORCE

No Agreement Yet To Allies' Demand to Remove Army Titles.

OF MINOR IMPORTANCE

German Government Believes Change of Names Would Lower Efficiency.

BERLIN, Oct. 21.—(Canadian Press).—Herr Von Hoesch, German Ambassador to France, who has been in consultation with the Foreign Office, will shortly return to his post in Paris bearing the German Government's final reply to the Allies' recent disarmament note.

Fundamentally the German Government is prepared to meet the requirements upon which the evacuation of the Cologne area was made contingent; the only point on which an accord has not yet been reached concerns the demand of the Allies that designations as to rank in German police organizations shall be abolished.

The German Government is inclined to consider this as a point of minor importance, but believes that the efficiency of the security police demands rigid organization and that continuance of the rank designations, such as Major, Captain, Lieutenant, cannot be subdivided by other classifications. "Each such efficient organizations as the London and New York police forces are adorned with captains, lieutenants and sergeants," said a Government official yesterday, "and as Germans have a nature penchant for titles, there is considerable sentimental opposition among the security police to any attempt to convert that body into a civilian agency for the maintenance of law and order."

On most other points the German Government is reported to have yielded to the Allies' criticism that the security police are a quasi military organization.

CANDIDATE'S CAR RAN INTO TRUCK

NO ONE INJURED.

INGERSOLL, Oct. 21 (Canadian Press).—Donald Sutherland, the Conservative candidate in South Oxford, figured in an automobile smash on Thames Street here yesterday morning when his own car, driven by his son, Evan, struck a heavy gravel truck and was seriously damaged in the front portions. Ahead of the Sutherland car, another car suddenly stopped. Evan Sutherland to avoid striking this car, turned out sharply to his left and ran into the heavy truck. The bumper and one fender were smashed on his car. The left tire was destroyed and other minor damages sustained. No one was injured.

BERLIN PAPER SAYS TREATY IMPORTANT

All Stipulations of Versailles Treaty Now Subject in Arbitration.

BERLIN, Oct. 20 (Canadian Press). — Diplomatische Politische Korrospondenz, regarded as the mouthpiece for official quarters, lays stress today on the importance of the Locarno arbitration treatries. It contends that under them almost all the stipulations of the Versailles Treaty become subject to arbitration.

The newspaper also declares that the German delgation at Locarno was convinced that the expectations of German people on all essential questions, especially regarding the Rhineland occupation, would be realized."

"Therefore," it adds, "Germany is justified in greeting the Locarno issue as warmly as the other signatory Powers."

A JUVENILE DIPLOMAT

"Mother," said Bobbie, after a full week of obedience, "have I been a good boy lately?"

"Yes, dear, a very, very good boy."

"And do you trust me?"

But the chastened child was not pacified. "I mean really, really trust me, you know?"

"Yes, I really, really trust you. Why do you ask?"

"Just because if you trust me like you say you do why do you go on hiding the jam?")—The South Carolina Odd Fellow.

WARM WELCOME WAS ACCORDED A. CHAMBERLAIN

PROUD OF BRITAIN.

LONDON, Oct. 21. — (Canadian Press).—Austen Chamberlain, Great Britain's Foreign Secretary, received a warm welcome on his return last evening from Locarno, where he played a leading part in the negotiation of the Rhine security pact and collateral treaties.

When his train pulled into the Victoria Station he found on the platform awaiting him a distinguished gathering, including Premier Baldwin and Mrs. Baldwin, representatives of King George and of the Prince of Wales, diplomats of all the nations that were represented at Locarno and a large number of the general public.

There were cheers as Mr. Chamberlain stepped off the train, escorting his wife, whose arms were promptly filled with flowers to add to the bouquets with which she was presented at Paris, where her distinguished husband stopped for conferences with the French Premier.

"My heart is very full as I come back to my native land. I am proud of the part my country has played and in the confidence placed in her word by all the nations whose representatives assembled at Locarno.

"For myself, I am full of gratitude that it has been given me to represent my sovereign at such a moment. The treaties initialled at Locarno threaten none, are directed against no nation, secure the safety of many and are welcomed by all.

"I rejoice in the confirmation of our unshaken friendship with France in the reconfirmation of our determination to secure the inviolability and liberty of Belgium, and in the presence of Italy at our side to guarantee with us the peace of the west.

"I rejoice the more because in these records is sealed our common reconciliation with Germany and because the peace, with its foundation in the west, finds fulfillment in the east. I pray that the sunshine of Locarno may be reflected in the hearts and minds of men."

DRUSES IN SYRIA AGAIN REVOLTED AGAINST FRANCE

24 HOURS' FIGHTING.

Sarraial's Terms of Surrender Were Accepted By Rebel Chiefs.

DAMASCUS, Syria, Oct. 21. — (Canadian Press).—An open revolt in the Moslem section of Damascus, into which bands of rebel Druse tribesmen had infiltrated, was put down by the French late yesterday, but only after artillery, armored cars and tanks had been called into action and heavy damage done in the insurgent quarters of the city.

Moslem insurgent leaders, at the end of 24 hours of fierce resistance by the rebels, offered to surrender to General Sarrail, the French High Commissioner, and later accepted his terms. These included a heavy fine and the delivery of several thousand rifles.

Bands of the Druses who have been fighting the French regime in Syria for the last three months, had filtered into the southern part of Damascus. There they were joined by the local population, and at 9 o'clock on Monday night suddenly attacked the French occupants. The French troops managed to retain possession of the public utilities, public buildings and military establishments against which the insurgents maintained a continuous rifle fire. The rebels set fire to many stores and private houses erected barricades and carried on a vigorous resistance to the French counter-action.

The French replied by training their artillery on the Moslem section, and bombarded the insurgent quarters throughout the night and yesterday. Armored cars and tanks were called into action. The Moslem quarters suffered heavy damage, both from the work of rebel incendiaries and the French artillery bombardment.

The French say their own losses were slight. General Sarrail was away from Damascus on an inspection trip when the outbreak began, but hurriedly returned to the city. When the rebel leaders made their offer of surrender he sent his aide to state his conditions, which were accepted.

WINNIPEG, October 16, 1925

TO THE RAILWAY WORKERS OF CANADA.

Dear Sirs:

I am credibly informed that a whispering campaign is being carried on in the endeavor to misrepresent my views, and the attitude of the Conservative Party, towards the Canadian National Railway System and the Canadian Pacific Railway Company.

In order that there may be no doubt in your mind as to where I stand on railway amalgamation, I give you my personal assurance that I have never given the slightest support to it, and I will oppose, either in office or in opposition, Parliament dealing with the question of amalgamation, unless as an issue to be placed squarely before the people at a future election for their decision.

Increased population and traffic, and not amalgamation, are needed to solve Canada's Railway problem. My railway policy is bound up with a reasonable and stable protective tariff, bringing with it prosperity and increased railway earnings, thus assuring regular full time employment for Canadian railroad workers, as against short time now prevailing in many branches of the railway service.

With my best wishes for a prosperous future,

I am,

Yours very truly,

(ARTHUR MEIGHEN)

HUGE CROWD AT FOWL SUPPER

More Than 900 Were Entertained at Campbellford Church.

GOOD PROGRAMME.

CAMPBELLFORD, Oct. 21. — The congregation of St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church set a new record for social functions Tuesday night, when they entertained upwards of 900 at a fowl supper, the total receipts amounting to $420. The large crowd was handled without confusion and everybody was served, a large quantity left-over provisions being disposed of at the close of the evening by private sale. These sales will bring the total receipts to over $450.

While the guests waiting in the body of the church for their turn at the supper tables, they were entertained with musical selections by the Blue String Orchestra and numbers on the organ played by Mr. Pearson, organist and choir leader, who was assisted by a specially selected orchestra from the Northumberland Band, of which Mr. Pearson is director.

After the supper, the following programme was rendered, Rev. James Grier, the pastor of the church, presiding. Solos by Wm. Collison, who consented to substitute for Mrs. Payne, who was ill; solos by Miss Helen McDonald, reading and solo by Miss Lillian Hay; anthem by St. Andrew's choir; address and solo by Rev. G. C. Clarke, rector of Christ Church; solo by Miss Hazel Atkinson; selection by the Junior choir, consisting of 14 girls, whom Mr. Pearson is training; addresses by Rev. D. A McKenzie of Burnbrae, and Rev. R. Simpson of Stirling.

Rev. D. A. Thomson of Hastings, who was expected, is on his vacation and Rev. Wesley Elliott and Rev. C. D. Daniel, who had been invited to take part in the programme, were unable to do so, and sent regrets: Mr. Elliott being present for a short time early in the evening.

On behalf of the managers of the church, Mr. Grier thanked all those who had in any way contributed to the success of the entertainment.

CAILLAUX'S PROJECTS.

PARIS, Oct. 21. — (Canadian Press).—M. Caillaux is encountering difficulties in elaborating his plan for the financial restoration of the French treasury. This he outlined to the Cabinet yesterday but he requested some delay in order to complete his work. At his request the convening of Parliament, which had been fixed for October 27, was postponed until October 29.

The Finance Minister explained that he and his assistants were still working on the projects for which France was waiting expectantly.

It is no secret in official circles that the French gold loan has been a disappointment. Subscriptions amounting to probably not more than seven billion francs were entered, whereas twice or thrice that amount was expected. It was said in semi-official circles after the Cabinet Council yetserday that one item of M. Caillaux's project calls for the issue of an additional ten billion francs paper money early in November.

OLD ALCHEMISTS FORMULA IS LOST

Investigators Cannot Find a Way to Turn Mercury to Gold

NEW YORK, Oct. 20.—(Canadian Press.)—The formula, if it ever existed, of the ancient alchemists for turning baser metals into gold, apparently died with them. This was the gist of a report yesterday by Scientific American, disclosing the failure of its investigators, after nearly a year's research, to turn mercury into gold as Professor Adolph Miethe, a German chemist, declared he had done.

VETERAN MINISTER PREACHED SERMON

Good Music and Inspiring Address at United Church Anniversary Services.

MILLBROOK, Oct. 21.—Large congregations were present on Sunday both morning and evening for the anniversary services in connection with the United Church, the sermons preached by Rev. A. K. McLeod, for forty years pastor of St. Andrews' Presbyterian Church, Brighton, being of an inspirational and evangelistic character.

Fall grains and flowers, tastefully arranged about the altar, made suitable decorations for the anniversary occasion. The choir, under the leadership of Mrs. H. W. Johnston, had prepared special music, the selections in the morning including an anthem, "O Lord, How Excellent is Thy Name"; a solo, "Beautiful Garden of Prayer," by F. N. Alcorn, and a quartette, "Sometime, Somewhere," by Messrs. W. H. Coombe, H. W. Johnston, M. McDowell and V. C. Lambert. In the evening the quartette number was "Nearer My God To Thee," the anthems, "A Dream of Paradise" and "The Lord is Exalted," and the concluding selection, a duet, "Love Divine," by Mr. and Mrs. H. W. Johnston.

Mr. McLeod's morning sermon was based upon Joshua 1, 1-9, with especial reference to the last clause of verse 9, "The Lord, thy God, is with thee whithersoever thou goest."

"The secret of success is suggested by the text, the orders which accompany the promise being 'Turn not to the right hand or the left.' Difficulties lie in the way of this straight course, but since help is from a divine source, obstacles will be removed."

"Turning" implies sin, and sin means law-breaking, with liability to punishment. It is impossible to violate God's law, and not suffer in the tone of the spiritual life. Where, then, is the cure for a sin-sick soul? "Let the wicked forsake his way, and the unrighteous man his thoughts, and let return unto the Lord, and He will abundantly pardon."

"The text gives the reason for perseverance in the Christian life. True progress begins when one has become a new creature in Christ Jesus, but Satan immediately puts stumbling blocks in the way, and would turn the soul aside that confesses the Saviour as Lord. The Christian, however, is bound to prosper and go on in the way of life. Why? He has the Almighty strength on his side. 'The Lord, thy God, is with thee whithersoever thou goest.'

"It explains the progress of Christianity from its small beginning when John pointed out Jesus and said, 'Behold the Lamb of God,' until it grew, under Peter's preaching on the day of Pentecost, to three thousand souls, then to five thousand, and now there are four hundred million Christians in the world. Peter was won as the result of John's brief sermon, Andrew bringing his brother to Christ, but did he have no opposition? There were ten persecutions organized under Nero, but no matter what the hindrances, even the Red Sea will divide, for the Lord is with His people, and we have reason to be courageous."

In the text, also, we have the permanence of the Scriptures explained. Philosophers, infidels, men of science and many others attack the word of God, endeavoring to blunt the point and turn the edge of the divine truth. Still it stands in the name and strength of God against man. Properly searching the Scriptures spoils all other reading. The oldest book is always new. All the prosperous nations of the world are those which observe the word of God. The church is the hope of the world because it follows the teaching of the Bible.

Lastly, the promise of the text explains the triumph of the dying hour. Burned with fear or smiling in the face of the last enemy, what is the secret here? The infidel says death is "a leap in the dark." The Christian like Paul says, "For me to live is Christ, and to die is gain."

"The Lord thy God is with thee" is true; move on straight, observe to do all that He has commanded, "then shalt thou make thy way prosperous, and then shalt thou have good success."

A thank-offering of seven hundred dollars was asked by the board on Sunday, and the response was generous, nearly six hundred being placed on the plates, with more yet to come in. The ushers were chosen from among the young men who are interested in the welfare of the United Church and becoming active workers, the names including J. Dyam, J. Larmer, M. Ball and E. Burnham.

That Tariff Commission--When?

On March 5th and 6th, 1923, I endeavored to persuade the Hon. Mr. Robb and the Hon. Mr. Motherwell that the King Government should appoint a Tariff Commission similar to that set up by the United States; or thousands of industrial companies in Canada would go out of business.

These Ministers ridiculed the idea; but now, at this late date, the Premier announces that a Tariff Board is to be appointed, the personnel to be announced after election.

BUT WILL IT EVER BE APPOINTED?

Will the promise of the Premier satisfy the hundreds of Liberals whose factories are now closed or working part time.

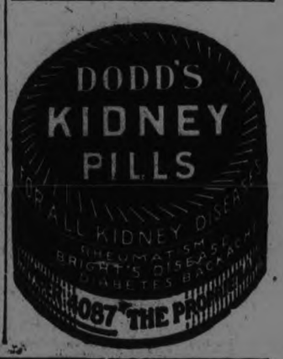
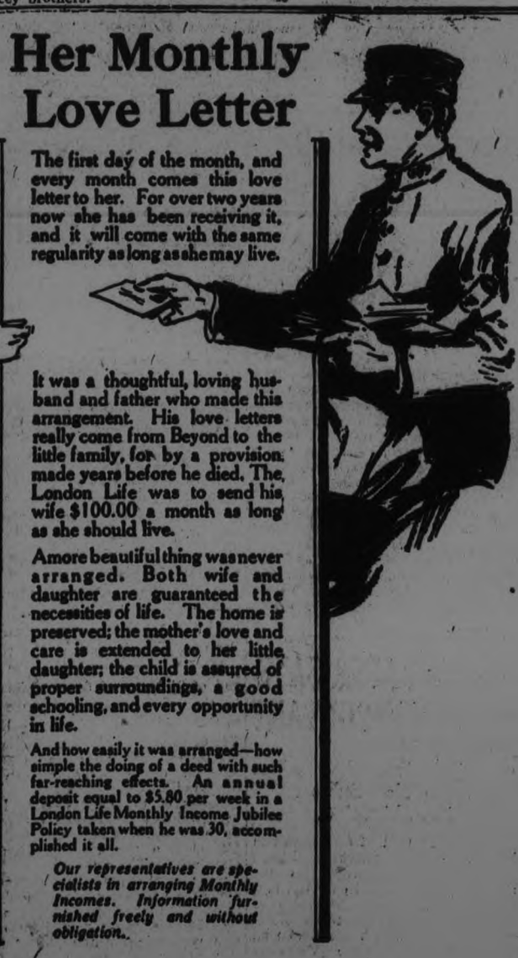
Now that winter is approaching, the aurora borealis is making its appearance. The aurora is much more frequent in winter than in summer. December and January usually give the most brilliant displays, but the lights have been seen in every month of the year. The usual colors of the dancing streams of light are white and red. Green is sometimes seen high in the sky, but violet is very unusual. Auroras are most frequent and brilliant during sun storms. When big storms are on, both Poles are surrounded by rings of dancing radiance, while the compass jumps about oddly, and the telegraph wires frequently refuse to work.

There may be only one head to a family, but it's difficult to believe it when the millinery bills comes in.



Her Monthly Love Letter



The first day of the month, and every month comes this love letter to her. For over two years now she has been receiving it, and it will come with the same regularity as long as she may live.

It was a thoughtful, loving husband and father who made this arrangement. His love letters really come from Beyond to the little family, for by a provision made years before he died, The London Life was to send his wife $100.00 a month as long as she should live.

A more beautiful thing was never arranged. Both wife and daughter are guaranteed the necessities of life. The home is preserved; the mother's love and care is extended to her little daughter; the child is assured of proper surroundings, a good schooling, and every opportunity in life.

And how easily it was arranged—how simple the doing of a deed with such far-reaching effects. An annual deposit equal to $5.80 per week in a London Life Monthly Income Jubilee Policy taken when he was 30, accomplished it all.

CITY'S POWER RATES NEXT TO BE INCREASED WARDEN RYE HINTS AT DOURO CONSUMERS' MEETING

Sir Adam Beck's Successor Regards Toronto Rates Too Low, Warden Hears.

AUBURN MEETING.

Warden Expects Soon to Hear "Squeal From Peterboro" When Rates Are "Jacked Up."

Power rates in Peterboro will be increased in the near future according to the prophetic hint which Warden H. B. Rye dropped last night at the meeting in the Auburn Sunday School of residents of Douro who appointed Mr. M. O'Heron and George Curtis as representatives with Reeve Coughlin on the committee which has been organized by suburban dwellers of North Monaghan and Smith townships to protest to the Hydro-Electric Commission against the new domesic power rates which take effect on November 1st.

The Warden expressed the belief that the householders of North Monaghan had started a movement against higher rates which would become more powerful and articulate as other and larger municipalities were affected by the stepping-up of charges which the Hydro-Electric Commission are understood to have under consideration. And one of the first allies in adversity would probably be the city of Peterboro.

"I think you will soon hear a squeal from the city," said North Monaghan's reeve. "In the near future the power rates in the city are going to be jacked up a little, and they will add little more weight to the ball we've started rolling. We may have a lot of municipalities behind us before this thing is ended. I unde rstand that the new man in Sir Adam Beck's place considers that the Hydro has not been charging enough for power, and that one of the first places booked for an increase is Toronto itself."

A Campbellford Bill

The fact that Warden Rye has shown at the three suburban meetings that he possessed certain inside information of the circumstances attending the annoucement of the increased domestic power rates suggests that his prediction last night may be unpleasantly and unprofitably realized before long in the city's relations with the Hydro. And by way of rubbing it in or of aggravating the apprehension he aroused, Mr. Rye quoted a Campbellford house lighting bill which was handed to him by Mr. O'Heron, the chairman of the meeting.

"Of course they were not foolish enough to sell their birthright," said the Warden. "They have their own public ownership of power for they develop it for themselves.

The bill was for a consumption of 92 kwh, which Mr. Rye said was unusually large for the average home. The fixed or service charge amounted to 71c and the amount for the power consumed 72 kwh at 2c came to $1.44 and 20 kwh at 1c cost 20c making a total of $2.36 for two months, and this was reduced to $2.12 by ten per cent discount. This bill was less than the connected load or service charge of $2.50 for two months which the suburban householders are now called upon to pay apart from cost of the power they used.

Monaghan Suspicious

Mr. Rye then referred to the suspicions in North Monaghan that the increase in the rates was a scheme engineered by the city through the Utilites Commission to force the suburbs into the city. The Warden disagreed entirely with this opinion

"I can't see what the city would have to gain by taking the suburbs in if they could," Mr. Rye said. "As I see it, the city has now too much vacant land from which they are getting no revenue. Rather than extend their area it would be better for the city to consolidate what it has. It needs more buildings in restricted areas, and more buildings generally within its boundaries. As an illustration I know of a property which a few years ago was bringing the city only $3,000 a year in taxes. Then it was built up and is returning $33,000 a year in taxes without the expenditure of an extra dollar by the city.

Suppose the city could go on and take in a larger area it would be faced with the expense of providing through sections it could not expect sidewalks, sewers and water service to get any revenue from for some time."

Mr. Rye declared that he could not understand why the Hydro should find it necessary to charge 82% more to transmit power into the suburbs than to the houses on the city side of the boundaries. But even then, as a matter of argument, who would take care of this difference if the suburbs were joined to the city. Mr. Rye did not hold the Utilities Commission to blame for the increased power rates. They had gone too far with their extensions and were checked up by the Hydro and forced to quit.

"If the Utilities Commission in the past made a mistake perhaps they might be liable for this trouble," Mr. Rye commented.

About twenty men and women from the Douro front of the city attended the meeting. Most of the discussion followed the topics brought out at the Monaghan and Smith conferences. Mr. Rye stated that W. H. Bradburn, M.P.P., was going to Toronto on Thursday and would arrange with the Hydro-Electric Commission for an early interview with the committee from the suburbs.

"He doesn't seem to hold out much hope of us getting anything," remarked Mr. Rye. "However, the city is in a tight corner and I don't think any of us need worry about our lights being cut off at least not until pressure might be brought to bear on the Utilities Commission by the Hydro. The Utilities are not pressing this. They are simply taking orders from the Hydro, and the Utilities do not want to lose any of its customers. There would be 700 meters to be cut out, and our best move is to stand together until the committee comes back with a report. Smith and Monaghan power users pledged themselves not to sign the new contracts until then. I hope the meeting will be next week. If it is me may be able to report to you before the first of November, and after that you can individually suit yourselves as to what you will do."

Among those who took part in the discussion were J. D. Manley of Smith, Mr. O'Heron, George, Edward and Arthur Curtis, W. C. Spenceley, Mr. Long and others including several of the women present. Mr. O'Heron proposed that Col. Dalton Johnston, M.P.P. for East Peterboro, be invited to accompany the Committee to strengthen its appeal to the Hydro-Electric Commission.

The meeting closed with the singing of the National Anthem after a motion of thanks had been passed and conveyed to Warden Rye and Mr. Manley.

FROM MR. SULLIVAN.

Peterboro, Oct. 15, 1925.

To the Editor The Examiner.

Dear Sir,—In Thursday night's Examiner there is a report of a lecture by Mr. O'Connor in All Saints' Anglican Church on the present conditions in the Irish Free State that gives us very little information about the Free State, but a great deal of misinformation about the Catholic Church.

For instance, the gentleman makes the statement that Catholics know only two texts of Scripture. This is an absolutely false statement. For instance, I am quite familiar with a text that states, "Thou shalt not bear false witness against thy neighbor," which I would advise the gentleman to read carefully.

As a matter of fact, every Sunday of the year extracts of the Scriptures are read in the English language and sermons preached thereon in all Catholic churches, and the people are allowed free access to the Bible at all times.

In conclusion our friend remarks that the Irish are beginning to realize that Protestantism has something to offer them. I would respectfully ask which of the two hundred odd conflicting sects?—Yours truly,

FRED SULLIVAN.

FROM MR. MERRILL.

To the Editor of The Examiner:

Dear Sir,—Our country's greatness will never be determined by our Toryism, our Gritism or our Laborism, but by the individuality and the personality of people we elect into power. A noble example of statesmanship presented itself to me last week when a humble farmer, an ex-M.P.P., explained how he was approached to sign a petition to get out of prison on parole the villains who had perjured themselves in an effort to rob a young woman who was highly respected and beautiful of that which was most sacred to her. His answer was no; the Judge had made his decision. I am not going to interfere with justice. Let them pay the penalty. We want men in the public life of Canada like that great nation builder, Abraham Lincoln, great lawyer as he was, while in public life washed his hands clean of every case that was shady or low. We want men that are law upholders, not law beaters, and we that are electors, let us mark our ballot for the man that we can trust the most to make a greater Canada, both morally and politically. Thank you, I remain,

Yours,

W. H. MERRILL.

FROM MR. MILLARD.

302 Louis St., Peterboro.

To the Editor of The Examiner:

Sir.—Kindly insert in Voice of People. The startling figures which the Liberal Publicity Committee published in your issue of the 17th inst., in respect to the great decrease of woollen products and textiles imported during 1924 compared with the same in 1921 are not so startling as many would imagine.

Mr. Meighen knew in 1921 that the importation of such goods from other countries was ruinous to this country and came to the country with a protective policy on which "owing to the empty promises made by Mr. King to workers and returned soldiers and by his unpatriotic stand against conscription" Mr. Meighen was defeated.

Now Mr. King and his goat getters are out again with their variation of empty promises. While Mr. Meighen has adhered to his protective policy which "if this country is to prosper," must be accepted by the working classes on October 29.

It is up to the working classes not to be baffled by figures, but in this case "even if true, they are easily understood.

In the first place, the working classes owing to trade depression "through foreign imports" had not the same purchasing power in 1924 as they had in 1921.

And secondly, between those years "through foreign competition" half a million Canadian born citizens were forced to leave their country, and the United States are benefitting by their labor and purchasing power which Canada has lost.

And thirdly, the people emigrating to this country usually come from countries where such woollens and textiles can be made and bought much cheaper than in this country, and usually bring enough to carry them for a few years with them: so "when taken into consideration" the startling contrasts between the figures for those two years are easily explained.

ANNIVERSARY OF UNITED CHURCH

Rev. J. H. Edmison Was Special Preacher at Lakefield Church.

EVENING SERVICE.

LAKEFIELD, Oct. 21.—Special sevices were held in the United (Presbyterian) Church on Sunday morning, the anniversary of the Lakefield Presbyterian Church, Rev. J. H. Edmison, D.D., of Toronto, was the special preacher at both morning and evening services. The evening service was attended by the congregations of the Baptist and Regent Street Churches, and Rev. W. H. Howard and Rev. S. A. Kemp assisted in the service. The church was decorated with flowers, grain, autumn leaves and potted plants. The choir rendered special music and in the evening was assisted by members of the Regent Street Choir. A quartette by Mesdames Burrows and McMillan and Messrs. A. B. Burrows and R. Payne, and a solo by Mrs. J. R Hull were special features

Dr Edmison took his text from the 12th Chapter of St. Mark's Gospel: "She hath done what she could," relating to the story of the poor widow who gave her all to God.

It was the Tuesday before the Passover, and there was a very great crowd in Jerusalem, in fact it was estimated that there were a million persons in the city at the time, among them the Herodians (the politicians and statesmen) with their discussions of the political questions, the Sadducees, who were the scholars, and of the Agnostics, and the Pharisees, who were the church goers and theologians. There they were, the very rich and the very poor. The Lord is there with His disciples moving in the throng, sad-hearted, but His face brightens at the sight of the poor widow who timidly treads her way through the crowd and puts her two mites in the treasure box. He says she did more than they all, for she gave her all to God. At the great final day of judgment, there will doubtless be many surprises, when all are face to face with Christ, who could single this poor woman out of a million people. God values the giver more than the gifts, the best gift is given by love, loyalty and sacrifice, like the gift of Mary of the box of costly aintment for which the disciples rebuked her for her extravagance, but who would not be extravagant out of a heart over-flowing with love If Mary had been more economical, less of the fragrance of that precious ointment would have floated down to the present day. People are apt to forget that all is God's, to give or to withhold, for they are helplessly dependent upon God for what they have. The speaker admitted that he was old-fashioned enough to believe in the system of tithes, and he had seen groups of people in his travels all over the continent who practiced the system, and he never saw a man poorer because of it. Let the young people start right and open an account with God., he said.

"We should give our children to God and dedicate them to His service and let our constant prayer be that they be led to places of His selection," he said.

There is also service to one's fellow men, and there is often a great temptation to do less than one's best but one can never know the temptation which the woman in the story had to withold one of the coins, but she gave both all she possessed, and the Lord's words of praise: "She hath done what she could," has sounded down the ages.

"In the measure we love Jesus Christ we will love others and be interested in them we can't believe that St. Paul was not interested in others," said the speaker. Those of the United Church who are making a special study of St. Paul's Epistle of the Ephesians will realize more and more that St. Paul was the wonder of the early church, in fact of all ages. His soul was magnetized by the love of Christ and the power of the vision seen on the Damascus road never left him, although it is very doubtful if he never saw Christ in the flesh. He heard no voice but Christ's, there is no more absolute surrender and passionate surrender than St. Paul's, and it was that which made him the greatest missionary of all ages. Love of Christ is measured by deeds for others and the interest shown in others is the test of discipleship. "Be faithful in that which is least.' The test was applied to St. Peter after the resurrection, when the Lord said: "Simon, son of Jonas, lovest thou Me," and in St. Peter's ready affirmative," the Lord said: "Feed My Sheep." One must realize the Cross with its bleeding burden and learn of His spirit which came not to be ministered unto, but to minister.

A fowl supper, followed by a concert in the Church, will be held on Tuesday evening.

COLLEGIATE INSTITUTE EXTRAVAGANCE (?)

To the Editor of the Examiner:

Dear Sir: Although I know that budding politicians at the present time have first claim upon the Vox Populi column I am asking you to publish this letter as being in the public interest.

At two recent meetings of the City Council when the proposal for increased accommodation at the Collegiate Institute was under discussion, Alderman J. Mendell Greene, on both occasions wandered from the question at issue to charge the Board of Education with extravagance in their management of the Collegiate Institute. To my mind it seemed to be in bad form to make a general charge of extravagance without giving some particulars, especially in view of the fact that previous to his becoming one of our Civic solons, Ald. Greene was for several years a member of the Board of Education and, therefore, might reasonably be expected to know something about school expenditures. May I ask the Alderman in question what item or items of extravagant expenditure incurred by the Board of Education in 1924, or for that matter for the past five years, did he oppose? What did he as a representative of the city ratepayers do or say to prevent this alleged extravagance?

Moreover, he stated that the people should be informed of the reason for the high cost per pupil at the Collegiate Institute in 1924 was Greene is reported to have stated that the average cost per pupil at the Colegiate Institute in 1924 was $116. I challenge the truth of that statement. In 1924 the total expenditures on the Collegiate Institute amounted to $62,477.82. G. H. Thompson, Secretary-Treasurer of the Board of Education, is my authority for this statement. The number of pupils on the roll was 597—boys, 272; girls 325. It is a simple question in arithmetic to find the average cost per pupil. The above sum divided by 597 gives $104.65, or in round numbers $105. How does Alderman Greene account for this $11 difference between the true and the false average cost per pupil? When he answers that question satisfactorily I may deal with some of his other figures.

Far be it from me to say that the gentleman in question tried to mislead the public by quoting incorrect figures, but I do make this statement that one who uses incorrect figures when with a very little trouble the correct ones can be procured, is guilty of conduct but little less less reprehensible than one who with malice aforethough tries to deceive.

In conclusion I may state for the information of the general public that the cost per pupil at the Collegiate Institute in 1923 was $112.30. So the cost is coming down.

In the report of the Minister of Education for 1924 issued April 21st, 1925, a copy of which may be procured through the local member, Mr. W. H. Bradburn, M.P.P., the average cost per pupil for the 131 High Schools and the 50 Collegiate Institutes of the province is given as $150.21. So we are away below the average extravagant though we may be. Yours truly

H. R. H. KENNER.

FRANCE TO MAKE COUNTER PROPOSAL

U. S. Proposal on Debt Was Very Unfavorably Received.

PARIS, Oct. 21 (Canadian Press).—The Fresh Government is preparing a counter proposal on the debt question, which will probably be sent to the United States next week.

The provisional accord brought back from Washington by Finance Minister Caillaux and his delegation was so unfavorably received in Parliamentary circles that it is felt preferable to renew negotiations for a final agreement with the United States, rather than submit the provisional plan to the Senate and Chamber.

The United States proposal which M. Caillaux took back with him to Paris called for the payment of annual instalments of $40,000,000 for the next five years, as full current interest during that period on the consolidated debt of about $4,200,000,000 owed to the United States Government by France.

CHURCH DECISION.

Ontario Commission Urges That Minority Be Given Use of Church.

TORONTO, Oct. 21 (Canadian Press) — The Ontario Church Property Commission this morning refused the application of the minority of Knox Presbyterian church, Burlington, which asked for a declaration that irregularities occurred in the voting in connection with Church Union and that the voting was invalid.

It is recommended and urged by the commission that until the end of next year, the Presbyterian minority be allowed to use, free of charge, the former Presbyterian church from two to five o'clock each Sunday afternoon.

BUSINESS IMPROVING.

"Why tell the obvious?" asked R. Y. Eaton, president, when declaring that business was undoubtedly undergoing an improvement all over the country and that the Eaton Company was getting its share of the gener benefit. "The improvement can be seen by all who care to notice it. With such crop returns as are recorded this fall and general business conditions favoring good prices, the harvest production times ought to be better all over Canada—and they are better.

BRITISH PAPERS CRITICIZE PHOTO

SPOILS EFFECT.

LONDON, Oct. 21. Canadian Press—Adverse comment is appearing in the newspapers with regard to press photographs of the Prince of Wales dressed as a girl for appearance in amateur theatricals, which was taken on board H.M.S. Repulse, on his way home from his trip to West and South Africa and South America.

The Manchester Guardian says: "If the Prince of Wales had been an average irresponsible young man there would have been no comment on the photograph. It happens, however, that the Prince was returning from an expedition of strong national interest. The nation felt sentiments of unusual satisfaction and gratitude. The American press as well as the English press had dwelt on his importance as an ambassador of the empire and it was felt in England that a new atmosphere, suitable to the dignity and years of His Royal Higness had come to the Prince, and had been diffused throughout the world. Then comes this ridiculous, unnecessary, unfortunate photograph which goes to the world at the same time as goes a serious estimate of his service and character."

FOSSILIZED SKULL IS FOUND IN LONDON

May Rank With Piltdown and Neanderthal Finds.

LONDON, October 21. — Canadian Press. Part of a fossilized human skill discovered in a deep excavation in Leadenhall street, London, may in the opinion of archeologists, rank in importance with the Neanderthal and Piltdown cranil shells.

It was found at a depth of 26 feet and according to Prof. Elliott Smith, probably belonged to a woman of about 50 years of age. The right side of the brain cavity, which is very small, is much less developed than the left side, indicating that the woman must be left handed.

ORGAN RECITAL

There was a large attendance at Knox Church last evening, for the organ recital given by Mr. Charles Peaker, who gave an extensive and very fine programme in his usual good style. The audience appeared very appreciative of the programme, which included the following numbers: Prelude and Fugue in D major, by Bach; four choral preludes, by J. N. Hanff, Johann Pachelbel, J. S. Bach and Sigfrid Karg-Elert; Choral No. 2, in B minor, by Cesar Auguste Franck! Scherzetto, by Louis Vierne; Prelude, by Gustave Samazheuilh; Intermezzo, by Joseph Bonnet; L'Organo Primitivo by Pietro Yon; Evening Song, by Edward Bairstow, and Variations de Concert, by Joseph Bonnet.

You can't be your "better self"—with a corn

No man can be at his best—with a throbbing corn shooting pain-messages to his brain. Corns put a wet-blanket on enthusiasm, dampen the spirits and sour the disposition. Many pessimists are optimists with corns. For a corn taxes the whole nervous system. It makes one feel mean all over and act that way. Anyone may acquire a corn, but it is bad business to keep it. Blue-jay is the business man's favorite way of banishing corns. It stops the pain the moment you put it on—and ends the corn in 48 hours. It is business-like and efficient.

* * *

Blue-jay leaves nothing to the user's guesswork. You don't have to decide how much or how little to put on. Each plaster is a complete standardized treatment. It has just enough of the magic medication to rout the corn. The thinking is all done for you at the laboratory. You apply the plaster—it does the rest.

A Warning to Canadian Producers

An Ill-Fated Alliance

Mr. Mackenzie King is billed for a meeting in Massey Hall, Toronto, next Friday night. He is to have on the platform to support him Hon. Chas. A. Dunning, premier of Saskatchewan. Mr. Dunning is doing all he can to help out Mr. King, and in view of political reward. Mr. Dunning has come from the West to bolster up the Premier during the last week of the contest.

Interest attaches to the position in which Mr. King will find himself. If he looks to Mr. Dunning to endorse the King Government policies, he, acceding to Mr. Dunning's demands, will have a difficult job of driving on his hands. The appearance of Mr. Dunning travelling in double harness with Mr. King means that either one or the other has given in as a matter of expediency, just as the King government has been doing and with no other policy in prospect. To gain Mr. Dunning's help in the West, and now in the East, the premier must have swallowed the conditions as set out by the famous resolution of March 1st, 1923, passed in the Saskatchewan Legislature, Mr. Dunning being at the time the premier, as he now is. Here is the Bill of Fare that Mr. Dunning prescribed for the people of Canada, a warning to Canadian producers as a whole. The resolution follows, demanding that the government (Federal) should introduce legislation which shall have for its effect the following:

1.—An immediate and substantial all-round reduction of the Customs tariff.

2.—The reduction of the Customs duty on goods imported from Great Brtain to one-half of the rates charged under the general tariff, and the further gradual reductions to be made to the remaining tariff on British imports that will ensure complete Free Trade between Great Britain and Canada.

3.—That negotiations be entered into by the government of Canada with the government of the United States with a view of establishing a reciprocity agreement on lines similar to that of 1911.

4.—The placing upon the free, list of all foodstuffs, agricultural implements, farm and household machinery, vehicles, fertilizers, coal, lumber, cement, gasoline, illuminating fuel, and lubricating oils, and on all raw materials and machinery used in the manufacture.

5.The obligation on all corporations engaged in the manufacture of products protected by the customs tariff to publish annually comprehensive and accurate statements of their turnovers and earnings.

6.—The public hearing before a Special Committee of Parliament of every claim for tariff protection by an industry.

It will be for the electors to consider that Mr. King having enlisted Mr. Dunning to help, and promised that of the four Cabinet Ministers from the West that Mr. Dunning has a strangle-hold on one of the plums, and not having had absolution from Mr. King for the share Mr. Dunning had in contriving the famous resolution, what may the country expect if the King government be returned to power?

And the Hon. George Gordon, things being propitious, will sit cheek by jowl with Mr. Dunning and help to impose on the people of Canada so much as they see fit of the foregoing bill-of-fare.

Misery makes strange bed-fellows, and Mr. King, with his views as to an excessively moderate tariff "for revenue," and Mr. Dunning and Mr. Gordon going the whole hog, should inspire the electors to leave both Mr. King and Mr. Gordon at home. The partnership of Mr. King and Mr. Dunning is assuredly the blow that killed father.

What do our farmer friends think of such a proposition? It has been made, it can be made again, and with one of the authors and finishers of the thing in the Dominion Cabinet what hope for escape.

Don't give the inimitable trio the chance. Hon. Arthur Meighen tells you that Canada needs protection. Platform spouters for the King government may say this country is prosperous, and catching up, and all will be well, presently. But every man and woman in the city of Peterborough knows that the furniture of families that are going to the States are being sold by public auction week after week.

Know that the population of the city is frittering away, and who can blame it? Nearly three hundred less than at this month last year. Sixty families, at a rough guess, gone. The single men who could leave went long ago. These men who go do not go willingly. They are shoved out by the inexorable force of want of employment. And Hon. George Newcome Gordon, M.P., Minister of Immigration (proximo), and Postmaster General (pronto), may talk his head off and he cannot alter the circumstances and the influences at work.

Go and hear Right Hon. Arthur Meighen on Saturday night, and listen, and watch him pull down Mr. Gordon's house of cards. Then be convinced, and next week send MR. E. A. PECK as your representative, to serve under a Leader who has fought through four years of opposition and who will, if he comes to handle a Conservative government, give Canada at least a fighting chance to recover.

CONSERVATIVE LADIES' RALLY PACKED COMMITTEE ROOMS

PARTY POLICIES.

The Importance of Tariff to the Women Explained By Mrs. Fallis.

The Conservative committee rooms were crowded with ladies at the ladies' rally held yesterday afternoon, which was addressed by Mrs. Howard Fallis, Messrs. E. A. Peck and W. Boulton. Mrs. Fallis occupied the chair.

The Conservative candidate for West Peterborough, E. A. Peck, was the first speaker. In introduction Mr. Peck said that it was something of a novel experience for him to address a political meeting of ladies, as in his last political campaign the ladies had not the franchise. The ladies, he said, now take a substantial interest in the elections.

There are many issues, such as taxation, the national debt and others, being raised, said Mr. Peck, but the most important is protection. Canada is a country whose people might well be proud of her, as she is blessed with great natural resources and has a splendid climate, and yet her people are walking the streets looking for work or else leaving for the United States. It is a singular thing, said the speaker, that this should be, and he concluded that there must be something wrong somewhere. "Why should they leave?" he asked. The Liberal party offers no solution. Its members say that the people are not going and that the country is prosperous.

Canada has been a most wasteful country said Mr. Peck, with regard to her working men. She has not provided them with a reasonable opportunity to work. The blame can not all be put on the King government alone as all parties have overlooked the necessity in the past. He then instanced various ways in which labor had been neglected.

The purchase of foreign goods is one way in which the workmen are neglected, said the speaker. These are often made in countries paying low wages and are sold to the loss of the men engaged in producing them in this country. "We should try to manufacture in Canada such goods for our own consumption as can be made here reasonably. "Mr. Peck asked for a reasonable tariff that men should be assured a chance to work.

The export of raw materials from Canada is another way that Canadian workmen are neglected, said the speaker. Much of the grain, pulpwood and other products that are exported could be manufactured in Canada, giving the Canadian workman the money that is paid to the workmen in another country.

Mr. Meighen had been misquoted so that his speeches made it appear he was a high protectionist, said Mr. Peck, who thereupon quoted a speech made by his leader in the Commons during the recent session, to the effect that there should be a revision of the tariff to protect industry, to enlarge the Canadian market for the produce of Canadian farmers and to enable the people of Canada to develop their own resources. This motion, if carried, would have meant that the Government would have to resign, and Mr. King pointed this out in his reply, but said Mr. Peck, he also said that the policy suggested by Mr. Meighen was one on which the Government did not look with favor and was in fact one to which the Government was opposed.

The United States' government protects its industries, and its farmers, keeping its trade and money and attracting the people of Canada. Canada could do the same, said Mr. Peck, and progress steadily in building up a strong progressive and prosperous country.

Mr. Peck solicited the support of the ladies present not on his account, but on the policy to which he would give his support. He said it was not a question of which man to support but which policy to support.

William Boulton.

Mr. Boulton made a short but very optimistic speech on the prospects of the Conservative party, and the remedies needed to stabilize business and life in Canada. He prophesied that Mr. Meighen would have at least 130 members behind him in the next house, among whom would be Mr. Peck.

Getting rid of the group system and a protective tariff were advanced by Mr. Boulton as necessary to end the period of depression and restore confidence to the people of the country. He said that leadership would have a great deal to do with the matter and asked his hearers to compare the record of Mr. King and Mr. Meighen, and of Mr. Peck and Mr. Gordon, and he said that the Conservatives would not suffer in the comparison.

Mrs. Howard Fallis.

Mrs. Fallis said that she had thought in former years that the tariff was a political football for the men of the two parties but that since she had studied the matter she had reached the conclusion that it concerned the women as much, if not more, than it did the men. It is some thing that comes right into the home life and affects the comfort, prosperity and happiness, touching the women more than the men because it is they who have to stretch the dollars when times are hard.

In answer to the statements made that the tariff did not help the farmers, Mrs. Fallis said that the farmers around Peterboro sold the greater portion of their produce to the people of Peterboro, and when things were not prosperous in the city the people could not buy the farmers' produce. A larger and more prosperous city meant a better market. She said that the market in Peterboro should belong to the farmers of the country around and that they should be given some protection from the imports of fruits, vegetables, eggs, etc., from other countries. She said that she did not refer to bananas or oranges, or such fruits, but to the fruits which could be grown in Canada. The farmers and city people are interdependent, she said, as when the city man is prosperous he buys from the farmer, and the farmer buys from the city, but when people are not prosperous in the city then they are not prosperous in the country; or if the people on the farms are not prosperous then the people in the city feel it.

It has been said by supporters of a low tariff, said Mrs. Fallis, that it would reduce the cost of living. She quoted the figures of the Department of Labor to show that the level of 233 commodities in 1922 was 153.3, and in 1925 was 157.9, while the average family budget in 1922 was $20.58 per week, and in 1925 was $20.67. There has been no reduction in the cost of living, but rather a slight increase.

The stagnation of business was attributed by the speaker more to the threats of the government supporters than to their deeds. Such an utterance as that of the Hon. Charles Stewart when a budget was brought down, that he trusted it had sounded the death knell of protection, was making the men with money afraid to invest it in industries.

Mrs. Fallis mentioned the fertilizer industry as one which had suffered from lack of protection. The government removed the duty from fertilizer to help the farmers. As a result foreign manufacturers sold their product in Canada at such a price that the Canadian manufacturers had to quit business. Then the foreign makers put up their price to an even higher price than had been charged by the Canadian manufacturer.

The woollen industry was cited as another example of those suffering from low tariff. With one-thirteenth of the population, Canada imports twice as much woollen goods as do the United States, said the speaker. If the King Government stays in power the Canadian manufacturers will have to reduce their wages to compete with European firms. Then they would lose their workmen who would flock to the States. The Canadian manufacturer, said Mrs. Fallis, must pay wages approximately equal to those paid in the United States to keep his men and he must have protection equal to that given the American manufacturer to be able to do it.

Mrs. Fallis referred to the Durham campaign, where she said Mrs. Sissons, working for Mr. Massey, was urging the people to buy American made goods. Mrs. Fallis expressed doubt that Mrs. Sisson properly realized the step she was taking. She illustrated how a ten-dollar bill spent for a Canadian-made article was circulated in Canada by the maker, while if it went to the United States it circulated there.

Mrs. Fallis referred to the economy pledges of the King Government and asked if the Belle River Harbour, the Scribe Hotel, the Union Club and the golf courses and radios of the C.N.R. were consistent with that policy. She said she had no fault to find with these things in themselves, but that they were not justified at a time when the country could not afford them.

The Liberals say that Mr. Gordon is for protection, but, said Mrs. Fallis, it doesn't matter what Mr. Gordon believes, but it is the policy of Mackenzie King, whom Mr. Gordon will support, that counts. Everybody in the Conservative Party is on the platform of Mr. Meighen in favor of moderate protection, while the Liberal Party includes protectionist-Liberals, Liberals supporting tariff for revenue, low tariff Liberals, and free trade-Liberals, so that while Mr. Meighen would have a solid group behind him, Mr. King would have a hard time to formulate a definite policy.

It was asked, she said, why Mr. Meighen didn't raise the tariff when he was in power. Mr. Meighen, said Mrs. Fallis in answer, was the leader of a Union Government, elected to carry on the war, and was unable to do anything to the tariff, as there were many Liberals in his Cabinet. At the same time the United States had not raised its tariff to such a great extent, and both countries had about even protection.

To those who voted for men and not for issues, Mrs. Fallis said that they would have no hesitation in supporting Mr. Peck, who could be compared favorably in every way to Mr. Gordon.

The meeting closed with the National Anthem.

LOVE'S LOCKOUT

By Eleanor Hope

Oh, dear! What's going to happen? The old garden gate is locked! Shut tight—and Dan Cupid is so unhappy. Of course, he knows that "true love never runs smooth," but he did so hope that these two were going to prove the exception to the rule. But they're human and quarrels have a way of cropping out most unexpectedly, and this one has resulted in "love's lockout." What shall he do? Never mind, he's not discouraged, for love—true love—can never be locked out for long. This silly lovers' quarrel will soon be over and then—the garden gate will again be the mute witness of renewed vows and promises that it will "never, never happen again." Well, here's hoping, but it will happen again and again, and each time the making-up will be all the sweeter. But don't let it happen too often, or else—Love sometimes locks the gate forever.

SCHOOL SOCCER PLAYERS ADVICE

Tips By Rev. K. R. G. Hunt, Internationalist—Defence and Attack.

GAME NEXT MONDAY.

Here are some useful hints on soccer for the Public School Soccer Cup Final, which may be beneficial to the boys in the final of the school championship.

The Defence.

Never allow your full backs and half backs to enter upon a game without a full understanding as to the "plan of campaign."

Backs must never play "on a line" with one another—always one behind the other.

Big kicking is generally unnecessary, and frequently the only result is to give an opposing back an easy chance of returning the ball. Try and place the ball to your own forwards.

A half back is a terrier; he must worry, worry, worry, the opposing forwards from start to finish, but he must also nurse his own forwards.

A back must never dribble, a half-back but seldom.

The Attack.

Dribble straight.

Never pass (a) for the mere sake of passing; (combination); (b) merely to shift the responsibility of making a shot on to someone else.

Always pass well ahead, and, if possible, on the ground.

Go straight; and remember that goals are your object.

Game Next Monday.

Owing to the unfavorable weather, arrangements could not be made this week to play the re-play two-goal draw for the Alex. Key trophy. Saturday was suggested, but a number of the boys have different engagements that could not be broken off, so they have agreed to play at Nicholls' Oval on Monady afternoon, at 4.15 sharp. Referee Frank McKinley.

In all probability the Queen Alexandra team will wear the black and yellow upright stripe sweaters, and Queen Mary will enter the field in black and red sweaters.

SENATORS DRILL FOR TWO HOURS

HOPE FOR VICTORY.

OTTAWA, Ont., Oct. 21 (Canadian Press) — Weather conditions were all in favor of a snappy practice for Ottawas at Lansdowne Park yesterday afternoon. A cold, strong wind whistled down the field under brilliant sunshine and the full squad was on hand for a drill that lasted nearly two hours.

Line work is the main item of attention this week and the men are being groomed in line formations, interference and tackling. Joe Tugman was in uniform today but took things easy and did not run any risks of further injury to his weak leg. He punted against the wind and was showing nice placements in spite of the strong gale.

"Irish" Monohan continues to attend practices, and hopes are entertained that he may yet be declared eligible. In the meantim Starr is bing worked at middle wing, paired off with Timmis, with Young and Anderson on the outside paths. With Monohan available, the Senators would have a very strong front rank.

Connell and Emerson, the other two casualties, were on hand today but did not exert thmselves to any extent. Emerson's mouth is still very sore and Connell is taking care of himself, in hopes that the doctor will let him into Saturday's game in Montreal.

Ottawas are preparing for a desperate battle from the winged wheelers who will be fighting to prevent elimination from the big four race. The locals will take all available strength to the metropolis and while hoping for victory are determined to give the red and blue a terrific argument before admitting defeat.

The work of Lynch at quarter back has been one of the season's treats here and much is expected of the diminutive pivot man on Saturday. If Tubman is in shape to go the full route, it is likely that the Senators will resort to an aerial attack to trounce the M.A.A.A. twelve.

SECRET PRACTICE.

MONTREAL, Que., Oct. 21 (Canadian Press)—Secret practices are being held at the Percival Molson Memorial Stadium this week as McGill prepares for its return game with the champion Queen's squad at Kingston Saturday. Contrary to the rule which has prevailed up to this time, which allowed all and sundry to sit in the bleachers and watch McGill in their drilling, today the crowd was sent from the stadium when the first team started in on its signal work and only the elect were allowed to witness the preparations.

Coach Shaughnessy unfolded a complete new system of attack for the red and white squad and is taking no chances on his plans becoming too well known.

The McGill players are receiving a grueling that is harder than anything the team has experienced this season in the afternoon training sessions. The line players are the ones coming in for the most attention.

INDIAN YOUTH FIRST OPERATIC STAR OF RACE

IS STILL MODEST

Has Intense Pride of Race and Sings Songs of Ancestry.

TORONTO, Ont., Oct. 21 (Canadian Press).—Twelve years ago an indian lad, selling the baskets of his handicraft at Lake of Bays in the Highlands of Ontario, attracted the attention of a gifted Toronto woman by his voice. And now Os-Ke-Non-ton (Running Deer) has passed through Toronto after a holiday spent at Lake of Bays on his way back to New York, with before him another successful season on the concert platform in the United States, and, next Spring, a return to Europe, where he has already achieved artistic fame, for in London last season he sang the part of the Medicine Man in the grand opera production of Hiawatha, and was made much of by royalty and society. His engagements overseas include an appearance in Berlin in April, then in Brussels, to be again entertained by the king and queen, to be followed by a return engagement in Hiawatha in London in May, at height of the season.

Os-Ke-Non-Ton, thus first of his race to become an operatic star, was born on the banks of the St. Lawrence in Quebec, member of the Bear clan of the Mohawk tribe of the great Iroquois nation and so is cousin to Pauline Johnson, the gifted Indian poet, whose short life did so much to enrich Canadian literature. And of this same Mohawk tribe sprung two other Indians, each famous in his day, Dr. Oronatekn, educated at Oxford by the Prince of Wales (Edward VII.), and founder of a great benevolent institution, and Tom Longboat, the Indian athlete, who, for a while, swept all before him on the cinder track.

A famous man, this Os-Ke-Non-Ton, but a modest. In midst of a great career he records freely his debt to Leonora James Kennedy, Toronto singer, "who discovered me and urged me to follow the profession." He has intense race pride—who shall say into what depths of time delve his remote ancestry?—and at times is glad to turn from classic opera to the rendition of the folk songs of his people, clad in the regalia of a Mohawk chief, chanting the melodies of the forest.

BRITAIN CONFERS WITH AUSTRALIA

Yorkshire Member Protested Increase of Duty on Woollens.

LONDON, Eng., Oct. 21 (Canadian Press Despatch).—Walter Forrest, M.P. for Batley and Morley, has been in correspondence with Sir Joseph Cook, the High Commissioner for Australia, and Mr. Amery, the Colonial Secretary, on the subject of the new Australian tariff.

In both communications, Mr. Forrest, as a Yorkshire Member representing a district from which there are large exports of woollen goods to Australia, has protested against an increase of the duty on Yorkshire goods, and also against its having been put into operation the day before the news was published in this country.

Mr. Forrest has pointed out that the new tariff on low grade woollen goods will be prohibitive, and he has urged that, at least, there should be special exception where evidence can be produced that the order was actually placed and accepted before the tariff was passed.

PECULIAR LAKE IS PUZZLE TO SCIENCE

Flows Away Through Crater, Dries Up, and Then Refills Itself.

By THOMAS B. MORGAN
(United Press Staff Correspondent)

ROME, Oct. 21 (United Press).—A lake that flows away through a kind of crater in its center, dries up, and then refills itself again; this is the extraordinary phenomenon of nature now to be observed at Canterno, near Alatri in Italy.

Why does it dry up, where does the water go, and how does it return are the questions which not only local inhabitants but scientists and many others are asking.

The phenomenon repeats itself at intervals of a number of years, varying from three to twenty. The last one out of the lake took place in 1922. Ten years before that it also did its famous disappearing trick.

The lake, situated near the village of Fiuggone, suddenly develops a whirlpool near its center. This gradually grows in extent and drawing power, and, after a week or so from the commencement of the out-flow, what was once a little picture postcard lake turns into a gradually drying swamp, full of eels and different kinds of fish, which the local people take away.

The lake then remains dry for a period of from one to five or six months, when the water began to return, generally in the winter time. It used to be supposed that it filled up again with rain water, but the inflow is much too rapid for this. It usually takes longer to fill up than to empty, but it has been known to fill up again in a fortnight or less.

The lake of Canterno has no estuaries or outlets other than the small crater in the middle, and as far as is known there are no underground streams in the vicinity.

Many efforts have been made in the past to trace the direction of the outgoing water. One mayor of Alatri, years ago, ordered the water to be colored blue, so that if any blue water showed itself in the countryside, the route of the flow could be ascertained. Nothing came of this attempt except a little rebuke for the good mayor.

Members of scientific societies and individual geologists are now on the spot, trying to solve the mystery. The phenomenon is obviously of a telluric nature, for the whole territory is excessively volcanic.

Saturn's rings are not more than 40 miles thick, according to an estimate.

Deputy Stayed Out When Bigger Man Tossed His Out

BUDAPEST, Hangary, Oct. 21 (Canadian Press)—The floor of parliament was the scene of a fight between deputies yesterday.

Herr Gombos, former leader of the Awakening Bulgarians, was accused by the Social Democratic deputy, Fabian, of having made common cause with the Rumanian enemies of Hungary last week at a secret anti-Semitic congress held in Budapest.

Gombos in fury rushed across the floor and seized Fabian by both ears and nearly wrenched them off. Fabian was in sore straits when the herculean Social Democratic deputy, Herr Payer, intervened. He picked up Gombos and tossed him over his head out into the lobby.

Gombos did not return to the chamber.

MOVIE GOSSIP

Hoot Gibson has completed the exterior shots of "The Calgary Stampede" and "Chip of the Flying U." The former was made at the celebration of the fiftieth anniversary of Fort Calgary and the latter was made on the Prince of Wales Ranch in Alberta.

The stork has made two visits to Universal City within the past week. Upon one visit he left an eight-pound baby girl at the home of Edward Laemmle, who is directing "The Still Alarm," and on the other, he stopped at House Peters' house, where he left a son. You can't guess what Peters calls that son. Believe it or not, his name so far is Iron House Peters.

In addition to Marian Nixon, William A. Seiter has chosen a number of others to support Reginald Denny in "What Happened to Jones." So far they are Margaret Quimby, Nina Romano and Otis Harlan. Production starts this week.

Virginia Browne Faire, who has just completed her role in "The Calgary Stampede," has been cast in support of Rudolph Schildkraut in "His People," now in production at Universal City.

Thomas Meighan and his company of over seventy-five people have returned from Ireland where most of the scenes were taken for his latest Paramount production, "Shamrock." We hear the title may be changed to "Irish Luck."

All Saints' Church A.YP.A. Had a Jolly Evening.

The A.Y.P.A. of All Saints' Church held a very jolly masquerade party on Monday evening in their parish hall, attended by about one hundred and fifty young people, the majority of whom were in costume. The entertainment was in charge of Miss B. Dawson and Miss Dorothy Worboy, and a very pleasant evening was spent in the enjoyment of games, music and dainty refreshments. The prize for the best-dressed lady went to Miss Victoria Goodson, and for the best-dressed gentleman to Mr. Alex. Runnett. Prizes for comic costumes were won by Miss W. Bailey and Mr. Chas. Thomas.

Mr. Gordon's Bureau Says Exodus is Only a Bogey

But You Know the Facts

The most futile feature of the Gordon publicity campaign is the attempt that is being made to minimize the manner in which Canada is being emptied under the King administration.

Mr. Gordon's apologists call the situation an "emigration bogey."

They quote bundles of statistics to show that the drift to the United States has not been very extensive and intimate that everybody is on the way back anyway.

The United States Bureau of Immigration says that in the last three years and a half, 448,434 Canadians paid the head tax and were officially admitted into the United States. Four more years at this rate would mean that one million Canadians would have gone to the United States. Can Canada afford the loss of a million citizens?

FIGURES DON'T TELL THE WHOLE STORY.

That constitutes a most serious condition of affairs in itself, but the inadequacy of using official figures is shown by the fact that the statistics do not begin to tell the story of Canada's loss.

You voters of Peterborough know more about the real situation than statistics can tell you.

You know many of your friends, or relatives, have crossed the border in the last four years.

You know many of the native-born Canadians among them overlooked the trifling formality of paying the head tax on entering.

You know, too, that British-born Canadians, presumably barred from the United States by the quota regulations, simply smuggled themselves in and are working over there now. Mr. Gordon's press agents may confuse you on some point, but they can't fool anybody in regard to the exodus to the United States, because the facts of that exodus are common property.

Everybody knows that nearly as many Canadian have entered the United States unofficially in the last four years as paid the head tax and went in officially.

ISN'T IT TIME TO PUT ON THE BRAKES?

Four more years of Mackenzie King's rule in the face of what has happened since 1921 would make Canada merely a jumping-off place between Europe and the United States.

Why a Minister of Immigration under a government that can provide immigrants with nothing but a chance to jump into a country where industries are adequately protected and there is employment to be had.

It is time to put on the brakes.

It is time to show the world that we Canadians have grown tired of seeing our raw material and our money going across the border and hundreds of thousands of our citizens crossing after them.

It is time to put into force a policy that will turn our raw material into manufactured articles in this country and keep our men and women employed at home.

The policy of Protection for which E. A. Peck stands in Peterborough West will make Canada a prosperous country—not a jumping-off place for the rest of the world. Protect yourself, your family and your business by voting

ASSIZE COURT CONTINUES CASE

Judgment For Plaintiff in Strickland-Snelgrove Case.

AT MORNING SESSION.

The Supreme Court of Ontario commenced its Autumn sittings at the Court House this afternoon, before the Honorable Mr. Justice Kelly, with a docket of four cases entered for trial, as follows:

A jury case, Hansman versus Moore; appearing for the plaintiff (Hansman) were R. R. Hall, K.C., and J. A. O'Brien; the defendant (Moore) was represented by V. J. McElderry.

Non-jury cases were Strickland versus Snelback et al, represented by J. W. Stevenson, who appeared for the plaintiff, and J. A. O'Brien for the defendant; Andrews versus Andrews, the plaintiff being represented by N. A. MacColl, and the defendant by W. B. MacPherson and O'Brien. The last case on the docket was that of Dawson versus Dawson. F. D. Kerr, K.C., and F. P. Brennan, who represented the Attorney-General of Ontario, appeared for the plaintiff; as the defendant was not represented, postponement was secured in order that a guardian might be appointed ad litum to appear on behalf of the defendant.

Pleading that a material witness was ill and showing a sworn affidavit from a well known doctor to that effect, R. R. Hall, K.C., pleaded for the postponement of the jury case, Hansman versus Moore. The witness who was prevented from attending was the wife of the defendant.

Postponement was granted and the petit jury was dismissed.

The grand jury did not inspect the court buildings, as according to the usual custom.

Lawyers at the Bar: R. R. Hall, K.C.; F. D. Kerr, K.C.; H. S. White, K.C.; C. C. Robinson, K.C.; J. A. O'Brien; V. J. McElderry, N. A. MacColl; N. D. MacPherson.

The first case to appear before His Honor Justice Kelly was that of Strickland versus Snelback et al and was concerned with the sale of a summer hotel at Stoney Lake. Mr. and Mrs. Sage appeared for the defendant Snelback and were first examined.

The story as presented by Mrs. Sage was to the effect that Mr. Strickland, the former owner of the property known as the Victoria Hotel, had interested them in buying it and shown a list of guests which would indicate that good business was assured.

Mr. Sage wrote letters to a number of those on the list. Some replied saying they had no reservations at the hotel. A few of these letters were produced and placed on exhibit. The summer's business had shown a loss, Mrs. Sage declared. They had opened the establishment on the 24th of May and had closed in the first week of September. The gross receipts for that time amounted to $6,000.00, and the expenses, the witness averred, were much more than that.

On the list which Mr. Strickland had given them there were 139 names and during the summer there were not more than 34 of the people represented at the hotel as guests.

Re-examined by the defence, Mrs. Sage told that she had made out a cheque for $570.00, and a renewal note for $1,000, and sent to the plaintiff. This was returned, she said, with the utmost contempt. Later he came to them and said that the bank would sue them for the money due.

In May of this year the receipts were practically nil, she declared, as from May 24-31 they took in only $18.00; in the first two weeks of June $180.00, and in September 1-8, inclusive, $591.00.

Questioned by His Honor the Judge as to the part of Mrs. Snelback in the transaction, Mrs. Sage replied that she owned the hotel, and she (Mrs. Sage) was representing her interests.

Mr. Strickland was then called to the box. Examined, he stated that he had owned the hotel for two seasons, 1923 and 1924. In 1924 he had opened business on the fifteenth of June. It was impossible to get guests if it were opened sooner, he stated.

During the summer there were so many guests, that he was forced to place an average of 25 in the cottages and to send several to other hotels. The gross receipts for the year of 1924 amounted to $8,900.00, and his profit he had calculated to be $3,300.00. He had books which showed with a fair degree of accuracy the business situation for that year. He first saw Mr. Sage in the latter part of January of this year.

Mr. Sage, declared the witness, was very much interested by the proposition. They went through all the rooms and the kitchen and power plants were features which Mr. Sage liked.

Near the 20th of February Mr. Strickland saw Mrs. Sage and her son. They wrote later wanting to lease the property, and also if witness would take any less than $18,000, the stated price. He would not lower his figure.

The contracting parties came to terms and the plaintiff had left a list of his patrons. He said Mr. Sage had told him that he expected to sell a Toronto property in order to make the payments.

Court adjourned until 9.30 to-day.

The Court of Assizes resumed its session this morning at 9.30 before His Honor Justice Kelly. The plaintiff, Mr. Strickland, was recalled to the box and examination was continued by the defence.

Witness, when questioned, said that the booking list consisted of names given by the past owner, and also those representing people who had registered at the hotel. Those names checked in pencil on the margin had intimated that they would return, and usually occupied the more desirable front rooms. Witness said that he did not give the Sages to understand that all those on the list were coming back for the season of 1925, and believed that the weather was a great factor in the numbers of guests. He had advocated the writing of a personal letter as the best form of advertising. He contended that settlement was to follow the sale of certain property which was controlled by Mr. Sage.

Questioned by His Honor the Judge, witness stated that Mrs. Snelback had nothing to do with closing the deal.

Mr. Allen was put in the box and questioned by defence counsel regarding a second mortgage which he had held on the property. He said that he did not see Mr. or Mrs. Sage or Mrs. Snelback prior to the transaction.

Mrs. Sage, recalled to the witness stand, declared that she had not seen the guest book until yesterday afternoon in the Court-House.

Defence counsel pleaded in conclusion that Mr. and Mrs. Sage had had a slight experience of matters of this nature from running a catering establishment, had heard that the property was for sale and had decided to purchase it. They understood, counsel affirmed, that the list of guests represented the actual booking for the season, and that out of a list of 140, only 34 actually came. There was no suggestion from the plaintiff that the hotel had been improperly managed.

Counsel for the plaintiff, in reply, said that list must have been taken as containing names of prospective guests. In proof of this he read a copy of a circular letter which had been sent out by Mrs. Sage, in which appeared the following: "If it is your intention to again visit Canada," which would indicate that the coming of the guest was not assured and the list was not considered one in which bookings were made for the season. There had been one refusal at an early date, and nothing was said to Mr. Strickland about it. Plaintiff counsel read several replies from which he deduced the fact that the guests were not bound to come to the hotel. In addition to this, Mr. Strickland had advised writing to the patrons, and if fraud was intended it would certainly be exposed in the replies.

The business was not in the same condition now as when the plaintiff left it, due to the defendants charging different prices for the same accommodation.

His Honor Judge Kelly, in giving his pronouncement, reviewed the case. He had taken into consideration the fact that the defendant, Mrs. Snelback, was ill, and therefore he had permitted the widest latitude in submitting evidence, and had frequently asked whether she had had anything to do with the transaction.

Aside from the fact that there appeared above the list a statement, "booked for 1925," he saw no case for the defendant, whereas the plaintiff had done all in his power in assisting to obtain guests and relations had always been equable between the contracting parties.

Judgment was rendered in favor of the plaintiff, and the defendant was dismissed on the payment of costs.

The grand jury consisted of Leo Ackford, Herbert Allen, Roland Denne, A. J. Devlin, Hugh Kelley, James Lewis, Fred. McKee, Owen Montgomery, Michael O'Keefe, R. W. Squire, L. A. Turner, Bert Wannamaker.

There were no duties for the jury.

ST. ANDREW'S W.M.S.

Interesting Address Given By Miss Jean Anderson Yesterday.

The regular monthly meeting of St. Andrew's W.M.S. was held Tuesday afternoon, with the president in the chair.

Devotional exercises opened the meeting, Mrs. J. W. Gordon leading in prayer while Mrs. Nelson took the Scripture reading. After the routine business was attended to, Miss Jean Anderson gave a very interesting talk on the relationship of the white man with the colored races. Miss Anderson's address was very instructive and was thoroughly enjoyed by the ladies.

A vocal solo by Miss Alma Blanchard, whose beautiful voice was very pleasing, was then rendered.

Small wonder that Missouri university went wild over the gridiron victory over Nebraska, seeing that it was the first time in more than twenty-five years that the Tigers weer able to beat the Cornhuskers.

This year's victory gives the San Francisco Seals a tie with Los Angeles for pennant winning honors in the Pacific Coast League, each team having captured six flags since the present league came into existence in 1903.

RUGBY NOTES.

The Junior O.R.F.U. squad is practising every evening in preparation for the entertainment they are going to dish up to the Barrie team here Saturday. The Petes are rubbing the rough edges off their play and working out new plays which the experiences of the game in Barrie taught them will be of use against the Barrie mode of play.

The locals were short in substitutes last Saturday, which proved costly, but this Saturday a full team will be in uniform.

MacIntosh, the strong middle wing of the O.R.F.U. team, is still disabled, and it is doubtful if he will be able to be used in Saturday's affray. MacIntosh was sadly missed in Barrie, and his appearance would be felt this Saturday.

Oshawa High School and University of Toronto Schools open the Eastern group of the Interscholastic O.R.F.U. in Oshawa to-day. Oshawa played a 6-6 tie with Toronto Technical School on Saturday, but they will need all this experience and more against the clever U.T.S. squad.

P.C.I. also journey to the motor town this Saturday. The P.C.I. squad have been practising steadily and are in the best of shape for this game.

THEATRES

AT THE CAPITOL

GLORIA SWANSON HAS FIRST DUAL ROLE ON SCREEN IN "THE COAST OF FOLLY"

Gloria Swanson has her first dual role in pictures in the Allan Dwan-Paramount production, "The Coast of Folly," which comes to the Capitol Theatre for a run of three days on Thursday next.

The main role is that of Joyce Gathway, young and beautiful society girl, the leader of the smart set in New York and Palm Beach.

The other characterization is of Joyce's mother, first as Nadine Gath way, the lovely wife who deserts a boresome middle-aged millionaire in search of romance, and in the latter part of the story as the Countess de Tauro, wedded happily to a French nobleman, twenty years after deserting her millionaire husband.

Allan Dwan, Paramount's noted producer-director, said that Miss Swanson has accomplished the most finished performance of her career in the new picture; that she assumed the different roles with remarkable smoothness and conviction. It required long hours of thought, study and word to present each character in genuine mood.

Forrest Halsley adapted "The Coast of Folly" from the popular novel by Coningsby Dawson. Prominent in the supporting cast are Anthony Jowitt, new screen "find" who has the leading man's role opposite Miss Swanson; Alec Francis, Lawrence Gray, Arthur Hausman, Dorothy Cumming, Jed Prouty and Eugenie Besserer.

AT THE ROYAL.

DOUBLE PROGRAM AT ROYAL THURSDAY.

No. 1 Feature, "The Sporting Chance," Great Racing Story.

In the Tiffany Production, "The Sporting Chance," which comes to the Royal Theatre, commencing on Thursday, the race scene which plays a very prominent part in the motif of the story was run at the famous Tia Juana race track in Mexico, just across the United States border at San Diego.

Director Oscar Apfel secured the services of some of the best race horses at the Mexican track the past winter, and on one of the off days staged the race with the help of real racers loaned to him by the various owners.

Many shots were taken of the scene before the real one was accepted. The horses entered in the race refused to allow the "hero" horse to win, and it required a great deal of manoeuvering to at last get "Kentucky Boy," the winner of the race, to come to the front and lead the field.

FEATURE No. 2 at ROYAL ON THURSDAY.

Jack Hoxie in "The Red Rider," Frontier Indian Drama.

Thrilling attacks by real Indians on trading post, fort and wagon train are among the many spectacular features that mark "The Red Rider," Universal Blue Streak Western in which Jack Hoxie is the star and which will be screened at the Royal Theatre, commencing Thursday. Among the players are Mary McAllister, Jack Pratt, Natalie Warfield, Marin Sais, William McCall, Francis Ford, George Connors, Clark Comstock and Duke R. Lee. Cliff Smith directed "The Red Rider."

POLITICAL SPEECH (?) AT ROYAL THURSDAY NIGHT

Professor Bunkum, Democrat-Conservative-Republican-Liberal candidate of North Hooligan, will make his famous speech at the Royal on Thursday night. What he is going to do for you when he gets to Ottawa or Kingston—is plenty. Mr. Bunkum is also president of the Sahara Desert Canoe Club, and used to run a street car on the Erie Canal. He's clever. If he is alive on Friday—but that's another story. Hear him on Thursday night at the Royal—where else could it be?

AT THE GRAND.

"WHAT'S NEXT"

A special treat is in store for lovers of music and musical comedy when "What's Next" presented by "Cheer-Uptonists" will be presented at the Grand Opera House Thursday and Friday. This spearkling Musical Revue has already won its way into the hearts of theatre goers during the present season with its fresh and brilliant appearance, its array of talent, both from the vocal and tersichorean standpoint of view. In two acts and twenty scenes which are a veritable riot of color with not a dull moment throughout the entire two and one-half hours' enertainment, playgoers are sure of a first class evening's entertainment.

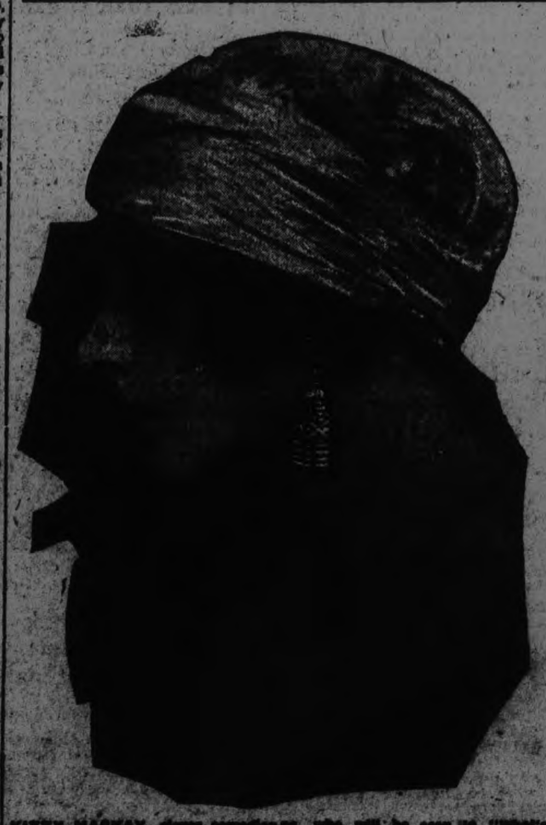
The chorus is composed of a bevy of charming girls who not only can dance but display remarkable vocal accomplishments. They in themselves are a feature of the show but added to this is the all star cast of members including Aileen Hyndman and as the prima donna who is famed for her phenomenally fine vocalism and who will be sure to be numbered as unusual even in such excellent offerings as are being presented this season.

Russel Lavery, as a comedian, keeps the house in an uproar from the moment of his appearance on the stage. He is ably assisted in the plentiful comedy elements of the evening's entertainment by Martin Masters and "Jock" Simpson to say nothing of the petite and winsome comedienne Kitty MacKay who possesses a voice full of charm.

Amazing feats of the terpischore art will be displayed both individually and collectively by Jean Shaw and Billy Garden and who also lead the dancing chorus through lively ensemble. Dancing is by no means Miss Shaw's chief accomplishment, her male impersonations being remarkably clever and refined.

Others among the featured cast are "Jock" Simpson who will be remembered by many as taking part in numerous successful musical shows, also Jack Williams whose pleasing baritone will be sure to charm. Clifford Lewis the tenor of the Company is a possessor of a remarkable operative voice and is heard to advantage in his number.

As a musical offering "What's Next" has been surpassing all records and the policy of the producers in presenting this Musical Revue at popular prices is meeting with universal success. It will be seen in Peterboro for two performances only. Seats now selling.



KITTY MACKAY, clever comedienne, who will be seen in "What's Next," the sparkling Musical Revue, which comes to the Grand on Thursday and Friday next.

The following telegram has been received from Kingston:

Manager Grand Theatre, Peterborough.

Just played musical revue "What's Next," a very good show. Excellent company of artists. Pleases immensely. Don't be afraid to boost it—a real box office attraction.

E. O. SMITHERS, Grand Theatre, Kingston.

"ABIE'S IRISH ROSE"

Anne Nichols' famous appealing comedy, "Abies Irish Rose" continues to roll along upon the top wave of prosperity of its engagement at the Grand Opera House, where the scene of crowded houses and well pleased audiences have laughed themselves almost into hysterics at the bright and witty lines, funny situations and screaming complications divulged in the unfolding of this comedy with a beautiful love story, and its lesson tolerance.

It is doubtful if ever there has been presented in the history of theatricals in this city a more appealing or loveable comedy, nor one which has brought forth a greater amount of applause, and to miss witnessing the trials and tribulations through which "Abie" and his Irish bride pass with their irate fathers, will be to miss one of the real dramatic treats of a life time, for it is clean and wholesome fun, and is a credit to its universally famous author, who has given to the stage a play with an excellent moral without condescending or introducing a line or situation that would or could bring a blush to the most unsophisticated.

The company presenting the play here is the same which for eight weeks tested the capacity of the Gayety Theatre in Rochester, and also played ten weeks in Montreal, seventeen weeks in Toronto, and four weeks in Utica, and has been together without losing a performance for almost two years.

"Is that CORN COMING BACK AGAIN?"

If you merely cut the top OFF it certainly will. The business end is the root. You must get it OUT.

Cutting the top of a corn off with a razor or burning it off with caustic lotions, etc., doesn't do any good. It may do great harm by causing infection or even blood poisoning.

Also it hurts and the root just sprouts right up again, so your corn soon has a brand new top on it bigger and more painful than ever. The top is only dead skin anyway. Get at the little pointed part or core that extends down into the toe. That is what hurts when it presses on sensitive nerves, and it is the part you have to get out. A good handful of Rendel Bath Saltrates dissolved in a gallon or so of hot water will soften corns and callouses, like water softens soap. Just soak them in this for a while, then take hold of the corn with your fingers, and out it will come root and all. The refined Rendel Bath Saltrates costs very little, and any druggist will have it. A half-pound or so is sufficient to rid the whole family of all foot troubles.

Obtainable at most drug stores for 50c. or direct from the distributors Maxwell and Limited, New Birks Building, Montreal

The object of the occupation of Petrich, the despatch says, is to assure payment of the indemnities demanded by Greece for the casualties suffered in the frontier fighting near Demirhissar and to cause the dissolution of the headquarters of the Comitadjis, which are alleged to have been plotting against the tranquility of the border.

Mining Market Was Firm Kirkland Lake the Leader

TORONTO, Oct. 21. Canadian Press. — The market was generally firm on the Standard mining exchange this morning, with Kirkland Lake showing a turnover of more than 95,000 shares and Beaver absorbing more than 55,000. Kirkland climbed to 51, then receded to 47 3-4 at the close, an advance of 3 3-4 points, and Beaver sold up to 35, later easing 2 points to close at 33, 2 higher than yesterday. McKinley-Darragh sold 1 3-4 higher and Tough Oakes one, while Vipond eased two points and Hattie an eighth at 7-8.

Wheat Swung Upward On European Reports

CHICAGO, Oct. 21.—(Canadian Press).—With traders giving special attention to a report quoting the Secretary of Agriculture as saying it seems probable the market has already discounted all bearish factors in the wheat situation this year, wheat values took an early swing upward to-day. An unexpected advance in prices at Liverpool tended further to strengthen the market here. Besides, estimates were current which increased by 68,400,000 bushels the probable import requirements of Europe. Chicago opening prices 3-8c to 1½c higher, new style, December 146¾ to 147 and May 143¾ to 143 3-8, were followed by moderate further gains, December touching 147 3-8 and May 144.

Corn and oats were unheld by the strength of wheat. After opening unchanged to ½c higher, December 75 3-8, the corn market scored a slight general advance, but then re-acted to about the same as yesterday's finish.

Oats started at a shade decline to 1-8c gain, December 39⅝ to 39 5-8, and held near initial figures. Provisions were without material change.

Stock Prices Moved Up Over Wide Range of Shares

NEW YORK, Oct. 12 (Canadian Press).—Stock prices moved up sharply again today with buying embracing a wide variety of oil, rail, food, rubber, mercantile and equipment shares. With the technical position of the market apparently strengthened by the elimination of many weak accounts in the recent violent reaction, operators for a rise experienced little difficulty in pushing up their favories and in attracting a large public following.

Rails continued to creep forward with new leaders being brought forward. Continental insurance was run up eight points to a new top at 133, and Union Tank, Cushman Bakery, United States Cast Iron Pipe, Commercial Solvents A, "Soo" Preferred, and American Tobacco issue all sold four to six and a half points higher.

Wheat Held Responsible For High Dollar Premium

NEW YORK, Oct. 21 (Canadian Press).—Heavy transactions of recent date in Canadian wheat and increased demand from tourists for the Dominion's currency are given by officials here as accountable for the high premium of 5-32 of one per cent quoted on the local exchange for the Canadian dollar, and which is necessitating gold shipments across the border.

Moderate Trading To-day In Toronto Stock Exchange

TORONTO, Oct. 21.—(Canadian Press).—Trading continued on a moderate scale on the Toronto Stock Exchange this morning, with Shredded Wheat the centre of interest. Wheat, one of the leaders in volume of turnover, advanced to 167 and eased from that mark only a half point at the close, eight and one-eighth points above yesterday' Consolidated Smelters also was strong, closing at noon a point higher at 156, and Brazilian, after reaching 79¾, closed at noon at 78 7-8, a one-eighth improvement. Davies A and Mackay Preferred were other firm issues. Canada Steamships was a soft spot, the Common easing a point and the Preferred one and three-eighths. Atlantic Sugar closed a fraction easier.

DEAD LINE CROSSED BY NEW YORK CROOKS

Three Robberies in City During Short Time To-day.

NEW YORK, Oct. 21 (Canadian Press). — The police "dead line" marking the zone in which all known crooks are subjected to arrest on sight, was violated today, when a gang who entered the establishment of Israel Oleet, diamond dealer, bound the staff and rifled the safe of the firm's stock of jewels.

In another section of Brooklyn thieves backed a truck to the entrance to a haberdashery, cut a hole through a hallway wall, and carried away merchandise valued at $2,500.

IN MEMORIAM

LONG—In Loving Memory of our dear daughter, Mrs. James E. Long, who died October 21, 1924.
She was a dear kind daughter,
A real good pal and true:
Upright and just in all her ways,
A kind, good sister, too.
Friends may forget you, Florence, dear,
God grant we never shall.
—Inserted by Father, Mother and Sister.

IN MEMORIAM.

LONG.—In loving memory of my dear wife, Florence, who died Oct. 21, 1924:
Deep in my heart lies a picture,
Of a loved one laid to rest.
In memory's frame I shall keep it,
Because she was of the best.

My lips cannot speak how I loved her,
My heart cannot tell what to say,
I have lost, heaven has gained
One of the best the world contained.

God took her home
It was His will,
Forget her not

BORDEN DENIES BOIVIN'S CLAIM

Says He Was Never at Meeting Where Portfolio Was Offered.

IS IMAGINATION.

OTTAWA, Oct. 21.—(Canadian Press.)—Sir Robert Borden to-day issued the following statement to the Canadian Press:

"Because Mr. Ballantyne offered me a portfolio, therefore Sir Robert Borden must necessarily have been present.

"This is the gist of Mr. Boivin's statement. It means that or it means nothing, and it carries its own refutation. I repeat most emphatically that the portfolio was never offered to him in my presence and that I was not present at any such interview. Still assuming Mr. Boivin's sincerity I am forced to conclude than in this instance his imagination is too powerful for his memory."

The three were bound by the robbers, who secured $200 in a search of the house. The bandits travelled in a motor car.

NOMINATIONS COMPLETED TO-DAY FOR 214 ELECTORAL DISTRICTS LISTS FULL FOR DOMINION NOW

Lists Were Closed at Two O'clock in All Ridings.

DEPOSITS ALL IN.

More Than 140 Candidates Turned in Papers Ahead of Time.

OTTAWA, Oct. 22.—(Canadian Press).—To-day is nomination day in 214 electoral districts throughout the Dominion of Canada.

There are 241 constituencies in the Dominion but nominations have already been made in twenty-seven of them. Four of the constituencies elect two members each, which brings the total membership of the House of Commons to 245, as compared with 235 at the time of the last general election in 1921.

The proceedings to-day were simple. They involved the attendance of the returning officers at a specified place in each electoral district between the hours of 12 noon and 2 o'clock to receive nominations. The candidates were required to be British subjects of 21 years of age, and to present nomination papers bearing the signatures of ten qualified voters in their own constituency. Also a deposit of $200 was required from each candidate. This deposit is returnable to the candidate should

STEAMER ASHORE.

VICTORIA, B.C., Oct. 22. — Canadian Press. — An S.O.S. from the Shell Oil Tanker Amtullaria, ashore at Sur Rocks, on the California coast, was picked up by the Canadian government radio station last night at 9.50 o'clock. The vessel asked that tugs be sent to her assistance.

Broker Was Incarcerated When Office Door Stuck Fast

Steel bars may not make a prison, but an office front door that won't open can give a very good imitation of one, as patrons of Arthur E. Moysey, the well-known broker of Toronto, discovered in the noon hour yesterday, when the big front door on Bay Street, slammed shut, and all attempts to open it failed. The trouble seemed to be that the spring operating the thumb latch would not operate the bolt.

GENERAL ELECTRIC COMPANY'S PRESIDENT VISITS PETERBORO

D. C. DURLAND, TOO.

Gerard Swope, president of the General Electric Company, of the United States, visited the local plant of the Canadian General Electric Company yesterday, for the first time since his company purchased a large block of C.G.E. stock. With him in his trip to Peterboro were two Toronto officers of the Canadian General Electric Company, D. C. Durland, land, president, and J. J. Ashworth, general manager. They were luncheon guests of the Empress of E. G. Patterson, general superintendent of the company's works in Peterboro, and afterwards went directly to the factory.

Mr. Patterson stated to the Examiner that the visit of the officials was chiefly to inspect the property and discuss some features of the C. G. E. Company's affairs.

"Mr. Swope left New York Tuesday night and came on to Peterboro first after arriving in Toronto," Mr. Patterson said. "I suppose that he will also inspect the Toronto, and, probably, the Stratford branches, but there is nothing more that I can say for publication. This was not Mr. Swope's first trip to Peterboro. He came here once during Senator Nicholls' presidency."

An Industrial Giant.

Of all Peterboro's occasional visitors none are received with greater interest and eagerness by the general public than these high executives who guide the affairs of the C.G.E. Company. Visions of expansion of operations in the local factory, as a result of the infusion of the American company's financial interest, have been entertained by the people of this city, but Mr. Swope in commenting to the Examiner yesterday afternoon that the activity of the local plant would depend for the most part on the industrial development of this country and the demand for electrical machinery and equipment.

"We bought stock of the Canadian company chiefly to take care of our Canadian business, and as to that Mr. Durland may tell you something."

The president of the C.G.E. Company said that from the present outlook the operations of the Peterboro branch would be continued at their present level, increasing with any new contracts that would be secured.

Bobbed Hair Caused Colds Was Abandoned in 1671

LONDON, Oct. 22.—(United Press).—Beauties of the French court abandoned bobbing and shingling their hair in 1671 because they found that this style of hair-dressing resulted in colds and headaches, according to the letters of Mme. De Sevigne.

A local paper, investigating whether the same were true of the modern woman, found only two of six girls replying in the affirmative.

GREEK FORCES CROSS BORDER

Sofia Despatch Says Village of Petrich Has Been Shelled.

SENTINELS KILLED.

SOFIA, Oct. 22. — (Canadian Press). — A Bulgarian telegraph agency declares that Greek artillery has penetrated Bulgarian territory, killing five sentinels and firing shells against the village of Petrich.

The Greeks occupied three Bulgarian posts, the agency adds. The Bulgarian Government thus far has received no response from Athens to its demand for an immediate inquiry to establish the responsibility for the frontier incident of Monday. Petrich is reported to be crowded with Macedonian refugees, who are panic-stricken by falling shells. The advance of Greek troops is reported to be under way along the entire front.

SITUATION TENSE IN THE BALKANS

Premier Says Greek Troops Have Not Yet Crossed the Border.

DEMANDS NOT MET.

ATHENS, Oct. 22. — (Canadian Press).—A tense situation, the outgrowth of hostilities between Greek and Bulgarian forces along the Macedonian border line, still existed today. It is asserted by newspapers, allegedly on the word of the military authority, that it is the purpose of the Greeks immediately to cross the Greco-Bulgarian frontier and occupy the towns of Poroy and Petritsi and to hold them until the demand for an indemnity of 2,000,000 francs, an apology and punishment for the Bulgarian officers who started the trouble, has been met.

Premier Paingalos said last night that Greek troops has been stationed along the frontier but had not crossed to Bulgarian soil.

Quite a number of free dowries for prospective brides are distributed annually in England. One of the best known is the Bute Marriage Portion, which amounts to about $250. It represents the interest on a fund set aside by the Marquis of Bute to commemorate his silver wedding. The recipient must be a girl of good repute, engaged to some worthy young man, but unable to get married owing to lack of means.

WEATHER

October is drawing to a close, but up to the present date has not sustained its reputation as a pleasant fall month. Frequent showers, cool conditions and considerable snow, in some places, though not locally, have been frequent. This morning the thermometer was at 21 degrees, and another heavy white frost covered the ground.—W.P.

Aged Man Leaps In Time To Avoid Hot Tar Flood

John Shields, 70 years old, leaped aside in time to escape a flood of hot tar when a 400-gallon wheeled tank broke down at Jefferson and Hutchinson Streets.

As the tank tipped over a stream of hot fluid flowed over the sidewalk and down a gutter for nearly a block. It slowly hardened and left a solid black film.

The tank was attached to a horse-drawn wagon. The tar was owned by the city and was being taken to a street repair gang. Shields was crossing the street at the side of the tank when an axle broke, upsetting the tank.

Editor's Pictures Are News When 30 Ladies Edit Paper

NEW ROCHELLE, N.Y., Oct. 22.—(United Press).—Given the editorial direction of the New Rochelle Standard-Star for a day, 30 young women agreed that their pictures of sufficient news value to be printed in the edition which they published.

The young women, all under 21 years of age, and comprising the membership of the Non-Partisan Junior League of Women Voters, took over the entire management of the newspaper as a part of their study of politics.

Every male member of the Standard-Star's staff appeared with a brand new shave and otherwise sartorially perfect to be of any assistance possible.

DAYLIGHT SAVING AND SUNDAY BATHING QUESTIONS TO VOTERS

Aldermen Passed By-laws Providing For Vote on New Year's Day.

MAY SELL LOT.

Carbonized Coal Co. Wishes To Buy Land in East City.

The citizens of Peterborough will be given an opportunity to say by their ballots whether or not they want the bathing beaches open on Sundays, and whether they want daylight saving during the months of June, July and August. By-laws providing for the taking of votes on these two questions were passed at a special meeting of the Council last night. These by-laws were introduced by Alderman Phelan and seconded by Alderman Denne.

The special meeting was called so that the Council might set a price of a piece of land in Ashburnham which the Carbonized Coal Company wishes to purchase, and to say whether the company might lay a gas line along the streets to the gas plant. Subject to a satisfactory report on the desirability of such a plant from a committee consisting of the Mayor, and the chairmen of the Manufacturers, Property and Board of Works Committees, a price of $500 was placed on the land and permission was granted for laying the gas line. The price was set so that the engineers of the company might have something to work on in considering the site. The company plans to erect a plant to make a suitable fuel from slack coal, as was demonstrated at the Auburn Mills plant of the Canadian Woollens Company some time ago, and hopes to sell its by-product, gas, to the Hydro.

Dickson-Davidson appeared before the council to ask for changes in the plan of the lots at the property of the Dickson Company on London street so that sewerage connection might be provided certain buildings. It was decided that a by-law should be prepared authorizing these changes.

Plant Incomplete

The sewage disposal plant occupied a great deal of time at the meeting. It was said by Alderman Phelan that not only was the contractor for the pump house and pipe line behind with his contract, but his delays had caused the contractors for certain of the machinery to box up their machinery for the winter, as they were unable to instal it now. On the other hand it was said that the contractors for the cement work had been held up because blue prints showing where the bolts for the machinery should be imbedded in the cement had not been forthcoming in time. It was urged by Alderman Phelan that the penalty specified in the contract should be withheld from the next payment. A resolution finally passed that the City Engineer be asked to bring in a report showing how far the work was behind the contract dates and giving an estimate of the date when the plant would be completed.

The report of the Committee of the Whole Council was passed with one dissenting voice. Alderman Fife moved that the first clause, refusing to authorize the issue of debentures for the proposed combination school, be struck out, but he had no seconder.

Crippled and unable to walk as the result of an accident in early infancy, Miss Anna Pugh is nevertheless one of the most active women in her home town of Granite Falls, Wash. Miss Pugh fills the office of city treasurer, serves as city librarian, and in her spare time keeps books for a transportation company.

His Own Little Girl Sends Him To Chair

GRAY, Ga., Oct. 22.—Largely on the testimony of his own daughter, John D. Batchelor, 43, must go to the electric chair, November 27, for the murder of Mrs. Fannie Anderson, his mother-in-law.

Myrtle, nine-year-old daughter of Batchelor, was the State's star witness. She was the only eye-witness to the struggle that ended in the fatal shooting of Mrs. Anderson at her home, April 28.

TARIFF, TREATY AND EMIGRATION WERE DISCUSSED

Meeting Held in North Monaghan in Support of Hon. G. N. Gordon.

EXODUS TO U. S.

Candidate Declared That Canadians Got the Habit During Meighen's Rule.

North Monaghan was covered last night by the Liberal candidate and speakers in his interests, John Marshall and Mr. Gordon speaking at May's School while J. Dewart and the candidate also presented the case at the Elmdale school a few miles farther distant. G. N. Gordon left the latter place to aid Vincent Massey in a meeting which he was holding in Bailieboro.

At May's school Mr. Marshall dealt largely with the railway situation while the candidate in his address generalized broadly and told about organization work and conditions relative to the canvass.

At Elmdale School

That Canada had the best system of government possible was the contention of John Dewart as voiced in S. S. Number 3, North Monaghan. As it was a representative government the candidates selected by the people were a fair index of the calibre of the electorate. It cost the people just as much to send a good man to Ottawa as a poor man and so the eelctors should see that they got the most possible for their money. On the base of four great industries, agriculture, mining, fishing and lumbering Canada was attempting to build the superstructure of commercial life—anything which the government can do to help those industries will help the country as 40 per cent of the nation's wealth is represented by agriculture it thus occupies the predominant place among the other industries said Mr. Dewart.

At the last election the Prime Minister had said that he would try to develop the great industries and accordingly the duties on farm implements had been reduced. While the manufacturers protested, Mr. King and Minister of Finance Field-

THUGS HELD UP TORONTO FAMILY AT POINT OF GUN

Frank Burrows Robbed of $1,500 in Diamonds, $200 in Cash.

MASKED RAIDERS.

Held up at the point of the revolver, Frank Burrow, of Queen Street, Long Branch, near Toronto, his wife and a Scotch maid, were left bound and gagged whilst three thugs ransacked their house and escaped with diamonds valued at $1,500 and some $200 in cash. But for the prompt work and quick-wittedness of Mrs. Burrows, who was surprised whilst in bed, the haul would have been much larger.

The stolen jewellery includes two diamond rings and a tie-pin. Also, Burrows lost his $80 gold watch.

The outrage occurred at two o'clock in the morning, after Mrs. Burrows and the maid had retired for the night, and Mr. Burrows was just clearing up after some friends of his had left the house. He was on the point of going to bed himself when he heard a series of loud knocks at the front door and, thinking some of his friends had returned unexpectingly, answered the imperative summons.

Instead, however, of seeing his friends, he was confronted with three revolvers, held in the steady hands of three masked desperados. Realizing the hopelessness of his position he immediately raised his hands, when he was forced to go into the front room and stretch himself on a library table there. One of the thugs tore up a sheet whilst the others kept Mr. Burrows covered and, in a few minutes, he was securely trussed up and gagged.

"When I answered the call to the door, one of them called me by name saying 'Hello, Tug,' an old nickname that I was called many years ago," says Burrows. "I opened the door and the three stepped in. One put a gun against my ribs, the other two grabbed me. I could see a car outside with another man in it and they told me to keep quiet as they

CHILD IS FATALLY BURNED IN BARN

Two Little Boys Thought to Have Been Playing With Matches.

NAPANEE, Oct. 22. Canadian Press. — The barn of Percy Robinson in South Napanee, as totally destroyed by fire yesterday afternoon, and his son, Wilbert, aged three years, perished in the flames.

Two little boys, Percy, aged five years, and Wilbert, aged three years, went out to play after dinner. About two o'clock their mother went out to look for them and found the barn on fire, and only Percy in sight near the barn.

The mother's screams were heard by the neighbors, who hurried to the scene of the fire. The mother and the aged grandfather, who is over 90 years old, with the neighbors, attempted a rescue, but without avail.

Firemen from the town were able in a short time to get out the charred remains of the little fellow.

The cause of the fire is unknown but it is supposed that the boys may have been playing with matches.

HON. ARTHUR CHASES HIS TAIL IN CIRCLING TARIFF QUESTION

Immovable as a Rock For Short Seasons at a Time—Says Lower Tariff Will Benefit the Consumers—Changing Winds Bring Changing Policies.

READ THIS STORY OF HIS WANDERINGS.

Hon. Arthur Meighen is represented by his supporters as the strong man of Canada, the man with a clear-cut policy, the man who knows what he wants. Others may waver and show lack of resolution and decision, but not Mr. Meighen. Mr. Meighen, so his friends say, and he mildly admits the impeachment, knows what he wants. Just now he wants an increase in the tariff to make Canada prosperous.

Well, if it is true that Mr. Meighen knows what he wants it is also true that he does not always want the same thing. One wonders if he is the rock of stability his friends would have us believe. Take his attitude on the tariff as a case in point. In January, 1910, Mr. Meighen, then in opposition at Ottawa, wanted the duty on agricultural implements reduced. He went so far as to move a resolution to that effect. You will find it on page 1915 of the Canadian Hansard for the session of 1910-11, the date being January 18, 1911. This was Mr. Meighen's resolution:

That in the opinion of this House a reduction on the duties on agricultural implements is now due the agriculturists of Canada, and is in just accord with the true ends of a protective tariff.

The last clause was explained by Mr. Meighen to the effect that the Canadian manufacturers under the tariff protection that had been given them were competing successfully in the markets of the world and therefore they could get along with less protection at home. The time had come, he said, when the government should lessen the tax on the Canadian consumer.

* * *

Mr. Meighen's remarks in support of his resolution make interesting reading in view of his public addresses today when he is saying that a reduction in the duty does not mean lower prices in Canada.

This is what Mr. Meighen said in the House of Commons in January, 1911, when sitting as member for Portage la Prairie:

Now, Sir, what are the manufacturers of agricultural implements enabled to do? They are able, under this tariff, to exact a higher price than they could exact if the tariff were lower. I do not say that a reduction will, to any enormous extent, affect the price; I believe it will materially, and I think it will render some relief to particularly the farmers of the West, many of whom, notwithstanding any statements that have been made here, are struggling between success and failure every hour. It will afford some relief to them and I believe it is the bounden duty of the government to so afford it.

That is very interesting reading in view of Mr. Meighen's statements at Winnipeg two weeks ago that lower duties do not mean lower prices to the consumer. Compare what Mr. Meighen said in 1911 with what he is saying in 1925 and draw your own conclusions as to the ruggedness of the rock of his stability.

* * *

That was Mr. Meighen in 1911 when in opposition, when he was anxious to help the western farmer by a lower duty on the implements of production.

By 1920 Mr. Meighen had veered around to where he was telling the House of Commons that he was for "moderate protection." He was in power then. This is what he was saying:

We can never have a high tariff in Canada. In the first place a high tariff is unsound in principle in that it tends to eliminate one of the factors of competition, namely, foreign goods.

That was Mr. Meighen in 1920. What about 1925? Mr. Meighen is now the leader of a party that wants to put up the tariff brick for brick with that of the United States, which has the highest tariff in the world. If that isn't going to be a high tariff we would like to know what his idea of a high tariff is. And yet in 1920 Mr. Meighen was saying that Canada could never have a high tariff.

Mr. Meighen may be perfectly honest; he has a perfect right to change his mind. But he should be careful about hurling charges of shifting and wobbling at others. He has been pretty well around the circle himself.

Is Mr. Meighen prepared to argue that what he said was good for the West in 1911 isn't good for the West today? And when are we to believe him? Are we to believe him in 1911 when he said that a high duty enabled the manufacturers to exact a higher price, or are we to believe him in 1925 when he says that lower duties do not mean lower prices to the consumers?

The men then separated, one going to the maid's—Miss G. B. Johnston—room, whilst the other forced his way into Mrs. Burrow's room. The maid immediately sprang out of bed and engaged in a tussle with her assailant, managing to knock the revolver out of his hand and also tear off his mask. She describes him as a foreigner, between 20 and 25, dark and swarthy, and evidently nervous.

Faced Revolver.

The noise of the struggle aroused Mrs. Burrows, who awoke to find an armed man at the foot of her bed, pointing a revolver at her. With remarkable presence of mind, Mrs. Burrows slipped off two diamond rings she had on her fingers and hid them in the bed, unperceived by the would-be thief. Then she was ready and calling out to the maid not to resist, gave up.

The maid was brought into her room and both the women bound together in the bed, whilst Mrs. Burrows' two-year-old daughter, Frances Elizabeth, was placed between them. A small bracelet the baby was wearing was stripped off by the men. Neither Mrs. Burrows nor the maid complain of any bad treatment, other than the struggle.

"One man forced his way into my room," said Miss Johnson. "He seized and threw me on the floor. I got up and he covered me with a revolver. I knocked off a handkerchief which masked his face, and he told me that if I did that again he would murder me. They drove me into Mrs. Burrows' bedroom. I tried to switch on the light to see if I could get a look at them, and one of the men slapped me in the face and told me to mind my own business. They tied us up and stood with a revolver pressing against our heads."

Cut 'Phone Wires.

For over an hour the men ransacked the house, doing considerable damage, but taking nothing more than the roll of bills. At 3.45 they left, and Mr. Burrows was able to release himself and, in turn, release his womenfolk. He was not able to get into communication with the police at the time, the men having previously cut the telephone wires outside the house.

A neighbor was later communicated with, he got in touch with the city police, and detectives are investigating.

It is thought the men came up Queen Street in a high-powered automobile, and escaped cityward by the same means. Mr. Burrows, who has an expensive bungalow, has only been a resident at Long Branch for about three weeks. His house is close to the racetrack.

We do not dislike the people we can see through as much as those who can see through us.

A man is never so amusing as when he attempts to lay laws down for the conduct of women.

LEADERS' SPEECHES WILL BE BROADCAST

Station C.N.R.O. Will Enable Fans to Hear Ottawa Address.

MONTREAL, Oct. 22.—In response to requests received from its radio audience Station CNRO, Canadian National Railways will broadcast the speeches of the Prime Minister Rt. Hon. W. L. Mackenzie King and of the leader of the Opposition Rt. Hon. Arthur Meighen, when the two leaders speak at Ottawa. The Premier will deliver an important address in the Capital on Saturday night next, the 24th inst., beginning at nine o'clock and Mr. Meighen will make his closing speech of the campaign at the same hour on Wednesday, the 28th.

Before and after the speeches a studio musical program will be broadcast. Wednesday and Saturday are the regular broadcasting nights of station CNRO, but it was felt that the musical features should be condensed to meet the public desire to hear the closing utterances of the campaign.

TARIFF, TREATY AND EMIGRATION

ing pointed out that because of low ered prices, increased sales would result. Massey Harris and International Harvester as well as other companies cut their prices and are now united in saying that business has not been injured but stimulated because of the change. Mr. Dewart would not say that the tariff was low enough yet but he believed it to be a step in the right direction as the evidence showed.

Speakers for the opposition were making a point of dilating on hard times. Canada's fame had been spread abroad because of the deeds of her soldiers and the reputation obtained by her produce. Consequently considerable attention has been given to Mr. Meighen's hard times cries, Mr. Dewart stated. There was plenty of room in Canada for emigrants but they were deterred by this pessimistic flow from a national leader. Capitalists would not feel that Canada offered desirable opportunities for investment.

The year 1921, the speaker declared was one of the most trying in the history of the country. On the belief that farming was a paying proposition many invested and found the market dropping from under them while land values depreciated to a marked extent.

Farmers found that their buying power was cut off and when the farmer can't buy, affirmed the speaker all other industry is affected. Mr. Strickland and Mr. McElderry were enlarging on the hard times of the last few years but strangely dumb concerning the hard times period of the Meighen regime.

Arthur Meighen predicted disaster when the tariff was lowered on agricultural implements but the International Harvester Company is employing more men now than they have for the past five years," said the speaker in effect as he quoted a statement from a contemporary.

Progressive Movement

Prior to the time of Sir Oliver Mowat the farmers despairing of getting consideration from the Conservative party in power started a movement called the "Patrons of Industry" which died out in Mowat's regime when the farmers saw that it was not essential.

When the Liberal government arranged the Reciprocity Treaty which caused its downfall it had prepared something which would have been of the greatest value to Canadian industry. The idea was fought by big interests and the great market of the United States was lost. More than that the States put up such a tariff wall against Canadian produce that farmers of this country could not overcome it.

Tariff for this country was started under Sir John A. MacDonald to protect the baby industries at that time but according to Mr. Dewart would not be so necessary as they gained in strength. He said that MacDonald's intention was to eliminate it when the goal of reciprocal trade was reached.

Farmers of the West have been discontented ever since the defeat of the Reciprocity treaty. They were dissatisfied with the freight rates and sent deputations to Ottawa which were ignored by the Borden administration.

Then the Progressive movement was formed which grew by leaps and bounds but as Progressives and Liberals have been working together for the last four years it is now decreasing as its requirements are being met.

Western Canada was against protection and always had been and the moneyed interests in Eastern Canada want it. Each province presents different features and an unsympathetic government would tend to pull them apart. The question of national unity, Mr. Dewart claimed, was at stake and further stated that the Liberal party had always attempted to walk the middle course and keep all provincs satisfied, by affording a moderate protection which would aid industry and satisfy the Western farmer.

The speaker granted the integrity of the Conservative candidate but in comparison represented the advisability of sending out a representative fully conversant with the affairs of the day and that as it cost as much to elect a good man as a poor one then the Hon. G. N. Gordon was the logical choice.

G. N. Gordon

Due to the fact that it was necessary for Mr. Goardon to attend three meetings last night he was forced to break in upon Mr. Dewart's address and then proceed leaving it to the latter to close the meeting.

H said that the condition in which the country now was had never been known to exist before. War had placed a great increase on the National debt and Victory bonds, not open to taxation, had been introduced by the opposition government were now imposing a hardship on the country.

But, he averred, trade conditions were rapidly improving and gave as an instance the fact that four times as many cattle were being exported than under the previous administration. It was impossible said Mr. Gordon, to protect an industry unless the home market could take care of the surplus as the price of the surplus on the foreign markets fixes to a great degree the price on the home market.

The treaty with Australia, which was being deplored by the Conservatives gives a great benefit to the paper and automobile industries and in return Canada may import butter and eggs. Canada has, however, a surplus of those commodities and it is not likely that the market for them will receive wide patronage.

The speaker after commenting briefly on the fact that the war debt was materially reduced and taxation lower returned to the question of the Victory Bonds. None of the war costs had been defrayed at the actual time of the war although the interest had been paid. Incomes of the big concerns were not taxed for a period of three years so there was ample opportunity to convert capital into the convenient interest bearing bonds on a long term basis. These bonds were not taxed.

Notwithstanding all this there was a difference of $100 millions less for commercial loans showing that the people don't need to borrow so much money and there is practically no unemployment except in some seasonable occupations. The Post Office department shows a surplus now where a deficit existed before.

Regarding emigration Mr. Gordon said that Canadians got the habit of going to the States during the time of Mr. Meighen's holding of office and the habit has been hard to break—alluding to figures compiled showing that Canadians were now returning he said that these conditions were gradually improving.

The farmer had been benefitted by a decrease in the cost of production because the prices of machinery had been lowered. More money is set free to go into the improvement of the country, Mr. Gordon explained. If Meighen were to succeed in his efforts to raise the tariff the cost of farming would take a corresponding jump. He is preaching high protection in the cities but saying nothing of the increase in the cost of living which will follow.

The present government the speaker submitted, had cut the cost of living while if Meighen were put in power it would be raised. Economy had been effected and no taint of scandal was attached to their name. The high tariff would benefit the privileged few but the farmers would certainly suffer because of it. Mr. Gordon said that the country was approaching the crest of prosperity. It was not necessary to quote figures he said: All one had to do was feel the money in one's pockets. Farmer's must be prosperous to give prosperity to all.

Mr. Gordon closed by soliciting the support of the electors and assuring them of his best efforts to give them a fair representation.

John Clark acted as chairman of the meeting.

GENERAL ELECTRIC

There was a reasonable prospect of new business, Mr. Durland said, but he hesitated about making a more definite statement of industrial development in the near futu

The large contract obtained from the Aluminum Company of Canada for its electrical equipment was one of the present bright features of the C.G.E. business. He had hopes that other contracts would be secured, and while the remarks of both Mr. Swope and Mr. Durland were hopeful and encouraging with a seeming implication of brighter conditions than the precise words expressed.

Began As Helper.

Gerard Swope is one of the outstanding figures in American industry. The enquiry begun by United States Federal Trade Commission into the holdings of the General Electric Company disclosed the fact its capital investment is estimated at $2,000,000,000. And he records of that company will show that back in 1893 Gerard Swope's name was entered on the pay-roll as a helper at a wage of $1 a day. From an obscure employee to the presidency of a two billion dollar company sketches a unique romance of business and achievement: During the war Mr. Swope was associate to General Goethals, director of the service of supplies branch of the U. S. War Department.

In reply to The Examiner's question, Mr. Swope said that Herbert Bayard Swope, the brilliant journalist behind the New York World, was his brother. Olympians both, the one ranking as high in newspaperdom as the other in the world of gigantic industrial corporations! Mr. Swope displayed a keen interest in New York newspaper successes and especially in that of the World and its splendid staff, including that richly gifted reporter, music critic and sports writer, to mention a few of his talents, Heywood Broun.

A final glimpse of Gerard Swope as he left Peterboro revealed his common humanity as a happy wedding party swept past him, their shower of confetti swirling about him and his companions. Mr. Durland and Mr. Ashworth. They stopped a moment to smile with other men and women boarding the parlor coach, touched by the universal sentiment that all the world loves a lover. And the chief director of a two billion dollar corporation, the some-time helper at $1 a day, stood out in that fleeting glimpse as just one with the rest of folks except and in spite of his high estate.

Conscience is a still, small voice that warns us someone is looking.

U.S. BEST PLACE

He believes it is more momentous than the Dawes plan, and perhaps second only to the signing of the armistice. For the Dawes plan was negotiated, not by statesmen whose political fortunes were at stake, but by experts from 3,000 miles away, and therefore free of European influence and pressure. It was not a true test of public opinion in Europe.

Statesmen Showed Courage

But at Locarno, it was pointed out at the White House, the actual political representatives of half a dozen ministries, whose future might be adversely or favorably affected by what they did there, were able to agree upon a pact of peace and good will. Chamberlain, Mussolini, Briand and Stresemann had the courage to jeopardize their standing at home, if the reaction should prove unfavorable, in behalf of European peace.

This is an indication, the President feels, that the peoples of the Continent have reached a stage where they can calmly review the past and permit their representatives to sit down in conference in the hope of preventing a recurrence of war. European public opinion has progressed until now a Cabinet officer can openly declare himself an advocate of an era of peace rather than a believer in defaults, punishments and revenge.

Costs Money To Help U. S. Make-a-Farmer Move

NE WYORK, Oct. 22—(United Press).—Six hundred guests at a "make-a-farmer", dinner in the Astor Hotel ball room paid sixty dollars a plate for good products raised by stations of the National Farm School at Doyleston, Pa.

The dinner marked the opening of a campaign for $72,000 to send 120 New York boys for three years study at the school which is a leader in the "back to farm" movement.

Instead of the customary flowers at the speaker's table, the banquet hall was decorated with small pumpkins, turnips, cabbage heads and beets. Prize chickens were also on exhibition but they showed little interest in the proceedings and went to roost before the dinner began.

ATLANTA, Ga., Oct. 22.—(Canadian Press).—Roy Gardiner, mail bandit and stick-up man, didn't like certain disciplinary methods at the Fort Leavenworth, Kansas, prison so he went on hunger strike. That was thirty days ago, and the fast was broken only yesterday when he was brought to the Atlanta Federal Prison. He has fifty years of his term to serve yet.

THURSDAY, OCTOBER 22, 1925.

USE YOUR FRANCHISE.

With election day but a week away it is somewhat disheartening to find people who declare that they have no interest in the outcome and no intention of voting.

It cannot be too strongly asserted that as a citizen who takes that attitude is of little real value.

The franchise should be regarded as a most highly prized privilege—not as a worthless thing that might just as well not be utilized.

There are issues to be settled next Thursday that have a direct bearing upon the lives of every one of us for the next four years.

Surely therefore every citizen should desire a voice in deciding these issues; they are too important to be neglected.

With a half holiday proclaimed for Thursday afternoon and the polls open until 6 o'clock there is not the slightest excuse for failure to vote and next Thursday's total should be large.

THE FIGHT IS ON.

While there are fewer Progressives in Ontario and the Maritime provinces than in 1925 the Forke party is very largely represented in the prairie provinces, while throughout the whole Dominion the two old parties are represented by candidates nearly everywhere, except that in Ontario a score of ridings have been left to the Progressives and Conservatives.

There is a considerable sprinkling of independent aspirants for office and in some of the ridings the electors have a variety of candidates from which to make their choice.

All this, of course, adds to the uncertainty of the campaign and goes to offset the predictions of the party prophets who can sit down and figure out the results over the whole Dominion, if you care to let them.

The real truth seems to be that with the election day a week off there is much more than the usual difficulty in sizing up the situation throughout the country, and the wise man is leaving his prediction until the day after the election.

SUBURBAN POWER RATES.

The dismay of the suburban users of light and power at the unexpected but substantial increase made in the charges for these services by the Provincial Hydro Electric Commission can readily be sympathized with by city folks, especially in view of Warden Rye's suggestion that the local rates may also be boosted.

However much there is to the later statement, there is a feeling that the local Utilities Commission might be justified in joining in with the suburban power users in their protest to the Provincial commission.

In some of the sections affected there is an inclination to view the changed rates as something in the way of a campaign to drive these areas into the city.

It is, of course, nothing of the kind, and the co-operation of the local Utilities Commission in presenting the case to the Ontario Commission would be a neighborly gesture that would be appreciated by the people of North Monaghan, Otonabee, Smith and Douro.

Extensions to the system servin these townships were made under the sanction of the local Utilities Commission and the commissioners should therefore be directly interested in the matter.

WANING OCTOBER.

Day has the leaping colors of the woods and night has the harvest moon and the scintillating northern lights. All the ways are full of the potent charm of fall. Dried leaves run before the wind and most of the year is underfoot, but the calendar is one of revels, festivals and thanks.

So small a thing as a cricket under the browned and broken bracken has a powerful voice of cheer, and all the great suns fade out when the harvest moon is full. Harvest home is the end of the road.

The quiek months are in the crypt, but there is no cypress at the portal and no requiem in the wind. This death is a fat host in a lighted doorway. The wains are in the barnyard. The drivers are at the fire. The shepherd comes in from the field and the hunter from the hill. October is a brown armed maid with pewter mugs.

There is a hail from a coach in the darkened road. Travellers come into the shaft of light. The pig that squealed at the knife is now pork sausage.

The fat host who welcomes the guests from the road and the field was the butcher. Man is not jovial on leeks and lettuce.

The plowman comes in with the harvester. One field is yellow in stubble, but another is green with winter grain. The russet apples were blooms in the spring. The harvest moon and the host in the doorway will be the same, but there ar always new travellers in the road, another man walks behind the plow, and there's another hand at the flail.

THE PROMISE OF LOCARNO.

Great Britain and the oversea Dominions have reason to cherish a quite pardonable pride at the part played by Mr. Austen Chamberlain, Secretary for Foreign Affairs, in the Locarno conference. It is an open secret that British influence was behind the action of the German government last February when it tentatively suggested a regional pact as the basis of Western European security. The proposal was heartily welcomed by the British cabinet, and Mr. Chamberlain has since displayed both patience and perseverance in smoothing away the recurrent difficulties that beset its path. The Foreign Secretary, though lacking the gifts of personal magnetism, enjoys an enviable reputation for high ability, honesty and a marked sense of public duty and responsibility. While nothing startling or spectacular is expected from him, he is generally and implicitly trusted to keep a straight road and to permit nothing to incline him away from the goal on whch he has fixed his eyes.

These qualities were all displayed in the negotiations that have ended so successfully and satisfactorily. It was evident from the opening of the Locarno discussions that they were to be conducted in a different environment and atmosphere from those formerly held with German participation. The German delegates no longer faced conditions that constantly recalled their isolation as representing a country that had become a pariah in the community of nations. Thus happily launched, the conference proceeded with an unusual absence of serious friction. Although the German Chancellor and Foreign Minister fought hard in support of their various contentions, they did not press their points to a degree that seriously threatened disruption. In fact, all the negotiators appeared to have been imbued with a genuine determination to assist in the formulaton of a treaty that would materially lessen the danger of war.

Today the universal hope is that Locarno will mark the opening of a new chapter in the history of the world in which will be inscribed before its close the final outlawry of war. Even so far as the conference has gone it ranks as the most important international gathering since the peace conference adjourned at Versailles, and is vastly more promising of good to mankind than the outcome of that assembly. Realization of the tragic futility of war has deepened with the experiences that came in the wake of the great conflict and the possibility of renewng these has been increasingly intolerable. Victors as well as vanquished have suffered grievously, and the statesmen who conferred at Locarno were only reflecting the attitude of the peoples. The League of Nations and the permanent court of international justice continue to loom up as the great hope for the establishment of the reign of law against the arbitrament of the sword.—St. Thomas Times-Journal.

GREAT ACHIEVEMENTS.

Three years ago this month the three protocols embodying the scheme for the financial reconstruction of Austria were signed at Geneva. In a recent edition of the London Times Sir Arthur Salter reviews the progress which has been accomplished by the League of Nations under that arrangement, and discusses also the plan for restoring the finances of Hungary and other reconstruction progams. If the league had accomplished nothing more than these great tasks it would have amply justified its existence and earned the unfeigned gratitude not merely of the nations immediately concerned, but of the whole world. It was not till toward the end of 1922 that practical steps were taken to rehabilitate the shattered, economic structure of Europe. All currencies were then at a low ebb, but of them all Austria was in the most desperate position. "No currency except the Russian ruble had fallen so low; few countries were so dependent on imported food and raw materials and therefore on the external value of their money; no government was faced with a task so clearly beyond its unaided resources. External aid had been given generously but piecemeal, and had failed, and Austria seemed destined to present the first, but not the last, example of chaotic finances reaching their ultimate conclusion in starvation, revolution and disruption."

When the league took up the burden the position did, indeed, seem hopeless. A commissioner-general, responsible to the league, was appointed and an external guaranteed loan was raised and the financial stability of the country assured. As a result the Austrian crown—"previously the most demoralized currency outside Russia"—has been throughout the three years of the league's supervision the most stable currency in Europe. The budgets of 1924 and 1925 show a substantial surplus. "The consequence is," declares Sir Arthur, "that a large part of the external loan, the great bulk of which had been extended to cover deficits on ordinary expenditure, has been free to increase the capital resources of the country. Indeed, if we separate out of the both new capital investments and other expenditure of a capital character, such as the repayment of liabilities, we arrive at the astonishing result that throughout the whole period of three years the allocations from the reconstruction loan to current deficits have been less than one year's service on the loan itself."

So satisfactory has been the outcome of the leagues plans that it is announced that the control of the commissioner-general will be greatly restricted at the beginnig of the new year and the formal declaration by the leage is looked for before long that "the financial stability of Austria is assured." As for Hungary, at the end of 1923 she was in as bad a state as Austria had been. The league took control in May, 1924, and for the fiscal year July 1, 1924, to June 30, 1925, instead of an anticipated deficit of 100,000,000 crowns there is a surplus of 63,000,000 crowns. Currency is on a gold basis. There are other achievements of the league discussed, but space prevents detailed reference. Suffice it to say that the highest hopes have been fulfilled.—Hamilton Spectator.

BLACKHEADS

Blackheads go quickly by a simple method that just dissolves them. Get two ounces of peroxine powder from your druggist, rub this with a hot, wet cloth briskly over the blackheads—and you will wonder where they have gone.

VOICE OF THE PEOPLE.

All letters bearing on the pending General Election or political questions must bear the authentic name of the writer for publication. No letter will be published without the writer's name. This step is taken to protect the candidates from anonymous attacks and to assure Examiner readers of the legitimacy of the expressions of opinion in the communications.

NOTE WELL

Owing to space limitations no letter can be published that contains more than 300 words.

Dear Sir: In your issue of Saturday, October 17th, in a report of a certain political meeting held on Thursday last in the village of Havelock, my old friend, Mr. John A. Sexsmith, speaking on the redistribution question, is reported to have said:

"In the early stages of the committee an effort was made to keep the two Peterborough ridings together, and Mr. Brethen would put the blame on the Conservative party, which is absurd, and when he had an opportunity on the last day he did not take it."

In view of the fact that at the final meeting of the Redistribution Committee the Hon. H. H. Stevens, Conservative member for Centre Vancouver) moved "that Otonabee, Douro and Lakefield be added to West Peterborough," and his resolution was supported by every other Conservative in the Committee, as well as by all the Liberals. I fail to see how Mr. Sexsmith can take any exception to my placing the responsibility where it belongs.

Regarding the latter part of the statement attributed to Mr. Sexsmith "That when Mr. Brethen had an opportunity on the last day to keep the two Peterboro ridings together ,and he did not take it," I have this to say:

"The records of the House will show that never on the last day, or any other day, or night, during the whole time this question was before the House did I fail to accept any opportunity to meet the known wishes of my people to put the two Peterboros together."

I am willing to give my friend, Mr. Sexsmith, full measure of credit for any good he ever accomplished while the representative of East Peterboro, and hold him too high in my esteem to believe he willfully made the misstatements attributed to him. Sincerely yours,

G. A. BRETHEN.

A THOUGHT.

DID YOU EVER?

Did you ever use a bent pin for a fish hook? Ever go "coonin" in your neighbor's melon patch? Ever shoot paper wads with a rubber band? Eat green apples and suffer the consequences? Write notes across the aisle in the district school? Ride on the "crust" on a shovel? Steal crackers and pickles in the corner store? Snowball a high hat? Raid the pantry? As Claire Briggs says, "D'y'ever?"

BUILDING CULVERT.

YOUNG'S POINT, Oct. 22.—The new culvert, which is being built, bridging the creek running through the village will be a big improvement. The road is being widened and in order to do this an elm tree, an old land-mark in the village has had to be destroyed.

The bank at the turn in the bay below the school house is also being cut away. This turn has always been dangerous especially as being so near the school house.

Personals.

Captain Scollard of the steamer "Stoney Lake" had the misfortune to sprain his ankle one day last week. He is now at his home in the village.

Cheese was shipped from the local factory on Thursday last.

A number from the village attended the seventh annual revue of the Dumbells in Peterboro on Saturday evening.

Miss Seymour of Toronto was in the village on Saturday, on business.

Miss Mary Buchanan who is attending school in Peterboro spent the week end at her home.

Mr. and Mrs. Andrew Dever of Smith have moved to the village and will reside here for the winter.

Miss Muriel Boyce spent the week end at her home in Lakefield.

OPEN LETTER NO. 27

RT. HON. W. L. MACKENZIE KING,
Prime Minister and President of the Privy Council,
Ottawa.

Dear Sir:

Has it ever struck you how utterly unattainable a thing free trade is? Even were the people of Canada, on a plebiscite, to declare themselves without a single dissenting vote as in favor of it, it would still be beyond the power of Parliament to give it to them! Parliament could, of course, legislate free imports, but between free imports and free trade there is a vast difference!

If Canada were to legislate free imports to-morrow, how many countries would, in return throw their markets open to her? Give them a year—five years if you like—to take action, how many of them do you think would respond?

Or if Canada, instead of legislating free imports, were to declare herself willing to negotiate treaties of free trade with all comers, how many would be likely to accept the invitation? With practically every other country in the world increasing her tariff, with even the United Kingdom now beginning to protect her home market, isn't it a foregone conclusion that Canada's offer would find no takers?

But for the sake of further elucidation, let us suppose for the moment that her offer were accepted by the United Kingdom and by France. Immediately a host of knotty problems would arise, hinging upon whether it was to be real free trade or only nominal free trade.

Would England, for instance, abandon her embargo against our potatoes? Would we forego provincial prohibition against Scotch whiskey and French wine? Would no account be taken of such things as depreciated currencies? What assurances would we have that goods coming from jobbers in England and France were not of German or Italian origin, and what assurances would they have that goods coming from our jobbers were not of United States origin? Would we go on and do business together regardless of the disparities between their laws and ours, in such matters as child labor, minimum wages, factory sanitation, workmen's compensation, and a host of other things? In other words, would the free trade be fair trade? If not, how long would our people stand for it?

Meanwhile Canada would have on her hands the purely internal problem of devising and putting into operation new methods of taxation, calculated to yield a revenue equal to that that would be lost through the removal of the customs duties on goods coming from those countries. We know how big a part it is of the $133,000,000 now raised by the tariff. But under free trade, how much bigger would it be? And by what method could it be raised with the minimum disturbance to business?

A nice mess we would be in all around, wouldn't we? Yet nothing daunted, some people are earnestly advocating a series of equal annual tariff reductions that would give us complete free trade with Great Britain in five years! Just think of it—five years of falling prices—five years of hand-to-mouth existence, with no one buying anything beyond his immediate requirements, knowing that the next year he could buy it cheaper—five years of depression, emigration, and growing taxation at the very time when the country is crying aloud for an immigration policy that will stimulate business, and reduce taxation!

Yours respectfully,

J. J. GIBBONS,

Mr. Meighen Speaking:

"We can never have a high tariff in Canada.

"We cannot have a high tariff in Canada for the most obvious reasons.

"In the first place a high tariff is unsound in principle in that it tends to eliminate one of the factors of competition, namely, foreign goods.

"..... we must always have in this country nothing more than a moderate tariff under any conditions whatsoever."

Bounding Health

The old boy's always bounding in health.

He takes no heed of the obstacles in his path. Lightly he skims over the difficulties that cause other men so much trouble in life. He succeeds because he is inspired by the will to succeed.

Are you like that? Do you tingle from head to foot with overflowing vitality?

If not, it is because your internal organs have forgotten how to perform their functions properly. The result is that impurities of all kinds collect in the body and enter the blood, lowering the tone of the whole system, and weakening its resistance to disease germs.

But the millions of members of the happy Kruschen Army of Optimists never worry about that. They have found the easiest and surest way of combating the disadvantages of a busy city life.

Every morning they tip into the breakfast cup of coffee or tea a tiny pinch of Kruschen Salts. Taken that way it is tasteless, but this little dose stimulates the liver and kidneys to the proper performance of their duty, thoroughly cleanses all impurities from the system, and sends clear, healthy blood streaming to every part of the body.

Try it yourself. Get a 75c bottle, start taking it at once, and very soon you, too, will possess that glorious "Kruschen feeling" that makes life twenty times better than it was before.

Kruschen Salts

Good Health for Half a Cent a Day

A 75c bottle of Kruschen Salts contains 240 doses—enough for three months—which means bounding health for less than half a cent a day. The dose prescribed for daily use is "as much as will lie on a 10 cent piece," taken in your breakfast cup of coffee or tea. Every druggist sells Kruschen. Get a 75c bottle to-day.

PRESBYTERIANS SEEK CHURCHES

Conferences Between Two Sections Held at Osgoode Hall Yesterday.

MINORITY REQUESTS.

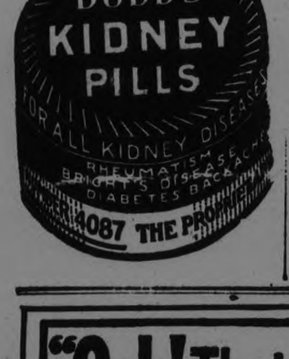
Conferences with representatives of Unionists and Presbyterians from Port Arthur, Owen Sound and Carleton Place took most of the time of the Church Property Commission at Osgoode Hall yesterday.

At Owen Sound the situation affects two former Presbyterian congregations, both of which gave majorities for Union. W. S. Middlebro, K.C., acting for the Presbyterian minorities, stated that there are 430 continuing Presbyterian members, sufficient to fill one of the churches, with 110 adherents. The Presbyterians, therefore, ask for one of the buildings.

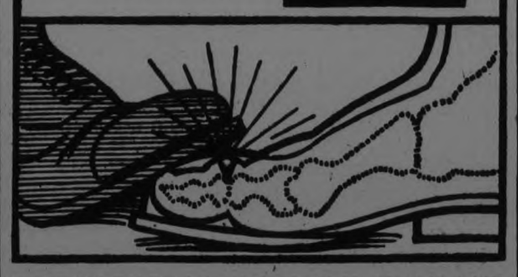
After the conference he said that it had not been possible to agree on certain figures, and the commission will sit at Owen Sound on Nov. 10.

The Port Arthur Presbyterian minority is asking for relief from hardship. St. Paul's Church voted 520 for Union and 200 against. Knox voted 87 for and 39 against Union. It is claimed, however, that the dissenting Presbyterians at St. Paul's were very large contributors to its erection. They now worship in a theatre.

At a short open session D. L. McCarthy, K.C., indicated he would like to re-open the question of the use of signed ballots. In one case coming up, this would have an important bearing. In the Orangeville case, Chairman Falconbridge said, he would be willing to receive a memorandum on the subject and to hear argument if necessary. Mr. McCarthy observed that it was one thing to permit the church voters to sign their ballots, but it was quite another thing to compel them to do so. Chairman Falconbridge said that a signed ballot did not necessarily mean a spoiled ballot.



"Ooh! That CORN"



TAKE IT OUT SO THAT IT WON'T COME BACK

Don't merely cut the top off with a razor or burn it off with caustic lotions, plasters, etc. That doesn't do any good. It may do great harm by causing infection or even blood poisoning.

The business end of a corn is the root. That is what hurts when pressed on sensitive nerves, and it is the part you have to get out.

A good handful of Reudel Bath Saltrates dissolved in a gallon or so of hot water will soften corns and callouses, like water softens soap. Just soak them in this for a while, then take hold of the corn with your fingers and out it will come root and all. The refined Reudel Bath Saltrates costs very little, and any druggist will have it. A half-pound is sufficient to rid the whole family of all foot troubles.

BORAH SCORES IMPERIALISTIC POLICY IN CHINA

Demands Equal Rights For Chinese Republic in Dealings With Nations.

WHITE SUPREMACY.

Replies to Former Kaiser's Stock Argument of Yellow Peril.

WASHINGTON, October 22. — Equality for China in her relations with other nations of the world was demanded by Senator William E. Borah, chairman of the Foreign relations Committee, in a statement issued to-day.

"I am in favor of trying the policy of justice for a time instead of force; of fair treatment instead of exploitation," he said.

The Senator's statement was made in reply to a cabled criticism by former Kaiser Wilhelm, who said in an interview that Borah's stand for race equality threatens the supremacy of the white race.

Reply to Kaiser.

Replying specifically to this criticism by the former Kaiser, Borah said:

"The peril to the white race which the ex-Kaiser speaks of is not the yellow or brown races, but the oppressive and imperialistic attitude of the white race toward these races.

"If the white races continue these policies of exploitation and oppressive measures, be assured the peril is real and imminent."

The Senator's statement added:

"There is one thing which the ex-Kaiser seems to overlook, or at least not to give sufficient consideration to. During the war the white race was delighted to treat the colored races on terms of equality. There was no difference in the color of blood on the battlefield.

War Pledges Cited.

"The United States particularly asked China to come in and help the white race save civilization. Moreover the white race announced some doctrines which the colored races took to heart—the doctrines of self-determination and the right of all peoples to choose their own forms of government, and live their own lives.

"The white race went on record. The colored races believed the doctrine. The nationalistic spirit was aroused; hopes and aspirations stirred these peoples from centre to circumference. The pledges having been made should be kept — they will have to be kept."

LINDSAY MAYOR TO STAND AGAIN

RIVAL CANDIDATES.

LINDSAY, Oct. 22.—(Special).—Notwithstanding the fact that this town is in the throes of a warm election contest, the municipal election pot is beginning to boil. Nominations for the civic government take place on November 30th, and already candidates are pluming themselves. His Worship Mayor Graham, who has served two terms, has intimated that he would be willing to stand for another term, but would step aside if any other member of the Council wished to step up. Friends of Deputy-Reeve Wilkinson have interviewed him and are urging him to stand for the Mayoralty, while Ald. R. I. Moore, of the legal firm of O'Connor and Moore, will also likely contest the position.

The chief issue of the approaching municipal election will be the purchase from the Hydro-Electric Commission of the local distributing plant. The Commission is ready to sell if the municipality will buy.

AIRMEN EXPLORERS JOURNEY TO WILDS

Expedition Will Study Pigmy Races in Dutch New Guinea.

CHICAGO, October 22. — The first American expedition to venture into the unexplored wilds of Dutch New Guinea, left Chicago yesterday by airplane for San Francisco, according to an announcement made by Stanley A. Hedberg, the historian of the expedition.

The expedition headed by H. W. Stirling, former assistant curator of the division of ethnology the U.S. National Museum, Washington, will sail from San Francisco, November 21, transporting their airplane to Batavia, Java, where the flight into the wilds will start.

The purpose of the expedition is to make a study of the land and pygmy races of Dutch New Guinea, one of the largest islands in the world. One half of the island is owned by the Netherlands and the remainder by Great Britain. Both governments have co-operated in the expedition.

Women may cause all the trouble in life, but it's woman who makes life worth all the trouble.

U. S. BEST PLACE TO HOLD PARLEY COOLIDGE FEELS

Believes Conference Would Have Wider Scope if Held There.

NAVAL REDUCTION.

Hails Locarno Pact as Second Only to the Armistice.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 22. — In President Coolidge's opinion, results beneficial to the whole world will flow from the security pact negotiated at Locarno, whether it is followed by an all-European arms conference or one held in Washington.

While he cannot commit this Government to participation in a conference called by the League of Nations, or to a policy of aloofness until specific proposals are forthcoming, the President is known to feel that a conference held in a European setting might meet under limitations which would not apply if it were convened in this country.

Europe, President Coolidge feels, could hold an arms conference without American participation because the countries of the Continent have a long way to go in reducing land forces before they will reach the status of the American miliary establishment.

A conference held at Washington, however, in his belief, would offer the possibility of a wider scope, in that the United States could again sponsor a reduction in naval armaments.

U. S. Will Not Stay Out.

In other words, the United States will not stay out of a conference merely because it is sponsored by the League of Nations, or because certain European statesmen hope by the Locarno pact to set up a new Europe entirely independent, politically and financially, of this country.

If Europe gets into a conference to reduce armies, the United States will have little to offer in the way of further reduction, and therefore its presence will not be essential to the success of the conference. But if Europe hopes to lift the burden of naval as well as land armaments, President Coolidge realizes the United States will have to be consulted, and he feels that the place for such a conference is Washington.

The outstanding achievement at Locarno, the President feels, and one which will be reflected in many ways of benefit to the world, is the burial of war hatred and suspicions by political representatives of the great Powers of the Continent.

Hundred Years Old, But Is Walking To See Father

PITTSBURGH, Pa., Oct. 22. (United Press).—Homeless and penniless John Marsten, who said he was 100 years old, was found sleeping in the Pennsylvania railroad station here.

"I'm walking to London from Portland, Oregon to see my father," he told police officers.

The Department of Charities today was given custody of the man.

MAN WAS ARRESTED ON SERIOUS CHARGE

Alleged Offence Against a Fourteen Year Old Girl —Committed For Trial.

LINDSAY, Oct. 22.—(Special).—John R. Davis, of Storrington Township, Frontenac County, was arrested at Burnt River on Monday by Provincial Officer Storey and brought to Lindsay. Davis is charged with a serious offence against a fourteen-year-old girl. He was formerly employed in a cheese factory in Frontenac County, and he was traced from there to Toronto and later to Burnt River.

REBEKAHS' SHOWER.

Mark Nineteenth Anniversary of Founding in Peterborough.

Golden Link Lodge No. 8. of the Rebekahs held a fruit shower anniversary on Tuesday evening in honor of the nineteenth anniversary of their founding in the city. About two hundred people, including members and friends, and groups from Havelock and Lindsay, were present last night, when a brief business session was followed by an evening spent in playing cards and enjoyment of a bountiful banquet. Founders of the lodge in Peterboro, Mr. and Mrs. Thomas and Mrs. McMahon of Lindsay, were present last night, as well as Mrs. Lena Booth of Toronto, Assembly Warden, and Mrs. Edgar Middleton of Toronto, past president. Both of these ladies were presented with beautiful bouquets of 'mums, after Mrs. Booth had cut the birthday cake which commemorated the anniversary. Fruit received last evening will be sent to the Oddfellows' Home in Toronto.

Familiarity Breeds Contempt Steam Roller Kills Worker

NEW HAVEN, Conn., Oct. 22.—(United Press).—Geo. Gundecker, 60, a flagman employed by the city to walk along in front of one of the huge road rollers became careless from long familiarity with the rumbling giant and fell beneath it. He was crushed to death before the machine could be stopped.

Easy To Gain Weight With Yeast and Iron

New Combination of Yeast With Vegetable Iron Builds Up Weight in Three Weeks

Thin, run-down and underweight men, women and children can improve their health, increase their energy and put on from five to twenty pounds of good solid flesh in three weeks.

A new combination of yeast vitamines with vegetable iron, renews the action of sluggish blood cells, drives out dangerous body poisons, increases energy and endurance and supplies the system with the vitamines that build up weight.

For years yeast has been known as a rich vitamine food, but not until we perfected "ironized yeast"—which comes in concentrated tablet form, was it possible to take yeast and iron in the right proportions to build up weight.

Vegetable "Iron" when combined with yeast is quite easy to digest, therefore better for the system. And "yeast" when ironized becomes just twice as beneficial as ordinary fresh or cake yeast.

Ironized Yeast tablets are composed of concentrated food elements, therefore they are pleasant to take and free from drug-like effects. It makes no difference how old you are—or how young you are—how long you have been under-weight—or how much underweight you are, "ironized yeast" tablets are positively guaranteed to pick you right up, and add from five to twenty pounds of good firm flesh in three weeks' time. If they fail get your money back.

Sold by druggists, at $1.00 for a large 60-tablet package, or sent direct from laboratory on receipt of price. Harold F. Ritchie & Co., Ltd., Toronto.

CAPACITY AUDIENCE TO GREET HON. V. MASSEY IN MILLBROOK

Liberal Candidate Made Answers to Stories About Him.

UPHELD POLICIES.

Local Speakers Warmly Endorsed Mr. Massey's Candidature.

MILLBROOK, Oct. 22.—An audience which filled the Town Hall to capacity gathered on Wednesday evening to hear the Honorable Vincent Massey on his second appearance in Millbrook.

Melville Staples of Orono was chairman S. S. Staples, ex-M.P.P., and J. C. Ross, former editor of The Farmers' Sun, being also on the platform. Owing to a meeting at Bailieboro which Mr. Massey was addressing earlier in the evening, there was considerable delay before he and Mrs. Massey arrived here.

After expressing his pleasure in being in Millbrook again, Mr. Massey said there were two or there current stories "which I feel it is your privilege and right to hear the truth about." "If I am as black as I have been painted, I must have two horns, a tail, and at least one cloven hoof."

Proceeding to refute the statement that the Massey-Harris Company employs 4,000 men in its American factory, and is sending goods into Canada under a low tariff, thus robbing the purchaser here, Mr. Massey showed that over four times the number of men are employed in the Canadian factory, and that only one or two types of machinery, not made in Canada at all, are shipped in from the States. "There is $30 worth made here and sent to the States for $1 worth made there and shipped here for sale. The fact is often overlooked that there is no tariff at all on farm implements in the States."

Similarly untrue is the statement that the Massey-Harris Company received special privileges that no one else could have got in the large sum paid them for losses in Germany and Austria during the war. "Under the treaty we had the right to claim damages through the ordinary channels, and most of the money paid to my firm was during Mr. Meighen's term of office. It was paid, too, in German money. Other people were paid at the same time, and we received no special privileges at all. Smaller amounts have been received since Mr. King came into power."

Taking advantage of free raw materials to make castings for motor car factories, for instance, which it has been claimed the Massey-Harris Company has done, and underselling other firms, was also characterized as "utterly untrue. Factories which make other than agricultural implements must pay the duty, and have no advantage of reduction."

"I am extremely proud of a name I have recently been called, 'a dual purpose cow,' because of my being a Liberal - Progressive candidate. From the Progressive movement we have learned much more of agricultural problems, both as they affect the farmer locally, and the Dominion as a whole."

Figures were given showing the progress in the past two years, and the speaker said he was assured "we are now out of the woods, and into smoother waters." "The kind of tariff which Mr. Meighen suggests is extravagant, not acceptable to either West or East, and the opposite of that stability which he declares we must have. Co-operation and fair play to all parts of the country will bring the settled condition which means prosperity, and a fiscal policy framed along these lines is the only one that will be acceptable to the people as a whole."

Speaking of the depression that followed post war conditions, Mr. Massey said that general conditions in the States were a bit worse than here in 1922-23. Unemployment was greater, in proportion to population, leaving out Detroit, where a special industry is booming.

"Our morale has been weakened by certain propaganda, and we need a new realization of the power that is in us. We are a nation on paper, but we must face the world and prove our rightful position, developing a real nationhood within ourselves. Because 83 other countries have raised their tariff since the war is no reason for Canada to follow their example. What is right for us, is our question."

Taking up the outward look, Mr. Massey went on to say that Canada exports more goods per head than any other country except New Zealand. "Markets are our problem, and I believe that the present government has made a splendid contribution, in this regard, during its term of office, by the treaties which it has made, and which have stimulated trade in a market degree. "The advantages of the Australian and British West Indian Treaties were then outlined, and some of the objections raised were answered.

"They bind together, on a fair and right basis, two British Dominions, and I believe are evidence of practical Imperialism."

Mr. Meighen's scheme of a high protection policy, the speaker characterized as "perfect, the only thing wrong about it being that it won't work." "Reprisals in war, or in economics, get nowhere; they make ill-feeling, and trade goes only with good-will. Fear, force and favor are three elements of the scheme which is not in the interests of national unity."

Expressing his personal approval of the Tariff Advisory Board promised by Mr. King, Mr. Massey concluded his address by stating that he would be prouder of nothing more on earth than to be selected to represent Durham in the next Parliament, and would serve the county to the limit of his ability.

Mr. Ross, who spoke briefly before Mr. Massey's arrival, said although he had made some hard statements about manufacturers in his day and generation, he was glad to be on any platform in aid of Mr. Massey's candidature. The latter was going to fight the battle of the farmer who has had a raw deal. "I like to think of this election as a meeting of the shareholders of the Dominion of Canada, Limited, and on October 29th, are we going to be careless shareholders, or cast our ballots as we should cast them? We each have a stake in the country."

Mr. Ross referred to the women's vote as a new factor, and expressed his pleasure in seeing the keen interest they are taking in the contest.

Mr. Staples also addressed the audience during the wait for Mr. Massey, and warmly endorsed the latter as Durham's candidate. The question as to why the Progressives (to which party he belongs) had not placed a candidate in the field was touched upon by the speaker, who pointed out the similarity of policy with the Liberals in the present issue, and said: "Unless we send men able to do something to Parliament, we can't get anywhere, and a personal acquaintance with the policy and personality of Mr. Massey leads me to believe he can do for us what no other can do."

Out and out for prohibition himself, Mr. Staples said this question has come up at several meetings. He questioned the wisdom of the Ontario Prohibition Union in asking a candidate to pledge support to temperance legislation, because "you never can tell how far such a movement will grow." Appeals had been made to Mr. Massey as to his attitude on the sale of liquor within the province, and to the rum-running on the Canadian border. In the first instance, Mr. Massey had said he believed it a matter for provincial regulation, but regarding importation, which is a Federal matter, where enabling legislation was to be passed, he was in favor of granting same. In the second matter, he said, the candidate affirmed that when a friendly nation asked support in doing away with this evil of rum-running, Canada should cooperate in enforcing such legislation, "and I will do all in my power to see that it is passed."

The differences in price on certain agricultural implements that Mr. Staples has to purchase, the tariff making a difference of over $200 in a spraying machine, for instance, here and in the States, had led the speaker to support Mr. King's policy.

Mills' Orchestra entertained the audience while the people were gathering, and Mr. O. Gamsby of Orono, led in community singing and also sang one or two songs. The meeting closed with the National Anthem.

Tomorrow's HOROSCOPE

By Genevieve Kemble.

FRIDAY, OCTOBER 23.

According to the important lunar and mutual figures this should be an active day, but not without its annoyances caused largely by the tendency to rush acts and ill-guarded words. Quarrels and ligitation may becloud a day otherwise propitious under the reign of Saturn, Jupiter, Venus and Mercury in friendly positions. There is a possible menace of fraud or deception, but otherwise business should thrive and personal affairs be pleasant.

Those whose birthday it is may anticipate a prosperous and happy year, which condition should not be negatived by the tendency to quarrel and to impulsive deeds. Law should be shunned and deceit avoided. A child born on this day should be clever, steady, industrious, and ambitious. It should rise to good position in life through its own efforts.

Local Druggists Have Modern Remedy for Colds

A Vaporizing Salve which is Rubbed Over Throat and Chest for Colds.

When Vicks VapoRub, the "external" method of treating sore throat, bronchitis, deep chest colds, or croup, is applied over throat or chest, the ingredients are released as vapors by the body heat.

These vapors, inhaled with each breath carry the medication directly to the affected air passages, loosening the phlegm and relieving the congestion.

Colds are usually relieved over night.

Temperamental Opera Star Will Sing Again Next Year

ROCHESTER, Minn., Oct. 22.—(United Press). — Dorothy Jardon, the temperamental opera star who lost her voice following a difference with Mary Garden, will be singing again within a year.

Physicians at the Mayo Clinic here announced Tuesday that the diva required a full year's rest to insure her recovery. They said her trouble was systematic.

Miss Jardon insists that her condition was augmented by an argument which she had some time ago with Mary Garden over a contract. She is a soprano with the Chicago and San Carlo Opera companies.

HELD ANNIVERSARY.

Rector and Visiting Clergyman Preached at St. John's Church Sunday.

DUNSFORD, Oct. 22.—On Sunday, October 18th, anniversary services were held in St. John's Anglican church, morning and evening. The morning service was conducted by Rev. Mr. Haughton, present rector, and the evening service by Rev. Mr. Galaugher of Lindsay.

In the morning Rev. Mr. Haughton spoke on "Renewal of Life." How our Saviour renewed the life of the palsied man, comparing our sin-sick souls with the same and showing us how men could have strength and life anew if willing to be Christ's followers.

The choir rendered two fine pieces, "March On" and following the sermon the anthem "Sing Forth His Praise" in which Miss Evelyn Burgess took the solo.

In the evening Rev. Mr. Galaugher chose for his text, "What Man Soweth, that shall he reap". The anthem by the choir "Fear Not Oh Land", in which Mr. P. Laplain took the bass solo and Misses Mabel Thurston and Helen Burgess the duet. After the sermon Miss Maudie Brien sang very beautifully "Jesus Is All the Word to Me."

Both services were very inspiring and helpful. The church which was filled to utmost capacity was beautifully decorated to mark the occasion with flowers, grain and vegetables.

Mr. Bruce McNevin, Progressive candidate for this riding will speak in the hall here on Monday. Mr. T. H. Stinson, his opponent, will speak on Thursday night, October 22nd, from the same platform.

SHOWER GIVEN FOR SPRINGVILLE GIRL

Friends of Miss Pearl Bowles Gave Many Gifts.

On Monday evening, October 19, the Springville Mission Band girls and young people met at the home of Miss Della Bidgood, president of the Band, and presented Miss Pearl Bowles with a miscellaneous shower in honor of her approaching marriage.

The following address was read by Miss Helen Sanderson:

Dear Pearl,—On hearing that you were about to leave our community, we, the members of the Mission Band of Springville Church, wish to show our appreciation for the active part you have taken in the work of our society. We feel that we are going to miss you greatly, not alone as a member of our Mission Band, our Christian Endeavor and our church, but also as a true friend.

However, we are consoled to some extent by that old, old saying, that "Our loss is some one else's gain." You will be settled in a new community, making many new friends and sharing in their joys and sorrows, yet we feel that in doing so, you will not entirely forget the old ones.

With these words we extend to you the very best good wishes for health, prosperity and happiness during your married life, and may sunny days follow this shower.

From the Girls of the Mission Band.

Miss Bowles thanked them all for their appreciation shown her at this time, and invited them all to come and see her in her new home.

A very enjoyable evening was spent in music and games.

A Vote for Gordon is a Vote for Good Times

Canada is Entering Upon an Era Of Prosperity and Good Times.

All the signs point to it; all the big business authorities say so.

The Canadian dollar since 1921 has risen in value from 83 cents in the money markets of the world to par—even to a fraction over the 100 cents. Why? Because under Liberal Government and good Liberal business administration the trade of the country has steadily revived and increased ever since the King Government took office.

The figures for Canada's trade are astonishing. They show a wonderful advance. Canada has more than "come back."

Here Are The Actual Facts!

Before the war, Canada's foreign trade—imports and exports combined topped the billion dollar mark for the first time.

What is it now? For the twelve months ending July 1, 1925 Canada's foreign trade climbed to more than $1,923,000,000. Nearly doubled in twelve years!

DOESN'T THAT LOOK LIKE GOOD TIMES?

And remember, these figures for 1925 are not war orders. These are peace and prosperity figures, normal Canadian trade, growing by leaps and bounds.

And it is a healthy trade, a profitable trade—to the farmers, the railways, the manufacturers, the merchants and to the nation.

Because the balance of exports against imports is in our favor. We are selling more than we are buying.

In 1921 under the Meighen administration the balance of trade was $29,000,000 against us.

In 1925, after four years' of good government, the balance of trade was in our favor by the enormous amount of $284,000,000.

DOESN'T THAT LOOK LIKE GOOD TIMES?

And it is going ahead. This fiscal year closing March 31st, next, the balance in our favor will be bigger still.

With a crop of 400,000,000 bushels of wheat, and a world price ranging away above the dollar, Canada's exports will be away up. The increase will add wealth to the whole Dominion. Because it comes from the farm. And it will go back to the farm. Every business, every factory, every man, woman and child will ultimately share the benefit.

DOESN'T THAT LOOK LIKE GOOD TIMES?

Canada used to have a huge unfavorable balance in her trade with the United States. In 1921 when Mr. Meighen was in power it stood $313,800,000 against us. It is not that way today. At the end of the fiscal year, March 31st last. it had been reduced to $92,546,000.

DOESN'T THAT LOOK LIKE GOOD TIMES?

With a greater volume of exports in proportion to her population than the United States or any other country on the Globe except New Zealand, Canada today is the most commercially healthy, and prosperous country in the world. Look at the stock quotations. Since the Liberal Government came into power industrial stocks and bank stocks have gone up. The stock market is the most sensitive barometer of trade. Look at these figures :

	1921	1925
Bank of Montreal	$205	$259
Royal Bank	196	238
Bank of Commerce	184	213
Canada Cement	54	106
Dominion Textile	137.25	265
Penman's Limited	95	169
Dominion Glass	55	107
Steel of Canada	55	91
Spanish River Pulp and Paper	54	100
Sherwin Williams Paint Company	90	125

DOESN'T THAT LOOK LIKE GOOD TIMES?

The drift of our people over the border is checked. The Canadians are coming back. Immigration is beginning to increase again. The tourist traffic this season was the greatest ever known, leaving by conservative estimate more than $100,000,000 in the country.

Give your vote to the man who represented West Peterborough in the last Parliament and has proven himself so able as to be taken into the Cabinet. A vote for G. N. Gordon is a vote for good times. Make sure of G. N. Gordon's full majority on October 29.

OSHAWA, Oct. 22. — (Canadian Press).—With severe gashes in his neck, inflicted with a knife, Robert Bennett, of Dorchester, staggered into a taxi stand at Whitby Tuesday night and asked that the police be called. He told the authorities that he was tired of living and wanted to die. At the Oshawa General Hospital his condition is reported as being fair.

ADVICE TO GIRLS

By Annie Laurie

DEAR ANNIE LAURIE:

I have been going with a young man about my own age for the past five or six months. He has been going out in public with another girl that he used to go with before I knew him. He has asked me a number of times to marry him, so at last I consented. He has gone away and didn't even say goodbye to me before he left.

Do you think he really meant everything he told me. I quit him when I saw him with this girl and the next night he begged me to forgive him and go back with him again. He told me that he loved only me. What shall I do? RED.

RED: Have a frank talk with your fiance, my dear. You cannot condemn a person for one slip and it may have been thoughtlessness on his part. However, you forgave him for the offense, but I think if he realizes [illegible] you feel in the matter he will not repeat his action. You may have acted on impulse when you say you "quit" him without an explanation. He may have had a very good rdason for seeing the other young lady, and, somehow or other, things are never quite as bad as they really seem in the heat of the moment. If you talk things over with him quietly, without losing your temper, I am sure that everything will turn out in the right way.

Fall Style

(Written for the United Press)

NEW YORK, Oct. 22.—(United Press).—A glimpse at the shop windows of Fifth Avenue acquaint us with the high lights of Fall styles. No one can be sure at present which styles will become popular with women wearers. Here are a few of the new notes from which one has to select.

First, little cape are conspcious on some of the frocks and coats. They are elbow length and are cut circular extending just over the shoulders in front. Evening frocks often feature the rear cape which falls just below the waistline. Three-tiered shoulder capes and a military effect to navy blue street coats.

Colors most important for street wear seem to be pencil blue and burnt brown. All browns are popular. Fushia tones trim some of the darker blue frocks forming the narrow cuffs and stand up collars.

Colors for evening gowns remain pastel. Whaps, however, run to scarlet, vivid greens, and colorful brocade effects.

Jumper frocks are shown with blouse portions of one shade and skirst of another.

Back-flares are being featured on many frocks and coats which have straight-lined front effects. Some frocks suggest the normal waistline by using the bolero front effect with the corners of the bolero embroidered in gold or color.

Skirts remain from 14 to 16 inches from terra firma. Sleeves are long on day frocks. Bright colored sleeeves are used on many dark toned day frocks. Brilliant embroideries and appliques adorn black gowns.

Velvets will be worn again for both frocks and street suits.

MOST BEAUTIFUL.

Miss Hope Smith, of Brockville, who out of over two thousand girls at a large ball held recently in Ottawa, was adjudged the most beautiful. Miss Smith received a large sterling silver cup as a prize.

"No, indeed," answered Alma, to the questions of Ruth, about the Woodland Nymphs.

"Woodland Nymphs are not wicked. They are romantic fairies of the forest. They dance and sing in shady woodland glades in early summer. They play with the wind and leaves of autumn."

"Don't you know," continued Alma, in the magic silence of that circle of little girl faces, "that Pan comes out of the woods and plays on his pipes to the sheep? And that he sometimes sits on a big rock in the forest, deep, deep in the forest, where the sun comes down in shafts through the trees, and plays his magic pipes, until all the fairies, the woodland nymphs and the Dryads and all the children of Pan go dancing around in circles and singing?"

Alice gasped in astonishment. "And what's a Dryad?" Alma could see by their faces that they no longer saw the Chicadee, and were fast getting the secret power to see far, far away and into the realms of Fairyland, Woodland Happiness.

"My goodnes, my goodness, girls, how foolishly wise you are, and how sadly lacking in worth while things. Dryads are fairies who watch over trees. There is one behind each tree, and this is how to see them: look at the tree, away in the woods, on some nice sunny day, and think nice things about woodland nymphs; then shut your eyes and be still, and you will see the nicest sort of things.

"Did you ever hear about the time the fairies received a complaint from the village school teacher, about how none of the children liked any other months but July and August?"

None of the girls had heard of such a thing. "Why, who carried the complaint?" demanded Alice. "If nobody knows where the fairies stay, and couldn't see them anyway, when they are not happy, how could anybody tell them a complaint about a school?"

"Well, don't you see," answered Alma, "you can't understand because you don't love nature enough." "Anyone who loves birds would know that the birds heard the children complain, then they told Pan, and Pan played a mournful tune and the Fairies heard it." What the Fairies did, appears tomorrow.

CROWDED HALL HEARD TUMMON

Conservative Candidate Given Rousing Welcome in Home Town.

OTHER SPEAKERS.

TWEED, Oct. 22.—A Conservative meeting which was held in the Auditorium Wednesday night was crowded to the doors and the people were not able to crowd in. The meeting was opened at about 8.15 p.m. by Mr. Geo. Stokes. He presented Mr. Harold Bateman of the Young Men's Conservative Club of Belleville, which had charge of the musical part of the programme.

Mr. Bateman mentioned that the whole club and practically Belleville were behind Mr. W. E. Tummon, the Conservative candidate of South Hastings.

When Mr. Tummon went to the platform three cheers went up for the Meighen Government and for Mr. Tummon.

Mr. Harry Thompson, Belleville, next called on, spoke of the goodness of Mr. Tummon. He said he thought if Mr. Tummon was elected he would try and follow the good government which Sir John A. Macdonald brought about, and it would probably mean that the boys and girls would stay in Canada instead of working in the United States. The farmers of Canada must have the national policy, he said.

Major Graham of Belleville was next called, and his part was to introduce the candidate, W. E. Tummon.

Mr. Tummon expressed his thanks to the Young Men's Conservative Club of Belleville for ably supporting him at all his political meetings. He wished his time on the platform to be taken by the other men, but they insisted on his speech. Mr. Tummon is a born speaker, and he held the audience for a length of time. Mr. Tummon spoke well of his opponent, Mr. Chas. Hanna, Belleville.

After Mr. Tummon's speech, Mr. Gordanier, Belleville, sang a solo, accompanied by the Hawaiian Orchestra.

Mr. Bateman then presented Major Ponton, president of the Young Men's Conservative Club. Major Ponton is a good speaker and impressed the people greatly.

Next came N. H. Ireland, M.P.P., of Trenton. His speech was short, but was listened to attentively.

Mr. H. F. Ketcheson, ex-Mayor of Belleville, was next called. His speech brought out some good points.

Last came Mr. Meraw, from Trenton. His speech impressed the audience greatly, and they could have listened to him for twice as long.

Mr. J. F. Hill, M.P.P. for South Hastings, spoke briefly.

Several songs and selections were sung and played by members of the orchestra.

The meeting was then turned over to Mr. Geo. Stokes. He thought it was the finest political meeting ever held in Tweed since the Auditorium was built.

The meeting was then brought to a close.

ANNUAL DINNER A GREAT SUCCESS

Madoc United Church Anniversary Fittingly Wound Up.

LARGE SUM RAISED.

MADOC, Oct. 22 — The annual dinner held in connection with the anniversary services was given in the United Church on Monday evening. Long tables were laid in the basement of the church, where the decorations were of autumn leaves and vegetables tastefully arranged.

The ladies of the congregation had called to their aid all the skill known in the culinary arts, and the tables groaned beneath their weight of palatable viands. All the "goodies" that appeal to the "inner man" were there, from chicken and escalloped potatoes steaming hot to lemon pie with three inches of meringue on top, and toothsome chocolate cake, not to mention the usual array of pickles, jellies and salads, while great bowls of rosy-cheekd apples delighted the heart of the small boy and fitted protestingly into too small pockets to await consumption later in the evening.

Following the dinner a short program was enjoyed in the auditorium. Rev. Mr. Foster gave a synopsis of Enoch Arden and Rev. Mr. Cook of Ivanhoe gave a humorous address. An anthem was sung by the choir, and vocal duets weer rendered by Misses Muriel Rousehorn and Grace Phillips. Miss Barnes of Ivanhoe recited.

Over four hundred people attended the dinner and the proceeds amounted to nearly two hundred dollars. The objective of seven hundred dollars asked for at the anniversary was reached and passed.

MAN OFFERS BLOOD TO SAVE RELATIVE

Edward Hay Has Gone to Toronto to See Injured Nephew.

CAMPBELLFORD, Oct. 22. — Gerald Hay, the 20-year-old son of John L. Hay, and who lost a leg while returning from the harvest fields of the West about two weeks ago, is reported in a serious condition in a Toronto hospital. It is said that the doctors have decided to resort to blood transfusion in an attempt to save the young man's life. Edward Hay, uncle of the patient, has gone to Toronto and it is understood that he has volunteered to give his blood for the benefit of his nephew.

Goes to Young's Point.

William J. Sarginson leaves today for Young's Point, where he has secured a position as blacksmith with Thomas A. Brown, who has the contract for rebuilding the lock at that place. Mr. Brown, who formerly lived here and who erected the new High School, has until June 15 to complete his contract at Young's Point.

Died in Belleville.

William John McComb, died Tuesday in the Belleville Hospital, where he was taken recently, after a long illness, which finally developed into pneumonia. The remains have been brought to Campbellford, to the home of his brother, Melville McComb, and the funeral will be held from the latter's residence to Mount Pleasant Cemetery, Thursday afternoon. The deceased, who was unmarried, was taken from the home of another brother at Morganston to Campbellford, but he failed to improve and was finally sent to the hospital in Belleville, where he passed away.

Mr. and Mrs. R. McKelvie, Mrs. Henry Free and Harry and Mrs. David McCook and Eric visited Mr. D. McCook at Scarcourt on Sunday.

Mr. Arthur Upton of Montreal is at the home of his father, Mr. T. J. Upton, who was seriously hurt last Saturday.

Mr. Wm. Dunk, Front Street, is spending a few days in Belleville and Toronto this week.

Mr. and Mrs. John Wallace and Arthur, Grand Road, have returned from a motor trip to Buffalo and other places.

Mrs. Harry E. Cassan has gone to Napanee to visit her son for a few days.

Mr. Thos. Saunders of Sioux Falls, Dakota, is here to attend the funeral of his mother, the late Mrs. James Saunders, and to visit also his sister, Mrs. Jas. Potts, and other relatives.

Mr. Thos. O'Connor of Toronto is visiting his mother, Miss Jas. O'Connor.

Mr. and Mrs. Jas. Jones and Mr. and Mrs. Leigh Isaac attended Roseneath Fair.

APPOINT TEACHER TO FILL VACANCY

CAMPBELLFORD, October 22. — Miss Essa Dafoe of Madoc, who has been teacher of Latin in the High School here for the past three years, has suffered a nervous break down and has been compelled to give up her duties. She asked the Board of Education for an indefinite leave of absence, and this request has been granted. Miss Dafoe has been successful in her department from the beginning and her enforced retirement will cause general regret among the friends she has made during her residence in this town, as well as among the pupils, her associate teachers and the members of the Board, who have always appreciated her services.

At a special meeting of the Board held on Tuesday night, applications for the vacant position were received from teachers, in reply to an advertisement inserted a few days ago. Miss Laura Stafford, whose home is in Waterford, was selected for the position and it is expected that she will begin her duties on Monday.

Miss Stafford is a university graduate and has had one years experience as a teacher in the Hagersville High School, the principal of which recommends her highly as an efficient teacher. Residents of this district who attended school at Waterford, when Miss Stafford was a student, also testify to her brilliant attainments in the class room.

Balance on Wrong Side.

When the books for the past school year were balanced it was found that the board owed the Dearpiment of Education $4.87 more than the entire grant received from the government for the superannuation of teachers and a cheque for this amount will be forwarded to Toronto. In the discussion which arose when this matter came up the trustees spoke of the higher superannuation grant which rural schools are allowed. It was asserted that a school board in the country can save money by paying a teacher $1000 instead of $700, as the increased grant for the latter amount would more than make up the difference.

Improved Heating System.

Ever since the High School was built there has been difficulty in heating the north class rooms on the second floor when the wind blew toward that side of the building. The Property Committee was given authority to remedy this defect and the radiation has been increased by 100 feet. Caretaker Massie says there will be no more trouble in keeping the atmosphere of the rooms at the proper temperature even in the coldest weather.

Mr. Massie has by his own mechanical skill remedied another defect in the heating apparatus in the room designed for the teaching of domestic science.

This special meeting will take the place of the regular session for October as the latter, according to schedule, falls on the night of the general election.

THE NATION'S LAXATIVE

SLADE MEETING WELL ATTENDED

Good Audience at Cobourg to Hear Candidate and His Supporters.

MANY SPEAKERS.

COBOURG, Oct. 22 — The meeting held Monday evening in Victoria Opera House in the interests of F. J. Slade marked the opening of the Liberal campaign in Cobourg. It was well attended notwithstanding adverse weather conditions. The chair was occupied by Mr. Archie Cochrane of the law firm of Kerr and Cochrane, Cobourg, who made a capital chairman. The speaker of the eevning was Hon. Geo. P. Smith, general manager of R. R. Dalley Co., Hamilton, and fromerly Minister of Education in Alberta. Because of the prominent place which Mr. Smith occupies among manufacturers and in the industrial world, his address was awaited and listened to with much interest. Mr. Smith disputed the Conservative argument that Canada should be hedged in with higher tariff walls in order to protect our Canadian manufacturers. He endorsed the stand taken by Premier King in his policy of a tariff for revenue only and gave strong arguments against high protection. Mr. Smith spoke with admiration and enthusiasm of the splendid record of the King administration and endorsed the policy and platform of the Premier and his cabinet. He is a pleasing speaker and his address was entirely devoid of personalities and caustic remarks. Mr. Smith was listened to with enthusiasm and pleasure.

Gave Fine Address

Mrs. Dr.) Richards of Warkworth has not been long engaged as a platform political speaker, and although this popular lady laid no claim to proficiency along these lines if her address at Cobourg may be taken as a criterion she has quite a brilliant future before her. Mrs. Richards' appeal to both men and women voters to support the tenets of Liberalism, and stand staunchly by a party who had made effective many legislative measures towards which the women of the country had been striving was well received.

The Man from the West

Mr. Congdon, formerly member for the Yukon, prophesied a Liberal victory all along the line. He was a stranger to many in the audience but all listened with pleasure to his fine speech.

The Provincial Representative

Although it was not his first appearance upon the political platform during the present political campaign, it was Sam Clarke's first appearance in Cobourg, and this was the signal for the usual enthusiastic applause that greets him upon such occasions. Only this time it was a little more intense because of his recovery from recent severe illness. Mr. Clarke's speeches are always characteristic and opportune.

The Candidate

This was the first time that the Liberal candidate for Northumberland has made a platform appeal to the electors here in Cobourg. He asked for their support upon the grounds of the record of progress and achievement of Hon. Mackenzie King's government which he extolled.

The ideal husband exists chiefly in the minds of women who have never had one.

DOCTOR KILLED SELF ACCIDENTAL SHOT.

Was Returning From Country Call—Exact Circumstances Unknown

WIARTON, Oct. 22 (Canadian Press).—While returning from a country call yesterday afternoon, Dr. Arthur Brown of Lions Head, accidentally shot and killed himself. The exact nature of the accident will never be known, as he was alone at the time, but three shots had been fired from his revolver and it is supposed that he had fired two at some small game along the road and as he was about to put the revolver back into his pocket, it accidentally discharged, the bullet passing through his breast. Death followed in about five minutes from internal bleeding. Dr. Hough, county coroner, and Dr. Forge of Wiarton were immediately summoned.

Dr. Brown came to Lions Head from Stouffville, taking over the practice of Dr. F. W. Forge, who moved to Wiarton at that time. He leaves a wife, and daughter about 12 years of age. The remains will be taken to Stouffville for burial.

HASTINGS CHURCH KEPT ANNIVERSARY

Rev. T. M. Wesley Was Special Preacher—Fowl Dinner Served.

HASTINGS, Oct. 22.—The sixty-second anniversary services of the Hastings United Church were held on Sunday. Rev. T. M. Wesley, associate pastor of the Norwood United Church, was the speaker for the day. The choir rendered special music at both services and the church was beautifully decorated with flowers.

On Monday evening, in the Town Hall a fowl dinner was served by the ladies of the congregation, one of the largest crowds on record attending, despite the unfavorable weather conditions. After the supper a programme was given in the auditorium of the church.

The pastor of the church, Rev. M. L. Hinton, acted as chairman, the programme opened by the singing in unison of "Best Be the Tie That Binds," after which Rev. Jones of Warkworth, led in short prayer. An address was then given by Rev. Jones, and the Havelock Quartette rendered "Hear Dem Bells," and were encored. Mrs. Alex. Fleming rendered a solo, "The Crust," was was encored.

Rev. C. Daniels of the Seymour Circuit also addressed those present. Miss Thelma Davidson sang "When My Caravan Has Rested." The Havelock Quartette sang, and Mr. Wendt of Norwod recited "Casey at the Bat."

The closing number was a selection by the Havelock Quartette.

On Tuesday evening, a social was held in the Town Hall as enough provisions remained from the previous night to feed many more.

List Completed.

Messrs. A. V. German and L. T. Huycke, who were appointed the enumerators for Hastings, have completed their lists for the coming election on October 29. The former as registrar for the south side of the river which is Polling Division No. 1, and the latter was registrar on the north side of the river, which is Polling Division No. 2. It is found necessary to have two voting booths on the north side of the village owing to there being over three hundred voters on the list.

TORY SPEAKERS ATTACK POLICY OF GOVERNMENT

E. A. Peck Says Liberals Did Not Look After Working Class Interests.

HOME MARKETS.

C. H. Ackerman Describes Gordon's Immigration Policy as "Foolish."

Centreville was the scene of a Conservative rally last night when E. A. Peck, the Conservative candidate assisted by C. H. Ackerman, J. S. Strickland, and W. Boulton, expounded the policies of the Conservative party to an enthusiastic audience who filled the hall to capacity. A. Anderson, the chairman, in opening the meeting, declared himself to be whole-heartedly in favor of the Conservative policies.

Mr. Ackerman.

Mr. Ackerman, in a brief speech, declared that he was gratified to see so many of the younger voters present. It was a healthy sign, he said, and one that augured well for the future of Canada. "I feel that my purpose will be served if I can in any way disillusion any of the voters who have come under the spell of the Liberal party. Canada occupies a position second to none in the British Empire, and as a result there are responsibilities resting on the shoulders of everyone worthy of the name 'Canadian' After Mr. Gordon's elevation to the rank of Cabinet Minister, in one of his first speeches, he told of his immigration policy. You have doubtless heard enough of that policy of his, to realize how utterly foolish it was. There is no need of my enlarging on it, said the speaker, but I maintain it was a scheme to convince the farmers that real estate was their strong forte. I appeal to you people who know Mr. Peck's reputation as a man, both in business and in politics, a man who has kept himself free from any scandal, to give him and his policy your support on the twenty-ninth."

E. A. Peck.

Mr. Peck, in explaining the reasons why he was a candidate in the forthcoming election, stated that he was convinced that the state of the country warranted a change. "In 1921, Mr. King took over the reins of office, and I am prepared to admit that he was confronted by a very difficult task. He had to meet the railway situation and the question of the national debt—and what do we find? To-day, after four years of his government, we find our railway system is worse than it ever was before; the railway debt has increased by 300 million dollars, and the national debt has increased by 73 million dollars. His record in other respects is practically colorless." The speaker declared that today the country was running behind; depression was prevalent in all the large cities, and it was all due to the policies of Mackenzie King. "A government to do its duty properly should look after the working people of this country, and the remedy for it all is in your hands. I have here a letter," declared the speaker, "that appeared in one of the leading Toronto dailies written by a prominent clergyman, in which he characterized the present condition of affairs as 'being the worst in his whole experience'." As a result of this depression hundreds of people have been driven out of this country, and the present Government is responsible for it. The speaker declared that Mackenzie King was in favor of lowering the tariff. "Your market is regulated by the market in Europe," he said, "but there were certain commodities which you have to dispose of in your home market, and your home market is directly affected by the condition of the city. Why should you have to compete with the Fordney tariff or the Australian treaty? They both discriminate against the Canadian farmer. What we want to do is to adopt a system that will protect the artisan and the farmer and keep our money in our own country. It is a reasonable proposition and it is the policy of the Conservative party, which I have the honor to represent. The United States is no wealthier than Canada in natural resources, but by their adopting a system of high protection for their people, they have become one of the richest countries in the world. We are the only country out of 63 that has reduced our tariff; Does that look reasonable? I ask you to consider what I have said, and I am convinced that if you do so, Mr. Meighen and his party will be returned to power on October twenty-ninth."

J. F. Strickland.

Mr. Strickland stated that anyone who had considered the situation thoroughly would have no hesitation in marking their ballots for the only national policy. "In to-night's Examiner," the speaker said, "you will find a scurrilous attack made on Mr. Peck by Mr. Gordon's publicity bureau. I have followed Mr. Gordon's career with a great deal of interest," said Mr. Strickland "and I can assure you all the same sweep that swept him in, will sweep him out. Mr. Gordon, in accepting the position of Deputy Speaker in the House of Commons, after that office was refused by Logan, Euler and German, tied his own hands as far as the electors of Peterborough were concerned. Now, I ask you," said the speaker, "in face of the assurances that Mr. Gordon gave us in 1921, how can he reconcile that with his action in accepting the position of Deputy Speaker?" "Mr. Peck is an honorable man, a man whose word you can trust." Mr. Strickland said, with reference to the Liberal publicity committee advertisement "which you will find in to-night's Examiner, referring to the big Conservative aces hiding behind the man they once discarded." "My answer to that," declared Mr. Strickland, "is that we are on the eve of the nominations and the Hon. G. N. Gordon in desperation is now trying to dictate who shall be his opponent, and in his disappointment is squealing like a stuck pig." The speaker declared that since Mr. Peck's name was mentioned "the Hon. G. N. Gordon has been like a lost child—he does not know what will happen. Our convention in Peterboro," said the speaker, "was the best indication that E. A. Peck was wanted by the people." Mr. Strickland said that the advertisement accused them of being turn-coats, but he wanted to say right there that during his ten years' residence in Peterboro, he had "voted and worked for the Conservatives every time." Mr. Gordon has bitterly described a lot of Liberals as being deserters who were members of the Union Government, but they were Liberals that saw that the policy advocated by the Hon. A. Meighen was for the best interests of the country. "In The Examiner dated Oct. 12, 1917," said Mr. Strickland, 'you will see where the Hon. G. N. Gordon, now Mr. King's right hand man, told a Liberal gathering that he was not a Liberal, but that he was an Independent Labor man. R. R. Hall, K.C., was the Liberal candidate, but he received no help from the Hon. G. N. Gordon. The speaker said that the advertisement claimed that "we were not pinch-hitters"—"We never had the chance," he said, "as E. A. Peck was the man for the job. The Hon. G. N. Gordon has been in Peterboro for twenty years and I will venture to say," said the speaker, "that no other man has such a large circle of acquaintances and fewer friends than he. The fact of the matter is," said Mr. Strickland, "the Hon. G. N. Gordon has outlived his usefulness and his advertisements show it. Does he condemn our policies? He can't—he can only make personal attacks on the Conservative candidate's helpers. The best answer you electors can give is get out one and all and vote for the policies of the Conservative party.

A. R. Wilmott.

A. R. Wilmott, the secretary of the Conservative Association, Cobourg, gave a brief resume of what was happening in the neighboring riding of Northumberland. The two centres where Cabinet Ministers are in the field are causing great interest in Canada to-day. Mr. Wilmott stated that the issues were simply a matter of policies. He said, in closing, "Our eyes are on Peterboro and we wish you luck."

W. Boulton.

Mr. Boulton, in a witty speech that kept his audience in good humor, stated that there was a wave of Conservatism sweeping the country from coast to coast—and, he said, "I am satisfied that Mr. Meighen will reconstruct the country along the lines advocated by the late Sir J. A. MacDonald. The people of this country are sick and tired of a government that gained office by misrepresentation. Mackenzie King is preaching no monopoly on land or sea, yet he himself is trying to monopolize the Progressive party." The speaker declared that a sign of the times was to be seen in the large number of Liberals who had gained their seats by large majorities in the last election and who were refusing to run this time, due to their lack of sympathy with the policies of Mackenzie King. "A man who stands up for his convictions rather than his pary is a Canadian citizen," said the speaker. "Sir Wilfrid Laurier predicted that in 1925 Canada would have a population of 15 millions—so we have, but they are all in the States."

In speaking of the coming election, the speaker declared that "history would repeat itself," and that day would start Canada out on an era of prosperity, the like of which she had never seen before, due to the national policies advocated by the Rt. Hon. A. Meighen. "Mr. King talks of national unity, but how can we have national unity when our young folks are leaving the country and our cities have more empty houses than ever before?" The speaker read a number of resolutions that had been passed by cities protesting Mr. King's downward revision of the tariff, amongst which was one from the Peterborough City Council in March, 1924. In concluding, Mr. Boulton stated that Canada could not lose by adopting the policies enumerated by the Hon. A. Meighen, a national policy that had no room for personalities, and counselled the people to vote for Mr. Peck.

Cheers were given for Mr. Meighen and Mr. Peck, and the meeting was brought to a close by the singing of the National Anthem.

PETERBOROUGH CRICKET CLUB HOLDS ITS ANNUAL MEETING

Banquet in Hooper's Parlors Marked the Enjoyable Occasion.

PRESENTATIONS.

R. N. Stuart Elected President and Other Officers Chosen.

The annual general meeting and banquet was held in Hooper's Rooms on Monday, October 19. An excellent supper was partaken, this being interspersed with community singing, which was lustily indulged in.

Reports from the various officers were read and accepted, each of which contained valuable suggestions for next season's activities. The secretary announced that matches with this season's teams had been fixed up for next, together with others, so that prospects augured well for a fuller fixture list than this year.

The financial report was presented, which showed a good balance on the favorable side, in spite of the expenditure for several big items.

The president then presented Frank Dyer with a beautiful bat, as the best all round cricketer during this season. This presentation, a gift from the president himself, was received musically and with cheers from all, thus acknowledging the spirit actuating the giver and the popularity of the member receiving it.

Club colors were then presented by the captain to the seven leading players as follows: F. Dyer, Dr. Hewett, C. Thorpe, C. Conner-Fenton, G. R. Langley, P. Manning and G. Coutts, the basis of this award being the merits of the individual players as batsmen, bowlers or fielders.

A vote of thanks was accorded musically to the many ladies, who never failed at the home matches with the always acceptable cup of tea, which thanks also had been tendered by all the visiting teams.

Another vote of thanks was accorded the Exhibition Board for the privileges enjoyed on the grounds, and the friendly treatment received at their hands throughout the season.

Several amendments to the by-laws were proposed, the discussion and consideration of which will take place at the next general meeting.

Thanks to the retiring executive were expressed with enthusiasm, after which the election of the new executive was proceeded with.

Very little time was taken over this item, as the method of election had been carefully included in the by-laws, and each member had been requested to have his plate ready. It resulted as follows:

President—R. N. Stuart.
Vice-President—Dr. Hewett.
Captain—Frank Dyer.
Vice-President—C. Conner-Fenton
Secretary-Treasurer—P. Manning.
Chairmen of sub-committees; Entertainment—G. Monkman. Publicity—C. A. Thorpe. Grounds and Equipment—W. E. Massey-Cooke.

The election by open ballot resulted in the following:

Hon. President—R. B. Rogers.
Hon. Vice-Presidents—Dr. Hammond and Dr. Young and F. M. Dela Fosse.

The season just closed was very successful, playing in all fourteen matches, winning eight and losing six.

Interesting Political History
Mr. Gordon's Press Bureau
Neglected To Uncover !

Evidence that the supreme confidence that characterized Mr. Gordon't attitude toward the present elections is fast ebbing away is furnished by the blast from the Liberal loud speaker in last evening's Examiner.

Mr. Gordon, feeling his own support slipping from him, is making desperate and laughable efforts to sow discord in the opposition ranks.

It Cannot Be Done

In this election Mr. Gordon is facing a fighting, confident, united Conservative party, reinforced by hundreds of Liberals and independents who are disgusted with conditions under the King government, and if the Liberal candidate hasn't realized that fact fully yet, he will by 8 o'clock next Thursday night. The election that Mr. Gordon fondly imagined would be a walk over, has turned into a battle in which he is fighting for his political existence, a battle going so badly for him that instead of stumping other constituencies on behalf of the government as a Cabinet Minister should, he is forced to let the King candidates elsewhere do their own stumping.

It's a Gordon characteristic to do his hardest fighting for Gordon, of course, and last night's outburst sounded suspiciously like as if the present fight is getting on his nerves.

That seems to be the only explanation for his excursion into the past, for if there is anybody in Peterborowho should be glad to have a kindly veil of silence drawn over the political history of this riding, it is Mr. Gordon.

They Missed Something

In going back to 1914 the Liberal Press Bureau shold have paused at the year 1917, because that was the year when the "dependable" Mr. Gordon gave the most spineless exhibition of political mug wumping West Peterboro has ever known, when in the course of a few weeks he flirted with Labour, was on the platform at a Liberal nominating convention, six nights later was part of the stage setting at a unionist convention and finally landed — well Mr. Gordon alone knows where.

IF MR. GORDON HAS FORGOTTEN 1917 — a lot of Liberals are among those who have not.

"I don't want to be nominated from a Liberal convention as a Liberal candidate. I don't want to ask a Liberal convention to nominate me to support the Liberal platform. I am standing today on the platform of the Independent Labour Party."

The speaker was the "dependable" Mr. Gordon; the scene the West Peterboro Liberal convention; the time Nov. 10,1917.

In these words he declined a Liberal nomination, left R. R. Hall to carry on the fight as a Laurier Liberal and the Liberal party knew him no more—in 1917.

It was six days later, Friday, Nov. 16, 1917, and a union meeting had been called to nominate a Unionist candidate.

Mr. Gordon was on the platform, one of those Liberals who helped to "twist a dagger in the heart of Laurier" as an admirer of the great Liberal chieftain described them.

He was among those nominated—but declined, again expressing his adherence to the principles of the Labour Party—and the Unionists in turn knew him no more.

After that a sickly silence.

Gordon the "go-getter" didn't do much fighting in 1917—when a determined public stand on either side of the question was demanded of such men as he.

Professing to be a Labour man, he deserted the Liberal party in its bitterest hour, posed as a Unionist and wound up as a cipher, politically speaking.

Less than four years later the "dependable" Mr. Gordon who was an apostate from Liberalism in 1917, dropped his Labour mask and accepted a Liberal nomination—among his opponents being a Labour candidate.

A Sorry Record

There is the record. It furnishes a striking commentary on the brand of "Statesmanship" from which Mackenzie King selects his cabinet ministers.

Mr. Gordon has too many skeletons in his political cupboard—he of all others should let the past alone.

His opponent, Mr. Peck, was nominated by the largest and most enthusiastic convention Peterboro has seen, to do exactly what he is doing—to give Mr. Gordon the warmest battle that over-confident politician has known.

Mr. Gordon's press bureau has materially assisted that result by last evening's fusilade, which has caused more people to decide for

GENERAL HOPES TO EVICT REDS

Chen Has 7,000 Men and Outnumbers Reds in Kwang Tung.

WORKING FOR UNITY.

LONDON, Oct. 22. — (Canadian Press).—The Hong Kong correspondent of the Daily Express sends an interview with General Chen Chiang-Min, in which the anti-Red leader declares it is his aim to drive out the Reds from Kwang Tung Province.

"I have 7,000 troops, which, although less well armed than the Reds, outnumber them," said Gen. Chen. "I have the moral support of the National Assembly, together with a warship from the north and secret sources of arms and ammunition supplies, and only the lack of funds prevents the early accomplishment of my task.

"When the Reds are driven out I will not establish a southern government but will strive to join the north and south for a unified China."

Toronto Stock Retain General Firm Tone

TORONTO, Oct. 22 (Canadian Press)—The general firm tone was maintained on the Toronto stock exchange this morning with Consolidated Smelters the outstanding leader in a broad list of issues. Smelters sold rapidly up to 161 1-4 then eased from this mark to 159 7-8 at the noon close for a net advance of four and three-eighth points. British Columbia fishing, Brazilian and and Atlantic Sugar were the other active issues.

B. C. fishing sold up about two points to 53 3-4, Shredded Wheat two at 168 1-2 and Atlantic Sugar a point at 35. Brazilian showed a quarter point decline from yesterday's 79. Canada steamships preferred, were all fractionally higher.

Prices On Upward Grade In New York Exchange

NEW YORK, October 22, Canadian Press. — Resmption of the broad upward movement in prices took place in to-day's active stock market with motors again assuming the leadership of rally. Public participation was on the increase, the total sales running above 1,150,000 shares before the end of the third hour, but the advance was an orderly one. More than a score of issues, representative of the principal groups, mounted to new high levels for the year. The rally was aided by a continuation of easy money rates, reports that operations of the United States Steel Corporation were now around 81 per cent. of capacity, and the publication of additional favorable earning statements by representative industrial companies. Dupont, General Cigar, and Commercial Solvents issues sold 4 to 5½ points higher. The trading in rails quieted down but Southern Railway and Baltimore and Ohio moved into new high territory.

REFORESTATION IN SIMCOE COUNTY

Active reforestation work is being carried on under the auspices of the Ontario government in Simcoe county, the northern section of which is threatened with extinction of its trees within another thirty years. The upper picture shows young pine trees planted in a patch of "blow sand." Below, workers are shown weeding out a nursery of pine seedlings. The tiny shoots are given the greatest care, in order that they may develop into sturdy young trees.

Peace and Prosperity Are On the Way Says Schwab

CHICAGO, Oct. 22.—(Canadian Press)—Peace and prosperity are peering over the horizon with a promise to be boon companions of business in the years immediaely ahead, Charles M. Schwab, chairman of the board of directors of the Bethlehem Steel Company, told the second annual conference on education and industry, held in connection with the annual meeting of the Institute of American Meat Packers at the University of Chicago yesterday.

The outlook for steel never was better, and he called steel the nation's business barometer.

he be elected or receive more than one-half of the total number of votes polled by the elected candidate in the constituency. If, for any reason, he fails to contest the riding, or if he polls less than half the votes of the successful candidate, the deposit is forfeited.

While to-day was official nomination day in a large number of constituencies, the candidates are already officially in the field. Under the law a candidate may be nominated at any time after the official proclamation of election is issued.

In case of this election, the proclamation was made in September, and already 140 candidate have handed in their deposits. Two days before the nomination day in 1921, when the last general elections were held, there were but half a dozen nomination deposits in the hands of the officials.

With the nominations now completed throughout the Dominion, the stage is set for the contest one week hence.

IN ONTARIO.

TORONTO, Oct. 22.—(Canadian Press).—Official nominations will be filed in 75 out of 82 Ontario ridings between noon and 2 p.m. today. There are nearly 170 candidates in the field for these constituencies. In addition, there are 16 candidates contesting seven seats for which the official nominations were made one week ago. Gordon, in Peterboro West; Hon. T. A. Low, in Renfrew South, and Hon. James Murdock, in Toronto High Park riding, while one new Cabinet Minister, Hon. Vincent Massey, is running for Durham.

Protecting your money

A MANUFACTURER in an obscure little town builds a new product.

Within a year or two, thousands of women in every corner of America buy that product—and benefit by its merits.

What gives you this confidence in the value of goods made by a man perhaps thousands of miles away?

Advertising. Advertising brings you news of the new article. It tells you of its merits. It convinces you of its value. It protects your investment.

Products that are widely advertised are worthy of your faith. You buy from honest, neighborly folk when you buy from their dealers.

It pays you to read the advertisements and to know advertised products. Buying them protects your money.

EVERY ADVERTISEMENT IS A LESSON IN CAREFUL BUYING—READ THEM ALL.

R. J. Soden Answers G. N. Gordon

Referring to your issue of yesterday's date and to Mr. G. N. Gordon's statement therein regarding Mr. E. A. Peck and myself, Mr. Gordon's statement is, to say the very least of it, both totally misleading and reckless.

MR. E. A. PECK WAS NOT TURNED DOWN BY THE LIBERAL-CONSERVATIVE PARTY ten years ago.

MR. PECK WAS OFFERED THE UNANIMOUS NOMINATION FOR A SECOND TERM, BY THE THEN EXECUTIVE OF THE LIBERAL CONSERVATIVE PARTY OF WEST PETERBOROUGH. NO MEMBER OF THAT PARTY WISHED OR ASKED TO CONTEST THE NOMINATION WITH MR. E. A. PECK.

MR. PECK, AFTER DUE CONSIDERATION, REFUSED TO ACCEPT A NOMINATION FOR A SECOND TERM IN THE ONTARIO LEGISLATURE.

IT WAS MR. PECK'S REFUSAL THAT INDUCED ME TO ALLOW MY NAME TO GO TO A CONVENTION. AND IT WAS MR. PECK'S REFUSAL WHICH GAVE ME MY FIRST NOMINATION.

So much for that—

Let me now complete what Mr. G. N. Gordon has failed to tell you:

IN THE LAST DOMINION GENERAL ELECTION, I DID NOT SUPPORT THE LIBERAL CONSERVATIVE PARTY.

INSTEAD, I VOTED FOR MR. G. N. GORDON, for whom I have always had a Warm personal regard.

NOW, AFTER FOUR YEARS OF THE MALADMINISTRATION OF THE KING GOVERNMENT, OF WHICH MR. GORDON WAS A MEMBER, I WAS FORCED TO THE CONCLUSION THAT IT WAS MY DUTY TO MY OWN BUSINESS, AND THE WELFARE OF THIS CITY AND RIDING, that I should put aside all personal regard for Mr. Gordon, AND DO MY UTMOST TO OUST BOTH HE AND THE KING GOVERNMENT, BEFORE THEY BROUGHT FULL AND COMPLETE DISASTER UPON THE MANUFACTURERS, MERCHANTS, LABORERS and AGRICULTURISTS OF THIS RIDING AND THIS DOMINION.

FOR THESE REASONS I AM SUPPORTING MR. E. A. PECK AND THE PRINCIPLES FOR WHICH HE STANDS.

I REGARD HIM AS THE BEST MAN IN THIS RIDING TO ASSIST IN RESTORING EQUILIBRIUM AND STABILITY TO THE BUSINESS INTERESTS OF THIS DOMINION. FROM PERSONAL CONTACT AND OBSERVATION, I AM ALSO QUITE SURE THAT MY CONFIDENCE IN MR. PECK IS SHARED AND WILL BE EXPRESSED BY AT LEAST 1,500 MORE THAN ONE HALF THE VOTERS OF WEST PETERBOROUGH ON OCTOBER 29th.

R. J. SODEN,
131 Hunter St. West,
Peterborough.

PETES PREPARED FOR BARRIE NOW

U.T.S 45, OSHAWA 0.

The local O.R.F.U. squad had another workout yesterday evening that will certainly benefit them a great deal in their game this Saturday with the Barrie Twelve at James Stevenson park. The wings, Redpath, Manning Milloy, Yelland and Outram, did some brilliant tackling in the practice, and the back field players, Mulholland, Henry and Fraser got in a lot of good work, running back kicks. This was one of the weak points in the Petes' defense last Saturday but by last night's exhibition it will be certainly greatly improved for the comng game.

Reynolds, Griffin and Lane were hitting the opposition hard in the scrimmage and it will give the fans a thrill to see "Slim" Griffin and "Wallie' Rye tear holes in the Barrie defence on Saturday.

Pete Mulholland was getting great distance to his sky-scraping punts and Max Sloane has unearthed a good drop kicker in "Bun" Henry, last year outside wing for P.C.I.

Jack Turner has been working out with the squad and he may get into the game Saturday.

Although the Petes are down 12 points form the Barrie game, the whole squad is confident that with luck breaking half way they can overcome this and win the round.

Tickets for the game are on sale at the Y.M.C.A., Bond's drug store, Le'Barr's and the Empress.

The University of Toronto Schools team completely enveloped the Oshawa High School yesterday at Alexandra Park, winning the game easily by 45 to nil. The Oshawa team it appears did not have a show with the Toronto team.

Mr. Browne is out every afternoon coaching the willing P.C.I. outfit. In the practice yesterday afternoon Alex. Morrison showed some fine open field running and he along with Bookhout, Killaly, Amys, Wood and the rest of them, will give the Oshawa squad another busy afternoon on Saturday.

GRADED UNION MET ST. ANDREW'S HALL

Mr. Gamble, of Mark Street Sunday School, Was the Speaker.

On Tuesday, October 20, at 8 p.m., the Elementary Graded Union met in St. Andrew's Sunday School Hall. The meeting opened with a hymn, followed by prayer by the president, Mrs. Carver.

A very interesting and inspirational address was then given by Mr. W. Gamble, superintendent of the Mark Street Union Sunday School. He spoke of the privilege and influence which the teachers of the young have in moulding the plastic mind of the child and teaching the child the principals of Jesus Christ. The teacher's life should be in accordance with her teachings.

Mrs. Carver then showed several samples of interest to primary teachers, such as book covers, temperance stories, Thanksgiving ideas, etc.

A Thanksgiving story suitable for primary children was told by Miss E. Clysdale, which was appreciated.

Separate sessions were then held by the beginners and cradle roll departments addressed by Mrs. Carver; primary department led by Mrs. Lewis, and the junior department led by Mrs. Jackson. In each of these valuable ideas were exchanged and each department reported a very helpful period.

Must Have a Volcano To Rock Them To Sleep

NEW YORK, Oct. 22. — Canadan Press. — The natives of the Island of Santo Rini, in the Aegean Sea, have become so accustomed to the eruption of a volcano that it is feared when it quiets down they will suffer from attacks of inomnia, because of the lack of noise, declared Dr. Henry S. Washington, who came back to-day on the Italian liner "Colombo."

Washington, started its eruption on August 10th last and will continue until next August. Its eruption is peculiar i that it makes a noise like a battery of small rifles.

MARMORA NEWS

MARMORA, Oct. 22.—The evening service at the United church, Marmora, on Sunday, October 18th, was a very eventful one in the history of that church inasmuch as two resolutions were put to the congregation at its close and carried unanimously.

1. It was moved by F. N. Marett and seconded by W. A. Sanderson, "That on account of a resolution from the Springbrook appointment of the Marmora charge having been placed in the hands of the Boundaries Committee of the Belleville Presbytery requesting that they, the Springbrook appointment, be taken off this charge, that we, the Marmora appointment, petition the Belleville Presbytery of the Bay of Quinte Conference to form a charge of Marmora and Deloro appointments and also include Zion appointment in Marmora township and that we agree that with the assistance of Deloro and Zion appointments we will support an ordained minister of the United Church of Canada, but on account of the Springbrook appointment requesting to be removed from this charge that Marmora appointment will not be in any way responsible for any parsonage adjustments."

2. Moved by F. R. Wells and seconded by Arthur Sweet, "That in case of any charge being made in boundaries of this change that our present pastor, Rev. J. F. Horwood, be unanimously invited to remain on this part of the charge and that a copy of this resolution be forwarded to the Settlement Committee of the Bay of Quinte Conference."

Both resolutions were submitted after an explanatory address from G. B. Airhart.

In the service preceding, the choir rendered a new anthem setting of "Rock of Ages" in which Mrs. Chris Short took the solo part. Rev. Horwood later mentioned that Mrs. Short would soon be leaving Marmora and that her loss would be felt by the choir since in her brief residency, she had rendered valuable assistance. The pastor also delivered a striking address on "The right use of words." It was announced that the anniversary services of the church would be held on Sunday, November 15th, when the Rev. Mr. Jull of Lakefield will be the preacher.

WILSON RAN OVER FOR TOUCHDOWN

Guelph College Took Speed Hold on Game With Varsity.

TORONTO, Oct. 22.—Varsity engaged Guelph O.A.C. here yesterday afternoon in an Intercollegiate intermediate fixture. It is the second meeting of the teams, Guelph having won at home earlier in the season by a close score. O.A.C. have designs on the group honors, as they turned in a nice win against Western University last Saturday. They have a husky squad and a high-class kicker in Wilson.

H. CHEU PROMINENT IN TREMENDOUS WIN

Peterborough Boy Shared in Scoring When Woodstock College Beat Opponents.

WOODSTOCK, Oct. 22.—Woodstock Collegiate representatives in the Oxford County Football League proved their strength Tuesday afternoon when they smothered Collegiate Institute in a league fixture by the score of 52 to 0. The game had been in progress only a minute or so when Fisher of Woodstock Collegiate ran the length of the field for a touchdown. The points came thick and fast after that, until the winners accumulated over half a hundred before the final whistle.

Fisher and Brownell, Cheu and McGregor did most of the scoring for Woodstock College. The field was wet and slippery, and the Collegiate could never get going against their better conditioned opponents.

DAINTY HAS GOT JOB IN KINGSTON

Manager of Frontenac Bowling Academy Reported For Duty Monday.

KINGSTON, Ont., Oct. 22.—Harold "Duke" Dainty, star left-hander of the Oshawa team of the Central Ontario Baseball League, has accepted the position as manager of the Frontenac Bowling Academy, and reported for duty here on Monday. With Dainty's acceptance of the position, Kingston gains one of the best southpaws in the country. A couple of years ago he was eagerly sought after by the London team of the Michigan-Ontario League, but he decided to stay in the ranks of the Central Ontario League. Dainty and Cairns, the two leading pitchers of the C.O.B.L., should give the locals the nuclus of the best team in Ontario next year. They are both star southpaws.

OLYMPIC STADIUM.

Owing to the soggy nature of the ground along the Zuyder Zee, it will be necessary to drive 5,000 piles, each 50 feet in length, into the subsoil for a foundation for the Olympic Stadium at Amsterdam, Holland. A million cubic metres of sand will be required to raise the level of the site. There will be 7,600 square metres of cemented surface. The new stadium grounds will be about 35 acres in size.

Pennsylvania and Yale met in the gridiron twelve times from 1879 to 1893, and not one contest was won by the Quakers. The nearest Pennsylvania came to emerging a victor was in 1893, when the final result was 14 to 6.

PECK SAYS HONORS AFFECT FIELDING

Feels Like So Much Ball and Chain on His Hands.

NEW YORK, Oct. 22.—As a result of Roger Peckinpaugh's erratic world series fielding, it is likely that the announcement of the American League's most valuable player award will be held off next year until after baseball's blue ribbon event is history. Peck says entering the series with this honor is so much ball and chain on his hands.

BIG FOUR RULERS TAKE QUICK ACTION

Inter-Provincial Football Heads Are Determined to Stop Rough Play.

Argonauts were notified Tuesday that charges of rough play against Eddie Emerson of Ottawa will be investigated immediately by the Big Four Governors. Referee Billy Mallett has been requested to send in a report and witnesses will be sought. The Double Blue officials claim that they did not see the alleged assault, but they believe that some action should be taken to stop rough play. They have no particular quarrel with Emerson or with any other player, but they cannot ignore the fact that one of their cleanest athletes was seriously injured in the game at Ottawa.

The Big Four Governors have been ticklers in this respect. They will not countenance rough play and in the past they have shown an iron hand in disciplining offenders.

SOCCER NOTES.

The final for the Bradburn Cup will be played on King Edward Park on Saturday afternoon, when those two crack Junior teams, the C.P.C., holders, will meet the Masseys, both teams will be at full strength. The players of both teams are requested to meet at their club rooms, at 2.30 p.m. Kick off at 3 p.m. sharp. Mr. Kellar will referee and Mr. A. Mitchell and W. Anderson will be linesmen. The donor, Mr. W. H. Bradburn, M.P.P., will present the trophy to the winning team from the band stand at the conclusion of the game.

INSIDE GOLF.

Maker of 51 Golf Champions. "Golf's most successful teacher," says "Chick" Evans

By CHESTER HORTON

The golf ball is hit hard in proportion to the distance the clubhead travels in its swing, assuming that the club-head's flight is even, smooth, rhythmic and without jerk. Players have been urged to shorten the back swing, not because a short back swing yields a longer ball than a long back swing, but because a short back swing is likely, with the average player, to have more rhythm in it than a longer swing. The fullest possible back swing combined with perfect rythm and timing deliver the longest possible ball, but since these three things are hard to get all at once, and since average good results are best obtained through compromise, it usually is best to shorten up the back swing and lengthen out on the rhythm. These factors alone control the flight of the ball, in yards.

AN UMPIRE'S JOB IS NOT A HAPPY ONE.

Criticized on and off the field, the arbiters in the world's series, perhaps, more than earned the $2,000 stipend which was the amount paid each of the four officials, two from each league, who worked in the series. In the lower panel Bluege is seen scoring the Senators second and last run of the sixth game by a beautiful slide. It was a close play, and elicited an argument from the Pittsburg club. In the top panel members of the Pirates are shown gathered around the home plate disputing a decision rendered by the umpire, also on Bluege. It was claimed taht the throw to first had beaten the runner. This incident occurred in the seventh and final game of the series.

TWO MEETINGS.

Discovered That Reductions of Farm Implement Tariff Not Hurtful.

Hon. Vincent Massey, Liberal candidate in Durham, addressed two meeting last night at Bailieboro and Millbrook, both of which were largely attended.

He prefaced his address at Bailieboro by referring to a whispering campaign which, he said, had come to his attention. Some of the things which were being said were not worth mentioning and perhaps were given no attention by the electors, but even thinking people might be deceived by two of them. One of these was in regard to a rumor concerning the Massey-Harris factory at Batavia, N.Y.

"It is said that our company employs 4,000 more men at Batavia than in our Canadian factory and that our goods are sent into Canada to the disadvantage of Canadian workmen. The fact is that we employ 670 men in our American factory which has been operating there these many years, while we are employing 2,590 men in Canada or four times as many. And for every dollar's worth of goods that comes into Canada from our U. S. plant, $30 worth is made in Canada for the United States. It is not generally known that the United States has free trade in agricultural implements which enables us to sell Canadian goods there.

It is also said that our company received large sum, $2,000,000 or more, in settlement for damages during the war, that it was paid out of Dominion Government funds, and was a special favor to our company. As to that, the truth is that during the war our company suffered certain losses, such as in bills receivable, which were seized in the enemy countries, especially in Austria-Hungary. A great many companies met with losses of one kind or another, and under the treaty of peace these companies were permitted to make claims for recovery on these damages. On our claim the money was paid in two instalments, the largest under the Meighen Government four years ago, and the smaller under the present Government. They were paid out of German monies which had been confiscated during the war and held by the Government, and were certainly not paid out of the Federal treasury.

I trust that answers these rumors, and I believe that the people of Durham are more interested in the paramount issues of this election and not with idle whisperings."

Hon. Mr. Massey analyzed in detail the business conditions of Canada since the war, asserted that the country's progress depended upon the welfare of agriculture and finally discussed the effects of tariff on the Massey-Harris industry.

"Protection has a caressing sound, as of encircling arms to protect one against all dangers and perils that lie outside. A year and a half ago the Government announced its intention to reduce the duties on farm implements. I confess that I feared the result, and I protested violently that a such a reduction would endanger our industry for which I was responsible. And I really believed our industry would suffer. I called the Government all sorts of names for doing it.

However the reduction was made from 15 and 12½ per cent duties to 10 and 6½ per cent. Raw materials were put on the free list and the Government removed the sale tax on the condition that this release be passed on to the consumers. We agreed to carry on, and I said so publicly at that time. I studied the whole question for a year and a half and I discovered that the reduction in the tariff had not adversely affected the farm implement industry."

Mr. Massey said that the Canadian manufacturers of pig iron and steel had not been injured by the removal of duties, but that more of their products had been used than before. The recovery of business last year carried the farm implement industry with it, and it had not been hurt by what the Government did.

Mr. Massey said there was an apparent contradiction in the Conservative party's tariff claims. "Mr. Meighen is telling the farmers that he will give them a tariff and their prices will be increased, but he is also saying that there will be no increase in prices from the higher tariff he proposes for manufacturers. Which is wrong and which is right? because both these assertions cannot be true."

"Will a tariff benefit the farmers? If Canada was a country which imported a great quantity of food, there might be something to Mr. Meighen's policy. There would be a restricted supply and rising prices. But we don't import food except in small quantities. We are a great exporting country. In 1923 we imported only 4 eggs out of every 100 we produced, and one-fortieth of the butter we produced. We imported only 4,500,000 barrels of the 165,000,000 barrels of apples we produced. Our great exports entirely alter the situation as Mr. Meighen proposes it for Canada. Our prices of farm products are set by the European markets, and a tariff would not alter their price at all."

WARD EXTENDED CHAMP THE LIMIT

Knocked Renault Down With Plexus Blow in the Second Round.

MONTREAL, Oct. 22. (Canadian Press). — Furnishing the greatest surprise of the pugilistic season, Jack Ward, a second-rate local heavy weight, extended Jack Renault, the Canadian heavyweight champion, to the limit before Renault got the decision in a ten-round bout at Mount Royal Arena here last night. Renault weighed 204¼ and Ward 197½. Ward was not only handicapped by weight, he was also handicapped by a lack of experience. He has been fighting around Montreal only during the past several years, while Renault has had the advantage of clever management and many big fights. Ward was floored in the first round but he evened things in the second round by knocking the champion down with a blow at his solar plexus.

UNUSUAL PICTURES IN STUDIO WINDOW

F. L. Roy Exhibits Miniatures Resembling Old Time Daguerrotypes.

In the show window of the F. L. Roy Studio are displayed some samples of an entirely new departure in photographic art. They are miniature reproductions of photgraphs and are quite unusual. They possess all the fineness and texture of the old type minature and also more closely resemble, possibly, the famous daguerrotype of olden times, being really a modern version of the old-style miniature and daguerrotype.

Several pretty bridal pictures are in the window in this odd new style, the small central photograph framed in a wide white block, with faint pencil-like lines of grey and redoubtlining the picture, which is fromed in ebony.

The method employed is to take a large plate picture and then reduce it down to these small proportions, thus getting all the clearness of the original with the miniature delicacy and softness of the reduction.

THEATRE

AT THE CAPITOL

SWANSON THE BERNHARDT OF SCREEN, SAYS ALLAN DAWN.

What the great Bernhadt was to the stage, Gloria Swanson is to the screen.

The director expressed it as follows:

"Until now we have not had an actress on the screen who merited the title. The world has been waiting for the Bernhardt of the silent drama. Gloria Swanson is that person—an artist unsurpassed.

"I have heard people say that Miss Swanson had reached the pinnacle of her career ,that she could go no higher. I know that she is only half way to the goal she will reach She will amaze the world more and more by her growing prominence, her mastery of the art of acting.

"A new and wonderful Gloria came back to America from France, an actress with a full awakening to power and genius. Poise, depth, feeling, polish and conviction she has to a fuller degree than ever. Her characterizations in "The Coast of Folly" are the most difficult ever undertaken by a motion picture star, and Miss Swanson has made them the letter of perfection."

Miss Swanson has three characterizations, each widely different, in her new starring picture. One is that of Joyce Gathway, a lovely, high-spirited young society girl. The second is Joyce's mother, Nadine Gathway, beautiful wife of a millionaire whom she deserts. The third calls for the most powerful portrayal of all, that of Countess de Tauro, who is Nadine twenty years later.

Each of the roles demands a difference of dress, mannerism, mood and temperament. Becoming three different persons thoroughly in appearance and in every other way, is a herculean dramatic feat which the star has accomplished with a spirit that compels wonder.

"The Coast of Folly" is an adaptation for Forrest Halsey of the novel of the same name by Conings-by Dawson. Anthony Jowitt plays opposite the star. Others in the strong supporting cast are Alec Francis, Dorothy Cumming, Jed Prouty, Lawrence Gray, Arthur Hausman and Eugenie Besserer.

AT THE GRAND.

ABIE'S IRISH ROSE"

No play written in the last century has been more widely discussed, heralded nor phenomenally and consistently successful than has Anne Nichols' famous comedy with its beautiful love story and appealing humor, "Abie's Irish Rose", of which she is the author as well as producer, and which the management of the Grand Opera House announces for an engagement of three nights, with matinee on Saturday, October 31st, beginning Thursday, October 29th.

This wonder play of the age has established precedents never before heard of in theatrical annals, in the way of long engagements in many of the larger cities in this country and the United States, and lovers of "shome" need but glance at the statistics incorporated in theatrical history since its premiere, May 23rd, 1922, to be convinced of its perennial success wherever it is presented.

"Abies' Irish Rose" deals with the marriage of a Jewish boy and an Irish girl, first married by a Methodist minister, then again in rapid succession by a Rabbi and a Catholic priest, in an effort to appease their storming fathers. This theme is handled in a deft and human manner and does not give offense to the most sensitive. It was written, not to cause discussion, but to cause laughter—and it does, to the hysterical point.

Arthur Janisse Free Jury Took 18 Minutes to Arrive at Verdict

Judge Told Jurors There Was No Evidence That Accused Knew His Wife Intended to Shoot the Man Who Had Wronged Her.

NEVER HAD THREATENED McMULLEN.

Was Weak, Foolish and Crazy, But Could Not Be Convicted—Court Says He Must Have Suffered the Torments of Hell.

WINDSOR, Oct. 23 (Canadian Press).—Arthur Janisse, accused of murder on three counts, was acquitted late yesterday afternoon in the Supreme Court, Sandwich, after the jury had deliberated just eighteen minutes. His wife, Ruth A. Janisse, was tried on a similar charge last week, the charge being reduced to manslaughter. She will come up for sentence, it is expected, the first of next week. The two were arrested following the shooting of Clayton McMullin, young battery service station proprietor, on August 13.

The counts against Janisse were: Of murdering Clayton McMullin; of inciting Ruth Janisse to murder, and of harboring and maintaining her after the murder, knowing it to have been committed.

While it scored the prisoner for "foolishness," Mr. Justice Grant's charge was favorable to the acquittal of the accused. The court pointed out that Janisse's action in taking his wife to the hospital immediately after the shooting, when he found she had shot herself in the leg, was a natural one, and on that account the charge of harboring her after the murder could hardly stand.

Coming to discussion of the second count of inciting his wife to commit murder, the court reviewed the evidence from the time Janisse discovered the relations between McMullin and his wife at the first of the year.

"From that time on," the court said, "in the words of defence counsel, that man must have suffered the torment of hell. His actions from that point on are incomprehensible to me. I cannot believe I could have done what he did, or stood what he stood. That he did so, however, is uncontradicted evidence

ATTORNEY DEMANDS DETECTIVE TO REVEAL REAL NAME OF AGENT WHO BROUGHT BACK STOLEN GEMS

Mrs. James P. Donahue, Heiress of Woolworth Millions, Lost $683,000 in Jewelery and Recovered By Paying $65,000 Ransom.

PRIVATE SLEUTH ARRANGED THE RETURN.

Prosecutor Scouts Statement of Scaffa That He Did Not Know the Man With Whom He Transacted the Business.

NEW YORK, October 23. Canadian Press. — Assistant District Attorney Pecora, charged yesterday that Noel C. Scaffa, the private detective, who recovered Mrs. James P. Donahue's $683,000 worth of stolen gems by paying $65,000 ransom to the thief's agent, has deliberately concealed the go-between's identity. He did not say whether any action would be taken against Scaffa, but he previously had announced that the detective would not be questioned before the Grand Jury except by his own request, and en only if he would waive immunity.

The prosecutor's first direct assault against the detective, who was employed by an insurance brokerage concern, came as he was conducting the heiress of Frank Woolworth's millions and her broker husband to the Grand Jury Room to complete their account of the robbery

Mrs. Donahue' testimony was taken in ten minutes. H r husband was on the stand for twenty minutes. When they emerged, Mr. Pecora announced that Mrs. Donahue had no knowledge of Scaffa's recover of the jewels until after the police had been informed.

In his remarks concerning the detective Mr. Pecora said that he believed Scaffa knew the identity of "Samuel Layton," the alleged agent of the jewel thief, whose whereabouts are unknown to the police.

"It is inconceivable to my mind that Scaffa does not know the identity of the man with whom he did business," he said. "The mutual trust and confidence they apparently inspired in each other from the beginning is an indication that they were at least fairly well known to each other."

Charles D. Mathias Died From Exposure When Canoe Upset

Was at Chemong Lake With Mr. S. Burnham on Duck Hunt—Started Out Alone and Was Seen Struggling in Water Soon After Shot Was Fired.

IN WATER NEARLY AN HOUR.

A tragic sequel follows The Examiner story which recorded the appointment of Charles D. Mathias to a provincial office. Yesterday, while on a duck hunt with M. S. Burnham at Chemong Lake, he fell into the water, and after a struggle lasting nearly an hour, died of exhaustion and shock, and when succour was at hand.

According to the story told The Examiner by Mr. Burnham, the two departed for Chemong at 8.15 a.m. and, arrived there, put out the decoys which they had taken. Mr. Mathias had taken his camera and secured several pictures. They had lunch on Horseshoe Island at noon and immediately afterward Mr. Mathias got into the canoe saying that he would go out and see if there were any birds. Mr. Burnham voiced a warning against shooting across the canoe. Mr. Mathias proceeded toward the head of the lake and above a boom.

Heard a Shot.

In a short while, Mr. Burnham heard a shot and thinking that his friend had secured a bird, he trained his field glasses on the scene.

He saw that the canoe was lying low in thew ater at a distance of a mile, and perceived that Mr. Mathias was swimming at the stern and pushing the canoe ahead of him.

BRITISH 'MYSTERY' PLANE FALLS DURING TESTS FOR NAVIGABILITY

Supermarine Vapier S-4 Was Being Tried Out For Race.

FELL INTO RIVER.

Pilot Was Forced Under Water, But Managed to Escape.

BAY SHORE PARK, BALTIMORE, Oct. 23 (Canadian Press).—Great Britain's "mystery plane," the super-marine Napier S4, crashed this morning during the navigability trials and is a total wreck. Captain Henry C. Biard, the pilot, is suffering from immersion and shock, but escaped injury.

Captain Biard had just taken off for navigability and seaworthiness trials and was at an elevation of about 200 feet when wing flutter apparently developed in both wings of the monoplane. Captain Biard attempted at once to land. As he struck the water, the super-marine nosed down and somersaulted on her back, pressing the pilot under the surface. Captain Biard was wearing a life belt and managed to clear himself and reached the surface as the Napier S-4 sank.

The super-marine mishap will throw into the Schneider Cup race tomorrow both of Great Britain's Gloster-Napier 3's, one of which had been held in reserve. Bert Hinkler of Melbourne, Australia, British reserve pilot, will take the second Gloster into the race tomorrow.

MELITA ARRIVES POLICE ARREST FIRST OFFICER

INQUEST TO-DAY.

Towers Arraigned This Morning on Charge of Killing Captain Clews.

SOUTHAMPTON, Eng., Oct. 23.—(Canadian Press).—Thomas Towers, first officer of the Canadian Pacific liner Melita, arrested following a shooting affray aboard the ship while she was in mid-Atlantic, was taken off the Melita on her arrival here and, under a strong police guard, lodged in the police station.

At the same time the body of Captain A. H. Clews, killed in the shooting, was carried off the boat in a coffin covered with a Red ensign and removed to the mortuary.

Towers will be arraigned to-day, and an inquest into Captain Clews' death will also get under way.

In order to circumvent the curiosity of a large crowd which gathered when the Melita came in yesterday afternoon, the body of Captain Clews was taken off the ship in a tender at the entrance to Southampton Water.

Chicago Wants Air Cops To Chase Stunt Fliers

CHICAGO, Oct. 23.—A traffic policeman in the sky to guard crowds from stunt fliers is planned by Morgan A. Collins, Police Chief. He will ask the city to provide the police department with a small pursuit plane, equipped with repeating rifles and powerful searchlights.

The Chief's move came after he attended the North-Western-Chicago football game last Saturday and saw a stunt aviator hovering 1,000 feet over 4,000 spectators.

OFFICER ARRAIGNED.

Thomas A. Towers, First Officer of Melita, Charged With Murder.

SOUTHAMPTON, Eng., Oct. 23. — (Canadian Press). — Thomas Augustus Towers, first officer of the Canadian Pacific liner Melita, was arraigned in Police Court here today and remanded for one week on a charge of murdering Captain Arthur Haywood C. Lewis while the vessel was at Antwerp. Towers looked dazed but made no sign when the charge was read.

WHEAT UNTHRESHED.

Much Will Have To Stay In Stooks Until the Spring.

REGINA, Sask., Oct. 23.—(Canadian Press).—Fears are being expressed by farmers that wheat now in stook, estimated at between 70,000,000 and 80,000,000 bushels, will have to be threshed next spring. Grain experts estimate that between 30 and 35 per cent. of the crop is still unthreshed and they declare the present weather conditions indicate spring threshing.

WILSON AND LEAGUE CRITICIZED IN BOOK BY LATE SENATOR LODGE

League Has Done Nothing to End Wars, He Says.

HAS PROVED FUTILE.

All Wilson's Work Actuated By Vanity, Not Idealism.

NEW YORK, October 23. — Canadian Press. — With the League of Nations intervening to halt the Greco-Bulgar hostilities, posthumous accusations from the pen of its bitter enemy the late Senator Henry Cabot Lodge, published here to-day held the League "futile" and charged that it "has done nothing to stop wars."

"Every day of the League's existence," he wrote in a volume brought out by Scribners entitled "The Senate and the League of Nations," has convinced me of the wisdom of the United States in holding aloof from its dangerous provisions. In practice the league thus far has proved futile for the purpose for which it was ostensibly designed and loudly proclaimed. It has done nothing to end wars."

The book is sharply critical of President Wilson, for Lodge held that not idealism, but vanity, actuated his work.

"The key to all he did was that he thought of everything in terms of Wilson," remarked Lodge.

RELIGIOUS RIOTS CAUSE 3 DEATHS

Two Factions of Hindu Caste Clashed—Turned on Intervening Police.

MANY WERE HURT.

MADRAS, India, Oct. 23.—(Canadian Press).—Three persons have been killed and many injured, including seventeen policemen, in a riot after a religious procession in the village of Uttungi, near Bellary.

During a procession two factions of the Lingayats, or members of a caste, clashed and the police intervened. Some 1,000 villagers then attacked the police with stones and other missiles, and the police replied with buckshot. The injured police include a deputy superintendent.

Goose Killed By Plane U. S. Flier Faces Arrest

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo., Oct. 23.—Lieut. Fred C. Nelson, United States Army Air Service, faces arrest on a charge of "driving, killing and capturing a Canada goose from and with the aid of an airplane."

The unusual complaint was filed by Federal Game Warden Barmier, and a Federal warrant was issued for the aviator here Tuesday.

Nelson was flying with a passenger on October 31, 1924, when it is alleged he drove his plane into a flock of geese, the propeller knocking one of the birds to the ground.

CHICAGO, Oct. 23. — (Canadian Press).—Charges involving scores of Chicago policemen and officials, five beer syndicates, five railroads and many of their officials, and a number of prohibition agents will be brought before the Federal Grand Jury as the result of six months' investigation by the prohibition department.

R.M.C. GRADUATE.

BARRIE, Ont., Oct. 23.—(Canadian Press).—Flight Officer T. C. Matthews was instantly killed at Camp Borden. He was a pupil learning to fly, and when making a test crashed to the ground.

Mr. Matthews, who was undergoing a course of flying instruction, was flying solo in an Avro training airplane. He was trying a landing test. When approaching the ground the machine appeared to lose flying speed, stalled and fell. The late pilot officer was born at MacLeod, Alberta, in 1902, and graduated from the Royal Military College in June, 1924.

It's Strange---Isn't It?

How some people thoroughly enjoy the music when the other fellow is getting slammed—but turn the tables and there is a horrible discord.

For instance, from the moment the candidates were in the field, Gordon has been subject to all kinds of attacks in published letters both by direct statement and innuendo; most bitter attacks have been made in rally meetings; unthinkable things are being whispered here and there; he can be slammed from one end of the riding to the other; he can be black-jacked with an "Iron Bed"—and it is real stuff to some of Mr. Peck's supporters. (Not all of them!)

But let him come back with something of a kind—not start it, mind you, but just refuse to take it lying down—and these same fellows who were having all the fun at Gordon's expense just simply can't see the point.

BUT IT'S TRUE!

Gordon Deserves Every Labor Vote

The man who works for his living, wherever he is, or whatever he does, should vote for G. N. Gordon.

He has been "through the mill."

He was a worker himself.

He has been a worker all his life.

He is a worker today.

Everybody in West Peterborough knows that G. N. Gordon was not born with a silver spoon in his mouth.

A rabid partizan asked: "What was he when he came to Peterborough? He came here with nothing."

Every man admires a winner.

It is the sign of a small mind to ask: "What WAS a man?"

He-men look at what a man IS—at what he has done—at the friends he has made—at the work he has accomplished.

And you all know G. N. Gordon.

You know he is a man. You know he works as long hours as you do. You know that since he has been in the political arena he works harder and longer every day than he ever did before.

You know that since he has been in Parliament he has been working for the prosperity of Canada, and the prosperity of the workers of Canada—the workers of West Peterborough, the workers of the whole country.

There has been a lot of "political" talk about dull times in Canada since this campaign started, but today everything points to a return of prosperity, already on the way.

G. N. Gordon believes Canada is going ahead. He believes that Mackenzie King and the Liberal Government have the right idea. Canada is entering a period of prosperity such as she has never enjoyed before.

The Liberal Government has reduced taxation. Where you paid $4 four years ago you pay $3 now.

The Liberal Government has reduced expenses of government at Ottawa and throughout Canada's public services by millions of dollars a year.

The Liberal Government reduced public expenditure in 1925 from what it was when Meighen was Premier in 1921 by $112,000,000.

The Liberal Government has re-organized the National Railways of this country and they are starting to pay a profit on operation to help pay interest on the capital Canada invested. Operating surplus last year was $17,000,000.

The Liberal Government has reduced the national debt instead of piling it up.

The Meighen Government in 1920-21 and 1921-22 added 174 million dollars to Canada's national debt in those two years alone.

Give G. N. Gordon your vote on October 29. Give him a good rousing majority. Canada needs hard workers. Canada needs men who have done things; men who can do things. Canada needs business men.

MEIGHEN SAYS THAT HIS WORDS WERE DISTORTED

Says He Would Refuse Capital For Luxuries on Railways.

UPHOLDS PROTECTION.

Trade Without Tariff Would Be Free Trade in Labor, He Says.

STRATFORD, Oct. 23.—(Canadian Press).—"Is this a tariff for the home" asked Rt. Hon. Arthur Meighen here Wednesday night as he painted a picture of shuttered factories in Canada and Canadian workmen going to the United States. He was referring to Premier King's claim that this was a tariff for the home. Taking the steel industry first, Mr. Meighen quoted official returns to prove his contention that Canada's trade in many things had fallen off tremendously, workmen by thousands "following the machinery to the United States."

Railway amalgamation again occupied a prominent part of Mr. Meighen's speech here Wednesday night, he defying anybody to say that he had ever worked for such an end. Mr. Meighen accused Hon. Geo. P. Graham of misrepresenting his utterances on railway expenditures. Operation and management was the work of the Canadian National Railway Board, outside the jurisdiction "That sphere no government will invade. We will never refuse capital for legitimate expansion and construction work on the National Railway's, but not for luxuries and deluxe services in competition with other roads." Mr. Graham had twisted Mr. Meighen's words on the subject, said the Conservative leader, "to mean that a Government headed by Mr. Meighen would refuse to ballast the roads or keep established lines operating. For Canada to attempt to trade without tariff protection with low wage countries would be tantamount to free trade in labor he said. Canada could not admit freely workmen from Japan and India and Germany and Southern Europe without reducing wage levels. He had been accused of trying to increase the cost of living, how much comfort could it be to poor people to know that cost of living might be reduced a few decimals if they had no job and therefore no money to buy the necessaries of life. The vital things was to get people to work and lay a solid foundation of prosperity in the country.

The Women's Athletic Club of Los Angeles, representing an investment of $1,500,000, was planned and executed entirely by women.

THE FIRE DEPARTMENT.

Many citizens will be interested in knowing that the spendid history of the Peterborough Fire Department, containing much valuable information about fire fighting in this community and illustrated with many unusual photographs, dating back some of them to earlier days in Peterborough's history will shortly be off the presses.

The book should be prized in every home in Peterborough whose inmates take the slightest interest or pride in the story of the city's development as illustrated by the growth of the fire department.

The proceeds of the sale of the history will go to the Firemen's Pension Fund and the book shoud be in demand as a souvenir of Peterborough.

TWO VEXED QUESTIONS.

The City Council has definitely decided to send the two vexed questions of daylight saving and Sunday bathing to a jury of the electors for decision and the two issues will be setted at the municipal election.

Both are controversial subjects and those taking one side or the other in regard to either question have no reason to complain of the manner in which the Council has decided to deal with them.

Advocates and enemies of daylight saving have an equal chance in the vote.

Those who favor Sunday bathing and those who oppose it should similarly welcome the opportunity to have the argument settled by the ballots of the electors.

The plebiscite will prevent the controversy that marked the early summer months this year, and will relieve the city fathers of the onus of taking a stand that might be objectionable to a majority of the ratepayers.

THE MOTOR CAR AND ELECTIONEERING.

The motor car has revolutionized political campaigns as it has many other things in Canada.

The speedy transportation it offers to candidates, and their retinue of speakers makes it easy to cover large stretches of country and to hold two or three meetings in an evening, when not so long ago one gathering was all that could be looked after.

Not only does the automobile make things easier for the candidate but it also ensures him bigger audiences.

Farmers drive longer distance to attend political meetings in the campaign of the present day than they woud ever have attempted to do twenty years ago.

This is the experience of the candidates in the campaign that is drawing to a close and the readiness with which the political forces can get about and the larger audiences they draw, coupled with the fact that the press of today report the meetings of all parties with accuracy and fairness should result in a more enlightened expression of public opinion than was formerly possible.

ARE AMERICANS IMPOLITE?

Are Americans more impolite than the people of other nations or are they so self-sufficient that they deem th commonplace 'Thank You' a sign of softness, or an evidence of servility? Some European writers, after visiting these shores, have made the charge all too frequenty of late. Its reiteration prompted a discussion in a university club a month ago which has resulted in the formation of an American Thank You League put together for the purpose of asking famous women and men to further the dissemination of the terse but pleasing "Thank You" whenever a kindness has been done or a favor extended.

The names of one thousand well known Americans were hastily listed, the catholicity of the list being shown by the answers received. They came from famous educators, great lawyers, doctors, statesmen and leaders in drama and sports.

That an awakening to the better observance of the common niceties of life is desirable was at once apparent because famous editors, authors and statesmen vied with golfers, swimmers, ball players and actors to enroll as members, command this courtesy survey and promise to spread the "Thank You" gospel.

It can't do any harm, remarks one of the members; it may do a lot of people a lot of good, so despite the chagrin many feel beause a macaroni architect from Milan, a beef and bitters baron from Britain or a he milliner from Marseilles chides us for our failure, let's laugh and say "Thank you" whenever "Tha k you" is due."

HIGHER STANDARDS IN BUSINESS.

In a recent issue of an Ontario town newspaper the statement was made that there were too many places of business locally for the amount of business to be done, says the Canadian Grocer. This is a subject which has been given much attention by retailers generally, though the chief complaint comes from the smaller merchant who is less able to keep up with the leaders in the merchandising race which is now proceeding.

The situation is one that rights itself by economic process and there is little use talking about it. The retailer is the man who suffers from a plethora of stores, while the consumer generally benefits in lower prices as result of the keen competition. The situation is one that is forcing better methods upon those retailers who will survive, and the way wil then be made still harder for those merchants who do not keep their methods strictly in line with the times. The latter will either be forced to improve methods or they will be unable to continue in business. Meanwhile it is not the consumer but the retailer who has the worrying to do.

There is little doubt but that in the past few years much more attention has been given production than to distribution. Little in the way of scientific research has been done on distribution, jobbers and retailers being left to their own resources with consequent hardship to some.

There are too many stores in some sections and too few in others. The proportion to population varies greatly in different parts of the country and were location chosen more carefully it is doubtful if there would be as much talk of too many stores. The economic process is making retail business more specialized, thus requiring higher standards. As this stage is reached there will be fewer persons able to qualify for the business and the plurality of stores will disappear.

TREATIES AND COVENANT.

It is true that the texts of the Locarno treaties "reveal no surprises." All the great hopes of a peaceful and a stable Europe are confirmed. Yet few can have been prepared for the completeness with which they interpenetrate, and are interpenetrated by, the letter and the spirit of the League Covenant—indeed, of the Geneva Protocol. Those who have decried these efforts of constructive statesmanship as futile and pernicious may well reflect upon the observation made by Elihu Root: "The greatest contributions to the history of world peace are the negotiations and the exchanges that have failed in their immediate object." True offspring of the League, the treaties bid fair to be, as Mr. Chamberlain said at the outset, the surest way to all that the Protocol intended. That was a strengthening and working out of the provisions of the Covenant.

Under Article XIII, members of the League agree to submit to arbitration only such disputes as "they recognize to be suitable for submission." The paragraph that follows further weakens the provision. Disputes as to the interpretation of a treaty or the application of international law, together with the establishment of matters of fact, are declared to be "generally suitable" for submission. Any nation at any time might refuse to "recognize" that the most vital cause was "suitable." Time and again in the League Assembly efforts have been made to strengthen this article. The Protocol cut the Gordian knot by founding its entire structure upon universal and obligatory arbitration, designating that nation as "aggressor" which refused to submit a cause to the process of arbitral justice or refused to abide by the award. The principal signatories of the Rhine pact, Germany and France, now agree to settle by peaceful means, and through the agency of League and World Court, "all questions of every kind which may arise between them" and to "comply with" the decision. England and Italy, not being primarily interested in the possible causes of war, have no occasion for this abatement of sovereignty; but, being close neighbors dangerously threatened by the strife, they pledge their forces to quell an agressor instantly, whether Germany or France. In a definite area, potential enemies are safeguarded against each other, and with the least possible sacrifice of sovereignty. If the arrangement works well it should easily be adapted, wherever needed, throughout the world. What more did the Protocol intend? Stick by stick, the biggest bundle of fagots may be broken.

The formula by which Germany's objections to Article XVI. are met similarly looks to the Protocol—objections to the boycott and to "automatic" military expeditions. Acknowledging inability to speak for the League, the other nations point out that this precise question has been thoroughly considered by the Assembly and its committee, and that they accept its solution. Germany will be bound to "co-operate loyally and effectively," but only "to an extent which is compatible with its military situation and takes its geographic situation into account." Word for word, this is the language of Article XI. of the Protocol.

While thus harking forward, the Rhine pact looks backward always to its source in the League. It can be terminated only when the Council, acting at the request of one of the signatories and by a two-thirds majority, "decides that the League of Nations insures sufficient protection."—New York Times.

EDITORIAL NOTES AND COMMENT.

Peterborough electors will have an unusual thrill voting on the question of Sunday bathing on a cold January day.

JEWELS CONFERRED AT LODGE MEETING

Three Veterans Were Honored at Peteroborough Lodge Meeting.

At the regular meeting of Peterborough Lodge, No. 111, I.O.O.F., held last evening, jewels representing 25 years' continuous membership in the Order were presented to Brothers A. Throop, W. Garrow and S. Johnston. The presentation was made by Bro. Madill, assisted by Bros. T. F. McFadden, Wm. Hill and the Noble Grand, Bro. S. P. McFadden. The veteran members made suitable replies.

The members of Peterborough Lodge also took the opportunity of presenting a gold headed cane and an address to Bro. Wm. Madill, who is leaving the city to reside in Toronto. Bro. Madill has been twenty-seven years treasurer of Peterborough Lodge, and the members of Peterborough Lodge feel the loss of such a valuable member, but wish him every success in his new home.

A banquet at the close of the meeting, with a short toast list and an address by Bro. Rev. Wm. Langford, of Trinity church, brought a pleasant evening to a close.

DECISION RESERVED ON HOME BANK CASE

Supreme Court Master Withholds Judgment in Double Liability.

TORONTO, Oct. 23. Charles Garrow, K. C., Master of the Supreme Court, has reserved judgment on the liquidators claim for payment of double liability by the shareholders of the Home Bank, so far as special defenses to the action are concerned, these having been grouped together in one hearing. These special defenses included allegations that the Home Bank was never legally a bank and that it trafficked in its own shares.

The hearing of the individual defenses to the claim is due to take place now.

No matter what decision the Master arrives at on the special defences lodged there is likelihood that the losing side will appeal and the case may ultimately reach the Privy Council as a considerable amount of money is involved.

The room had been used for the storage of supplies, the building being a crowded five storey tenement.

PLOUGHING MATCH WAS SUCCESSFUL

FIGHTING OVER FOR TIME BEING

Greek Advance Has Been Halted—Bulgars Evacuate Territory.

OUTLOOK BRIGHTER.

ATHENS, Oct. 23 (Canadian Press).—Hostilities between Greeks and Bulgarians near the Macedonian frontier apparently have ended, for the time being at least. The Bulgarians are said to have evacuated the positions they held on Greek territory and the Greek government has issued orders to its forces to stop their advance, and to make no further move against the Bulgarians.

Outlook Better.

LONDON, Oct. 23 (Canadian Press-).—The outlook in the Greco-Bulgarian imbroglio seemed more hopeful today because of the announcement by the Greek Government that the advance of its troops into Bulgarian territory had been halted.

Here are the facts!

THREE years ago Hatchway was only a name—to-day it is being worn by over half-a-million Canadian men and boys!

Three years ago Hatchway was not sold in a single store—to-day it is one of the fastest selling lines in over two thousand Canadian stores!

Such wonderful success is not accidental—it is earned and achieved because Hatchway instantly appeals to a man the moment he puts on his first suit.

Winter Hatchway comes in seven perpectly knitted weights—go to your dealer to-day and you'll find that Hatchway is much more than mere underwear.

"We can never have a high tariff in Canada.

"We cannot have a high tariff in Canada for the most obvious reasons.

"In the first place a high tariff is unsound in principle in that it tends to eliminate one of the factors of competition, namely, foreign goods.

". . . . . we must always have in this country nothing more than a moderate tariff under any conditions whatsoever."

THE MARKETS

CHICAGO WHEAT

CHICAGO, Oct. 23 (Canadian Press).—Selling on a big scale took place in the wheat market yesterday and wheat prices came tumbling down to nearly six cents a bushel below Wednesday's top level. The selling was ascribed to leading Eastern holders of the December delivery, especially a well-known New York speculator. Wheat closed weak and at but little above the day's bottom figures at 1 3-4 to 3 5-8 net loss, new style, December 141 1-8 to 141 3-8, and May 139 3-4 to 139 7-8. Corn finished unchanged; oats 1-8 to 3-8c off, and provisions at setbacks ranging from 10 to 50c setback.

Almost from the very outset the market was flooded with huge quantities of wheat through commission houses, and prices were without support, except an important Chicago trade who previously had been a seller took a hand at collecting profits.

On the downward swing of the wheat market the price difference between December delivery and May narrowed at times to as little as 3-4c a bushel, as compared with 2 1-2 cents at the close yesterday.

Beneficial rains in Australia, favorable weather in Argentina and announcement that more than 62,000,000 bushels increase of the world's available supply of wheat in September as compared with a year before were all bearish factors.

Corn prices were steadier with reports of unsettled weather in the corn belt, but not until wheat weakness had depressed the corn market to a new low price record for the season. Oats were easy in sympathy with corn.

Provisions felt the brunt of deliveries of 1,150,000 pounds of lard on October contracts.

TORONTO LIVESTOCK

TORONTO, Oct. 23.—The market at the Union Stock Yards was fairly well cleaned up of beef cattle on Wednesday evening. Receipts yesterday morning were 16 cars, 212 cattl, 14 calves, 152 hogs and 306 sheep and lambs. The bulk of Western stockers and feeders received this week have been about all sold and the prices are considered satisfactory, Rogers and Maybee are carrying over 800 head of cattle towards next week's export when they will need around 1,700 head for four boats.

The only dealings in butchers' cattle yesterday morning occurred in common to medium steers and heifers from $3.50 to $5.25 a cwt. Butchers' cows sold steady at $5 a cwt. for choice cows and $3 to $3.50 for common cows. Canners were $2.25 to $2.50 a cwt. One bologna bulls brought $3.25 a cwt. A load of rough heavy steers remains unsold, not ebing good enough for export. A few common stockers sold at $3.60 to $3.90 a cwt. The carket is fairly well cleaned up.

The few calves in were quickly disposed of, but at easier prices, and none went over 11½ cents a pound. Sales of 90-lb. lambs sold at 12 cents yesterday. Most of the sheep wrre cocmon and the top was 6 cents a pound. Two decks of lambs arrived late and are held at 12½ cens a pound.

Hogs sold on Wednesday at $11.25 a cwt. f.o.b., and the packers still working for lower prices are only bidding $11 a cwt. for week-end loadings.

A THOUGHT.

THEY'RE EASY TO CHOOSE FROM.

There is a place in the road where it divides into three branches. One is marked "Folly"—"Come this way for the poker, booze parties, jazz, etc. No work." And directly opposite this on the other side is one marked "Drudgery"—"Come this way for work, work, work, work, work,—no play." Then directly between these two is one marked "Normalcy"—"Come this way for work, action, success, clean play, healthful sport and entertainment for recreation, etc." They're easy to choose from.

OPEN LETTER NO. 28

RT. HON. W. L. MACKENZIE KING,
Prime Minister and President of the Privy Council, Ottawa.

Dear Sir:

What is your purpose when you lower the duties on manufactured goods? It is to reduce the burden of taxation, is it not, by enabling our people to buy more cheaply?

In lowering these duties, do you really achieve your purpose? Let us concede that you enable people to buy more cheaply. But do you thereby reduce their burden of taxation?

Before answering that, we must consider what are the effects of lower duties, other than the effect just conceded.

Is it not true that they operate to reduce employment in Canadian factories? And with less industrial employment, is there not always a corresponding reduction in clerical, commercial, transportation, and other kinds of employment? And with more competition for jobs, is there not a tendency towards lower wages?

What becomes of the people who are thus thrown out of work? Granted that some of them are able to find employment in other lines in Canada—usually at poorer pay—is it not true that many of them drift to the United States, whose factories have meanwhile taken on the production that Canadian factories have been forced to abandon?

As long as they live and work in Canada those people pay taxes, in one form or another, that help us meet the interest on our national debt. The moment they remove to the United States, they cease to pay anything into our treasury. But year after year that interest on our national borrowings has to be paid. So isn't it a fact that those of us who remain have to dig just a little deeper into our pockets to make up the deficiency?

Even that might not be so bad if our ability to pay taxes had meanwhile been improved. But has it?

True, we may be able to buy some manufactured goods just a shade under their former price, but the lower wage scale, forced by unemployment, has nullified that small advantage. Our farmers and our merchants must be worse off than they would have been, first because they have lost a portion of their customers, and second because the customers they have retained have less money to spend. For similar reasons our banks are doing less business, our railways are carrying fewer passengers and less freight, our professional classes have fewer clients and are finding collections more difficult, and industrial investments of all kinds are less profitable.

If there is a fallacy in this chain of argument, I will be glad to have you point it out. If there is not, why continue to seek relief from taxation burdens by methods that only aggravate the troubles they are designed to solve?

Yours respectfully,

J. J. GIBBONS,
President.

GREEKS AND BULGARIANS CLASH ON THE MACEDONIAN FRONTIER FALL OF PETRICH IS IMMINENT

Communique From Athens Says Invaders Have Received Reinforcements.

STUBBORN RESISTANCE.

General Staff Note Accuses Bulgars of Opening Fire Without Provocation.

ATHENS, Oct. 23. — (Canadian Press).—Greek and Bulgarian soldiers are engaged in battle on the Macedonian frontier. The Greek command is making an encircling movement on the heights around the town of Petrich, about twenty miles to the north-west of Demirhissar, where the first clash between Greek and Bulgarian patrols occurred on Monday.

This is the official information given out here, and it is further announced that the Bulgarians have received reinforcements at Demir-Kapu.

The movement against Petrich is to compel the Bulgarians to evacuate Greek territory and the fall of Petrich is considered imminent.

The Bulgarians are offering stubborn resistance, but the Greek losses are said to be unimportant. Seven Bulgarians have been captured.

The report of the Greek general staff on the present trouble, quoted textually in the Greek note to Bulgaria, sets forth, firstly, that the Bulgarians opened fire first by surprise without provocation or motive; secondly, that the Bulgarians deliberately, after careful preparation, concentrated forces out of proportion of such incidents utilized machine guns; and, thirdly, that the Bulgarian offensive probably was intended to facilitate Comitadji incursions into Greek territory.

The report adds that it is known that Bulgarians have been evasively recruiting soldiers in the guise of labor battalions and civic guards, a number of whom were found with the Bulgarian attacking forces, thus permitting the assumption that their object was to foment trouble in Macedonia.

Rumor of Settlement.

LONDON, Oct. 23.—(Canadian Press).—The Athens correspondent of the Daily Mail understands that Bulgaria has accepted the terms of the Greek note. The Macedonian incidents, he says, are expected to have no further consequences.

The Roosevelts intend to go to the Pamirs to carry out their original purpose of hunting the Ovis Poli, ancestor of the sheep, but are awaiting permission to proceed through Russian territory.

TORONTO, Oct. 23.—(Canadian Press).—Beyond confirming its accuracy, Premier King declined last night to make any comment on the report that he had issued instructions to have a writ issued against Lt.-Col. A. F. Hatch, unless Col. Hatch retracts statements attributed to him that Premier King had applied for and obtained United States citizenship papers.

DIVERS FOUND SIXTH VICTIM OF SUBMARINE S-51

Vessel Was Sunk By Collision on September 25 Off Block Island.

BODY UNDER STERN.

Taken to Newport For Identification—27 Yet Unaccounted For.

NEW LONDON, Conn., Oct. 23.—(Canadian Press).—The sixth body was recovered from the wreckage of the U.S. submarine S-51, sunk off Block Island by the City of Rome on September 25, yesterday, and taken to Newport for identification. The body was found by divers under the stern of the hull.

The recovery of the body leaves 27 of the crew of 36 still unaccounted for. Three were rescued by the City of Rome at the time of the collision, and five bodies were recovered during the rescue operations immediately following the sinking of the craft.

"Doug" and Mary Not in "Blue Book"

Familiarity Of Film Fans May Be the Reason

LOS ANGELES, Oct. 23. — (Associated Press).—European nobility may have jettisoned its rigid exclusiveness and the Four Hundred of New York may have become but a social myth, but it still is rather difficult to gain recognition in the social register of southern California.

Out this week, the "South-West Blue-Book," edition of 1925, reveals the names of those who may be considered the elite of Los Angeles, Hollywood, Pasadena and other communities in this section, and the roll of those not included is longer than one might think.

Among those conspicuously absent from the congregation of the select are Mr. and Mrs. Douglas Fairbanks, who several months ago entertained the Duke of Alba at their Beverly Hills estate. Perhaps the familiarity with which film fans the world over refer to this couple as "Mary and Doug" had something to do with their omission.

However, there is also no mention of the Marquise de le Falaise et de la Coudray, either under that name or the better-appellation of Gloria Swanson; and Antonio Moreno appears to have been included in the blue-book chiefly because of the social prominence of his wife, the former Mrs. J. M. Danziger.

There is, of course, no deliberate attempt to discriminate against the film folk. Both Cecil and William de Mille are included and Major Rupert Hughes. Major Hughes, of course, was a novelist before he migrated to filmdom and Cecil de Mille was a playwright before he was a motion picture producer.

Elinor Glyn is missing.

OBITUARY.

THOMAS GRAHAM.

TWEED, Oct. 23.—The funeral of the late Thos. Graham was largely attended on Tuesday from the residence of his son, K. T. Graham to Victoria cemetery.

About a week ago Mr. Graham fell, breaking his hip. Despite his age of eighty-eight years, he had hopes of getting better.

SCHOONER SUNK.

WALLFLEET, Mass., Oct. 23.—(Canadian Press).—The Gloucester fishing schooner Niverna was rammed and sunk by an unidentified collier eight miles of Wellfleet early yesterday morning. The crew escaped and rowed ashore in two dories.

To the Electors of Hastings-Peterborough:

As the Progressive candidate in the coming election I desire to thank all the electors of the old riding of East Peterborough for the generous support and co-operation they have given me as their representative during the past four years in Ottawa. This has been appreciated and has greatly enlarged the scope of the service I was able to perform for my constituents.

The constituency of Hastings-Peterborough as at present constituted was not the result of an attempt to meet the wishes of the people of the county of Peterborough and of the people of Hastings, nor to act in accord with the principles governing such redistributions as laid down by the greatest Canadians of the past.

G. A. BRETHEN

It was a straight gerrymander, a political barter between the two old parties in the House, to advance the chances for re-election of certain of their members in spite of the unanimous protests of the electors of the ridings affected. Knowing the wishes of my people such base political tactics I fought persistently for a period of two years until the present arrangement was forced through the House by the solid united vote of the Liberals and Conservatives, with the lone exception of the late member for East Hastings, who joined the Progressives in opposing the arrangement. With the electors of Peterborough and Hastings I regret that such tactics should be employed to defeat the will of the people, but have the personal satisfaction of hearing my strongest political opponents acknowledge that the member for East Peterborough remained loyal to the wishes of his constituency.

The electors of Hastings-Peterborough in this election are faced with two policies. The one advanced by the leader of the Conservative party and accepted by his candidates generally that the building up of big towns and cities will make for greatest prosperity in Canada. Opposed to this is the policy of the Progressives and accepted by every true Liberal that to make Canada truly and permanently prosperous if we remove every handicap towards the development of our basic industries, farming, lumbering, mining and fishing, their resulting prosperity will be reflected in the normal steady growth of our villages and towns and cities and every legitimate industry installed therein.

The first policy, that of the Conservative party of the day, is sectional and its benefits limited to a privileged few at the expense of the many. It means still higher taxation. When presented to the representatives of the people from all over Canada in the House of Commons on June 2nd last, this policy was rejected by a vote of 147 to 37 (4 to 1) and we see little prospect of its escaping a similar fate at the hands of the people on the 29th day of October next.

The policy of the Progressives and one which I can heartily endorse is a national policy. It is based on compromise. It asks neither free trade for the West nor high protection for the East. It does insist that under Canada's present financial conditions our tariff policy be based solely on the needs for revenue. As opposed to the policy of Mr. Meighen and his associates, it is the only policy that can bind Canada together into a happy, united and prosperous people.

To my mind the chief issue facing the people of Canada today is not the tariff, or the matter of Senate reform or any of the other more or less academic questions.

The real issue in this election is Reduction of Taxation. I will support any leader, I will support any party that has the moral backbone to give Canada a lead in this direction.

While practically every country engaged in the World War has made some practical reductions in her war debt, Canada has done nothing. Our national debt is increasing instead of lessening. In spite of the attempts of the leader of the Conservaive party to fix the responsibiliy for this condition upon the Government of the day, I can see little hope of salvation in the leadership of Mr. Meighen. His failure to accomplish any material reduction in taxation during the years of prosperity following the war, and his failure to oppose the passing of the $10,000,000 grant to Quebec harbor clearly established that. Mr. Meighen was more concerned about the welfare of the Conservative party in Quebec than the proper expenditure of the people's money.

The only hope of lessening the burden of taxation upon the great masses of the people lies not in the imposition of higher protective tariffs (which means still higher taxation), but in the drastic reduction of public expenditures.

Speaking in the House of Commons on April 27th last, I suggested many practical ways, such as co-ordination of departments, reduction of civil service, application of bureau of the budget system, reduction of membership of the House, reduction of indemnity, etc., whereby material reductions in public expenditure could be accomplished.

It is only when men are elected to the House of Commons who are more concerned about those things that vitally effect the interests of the people of Canada than they are of the winning of the next election for their particular party, will there be any drastic change in the pace and direction in which Canada is financially drifting.

The Temperance question IS an issue in this and every election. Only when members of Parliament are elected, pledged to support the most advanced Temperance legislation unbiased by their party affiliations will the importation, sale and manufacture of intoxicating liquors as a beverage in Canada be prevented. I am a prohibitionist. (I never could see any good that strong drink accomplished, and I have seen much harm.) If elected my temperance principles will never be subservient to my party allegiance. Events have proved that the Progressive party is the only party that can be depended upon to promote and support the most advanced Temperance legislation and stand four-square on every moral issue.

I welcome the opportunity of meeting each one of you personally at our public meetings and discussing with you the work of the past four years at Ottawa and the important issues in the present election.

If the principles I advocate and the personal qualifications I have exhibited in the past Parliament appeal to you, I ask your support and influence for re-election.

Sincerely yours,

G. A. BRETHEN.

OTTAWA, Oct. 23.—(Canadian Press).—One of the best known figures in parliamentary circles was removed with the death here, early yesterday morning, of William Barton Northrup, K.C., M.A., former clerk of the House of Commons, and prior to that a member of parliament for the constituency of East Hastings. STRAIGHT PARTY FIGHT TO TAKE PLACE IN NORTHUMBERLAND FOR PLACE IN DOMINION PARLIAMENT

E. M. Maybee, Member of Last House, Runs Against F. J. Slade.

PUBLIC MEETING.

Both Sides Presented Policies at Gathering After Nomination.

(By a Staff Reporter).

WARKWORTH, Oct. 23. — The last element of uncertainty has been removed from the election campaign in Northumberland. No group or party any longer has a chance to throw a monkey wrench into the political machinery by catapulting a third candidate into the contest at the eleventh hour. It is to be a straight party race between Milton Edgar Maybee, ex-M.P., who will carry the Conservative standard, and Frederick John Slade, who will wear the Liberal colors. These candidates have figured in two previous contests. Mr. Slade defeated Mr. Maybee in a race for the Wardenship of the United Counties of North umberland and Durham, and the latter was the winner in the Federal election of 1921, when there were three entries in the field. The third heat on Thursday of next week will decide the issue for the present at least.

Nominations Accepted.

Returning Office J. Nelson Stone and Election Clerk A. J. Meyers, both of Campbellford, sat patiently on the stage of the Town Hall from 12 noon until 2 p.m. yesterday, in order to give any one so disposed a chance to file another nomination. But no such action was taken, and the nominees of the political associations were accepted. Both candidates sent in their nomination papers sufficiently signed, and both made the required deposit of $200. In other words, each in effect wagered that amount that he would poll at least half as many votes as his opponent. The Government holds the stakes, with two chances to win and none to lose. The fight is on in earnest, and the campaign which has been conducted so far singularly free from personalities or bitterness of any kind, will be taken up with renewed vigor until election day.

Dr. George Ferris of Cobourg is Mr. Slade's financial agent, while George Drewry, a Brighton barrister, discharges the same duty for Mr. Maybee.

The Public Meeting.

With all legal formalities disposed of, the public meeting was organized, Returning Officer Stone being voted into the chair. As the representative of the party in power, Mr. Slade was allowed the first and last word in the speech-making. The arrangements made by the candidates was that each side was to have one hour, the candidates to occupy as much of that time as they liked, their assistants to take up what was left, and the Liberals to have 12 minutes in which to reply. The hall was well filled, a number of the audience being compelled to stand, and nearly half of those present were ladies. It was an orderly gathering, and each speaker was given an attentive hearing. To judge from the applause, the supporters of each candidate appeared nearly equal in number, although 75 men, if they give their mind to it, can make more noise than 100 who do not care to strain their lung capacity.

On the platform with the chairman were: A. Cochrane of Cobourg, Geo. Wilkie, K.C., of Toronto, who spoke for Mr. Slade: Dr. I. Norman of Picton, Mr. Maybee's henchman; the candidates; Sam. Nesbitt and Harry B. Phillips of Brighton; Ambrose Atkinson of Roseneath; Col. F. D. Boggs of Cobourg, and Sam. Clarke, M.L.A.

The Speaking Begins.

It was the first time since the opening of the campaign that either candidate had a chance to address a gathering in which every corner of the riding was represented, and both gentlemen expressed themselves at considerable length, stating their positions and platforms clearly.

Mr. Slade, who opened the programme, said that, if elected, he would support Premier King and his Government. This does not mean that he will be tied down to vote for any and every measure, but the general principles of the party will have his allegiance.

No word of scandal has been even whispered against any member of the King Government, and the charge brought against James Murdock, Minister of Labor, that he had used information secured as a member of the Cabinet, to save himself from loss in the Home Bank failure, had been disposed of in the bye-election in Hastings County.

Hon. George N. Gordon, who was born in the village of Brighton, and Vincent Massey, a native of an adjoining county, will be in the next Cabinet if the Government is sustained. The electors of Northumberland will in that case have good neighbors, Cabinet ministers, close to them, and this fact alone should induce them to support the present administration.

Mr. Slade believes that the farmers of Canada require wider markets rather than protection, as the bulk of their produce is sold outside the country. Higher duty on bacon, cheese, butter or wheat would not help them. If the population of the country gorws, production will increase in the same proportion, so that foreign markets will still be required. The grading of cheese, butter and bacon has improved the quality and hen the demand for these products in the overseas markets and the removal of the embargo on Canadian cattle has assured another outlet for what the Canadian farmer has to sell.

Then the embargo on cattle was removed, the steamship companies raised their rates. Premier King tried to secure a reduction of these charges and, failed, but the matter will be taken up again.

Dealing with the garden truck that comes into the country from the United States, Mr. Slade thought that wider markets were more important than those affected by these importations. They are brought in only when on account of the climate, Canadian producers have nothing of the kind to offer. Strawberries from across the border are off the home market before the Canadian crop is ripe.

Mr. eMighen says he will greatly increase the tariff for farmers. This will give him an excuse to raise it for "the manufacturer and then the consumer will have to pay more for what he buys.

Mr. Slade does not believe that the country is in as desperate straits as the Opposition speakers claim. Industrial and bank stocks are going up in value and the balance of trade is in our favor. This balance amounted to $284,000,000 during the last fiscal year. In the last fiscal year of Mr. Meighen's administration the trade balance was adverse.

Mr. Slade maintained that the one thing required to foster national unity in Canada was a low tariff. The est wants lower and the big cities higher protection. There must be a compromise, a middle course must be taken if the people in the Prairie Provinces are to be preserved from discontent.

Mr. Maybee's Address.

Mr. Maybee said at the outset of his address, that the administration of a country's affairs sould be conducted on a business basis. There should be economy in the management of public questions, the government should be so operated that it would show progress and bring prosperity. Subjected to these tests he held that the present Government had failed.

Conditions in the country are not what they should be or might be for national prosperity depends upon the fiscal policy of the country.

There must be adopted a fiscal policy that is fair to all classes. A prosperous urban centre means a prosperous rural community around. Land values increase and the main factor to bring about such a condition is protection, for protection makes our industries prosper, are a home market for the farmers and gives our people work.

If a farmer in a community was particularly prosperous his less fortunate neighbors should study his methods to learn how he has achieved his success. The speaker believed that Canadians should take a leaf from the books of the United States. The Americans are a prosperous nation because they have a high tariff as have 67 other nations that have raised their rates since the war while Canada alone has lowered hers. Canada should have raised the tariff when the United States did.

Mr. Maybee read figures to show the value of apples, plums, strawberries and other produce imported from the United States during the first eight months of the past fiscal year. The cream of the home market, he said, is taken by the Americans. We should save this market for our own producers and if we have a surplus we can export it.

The Australian treaty, Mr. Maybee said, may have secured a new market for Canadian paper but it has sacrificed the farmers of this country, as the duty on nearly everything they have to sell has either been lowered or removd altogether. The freight on produce shipped from ustralia to Vancouver is less than the freight from the latter place to Calgary.

Their country, Mr. Maybee said, is spending millions to bring in immigrants and the best of these are going to the United States, while the less desirable are rejected and thrown back on our hands. Our own boys and girls are leaving us because they cannot get work here.

There may have been a combine among the ocean shippers, and this the Government tried to break up by subsidizing a rival company. If there was a combine, 55 of our own ships were in it, and these the Government proposed to put of business by using the public money to encourage foreign shippers.

Mr. Maybee said that one-third of our annual cut of pulpwood is exported to the United States in its raw state. It sells for $9,000,000, and the paper into which it is converted brings 11 times that amount. The same is true of our asbestos deposits. The speaker believed that all this raw material should be manufactured at home.

It cost the people of Canada $150,000,000 a year for their coal, brought in from the United States, and we are given to understand that we must soon look elsewhere for our fuel. The time has come when Canada should develop her own coal beds and keep at home the millions that now go across the border.

"I have always, during the four years I have been at Ottawa, tried to represent you fairly," said Mr. Maybee in conclusion. I have listened to every constituent, no matter what his politics, trying to treat all alike. In my travels over the country I find that the people are overlooking party lines and are considering only the fiscal policies that are offered. On the 29th I believe they will vote for their own interests and those of the Dominion. Once more I ask for your support.

"I appeal to the ladies. I am glad to see so many present, and it is their duty to vote so as to help bring back the half million boys and girls who have left this country for the United States."

A Speaker from Toronto.

Mr. Wilkie, who spoke on behalf of Mr. Slade, said it was not fair to make a comparison between conditions in the United States and Canada. Canada had been four years in the war the United States, a few months. While Canada was pouring out blood, the Americans were gathering in the gold. There is plenty of gold in the United States, but it is in the hands of a few, and there are millions to whom it does no good.

Under a high tariff hundreds of American farmers have gone into bankruptcy, and banks that held their notes have failed.

Mr. Wilkie defied the Opposition backers to compare Canada's condition with any other country that had been so long in the war. No other such nation is as prosperous today.

"If Meighen is returned, which God forbid," said the speaker, as the audience applauded. He then branched off into a reference to the lofty gallows built by Haman for the execution of Mordecia but upon which he was himself hanged.

Mr. Maybee's Champion.

Dr. Norman, who represented Mr. Maybee, said he would not attempt many a year since he had heard such a speech. The doctor made the statement that the Massey Company employ 4,000 men in their factory in Batavia, N.Y., and only 800 in Toronto. This assertion was heard yesterday for the first time in the campaign and came on the heels of the denial made by Mr. Massey at Bailieboro Wednesday night, when he stated that the number of employees in the Batavia factory was 670, while 2,590 are given work in Canada.

Dr. Norman spoke with a wealth of gesticulation, dealing with one subject after another in a breezy style which captured his friends in the audience. When he paused to inquire of the chairman if his time was up, Sam Clarke, from his place on the platform interjected:

"Let him go on never mind the time none of us have ever heard a speech like this before."

Mr. Wilkie took twelve minutes in which to reply to the previous speaker, after which the meeting broke up with cheers for the King and the candidates.

CHAS. D. MATHIAS

Impotent and marooned on the island, Mr. Burnham had no means of giving assistance, but catching up his shot gun he fired several charges into the air. After he had expended a box of shells he saw that a canoe was proceeding east from the head of the lake. At nearly the same time another canoe came to the island and got him. Herron, a duck hunter, was paddling the canoe from the lake head, while a man named Tindle was in the other craft.

Mr. Mathias had ceased struggling but was clinging to the canoe. He was still alive when pulled into the canoe of his rescuer but subsided almost immediately. He was rushed to Herron's cottage where he was rolled in hot blankets and resoratives and other means of resuscitation were applied without avail.

Doctor Loudon had been summoned, but could do nothing to restore life.

Coroner T. W. H. Young declared death to be the result of an accident and due to exposure and shock.

LOCARNO PACT EXHIBITION OF WILL FOR PEACE

UNIQUE TREATY.

Churchill Makes Less Pleasing Announcement of Possible Tax Increase.

COLCHESTER, Eng., Oct. 23. — (Canadian Press).—"The miracle of Locarno is that a will for peace has been created in Europe for the first time since the world war," declared Premier Baldwin in a speech here yesterday.

"We have therefore been able," he continued "to build a solid foundation which will bear any superstructure erected upon it, and if the promise of Locarno is fulfilled, as I have every hope it will be, the peace that we have built up in Western Europe is a prelude to peace through out the whole of Europe."

"For the first time in Europe we have before us a treaty, which of its nature is inclusive not exclusive. In other words, all such arrangements in the past have been arrangements which were designed in essence against a third party.

"At Locarno there was nothing of the kind. These new agreements, wholly pacific from beginning to end, are mutual guarantees between all the contracting parties, with no direction against any third or any other party."

Winston Churchill, Chancellor of the Exchequer, who followed Premier Baldwin at the oyster feast in Colchester Guild Hall, threatened to increase the income tax next year, without actually naming it, unless the Cabinet's new economy committee succeeded in effecting considerable savings. The Chancellor otherwise was optimistic. Although he had not been able to decide whether the nation was actually beginning to live on its capital, the British people, though not getting rich as rapidly as they were before the war, were still getting richer, and certainly not poorer as a nation. There were evidences of greater consuming power in all parts of the country, and he concluded: "We may look to the future, if not with buovant hope, at any rate with solid confidence."

Half the world is half asleep

¶ It is terrible to feel all dragged out—to live from one day to the next in a constant state of weariness. Yet thousands do, because constipation is destroying their energy—even their interest in life. Only Kellogg's ALL-BRAN brings sure and safe relief from this disease.

"Poor Betty! She always looks tired"

BETTY was the office mystery. Once pretty, her beauty now lay masked behind an unwholesome complexion. Once vivacious, she now seemed eternally tired—a drooping figure of disappointment and dismay. Too bad she didn't realize that it was constipation which was stealing her strength.

But many men and women rid themselves forever of this devastating disease, by the simple, pleasant means of eating two tablespoonfuls of Kellogg's ALL-BRAN every day—or in chronic cases, with every meal.

As Kellogg's ALL-BRAN journeys through the system, its fiber remains unchanged. It is what doctors call a bulk food—a bulk food which sweeps the intestine clean—a bulk food which absorbs and carries moisture through the intestinal tract, stimulating natural, healthy action. Something habit-forming pills and drugs can never do.

Serve Kellogg's ALL-BRAN with milk or cream, sprinkled over cereals; cooked with hot cereals; in soups, or made into the many recipes given on the package. Delicious with fruit, baked apple, etc.

Caution: Only ALL-BRAN brings sure results. A part-bran product can only be partially effective. Kellogg's is the one, only and original ALL-BRAN. All grocers sell it. Buy a package today. 580 NOMINEES FOR 245 SEATS

Conservatives Lead With 239 Candidates—Liberals Have 216.

MANY INDEPENDENTS.

OTTAWA, Oct. 23 (Canadian Press)—Nomination day revealed a total of 580 candidates standing for election in 241 constituencies throughout Canada. The Liberal party has 216 official nominees in the field, the Conservative party has 239 and the Progressive party 69. Labor, including Farmer-Labor candidates, number 50, and Independent candidates total 37. The unusually large number of Independent candidates is accounted for by 15 nominees in the Province of Quebec who are without the official endorsation of a party but are running under a variety of titles, such as "Indeepndent Protectionist" or "Independent Liberal." In Ontario, 11 candidates are entered in the contest without the official backing of a party organization.

CONTROVERSY IN BAPTIST CHURCH

Annual Argument Has Been Raised About Modernism By Dr. Shields.

DR. FARMER'S VIEW.

Mr. Joseph Wearing returned last night from Hamilton where he has been attending the Baptist convention. As Secretary of the Western Board, he presented the report of Baptist progress in Western Canada. Mr. Wearing stated to the Examiner that when he left Hamilton the convention was in the middle of the annual controversy which Dr. T. T. Shields of Jarvis St. Church, Toronto, stirs up with respect to McMaster University. Last year he raised objection to the granting of an honorary degree to President Faunce of Brown University, U. S. A. This year he has denounced as a modernist the new appointee to the chair of practical Christianity, Professor Marshall, formerly pastor of Coventry Baptist Church, England. In defending the appointment yesterday Dr. Farmer, dean of theology in McMaster University, stated that he was sick at heart to see men who were real Christian leaders and most conservative in their theological beliefs being continually stabbed in the back by men like Dr. Shields.

A well-attended meeting of the Independent Order of Oddfellows was held in their hall last evening, for the purpose of taking preliminary steps in the formation of a canton in this city. Brigadier General A. P. Neilson, Department Commander for Ontario, was present; also W. S. Stokes of Toronto.

A canton of the Patriarchs Militant, No. 10, was organized in this city and functioned for some time, lapsing about thirty-five years ago. A beautiful banner presented by the ladies of Peterboro to this canton hangs now in the big hall of the Oddfellows' Temple.

That this committee recommend that this Council does not feel that it should take the responsibility of authorizing the issue of debentures for $386,000.00 for the construction of a building to be used as a Vocational and High School, as requested by the Board of Education, and that the Board be so informed.

2. That the Colonial Weaving Co., Ltd., be informed in reply to their request for permission to use the name of the Corporation as plaintiff in an action against the Campbell Four Mills Co., Ltd., for power they say was used and not paid for that this Council endeavoured to have the matter investigated and was precluded by the courts from so doing, and that this Council cannot see its way to permit the name of the Corporation to be used as plaintiff in an action against the Campbell Flour Mills Co., Ltd., as requested.

Buy and eat Ontario Apples

Abundant Crop - Better Apples

This year the apple crop of Ontario is bountiful. The quality is higher than it has been for years.

Better cultivation of the orchards and more extensive spraying, encouraged and assisted by the Government of the Province, have been partly responsible.

To assist the apple growers of the Province to secure the deserved rewards of their efforts to produce more and better fruit, the Government of Ontario is interesting itself in creating wider markets for the crop. The best market is the home market. Herein lies the maximum of satisfaction to both producer and consumer. By using Ontario Apples you will contribute to the prosperity of your own Province and help to build up an important branch of her fruit production. Demand Ontario Apples. Your dealer has or can get them.

Because of their superior flavour and keeping qualities, all the best Ontario Apples usually are bought for export at highest prices. On this account, perhaps you have become accustomed to apples brought in from other territories.

This year the orchards of your own Province will supply you with apples of the finest flavour. They are the best and most economical fruit you can use.

Delicious Fall Apples

McIntosh Red—there is no better eating apple. It attains its greatest perfection in the orchards of Ontario.

Snow Apples—sisters of the McIntosh Red—deliciously crisp and full of juice of rare flavour. Fine for eating and baking.

Ribston, Blenheim, Tolman Sweet, Gravenstein, King—their particular flavour comes out best when cooked or baked. Fine for eating, too.

(By a Staff Reporter)

MADOC, Oct. 23—Nominations yesterday for the federal election in the new riding of Peterboro-Hastings produced no unforeseen incidents. It followed the customary course of posting the names of the candidates, and immediately afterward the ballots were ordered by the returning officer, Mr. John S. Marshall of Stirling. They will bear the names of George Arthur Brethen, farmer of Asphodel township, the Progressive candidate from the neighborhood of Norwood, and Alexander Thomas Embury, physician of Bancroft.

Among the names on Mr. Brethen's nomination papers were the following: from Norwood: John E. Roxburgh, J. C. Riseborough, H. A. Adams, W. A. Richardson, Jos. E. Reynolds, C. A. Copen, D. A. Oakley, Mrs. M. Faux, J. E. Thompson, John Marks, and John Scott, Asphodel township, P. McConnell, Asphode, W. J. Sharp, F. R. Hoard, W. B. Potts and F. E. Williams of Rawdon township.

Dr. Embury was nominated by the following electors: G. C. Bongard, W. E. Packenham, J. E. Thompson, C. E. Packenham, H. F. Kempt, P. A. Robertson, J. J. Wade, Robert Tedford, B. W. Squire, E. H. Scott, R. J. Leeper, L. Leeper, F. A. Webb, F. Kempt, C. Pearce, J. Weir, P. M. Grover, E. P. Cuffe, J. F. Pearce, Thomas Watson and Frances E. Watson all of Norwood, W. W. Scott and M. M. Stevenson of Asphodel, R. E. Birdsall of Asphodel.

Manifestly Mr. Brethen's supporters from the vicinity of Norwood were matched by Conservatives from the same section entered on Dr. Embury's list. The proceedings at the town hall during the hour for receiving nominations were a mere formality. Mr. Marshall announced that an advanced poll, the only one in the riding, would be held at Havelock on Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday of next week between the hours of 7 p.m. and 9 p.m.

Conservative Leaders

The traditional nomination speeches were delivered at the Masonic Hall which provided accomodation for two or three times as many persons as the town hall. It was literally packed to the doors with a crowd of perhaps eight or nine hundred men and women from all parts of the riding, from Norwood, and Bancroft and Stirling, from the townships of Dummer and Asphdel and Rawdon and Huntingdon, and in that gathering the palpably predominant sentiment was Conservative. It was revealed in the applause that greated Dr. Embury when he appeared in company of some of the Conservative Titans of this part of the province, including Major Belford of West Northumberland, Lieutenant-Colonel Gray of Leeds and last but obviously not the least, that important personage, the Honourable R. J. Cooke, M.P.P., for North Hastings.

Mr. Brethen had no supporting speakers on the platform with him, and his subsequent remark that "every tub should stand on its own bottom" and that Dr. Embury could not take with him to Ottawa the Honourable J. R. Cooke and Major Belfbrd, was applauded by his Progressive friends in the audience.

"They may help him out here today," said Mr. Brethen, "but he will feel the handicap later on. I felt that if I didn't take on the job alone, I would find it harder to do my duty when I went to Ottawa. I think the Doctor is making a mistake in depending on the stalwarts of his party."

Followed Custom

Dr. Embury repied that in arranging for the post-nomination speeches he had simply followed a custom which had been long established in the county of Hastings and in most ridings in the country. On learning that Mr. Brethen was to be the only Progressive speaker, Dr. Embury said it was suggested that only the two candidates should address the gathering, but it was felt that the people would be disappointed if they did not hear Major Belford and the Honorable J. R. Cooke. Accordingly Mr. Brethen was given the opportunity of replying to each of the speakers if he wished, and the arrangements had been mutually agreed upon.

Fiscal Stability

In the speeches of Major Belford, Mr. Brethen and Dr. Embury there were no outstanding statements. Mr. Brethen's arguments against the Conservative policy of protection have been reported several times during the campaign. Major Belford advocated the Meighen tariff principle as the remedy for Canada's economic and industrial ills. The keynote of his speech was the necessity of stability in the fiscal policy of the Dominion. Incidentally he declared that there was absolutely no need for a thirty party in this country. "No more than there is any need for five wheels on a coach," he said. The Liberal and Conservative parties, following the British tradition of a two-party system, had produced such great statesmen as MacDonad and Laurier, Cartier, Blake and many others who had helped make Canada great, and it ill became a handful of theorists to throw stones at these men of whom all Canadians, irrespective of party, should be proud.

Temperance Question

Referring to the injection of the temperance question as an issue, Dr. Embury, in his address, said that both Mr. Meighen and Mr. King had stated that temperance was not an issue.

"Certain persons, however, are trying to make it an issue," remarked the Conservative candidate. "As far as I am concerned I repeat what I have said elsewhere that I will support every sane legislation that will promote the cause of temperance in the Dominion of Canada.

"I don't know what Mr. Brethen's policy is," said Dr. Embury in regard to the general issues of the election. "I have listened to him and tried to make it out but I failed to discover what it is. My policy is that enunciated by Mr. Meighen which was defeated in the House of Commons, calling for a revision of the tariff on a protective basis that would afford Canadian industry and agriculture the assistance they needed."

Dr. Embury said he had no fault to find with the spirit in which the campaign had been fought. He could not wish for a fairer opponent than Mr. Brethen.

Not Chosen by Machine

"There is just one matter I wish to refer to and that is a statement by Mr. Brethen at Bancroft that I was chosen by the Conservative machine of Hastings and not by the people. Our convention last June was as fair and democratic a convention as possible. The delegates were respresentative of all the people, for at the primary conventions every elector was given free access to them and to voting for whatever delegate they wished."

And then with a final statement on the temperance question Dr. Embury declared that every bit of temperance legislation in Ontario had been passed by the Conservative party.

"In view of Mr. Brethen's statements on temperance I'd like to be shown in Hansard where Mr. Brethen had ever raised his voice in the cause of temperance."

Need of Protection.

'Only by a protective policy are we going to get out of the morass of debt in which we are floundering," said Major Belford. Of its advantages he mentioned an observation which he said had impressed him in North Bruce, where he recently visited.

'That is one of the finest hay districts in this country and they have had uniformly heavy crops during recent years. But I noticed a great number of haystacks in the fields, not only of this year's crop, but also of the 1924, and some even from 1923, that had not been sold. And it was not sold because the Canadian import duty on hay is $2 a ton and the United States duty is $4 a ton. Bruce farmers are not selling their hay because under the low Canadian tariff hay from the farms of Michigan is coming in and taking away the home market that used to be so profitable. If there was a sufficiently high tariff that profit would be restored.

Major Belford recalled that last year, with an immense crop of potatoes in this country, farmers were unable to give their potatoes away because the people in the cities were eating imported American potatoes.

"We propose to make the duty high enough to block the inroads of that market to the south of us, and that applies to the fruit and vegetables produced by our farmers," said Major Belford. "Over in my town of Campbellford, the woollen mills find it impossible to keep their men steadily employed under the present fiscal conditions. They are working half time or less, while the same firm is working overtime in their plant in the United States.

Defends Record.

Mr. Brethen, in his address, said he stood on his record at Ottawa, and he called attention to the fact that there had not been one word of criticism with his service to the electors. If he was returned to Ottawa he would support every good legislation the Government brought in and oppose every piece of legislation which he considered inimical to the country's interests.

The sentiment of a considerable section of the audience was illustrated by a little episode. Mr. Brethen was denouncing the evils of partyism, and remarking that both the old parties had sometimes been wrong, he asked: "You don't expect your representative to go to Ottawa and vote for your party right or wrong?"

Mr. Brethen dealt at considerable length with the tariff. He stated that Major Belford had carefully avoided mentioning the effect of the tariff on wheat, bacon, butter, eggs, and other major products of Canada, but had spoken only of hay and potatoes. The prices of the farmers' goods were set in the world's markets and could not be influenced by any tariff wall that might be raised, because Canada was a great exporting country and the prices of her produce were governed by what Liverpool and the other great trading centres paid.

Walter Whytock, reeve of Madoc, presided at the meeting in the Masonic Hall.

FOOT AND MOUTH IS WORRYING ENGLAND

Disease Has Broken Out in Several Places Recently.

LONDON, Oct. 23.—(Canadian Press).—Cattle raisers are worried over the recurrence of foot and mouth disease at several places in England. Scarcely had the Minister of Agriculture's withdrawal of the last restriction dealing with the disease been announced when an isolated outbreak was reported.

Since then there have been several others. The restrictions have been re-imposed in some places, notably Manchester, where hundreds of cattle and sheep are brought in from Wales and Westmoreland and slaughtered. Yesterday there were no arrivals from foreign ports. Under the rectrictions any sheep or cattle coming in must be immediately slaughtered.

"Why I Should Vote Conservative"

Imported bargains destroy your job!

and cheat you out of the wages to buy them with

Better have good wages and no imported Bargains..... than imported Bargains and no wages

A Cockney immigrant was recently scolding a United States shopkeeper for asking fifty cents for a certain article. "Why, where I come from," he protested, "I could buy that for a shillin'." "Then why didn't you stay in the place you came from?" retorted the shopkeeper. "Because I didn't have the shillin'!" blandly admitted the Cockney.

He couldn't get work in what was then free trade England, so he went to high tariff United States to get a job.

Keep on reducing Canada's tariff, throw open our markets more and more to the dumping of mass production from the United States and the off-scourings of European sweat shops where child labor is exploited, and you will bring wonderful bargains in manufactured goods to Canada.

But with everyone out of a job, who could buy them?

HECKLER ARGUES WITH PREMIER AT BRANTFORD

Personnel of Conservative Party Was Subject of Debate.

MEIGHEN CHALLENGED.

King Asks Him to Publish List of 2,000 Closed Factories.

BRANTFORD, Oct. 23.—(Canadian Press).—Premier King was for a time Wednesday night in a barrage of heckling. He had been speaking about an hour without interruption when he observed that there must be some Conservatives present. "You betcher" shouted some one in the crowd, and there was cheering and jeering. "Are you particularly proud as Conservatives of having Mr. Guthrie?" Mr. King shot back. "Yes" replied the heckler and there was more Conservative clapping. "Who was Mr. Guthrie" began Mr. King. "He was a Liberal" came from the back of the hall. "A renegade Liberal" warmly rejoined Mr. King. "I should have thought you could get a true blooded Conservative." "Did you ever hear of a Conservative going to the Liberal party?" retorted heckler. Mr. King mentioned Dr. Manion, General Mewburn and Dr. Tolmie as former liberals. "Is it not a reflection on the Conservative party" added Mr. King, "that they cannot find Conservatives to put into their administration?" "Who is going to represent the Conservative party from Quebec?" queried the Prime Minister "Patenaude" said some one. "Mr. Patenaude says he has no more to do with Mr. Meighen than he has to do with me," Mr. King hit back, "and thank heaven he has nothing to do with me. What do you think of the leader of a great political party who has to take into his Government a man who, through the whole campaign, has been ashamed to own him?"

Premier King challenged Mr. Meighen to produce a list of 2,000 factories closed, under Liberal regime and publish it on every bill board in the country."

"If you can do that, Mr. Meighen" declared Mr. King, "we will let you take office, I cannot make a bigger offer than that," he added, "but Mr. Meighen cannot do it. He never had a list."

CIVILIZED FOODS DEATH TO SAVAGES.

Tuberculosis, cancer, 'flu, pneumonia and most of our diseases are unknown among savages. The reason is that they live upon natural foods. When they contact civilization and begin to live upon civilized man's white flour and refined "ghost cereals" they die off quickly with civilized man's diseases, but not if they stick to their own natural foods. Thus it is shown that it is civilized man's foods that cause his omnipresent diseases.

And besides food science has proved that the most fatal of civilized man's food practices is the refining out of his chief foodstuffs, the grains, their body-building mineral salts, fats and vitamins.

Dr. Robt. G. Jackson of Toronto, editor of the Dietetic Age of New York, circulating among physicians, has taught this for years. To counteract the effect of these refined foods, Dr. Jackson devised Roman Meal, a natural whole grain food, made from whole wheat, whole rye, flaxin and bran, rich in all those elements refined out of white flour and "ghost cereals". Roman Meal eaten several times each week, in any of the delightful ways in which it may be cooked, will compensate the deficiencies of white flour, etc., and promote good health. It prevents indigestion and positively relieves constipation. Beef has 952 food units to the pound, Roman Meal has 1,600. Especially valuable for nursing and expectant mothers and children from the 10th. month. At grocers.

ATTEMPTED MURDER AT NIAGARA FALLS

Farmer Was Shot Twice By Dope Fiend, But Will Recover.

NIAGARA FALLS, Ont., Oct. 22. — (Canadian Press). — Robert Ellerington, Winery road, Stamford, was shot twice with a double-barrelled gun this forenoon, but will recover. His assailant, William Lawton, employed on the farm, formerly of Uxbridge Ont., is under arrest. According to the police, Lawton, who is only nineteen years of age, is a drug addict and was desperate for a supply of his favorite dope. Seeing Ellerington pass the house Lawton is alleged to have seized a shot-gun and fire two shots through the window pane from inside the house. He then tied himself with ropes and had a gag in his mouth when the police found him. Ellerington was able to make his way to a neighboring house and called the police. Lawton at first told a lurid story of having been attacked and bound by two men, but later broke down. He will be arraigned on a charge of attempted murder.

DOES THIS LOOK LIKE 'BLUE RUIN'?

Let the "Calamity Howlers" Take Comfort From Some Actual Facts.

¶Followers of Mr. Arthur Meighen have been making political capital of Canada's difficulties. They are painting a picture of ruin and calamity, They cannot see any hope unless they are returned to power. They tell you that Canada's trade is being destroyed. That foreign goods are swamping Canada's home market. That her factories are idle. That the United States is getting the cream of our population. That the National Railways are going further and further into the hole and dragging Canada down. That the King Government has indulged in a riot of extravagance. That the farmers are bankrupt, and the cost of living has increased.

¶Now here are the absolute facts from the official records of the Government Blue Books, as compiled by the Bureau of Statistics. They show that Canada is all right; that she is riding high and triumphant out of her difficulties into good times. The Liberal policies need no other vindication. In the King Government, West Peterborough's own member, Hon. G. N. Gordon, is a member of the Cabinet. That Government needs no other defence than the official reports of the Bureau of Statistics

¶Could anything be more ridiculous, if it were not so despicable, than this campaign of slander to blacken the glorious record Canada is making in her recovery from the effects of war?

¶Pile up his majority. He asks the support of every loyal Canadian.

CITY SPEAKERS TALK TO VOTERS AT BRIDGENORTH

E. M. Elliott Combines Politics With Interesting Reminiscenses of Smith Township.

AMERICAN WHEAT.

G. N. Gordon Defends the Record of the King Government.

The Hon. G. N. Gordon found a warm welcome awaiting him last night when he arrived at Bridgenorth. The Forester's hall was crowded to capacity, and Mr. Gordon spoke of the issues at stake in a manner which brought cheers from the people, time after time. With Mr. Gordon was E. M. Elliot, an old resident of the township and J. H. Dewart, who spoke at the Selwyn meeting.

The Chairman, James Grant, in a short but effective speech explained to the audience the policies of the Liberal Government. Mr. Gordon, who was the first speaker, due to his having to speak at the other meeting at Selwyn, defended the action of his Party in going to the country at the present time. He and the Government he represented, he said, were not only ready but willing to place their record in front of the people, as it was one of achievement and triumph when one considered the difficulties that they met with on taking office. There was a time, said the speaker, when there was no responsible government, but there came a time when the people had to have some say as to how their money would be disposed of—hence the fact that we have an election at least once in every five years. This country went through a war which added two million dollars to the national debt, and was the cause of certain manufacturers making huge profits. The Meighen government which was in power for 3½ years of that war failed to impose an income tax on these manufacturers, with the result that the people to-day are laboring under heavy taxes. The Government under Mr. Meighen, said the speaker, was purchasing more goods than they were selling, to the extent of 30 million dollars, an adverse balance, but under the leadership of the present government in 1924 we sold 295 million dollars worth more than we bought. The Canadian dollar, which, under Mr. Meighen, was worth 83 cents is now the best dollar on the world, due to the change that has been brought about by the above policy. For the first time in 30 years, said Mr. Gordon, Canadian cattle can enter the Old Country free from restrictions with the result that our exports have increased fourfold. When the farmer is prosperous, the people in the City are also prosperous. The speaker told of how the Government which he represented had entered into a treaty with Australia. Canada, he said, ships to Australia $5,000,000 of paper in a year alone, and it is just developing. In return for concessions that open up a much vaster market to Canada than is offered to Australia, certain concessions have been made, and you can rest assured that these will not hurt Canada or the Canadian farmer. Trade within the Empire is something we should encourage, said Mr. Gordon. Mr. Peck has been suggesting that we should increase the tariff, but a tariff is nothing less than a tax. How can the farmer be protected—our overseas market is the one that will make Canada one of the greatest countries in the world, and if we put on a high tariff the countries that trade with us will close their doors to our products—you cannot protect the man who has a surplus to dispose of. The speaker said that the Government now in power had lowered the tariff on agricultural implements, with the result that the farmer can use the money saved in this manner to purchase larger holdings.

If you reduce the cost of living, he said, you increase a man's happiness. The Conservatives claim that they will increase the tariff, but you cannot force trade through un-natural channels. Mr. Meighen told the coal men in the west that he would raise the tariff on anthracite coal entering this country from the United States and so give preference to Alberta coal, an action that will increase the cost of coal to the people by at least $5 a ton. It is also claimed that expenditures, debts and taxes have all been piled up under the present Government, but as a matter of fact the expenditures are $114,000,000 less than under Mr. Meighen. This, the speaker said is an achievement to be proud of. In 1921, Mr. Meighen increased the National Debt by $92,000,000. Mr. Gordon said that he would like to call their attention to some of the candidates that are supporting Mr. Meighen—W. F. Garland, who was connected with a scandal in connection with dressings sold for the use of the soldiers; De Witt Foster, who bought horses for the last war that were too old for the South African war. While you have men of that type in a party, he said, you can never have an honest party. A million dollar deficit in the Post Office under Mr. Meighen has been turned into a $400,000.00 surplus under Mr. King. You people, he said, hear a lot about Canadians going to the States, but it is nothing more or less than the natural backwards and forwards between the two countries. Mr. Meighen, said Mr. Gordon, in foreclosing the Grand Trunk mortgage, does not bear out his claim that he protects the Canadian people—the foreclosing of the Railway cost the people of Canada, $267,000, which went to lawyers who were not employed by the railway, but were outside men brought in for that purpose. It was a scandal, he said, that a country suffering from the aftermath of the war should be treated in this manner. In conclusion, Mr. Gordon appealed for the support of the electors on the policies for which he is standing, and a government that has a record to be proud of.

E. M. ELLIOT.

Mr. Elliot in a speech that was reminiscent of the famous "Tay Pay O'Connor" entertained the audience in a very witty manner.

I am, he said, very much interested in the people of this township, for as you all know, I spent most of my life here. Mr. Elliot declared that anyone who attempted to throw mud at either one of the candidates should be ashamed of themselves, for there was not two more honorable gentlemen in the County. "Mr. Bradburn," the speaker stated, "certainly is amusing when he tells you farmers how to vote. Mr. Bradburn tells you about American wheat entering the country, but you all know that American wheat is only fit for feed. As a result of the Fordney tariff, the United States farmer is in a bad way to-day. Mr. Elliot stated that in the United States there were 75,000 acres of abandoned farm lands and if the Liberal party goes in with their moderate tariff policy, thousands of United States farmers will come to Canada and settle on the land. Mr. Peck, he said, has said that the Liberal Government has been very lax, but how could this be when they have reduced the National Debt. The Conservatives ask you to support a high tariff. Under Sir John A. MacDonald, the big interests, he said, got some of the most able men in the country to approach the Government with a view towards increasing the tariff. The speaker told of conditions as they were under the regime of Sir John A. MacDonald. The speaker stated that from 1885-1896, we had the highest tariff we ever had, and these years were also the worst for bad times in the history of Canada. The speaker told of meeting the late Mr. Kendry in Peterboro' just before the 1896 election, and Mr. Kendry told him that the Auburn Woollen Mills would be forced to close down if Laurier was elected—well, about eleven months after that election, the Auburn Mills ran for four years, day and night. So much for high protection. The speaker stated that if Mr. Bradburn would tell you what he could he, Mr. Bradburn, would say that in 1896 houses that were paying him $7 a month rent were in 1911 paying him $32 a month and there was no high protection. Mr. Bradburn, he said, could also tell you about which the farmers placed in the years 1885-1896, and how by 1896-1906 90% of them were all cleared off. This country, he said, is too great to go down and out. The speaker digressed at some length on conditions as they used to be in Smith Township, and told many stories of happenings that took place in those days. Nowadays, said Mr. Elliot, if you want a set of harness and go to a manufacturer for it he will send you to the retailer—then the retailer will probably ask you twice as much as the harness is worth, and when you ask him the reason he will blame it on the manufacturer. The reason the manufacturer will give you, he said, is high wages—but how can they tally that with their statements that the young people are leaving Canada in their thousands for the high wages in the United States. He appealed to the electors to send the Hon. G. N. Gordon to Ottawa. Mr. Gordon, he said, will advertise the county and the city of Peterboro' as no other man can.

SUGGESTIONS FOR SOLVING CROSS-WORD PUZZLES

Start out by filling in the words of which you feel reasonably sure. These will give you a clue to other words crossing them, and they in turn to still others. ENNISMORE HAD A VISIT FROM 4 TORY ORATORS Local Conservative Party Was Reinforced By Frank Hughes of Toronto.

GOOD RECEPTION.

Tariff Question Placed Before Farmers, Wheat Duties Contrasted.

A capacity audience greeted the Conservative stalwarts when they made their appearance at St. Martin's Hall, Ennismore last night. All the speakers were accorded applause and the arguments put forwards were given serious attention.

Frank Hughes of Toronto, a friend of Mr. McElderry, was exceptionally well received, while the candidate's speech was marked with frequent evidences of approval. The first speaker was Mr. Strickland.

J. F. Strickland.

"I ask you if you are as prosperous now as you were four years ago?" he asked in comparing conditions obtaining to the legislative achievements of the parties in recent years. He indicated that by returning the Conservative party to power there would again return the prosperous conditions of four years ago.

In the Examiner of Wednesday evening Mr. Gordon voiced the disappointment which he had felt on Mr Peck's nomination by saying that Mr. Peck was being sacrificed by his party. This assertion was strenuously denied by the speaker. Gordon was telling the people of the honors he had brought to Peterboro, but, said Mr. Strickland, honor puts nothing in a man's pockets. Gordon was in politics for what he can get out of it for himself, while Mr .Peck was in politics for what he could get for the people.

"When Gordon was asked about the main issues he turned his attention on the supporters of Peck and on Wednesday night described some of us as turncoats. I am not a turncoat as I have voted Conservative for years although I do not claim that as the best policy to pursue. I deny that either Mr. Denne or Mr. McElderry are turncoats," said the speaker.

In 1917 Mr. Gordon was reported as having said that he was no Liberal and the speaker continued by saying that he and not Peck's supporters were turncoats.

E. A. Peck.

A salvo of applause greeted the candidate as he arose to address the audience. He was greatly pleased by the numbers present and admitted he was out to seek support. Electioneering was arduous work but very gratifying in results in this particular campaign.

Mr. Peck admitted that Mackenzie King had been faced by serious problems on taking office but he was sadly to blame in that he took no steps to settle the grave questions of the day.

The Premier's excuse for the standstill was that he had not sufficient majority in the House but Mr. Peck believed that he knew those conditions existed in his first year of office and he should have gone to the people then. The result of his delay was a state of stagnation which pervaded the country. Industries suffering and people forced to leave for another land where "fortunately they were given employment."

The logical remedy for these conditions could be found in the tariff, which if increased would protect the industries from foreign importation.

King had not shown the aptitude which a governor of the country should display in protecting the interests of the people. The United States had no better country than Canada but under protection they had made a marked advance in the past few years. The only remedy for Canada was to adopt measures similar to those found successful in the United States. (Applause.)

V. J. McElderry.

Acknewledging that he had never seen such a splendid crowd at a meeting Mr. McElderry launched into his brief for Mr. Peck. Sir Wilfred Laurier had said in Massey Hall that Toronto people came to hear him and applauded, but seldom gave him votes. The people said that that instance would not be true of Ennismore (applause.) Speakers for the Liberal party were calling Mr. Peck's supporters blue ruin propaandists, but Mr. McElderry claimed that it was the part of a friend to indicate trouble and apply any remedy at command.

A change was taking place which the speaker had noticed in many things, numbered among them being the Chemong floating bridge. The grand old Liberal party was also changing and it was now noted that many of the old faithful were retiring gracefully to the Senate. Furthermore in the old days it had not been deemed fitting that Ministers of the Crown be appointed over night for vote catching possibilities.

The cheapness of food was not as material as the flow of money, Mr. McElderry thought, and declared that the Fordney tariff was a blow which the United States government aimed at the farmers of Canada.

The King government took that blow lying down and even approved of it as the Premier had been apprised of the fact that the earlier produce of the States was swamping home goods off the market.

The home market was always the best. Farmers can't sell to farmers so they must cater to the towns and cities in the neighbourhood. Mr. McElderry exhorted his hearers to "get down to brass tacks" and offer the needed protection to agriculture and the business men of the country.

Frank Hughes

This speaker had grown up with Mr. McElderry and had the highest regard for his character. His presence on the platfom of Mr. Peck was a certificate of guarantee for the candidate.

Quoting a speech by Mr. Meighen the speaker recalled that the Conservative leader had recommended the first schedule raised to be that on farm produce. The farmers of the United States had told the government that they were organized and the government obeyed their wishes by instituting the Fordney Tariff.

The speaker did not wish to deal in millions lest the people think he was Vincent Massey so he said that he would deal in small quantities. Canadian wheat on entering the States was charged a duty of 42 cents for one bushel. The duty charged by Canada on United States wheat was 12 cents. Surplus Canadian wheat goes to Europe but at times of a poor crop it cannot be exported as freely. When wheat is scarce it mounts in price but just as this movement starts then the United States wheat slips across the border under the low tariff and cuts the price down again. If the Conservative party were returned to power they would see that the States would be paying the 42 cents as well. There was no difference when there was plenty of grain in both countries. Mr. Hughes quoted several other instances concerned with the inequality of the tariffs. Prices could not rise on Canadian produce because there would be a flow of American goods to keep them down at the low level.

The Australian treaty, the speaker said, was one of the worst pieces of legislation ever placed on the statute books. If the Liberal supporters were to tell the truth about that treaty they would lose their case. As a matter of fact, Australia is benefitted by equable weather, inexpensive buildings suffice and one man said that the hens laid all the year around.

In the Southern States fruits and vegetables were grown earlier and were able to ship their goods in to skim the cream off the home market. The speaker remembered when he looked forward to the first new potatoes but now because of the lack of tariff the farmers of Canada were no longer able to supply new potatoes as they were not new but are high farmers are prospering and the wealth of the county lies in the hands of the farmers.

The home market was the one to develop. Eighty per cent of all farm products was eaten in this country exclusive of wheat it was 92 per cent. That being so why was there not protection to further develop this best of markets. They will tell that prices will be high. Well let them bring on the high prices, said the speaker—let them put on a high tariff. When prices

The Ford Motor Comany built a factory in Canada because under the Conservative policy of protection those in authority deemed it more expedient to avoid the payment of duties. Should the tariff bar be withdrawn the products would be turned out of the established plants in the States and the Canadian factory branch would be closed down.

The speaker declared this to be true of all subsidiary branches of United States firms. When Vincent Massey wanted to do business in the United States he was forced to establish a branch there where Mr. Hughes declared five times as many men were employed as were in the Toronto factory. Previous to the war there had been branches in Berlin and Vienna. These were confiscated in war time and the Dominion government compensated Massey for his loss by a payment of $2,100,000. "If the electors of Ennismore had that money in their pockets they would gallop up and down the concessions with great glee."

In order to keep the money of the country where it belongs two things were necessary: keep foreign goods out and keep the people in. had been on the market for weeks the supply coming from foreign parts.

NATURE LORE

BY WALLACE HAVELOCK ROBB

Little Alma Appleby was surrounded by a circle of little girls, silent and grave looking on the outside, but filled with visions of things dancing in the sunshine, filled with a new and strange form of Happiness.

Not a sound could be heard but the voice of Alma, as she told about the Woodland Nymphs.

"Yes, girls, it is very clear indeed to a nature lover. The Birds flew over to the woods and talked about how the children did not like any months but July and August. Then Pan, who was always popping in and out among the trees, heard it from the birds.

"Ah, ha!" said he, "I'll make a song out of that mournful story, and I will make the whole woods gloomy with my whining, droning pipes." So he made a mournful song that the Fairies were very sad about, and they decided to invite all the children of the village to the woods.

They sent a butterfly to school, to put the schoolmaster in mind of the Autumn woods, so, before long, he caught the idea and all the school went into the Woodland Glade, to see if they could see Pan, or hear his piping.

And, it is said in the village, the fairies were having a play, on a woodland stage. The play was all about the different months, and it was so wonderful that all the children got so excited that they forgot most of it, but this much they all did remember; the part about the months.

It seems that each month was represented by a lovely fairy. July and August were just common looking fairies, if a fairy can look common, but September was a very lovely young fairy, all dressed in magnificent colored silks and velvets. Then she went away on a gust of wind and the same gust wafted Fairy October in, dressed in even richer but deeper colors. Then came an older fairy, in nut brown colors, then an old, old fairy in a sparkling dress of snowflakes." And Alma's story will be finished in Nature Lore on Monday.

Considerable Advance Scored In Wheat Price

CHICAGO, Oct. 23 (Canadian Press)—Wheat scored a considerable advance in price today after a hesitating start. Reports of a scarcity of stocks of contract grade of wheat at Liverpool had more or less to do with giving a lift to values here. In this connection, associations were made that it is seldom that Europe has contracted ahead for such small amounts of wheat as at present. Chicago opning prices 1-4c off to 5-8c up, new style, December 141 1-2 to 141 3-4 and May 139 1-2 to 139 7-8, were followed by slight general sag and then by an upturn to 142 3-8 for December and 140 34 for May.

Long List Of Advances On Toronto Market To-day

TORONTO, Oct. 23 (Canadian Press)—A long list of advances was recorded in active trading on the Toronto Stock Exchange this morning. Outstanding in the exceptionally broad list dealt in were Twin City, Smelters, British Columbia Fshing, Brazilian and Canadian Canners preferred. Twin City climbed four points at 65, B. C. Fishing 1 1-2 at 55 1-4, Smelters three and five eighths at 159 5-8, and Canadian Canners preferred two at 61, and the exception to the general rule was Brazilian, which eased down five eighths at 78 1-8. Spanish River was marked up two and a half points, at 99 1-2, and Dominion Stores preferred one at 106. Barcelona also sold a point higher at 22.

Mine Stocks Were Firm On Less Active Market

TORONTO, Oct. 23 (Canadian Press) — The Standard Mining Exchange was generally firm this morning, though a decrease in activity was shown, with Con. West Dome Lake, Tough Oakes and Kirkland Lake the active leaders. Kirkland Lake closed morning a point high at 49, Tough Oakes two and a half points up at 54 and the active Castle Trethewey a point higher at 144, but Consolidated West Dome was three quarters lower at 12. Barry, Hollinger and Columbus Kirkland were fractionally stronger. Canadian Lorrain was marked down two and a quarter points at 59 3-4.

KIWANIS PLAN ANOTHER SHOW

Decision Taken To-day to Give Citizens Another Treat Soon.

"BOB WHITE."

Probably the most important business transacted at Kiwanis Club today was the adoption of a plan to put on a show in the near future, one that will rival the famous Minstrels and the other productions that have proved so popular in Peterborough. It is understood that "Bob White" is the title of the new production, and that it will be presented to the public on two evenings.

Kiwanian J. J. Turner, remarking that Kiwanis knows no politics, suggested the advisability of every member turning out to register his vote next Thursday, as a duty to his country.

Kiwanian Ernest Sales, pastor of the First Baptist Church of Ottawa, was the speaker of the day, telling in beautiful language some of his impressions of the Rockies. In introducing the speaker, Kiwanian Joe Wearing told of seeing him working in the building of the first railroad that pierced the Rockies, and remarked that the story he brought was of practical experience.

Kiwanian Sales drew inspiration from the rocky ramparts, the silvery lakes, and the black thunder clouds of the Canadian mountains, and in his address pictured vividly the serrated peaks and the tremendous depths that are seen from the top of the mountain ranges. Then, in picturesque way, he applied the description to Kiwanis in an inspirational presentation of the aims of the Association.

Just as Columbia range is the great watershed of the country, sending its streams into three oceans, so is Kiwanis the centre of a spirit that flows into all business, he said. Executives come from every class of profession and business to Kiwanis, and carry the spirit of Kiwanis into the great sea of community life.

President Charles Cooke was in his usual place at the right end of the gavel; and Hugh Niven and Martin Chenhall put over the singing.

A new arrival in the city, Kiwanian Detlore, was accepted as a member of the Club, and was instructed in Kiwanian principles by Jack Marshall.

IN POLICE COURT.

Wilfred Lawson appeared before Magistrate O. A. Langley this morning and pleaded guilty to thirteen charges preferred against him. He was remanded for one week, and will face the Magistrate again October 31.

The charges included misappropriation of proceeds from the sale of a piano and twelve separate indictments of technical forgery. The prisoner had presented lien notes to the Bank of Toronto totalling $4,290.00, in amounts varying from $265.00 to $500.00, according to the figures on the charge papers.

Asked if he had anything to say for himself, Lawson declared that he had no deliberate intention of wronging anyone, and said that he had made a great mistake when he decided to go into business for himself. He had been successful in his trade of piano building while working for others, but his lack of business knowledge had undermined the slender foundation on which he had tried to establish himself. He had learned the business in Glasgow, Scotland, emigrated, settling in Fort William, moved to Toronto, and seven years ago came to Peterboro, where he has since resided. Apart from his lack of business experience, he had suffered illness from heart trouble, and also his family had been attacked by ailments. He pleaded for leniency.

A prominent minister also submitted an appeal. Not to condone wrong-doing, he said, but from an intimate knowledge of Lawson's character and home life, he felt that there should be consideration shown. He believed that Mrs. Lawson was entirely innocent and had no knowledge of her husband's wrong-doing. Furthermore, she had stated that now that he was in difficulty she had courageously elected to stand behind him and help him get on his feet.

Crown Attorney Hatton, K.C., stated that he had nothing to say at that time, but granted that the case presented many difficulties sufficient to warrant a careful study of all the facts.

Magistrate Langley, in his address to the Court, dealt with the necessities of the law, saying that offences of this nature could not be overlooked. He granted the fact that the case was of a distressing nature.

DOMINIONS ELECTIONS ACT

Electoral District of Peterborough West

Notice is hereby given that George Newcombe Gordon, one of the candidates at the pending Election in this Electoral District has appointed as his Official Agent, Joseph Wearing, Barrister, 408 Water St., Peterborough, Ontario.

Dated at Peterborough this 22nd day of October, 1925.

SIDNEY WHATLEY,
Returning Officer for Peterborough West.
1d-97-2698

Mr. Gordon's Portfolio Farce Needs Explanation!

WHILE CITY VOTERS WAIT IN VAIN for an explanation from the Hon. G. N. Gordon, of his desertion of Peterboro's industries, rural electors are listening attentively for details of that wonderful immigration plan of Mr. Gordon's by which hundeds of British families were to be settled in small holdings in Peterboro county.

MR. GORDON IS TOURING THE RIDING, speaking several times a night in the rural centres, yet he has nothing to say on the subject. He should have a lot to say about it as a candidate seeking the support of the electorate because the evidence all indicates that when Mr. Gordon announced at a rally in his committee rooms a month ago that he was planning the bringing out of immigrants to settle in Peterboro County and that an inspector from the Department would be here in "a few days" to survey the land suitable for this scheme, he knew that he was only a temporary holder of the Immigration portfolio.

Speak Up Mr. Gordon!

WHAT EXPLANATION HAS MR GORDON to offer for this apparently deliberate deception of the electors? Had Premier King not thrown a monkey wrench into the machinery by announcing during his Western campaign that the Immigration portfolio was to go to Hon. Charles Dunning, the people of Peterboro would not have known even yet that Mr Gordon is only Minister of Immigration for the time being, and doubtless his plan for populating rural Peterboro with British settlers to whom the farmers of the county would be invited to sell a slice of their lands would be a big feature of his speeches this week. The game was up when the wires carried the story of Mr. Dunning's selection for the portfolio of Minister of Immigration.

Says He Knew It!

MR. GORDON IN PRESS INTERVIEWS after the Premier had spoken unblushingly admitted that there was an understanding between Right Honourable Mr. King and himself and that when Mr. Dunning took the Department of Immigration he (Mr. Gordon) was to have another portfolio.

WHAT CLAIM UPON THE CONFIDENCE OF THE PUBLIC CAN MR. GORDON HAVE IN THE LIGHT OF THE PREMIER'S ANNOUNCEMENT AND HIS OWN ADMISSION?

ARE THE PEOPLE TO UNDERSTAND THAT when Mr. Gordon was loudly declaring his new intensive settlement plan he knew that the deciding of immigration policies would not be in his hands at all, and that he would have maintained the deception until polling day if the Premier himself had not unwittingly exposed the whole scheme and caused Mr. Gordon to drop it like a red hot potato?

MR. GORDON IS IN THE MIDST OF HIS SPEAKING CAMPAIGN; let him discuss this apparent attempt to grossly deceive the electors. West Peterboro refuses to be Andy Gumped any longer, but demand an explanation from Mr. Gordon as to why he made gestures as Minister of Immigration and inaugurated a scheme that was suspiciously like a bribe, in the sure knowlege that he was carrying the portfolio only until cannie Charles Dunning found it safe to pick it up.

Mr. Gordon has the Floor

STIRLING RALLY WELL ATTENDED

Conservative Candidates For S. Hastings and Hastings-Peterboro, Spoke.

OTHER SPEAKERS.

STIRLING, Oct. 23.—The grand old party of the National Policy had its innings in Stirling on Thursday (last) evening, when the big Conservative rally was held in the Opera House. Dr. E. T. Embury, Conservative candidate inHastings-Peterboro, and Mr. W. E. Tummon, candidate opposing Chas. Hanna in South Hastings, were both present and made brief, but forceful speeches and a whole galaxy of talent supported them. The building was filled to overflowing and many were turned away. There was plenty of enthusiasm, too, the candidates especially coming in generous applause. Mr. R. P. Coulter made an efficient chairman.

The first speaker was Dr. Embury. He expressed his pride in espousing the cause enunciated by his leader, Rt. Hon. Arthur Meighen." It is distinctly a tariff policy," he said, "and although many Progressives were trying to obscure the issue still the real fact is that the tariff is a matter of paramount importance." Dr. Embury admitted he would rather oppose a Grit than a policy that he had no respect for. "I don't see any use for the Progressives," he said. "You know exactly where I stand, for I am an unswerving supporter of Right. Hon. Arthur Meighen." He asserted that every civilized country save Canada had raised its tariffs in recent years, and that industries were closing up and thousands leaving the country as a result of depressing conditions. He promised an upward revision of the tariff after the 29th of October if the Conservatives were returned. He spoke with confidence of his own election and referred to what he styled the "vacillating uncertainty" of his opponent as shown at the nomination at Madoc.

W. E. Tummon.

W. E. Tummon, the next speaker, was received with cheers and the singing of "For he's a jolly goodfellow." He asserted that he was chosen as the Conservative candidate by one of the most democratic conventions ever held in the Quinte area. He ridiculed Rt. Hon. McKenzie King for his fear to bring on the election. He referred to the Conservative gains in the elections in the eastern provinces and asserted that Mr. King had seen the handwriting on the wall.

He approved the attitude of the Toronto Globe in following its convictions rather than its leader. He compared the action of several Cabinet Ministers in accepting Senatorships and other positions to the rats who leave a sinking ship, and asked with dramatic emphasis, "What has caused the country-wide determination for a change of government?".

He took up in some detail the resolution presented by Rt. Hon. Arthur Meighen in the House of Commons in June with respect to a "Canada first" tariff policy. Self-preservation is the law of nations as well as of individuals, he pointed out, and asked, is it likely that the 63 nations who raised their tariffs were wrong and Canada right? He stated that industries in Belleville, Trenton and Deseronto were just managing to struggle along, and that some of them were losing important orders because they could not compete with those in the United States. He claimed that there were more failures in business in the last four years in Canada than for many years before. Taking up the matter of farmers' markets, he asserted that Canada exports only 24½ per cent. of its farm produce, and that it was important to foster the home market by building up towns and cities in Canada instead of in foreign countries. "We are growing the raw material. Why should not these be manufactured in Canada?" he asked. "The policy of Mr. Meighen will do much to change the present industrial depression," he said.

Mr. Tummon gave some details of the fluorspar industry, alleging that the mines at Madoc were closed because the industry is not protected, while that of the United States is.

The speaker had nothing to say against his opponent. He intended to put up a clean fight. There would be no mud-slinging so far as he was concerned, and he asked his supporters to win by a clean-cut fair campaign.

Major Belford.

Major Belford of Northumberland opened his address by prophesying that Dr. Embury was going in with a majority of 2,000 to 3,000. He kept the audience in good humor by discussing in humorous vein the policies and personalities of the three national party leaders, in which the "clean cut policy of Mr. Meighen" was brought into favorable relief. He ridiculed the Progressives because they "had nothing constructive" to offer. "This election is going to settle for all time this writched thing, Progressivism," he asserted.

He took a fling at Mr. King for his action during the war, when he held a position with the Rockefeller Foundation, and claimed that Mr. King had left his country in her hour of stress. He claimed that Mr. Forke always managed to manipulate the Progressive vote in the House, so as to prevent the overthrow of the King Government. "The Progressive Party has stultified itself during the past four years," he asserted.

"We farmers need protection," he continued. Potatoes and eggs were mentioned as specific products that were dumped into Canada when market conditions in foreign countries warranted it, and Canadian farmers suffered as a result.

Col. McKay of the War Graves Commission, criticized Premier King for what he termed "his lack of sincerity and of an honest heart." Too long have we been ruled by an intellect educated far beyond its capacity," he claimed.

He then went into the railway question in Canada and traced in some detail the railway history during the past 20 years, asserting that the Liberals had been responsible for most of the mistakes that had been made in the past and that their action in dismissing the Railway Board and Mr. Hanna had been a costly performance. Millions had been added to the national debt by the railways and one of the first things the Conservatives must do, if returned to power is to remove this millstone from the necks of the people. He asked with dramatic emphasis: "Are you going to support a man who couldn't be elected in a single English constituency in Canada in 1917, when many people in our cities are facing starvation as a result of the vacillation of Mr. King. He dealt with the Australian treaty, claiming that it was sure to work injury to the Canadian farmer.

Major Belford closed his speech by an impassioned appeal for the the "old flag," and criticised Premier King for "appointing a commission to consider changing it." He claimed that Mr. King was pro-American and was playing into the hands of the United States.

Major Grey.

Major Grey, M.L.A. for Leeds, and Conservative organizer of Eas[illegible] a lengthy address on the tariff, senate reform [illegible] question and criticized the Progressive movement unsparingly.

He analyzed the immigration and emigration returns during recent years, claiming enormous losses of citizens to the United States. He prophesied a change of heart in the west and that the Conservatives would make big gains on the prairies, where the people were awakening to Progressive fallacies.

E. Gus Porter, K.C.

Mr. E. Gus Porter, though far from well, was assisted to the platfor and was given hearty applause as he rose to speak. He covered much of the ground of previous speakers and concluded by asking his old friends to transfer their allegiance to Mr. Tummon and Dr. Embury.

Hon. J. R. Cook.

[illegible] by Hon. Robt. Cook, who was [illegible] was late.

Excellent music was provided by an orchestra from Belleville with Mrs. H. H. Alger of Stirling, presiding at the piano.

The meeting closed by singing the National Anthem.

WEDDING BELLS.

LANE—MITCHELL.

On Wednesday afternoon, October 14, a pretty autumn wedding took place at the home of Dr. J. A. Mitchell, Drumbo, when his daughter, Jessie Anderson, was married to Rev. Andrew Lane, Georgetown. The ceremony was conducted by Rev. W. P. Lane of Embro, assisted by Rev. D. J. Lane of Wallaceburg, brothers of the groom. The bride, who was given away by her father, wore a becoming French gown of sand crepe, with picture hat to match, and carried a beautiful bouquet of roses and lily of the valley. The wedding music was played by the bride's sister, Miss Agnes Mitchell. During the signing of the register, Mrs. W. P. Lane sang "O Perfect Love." After a dainty buffet luncheon Mr. and Mrs. Lane left by motor for New York and other points, the bride travelling in a burgundy satin crepe dress, with sable trimming, with coat and chic velour hat to match. On their return they will live in Georgetown. —Toronto Globe.

ORR—BALLANTYNE.

The wedding took place at one o'clock Wednesday afternoon, in St. Luke's church, of Flossie Luella, eldest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James Ballantyne, 277 Armour Road, and Mr. Charles Orr of this city. The bride wore a lovely gown of poudre blue cut velvet, trimmed with georgette, and hat to match. She carried a bouquet of ophelia roses.

The bridesmaid, Miss Mabel Morrison, a cousin of the bride, was in autumn brown satin-faced canton crepe, trimmed with fur, with brown hat and bouquet of columbia roses.

A brother of the bride, Mr. Ray Ballantyne, acted as best man.

After the ceremony, a sumptuous wedding repast was served at the home of the bride's parents, to guests numbering about fifty.

Mr. and Mrs. Orr left on the C.P.R. afternoon train for Toronto and points west, after which they will reside in Peterboro. The bride travelled in blue dress and hat with fur coat.

The gift from the bridegroom to the bride was a bracelet of sapphires and brilliants, to the bridesmaid pearls and to the best man a pair of kid gloves.

GIBBS—BOWLES.

Very quietly the wedding was solemnized on Wednesday, October 21st, at 2 p.m. in Springville church when Leeta Pearl, youngest daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Robt. Bowles, of Cavan, became the bride of Richard Oswald Gibbs, only son of Mrs. Gibbs, and the late Thos. Gibbs. The ceremony was conducted by Rev. G. I. Craw, assisted by Rev. A. H. McConnachie.

The bride, who was given away by her uncle, Mr. Joseph Madill, wore an ensemble costume ofcenora broadcloth, with sable trimmings. Her corsage bouquet was of Columbia roses. The wedding march was played by Miss Annie Brown, and during the signing of the register, Miss Daisy Murray sang "O Promise Me." Miss Marjorie Anderson and Mr. Jas. Benson witnessed the signing of the register. Mr. Walter Bowles, brother of the bride, and Mr. Norman Bowles, cousin, acted as ushers. The groom's gift to the bride was a cabinet of silver.

After the ceremony, Mr. and Mrs. Gibbs left on the 3.40 train for Toronto and Hamilton. On their return they will reside at "Hillcrest Farm," Hamilton township.

Among the many gifts the bride received was a substantial cheque from her uncle, Mr. J. Madill, and a Persian lamb coat, trimmed with sable, the gift of her two brothers.

SCOTT—SCOTT.

On Tuesday, Octo'er 20, 'Cedarview Farm,' Kincardine, the home of Mr. and Mrs. James R. Scott, gay with autumn flowers and foliage, was the scene of the marriage of their daughter, Mary Neilenith, to William G. Scott, of Peterborough. The ceremony was conducted by Rev. T. D. McCullough, M.A., of Kincardine.

The bride, wearing an imported gown of white crepe, with veil and coronet of orange blossoms, and carrying a huge sheaf of roses, entered the drawing room with her father, to the strains of Mendelssohn's wedding march, played by her sister, Miss Christine Scott. During the signing of the register, the bride's brother, Dr. A. A. Scott, sang to the violin and piano accompaniment of his brother, Melville and sister Chris ine. Directly after the wedding breakfast had been served Mr. and Mrs. W. G. Scott left for points east, the bride travelling in an ensemble suit of brown, collared and cuffed with marten, with French hat to match.

I.O.D.E. MEETING.

Regular Monthly Meeting Was Held at the Armouries.

The regular monthly meeting of the 57th Regimental Chapter I.O.D.E. was held yesterday afternoon in the officers' quarters at the armouries with a fairly good attendance of members. The Regent, Mrs. E. B. Clegg presided.

Arrangements were completed for the holding of a bridge party on Armistice Day.

Mrs. K. S. Wightman read a very interesting paper on "The League of Nations and the Opium Traffic," which met with a hearty vote of thanks.

RAIL STEEL AS REINFORCEMENT

J. B. Carswell, of Toronto, Addressed Local Engineers on Subject.

DISCUSSION AFTER.

Rail steel for concrete construction was the subject of J. B. Carswell, B.Sc., A.M.E.I.C., in his address before the Peterborough branch of the Engineering Institute of Canada at its regular meeting last night. The chair was occupied by G. Coutts, A.M.E.I.C.

Immediately before and after the world war there was a great deal of argument about the relative values of mild steel and hard steel for concrete reinforcement work, said Mr. Carswell. Five years ago he had defended the use of rail steel in a paper read before the Toronto branch which had provoked a heated discussion, whereas now the use of this steel was allowed by most building by-laws.

In choosing steel for rails, said the speaker, it is necessary to have a steel that will stand the wear and vibration, the extremes of temperature, and the impact of high speed trains. The grinding of the trains must be counteracted by great hardness, and the pounding by toughness. For bridges and other steel construction the necessity is for steel with great ductility and toughness, so that when reinforced concrete was first made it was made with steel like that of bridges. Study of the stresses and other factors showed that the governing factor was the elasticity of the steel. Steel rails were of the right quality for this work so a market was opened for the use of rails that had become so worn that the railways could no longer use them. Less steel of this kind was required, and it cost less, making economy of construction, while national economy also resulted from the use of this steel without its being melted down and made into ingots again.

Interesting pictures, both slide and film, showed the process of making the rails, and also how they were treated to make reinforcing rods, after an average life of 17 years on the railways of the country.

After the address quite a discussion arose on the merits and comparative use of this type of steel, with Messrs. Pretty and Killaly of the local branch leading the discussion.

in the Bonds, Stocks or other Securities of Canadian Industrial Companies.

Why?

Your investment is likely to be lost owing to juggling of the Tariff by the Liberal Government at Ottawa.
Millions of dollars have already been lost by Shareholders in legitimate industrial companies in Canada.
Thousands of Canadian now buy the Bonds and Stocks of industrial companies in the United States, where they have a stable Tariff that protects them against low Continental wages.
In The Toronto Globe of Jan. 2, 1924, T. A. Low of the King Liberal Government, in a full page ad, paid for by you and myself as taxpayers, said the following: "This Dominion is worthy of your effort and the investment of your life." (Mr. Low does not save your money.)

MONTREAL END PREPARATIONS FOR SATURDAY

Only One Change in Team From That of Last Two Games.

NEW METHODS.

Nicholson Has Drilled Men in Open Style of Attack.

MONTREAL, Que., Oct. 23. — (Canadian Press).—With the exception of a light signal drill to-night, preparations of the Montreal squad for its game with the Ottawa Senators here to-morrow have been concluded, and Coach Nicholson has announced his team for the Big Four Rugby contest as follows:

Flying wing, McCaig; halves, Booth, Sheppard and Bennett; quarter, Russel; snap, Parkes; inside, Work and Starke; middles, Ryan and Foran; outsides, Consiglio and Robinson; substitutes, Whittall, Paterson, Lewis, Jocks, Colin, Mill, Anderson, McDonald, Wright and C[illegible].

With the exception of Parkes at snap, Ir instead of Hammie Hamilton, who is out with an injured knee, the combination is the same as that which has put up two smart games for the winged wheel in the past two games. It is also a vastly different line-up from that which went down to defeat at Ottawa in the opening game of the season, and on the strength of the recent showing of the wheelers their followers have hopes that they will even the count with the Senators.

Nicholson has been drilling the team steadily in the open style of attack this week, which he maintains is the only possible manner in which a team can gain an offensive play—and then only if there is enough deception and real smart team play by the front rank in clipping tacklers to allow his halves to get clear. In recent games Nicholson has satisfied himself that he can get just as much speed into his end runs from a standing start as from a running start, and his players will again work on that basis to-morrow.

LIFT SUSPENSION IF BOXER RETURNS

French Fight Promoter Says Federation Will Reinstate Johnny Dundee.

PARIS, Oct. 23. — (Canadian Press).—Antoine Boyer, the French boxing promoter who holds the signature of Johnny Dundee, former featherweight champion, to a contract to fight Fred Brettionel which Dundee failed to carry out last January, said today that he was ready to go through with his end of the affair now. The French promoter said that if the former champion would follow the suggestion made this week by the New York Athletic Commission and return to France he would stage the bout as originally planned.

"We have no hard feelings against Dundee," Boyer said, "and he may be assured of a fair and square deal if he comes back to France and fulfills his contract."

The French Boxing Federation is prepared to lift its suspension against Dundee in case he returns and makes good his signature.

PLAN FOSTERING OF INDOOR POLO

Association in U. S. Wants to Include Canada in International League.

RAPID PROGRESS.

NEW YORK, Oct. 23.—(Canadian Press).—Rapid development of indoor polo throughout all sections of the United States has led to the suggestion that the game be fostered in one or two of the large cities of Canada with a view to ultimately setting up an international indoor polo association. Montreal and Toronto are talked of as likely prospects for the inauguration of the winter polo sports in the Dominion.

So well has the game progressed throughout the Middle West that a proposal is on foot for a representative team of that section coming to New York for a national tournament this winter. The tourney would be sanctioned by the National Indoor Polo Association.

The proposal for the inclusion of Canada in a new International League was given birth at a meeting of the National Association here yesterday. It was pointed out by sponsors of the move that a good deal of polo was played in the Dominion during the spring and summer seasons and that little trouble should be experienced in introducing the Winter form of the sport.

INSIDE GOLF.

Maker of 61 Golf Champions, "Golf's most successful teacher," says "Chick" Evans

By CHESTER HORTON

Contrary to a somewhat widespread, erroneous impression, a short, stocky golfer does not require short clubs, nor does a long, lean player do best with elongated weapons. It is a mistake for the man of short stature to chop off his shafts on the theory that they will better fit him when shortened. If anything he and the long player should exchange ideas, letting the short man lengthen his clubs and the tall fellow cut them down. It is the distance the clubhead travels, and the rhythm of its swing, that hit the ball — not the height of the player from the ground. All the gofer need do is just barely reach down to the ground, and this applies whether he is tall or short. Cutting off shafts robs the clubhead of swing length, and it also lightens the clubhead. The maker of the club blends its weight with its length for a happy combination. You might better destroy the club as a whole than destroy this combination of weight and length. The manufacturer has spent much money finding out how to do his part right. It's seldom the club's fault when shots go wrong.

CHANGE OF METHODS BRITISH GOLF PLAYS

New Plan of Qualifying For Open Championship.

ST. ANNE'S-ON-THE-SEA Eng. Oct. 23.—(Canadian Press).—A radical departure in the method of qualifying for the British open golf championship will be instituted next year, when sectional qualifying competitions will be held, two in England and one in Scotland. This was announced yesterday following a meeting of the championship committee here at which the plan was submitted by representatives of the Professionals' Association.

Heretofore qualification play has been held just before the championship proper on two courses, one of them usually that on which the championship is contested. The eighty entrants with the lowest medal scores passed into the championship competition.

No information was available today as to how the foreign golf invaders will qualify under the new plan, but details will be announced later.

M'GILL SENIORS ALTER TACTICS FOR NEXT GAME

Will Adopt Speedy, Deceptive Plays to Gain on the Line.

LIKELY STARTERS.

MONTREAL, Que., Oct. 23.—(Canadian Press).—With two hours of intensive offensive drill, the McGill Senior squad yesterday completed its training for the return game with the champion Queen's University squad, to be played at Kingston to-morrow afternoon. Coach Shaughnessy kept the squad pounding away at the new formations he has been using this week and there was no let-up in the practice until he was satisfied that the players were as perfect in their knowledge of the formations as they could be made.

McGill will rely on speedy, deceptive plays to gain on the line and around the ends, but will also alter their tactics in the punting game from those shown last week, when Queen's played here and the local backs continually thumped the ball into the hands of Batstone and Leadley, who ran it back for gains which were damaging to McGill's hopes.

Some indication of the relief men likely to be used was gleaned yesterday when Shaughnessy started Tommy Arnold and Bill Grassick on the half line for the first half-hour of the scrimmaging, later leaving them to follow behind the plays as the regulars, Joe Cameron, Eddie Hanna and Ralph St. Germain, were used on the half-line.

Ney Gordon, McGill flying wing, had to retire from the scrimmaging with a twisted ankle, but it is anticipated that he will be able to start against the tri-color to-morrow.

PREMIER KING SAYS MEIGHEN'S POLICY WILL CAUSE CLEAVAGE OF RURAL AND URBAN ELEMENTS

Thinks Government is Entitled to a Stronger Measure of Public Confidence.

MARKHAM SPEECH.

Construct a Tariff That Shall Serve Interests of the Whole Country.

MARKHAM, Ont., October 23. — Canadian Press. — With a nomination meeting at Newmarket and evening meetings at Markham and Stouffville, Premier King appealed to his own electors of North York. At all points he was wecomed by enthusiastic gatherings.

Following speeches in Toronto and Ottawa, Mr. King returns to North York for the last three days of the campaign.

Mr. King thanked the Progressives of North York for not nominating a third candidate. He spoke of the "campaign of depression" as injuring the credit of Canada abroad. "We hope," he said, "to get capital and immigrants. But the people in the old world will not invest capital here, nor move their families here, so long as this sort of detraction goes on."

Mr. King indicated the difficulties which had faced the government both in the Commons and the Senate.

"After what we have been able to do in the face of those difficulties," said Mr. King, "I think we are entitled to a stronger measure of public confidence."

In all the campaign, he went on, no one had been able to make a charge of graft or corruption against the government.

"I have only one policy for the whole Dominion,' said Mr. King, "and that is we must have national unity."

Mr. King felt that Mr. Meighen's protection policy would divide Canada and get the rural against the urban elements. "We believe," Mr. King argued, "that we can construct a tariff that will not injure any interest but will serve the interests of the whole country."

Mr. King referred to the reduction of duty on agricultural implements. "Last night," he said, "I spoke to an audience of 5,000 in Brantford. I asked them if there was one man or woman in that audience who would say that the interests of Brantford had been injured by our action. And what was the reply? There was not one person had a word to say.

"And,' Mr. King proceeded, "when I spoke in Brantford four years ago, there were 4,000 unemployed. To-day there are not in Brantford one hundred unemployed."

The Prime Minister declared that some of the criticism of the Australian treay were an insult to the intelligenec. It was represented that Australian eggs would pour into Canada, like water out of a spout. Apparently they were going to be brought in by aeroplane. "If," laughed Mr. King, "our hen can't hold her own against the Australian hen, then it's time she went out of business."

He took up Mr. Meighens proposal to assist from the public funds, the transportation of basic commodities from the west and the Maritimes to Quebec and Ontario. Mr. Meighen proposed, said Mr. King, to tax the whole people and help the railway companies with the money.

Mr. King proceeded: "If there is danger of competition from Australia what is going to happen when we have the dairy products of the prairies put down here with the aid of a government subsidy to compete with our own product?"

The Prime Minister commented that this way of "bribing" any one province would lead us in a bad way in a short time.

and we must believe it. Perhaps he has more Christianity than I have; at any rate, these are the things he did."

"If there was any evidence before us that Janisse ever said, 'I'll get McMullin,' or 'I'll get even with McMullin,' or anything of that nature, my charge would be vastly different. But there is no evidence that he ever expressed such feelings to any one. The evidence is before us, and we must accept it, no matter what we suspect, that McMullin and Janisse were on friendly terms."

Pointing out that no evidence was introduced to show that Janisse knew his wife had the revolver, the court continued to review the events of the night of August 13.

"In my judgment, he did wrong not to take his wife home on that night," the court said, "but he did nothing for which we can convict him. I think the man was crazy; I think the man was foolish; I think he was a fool to allow his wife to risk burning her fingers again. But we cannot convict him for being foolish. He was weak and occasionally to be weak results in effects as bad as if one were criminal, but we cannot convict a man for being weak."

"I must say to you," the court continued, "frankly and fairly, that we have no evidence Arthur Janisse had any knowledge or idea his wife was following McMullin for the purpose of shooting him.

"We may have our suspicions of what Janisse knew and thought, but we cannot hang a man on suspicion and we cannot convict a man on suspicion. Whatever your suspicions and my suspicions may be, there is no evidence here on which you can convict him of being an accessory before the fact, or as who counsels, aids or abets.

"Janisse was a fool, but you cannot convict a man for being a fool. Perhaps that is a good thing for most of us. If you could, our jails would be full.

"If you have a reasonable doubt," the court concluded, "and I think you have occasion for reasonable doubt, that Janisse knew what his wife intended to do, it is your duty to bring in a verdict of not guilty."

Following the charge, Mr. Fripp requested that the jury be instructed that they might draw whatever inference they choose, of the accused's conduct apart from the evidence before the court.

Dallas, Texas, is said to be the only city that ever won a baseball pennant in two leagues in one season. This happened in 1888. After Dallas had won the pennant in the Texas league that year it took the place of Montgomery in the Southern Lague, winning the pennant in the latter league from New Orleans in the tenth inning of the last game of the season.

REPUTATION

NO man can tell how much mileage is in a tire by looking at it. So every time you buy a tire, you must ask yourself, consciously or subconsciously, "Who stands back of this tire? What is their reputation for building tires of long mileage? What is this tire doing for other motorists?"

We do not believe there is a motorist in the world who does not know about the Goodyear All-Weather Tread Tire. They are sold in every country except Russia and Abyssinia. There are more of them used than any other tire. They are the world's premier tires for mileage and road-grip.

Many motorists are buying unknown, doubtful tires because they wish to make only a small investment in tires. To these motorists, we say: "Go to the Goodyear Selected Dealer and he will sell you your price of tire, backed by the same people who build that Goodyear All-Weather Cord about which you know. Tires backed by the same experience, the same care, the same skill—Goodyear Tires. But priced in different classes and with different treads to meet different needs. The stock of the Goodyear Selected Dealer covers every need. See him."

POWER COMMITTEE GETS APPOINTMENT

Will Be Received by the Hydro-Electric Commission in Toronto Next Tuesday.

Th Hydro-Electric Commission will receive the deputation from Peterboro's suburbs on Tuesday next to discuss the increased cost of domestic power to the consumers outside the city. The appointment was made yesterday by W .H. Bradburn, M.P.P., and as a rehearsal for the meeting Warden Rye and the rest of the committee talked over their appeal at the Court House last night, in order that they would thoroughly understand the details of the petition they will present to the Hydro.

It was thought best last night to ask the Utilities Commission of the city for an interim interview, and this has been arranged for Saturday afternoon. The committee desires to know what the city's attitude might be in the event of the townships making certain power distribution arrangements under the Suburban Area Act.

RESTRICT COACHING.

Thinks Treatment of Professionalism By Inflexible Rules is Impossible.

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., Oct. 23 Canadian Press). — Disapproval of inter-sectional championships and post-season games, belief that coaching ultimately should be restricted to graduates of the university and that coaching salaries should be reduced to a minimum, approval of intercollegiate athletic agreements and the belief that treatment of professionalism in college athletics by inflexible rules is impossible, were among the opinions expressed in the report of the Harvard College Committee on the regulation of athletics sports published yesterday in the Harvard Alumni Bulletin.

PECKINPAUGH AT CROW LAKE CAMP

Most Valuable Player in American League, and Morris Ackerman Here.

Morris Ackerman, editor of Ackerman's Sportsmen's Guide, sports writer of the Cleveland News, and feature writer of the Scripps N.E.A. service, is in the city to-day on his way to Marmora, where he will spend a few days with Roger Peckinpaugh, captain and shortstop of the Washington baseball team, champions of the American league for the second successive year.

Mr. Ackerman is one of the most loyal boosters of Canada's fish and game resources and attractions, to whom this country owes a debt of gratitude for the steadily increasing flow of tourists from the United States. He has just come from Fenelon Falls and Bobcaygeon, and will go from Marmora to Quebec to hunt deer. In the meantime he is preparing his Sportsmen's Guide for 1926, securing news and advertising features which give particular prominence to Ontario sporting and hunting facilities.

"Roger Peckinpaugh is one of my best friends," said Mr. Ackerman. "He is coming to Marmora with Erwin Becker, who is associated with him in the real estate business in Cleveland. They own a hunting lodge up at Crow Lake. In the world series Peck was jinxed by the award of this years honor of the best player in the American League. It has jinxed Sisler, Ruth and Johnson and this year it was Peck's turn. After the season he forgets baseball, and comes up here to relax. Naturally the result of the world's series was a disappointment to him, but I think his wife was even more affected than he was."

One of the parties of ball players who are starting on hunting trips is composed of Muddy Ruel, Joe Bush, Bob Shawkey and Eddie Collins. They are going to Plaster Rock, N.B. on Sunday for three weeks. Mr. Ackerman is also arranging a trip for Jack Dempsey for next year.

Tris Speaker and Ty Cobb have already decided to go to Jackson Hole, Wyoming, next fall, to shoot elk and bighorn sheep, Mr Ackerman stated.

Mr. Ackerman may be credited with having introduced Tris Speaker to the fishing and duck shooting attractions of Rice Lake.

TRY COMMUNISTS IN LONDON COURT

Twelve Men Are Charged With Inciting to Sedition.

LONDON, Oct. 23 (Canadian Press).—A magistrate in the Bow Street Police Court today began hearing charges against the twelve Communists taken in recent raids. The men were formally charged with inviting to sdition, while outside a crowd of supporters sang "The Red Flag." Sir Travis Humphreys, appearing for the Director of Public Prosecutions, said the defendants were being prosecuted as leaders and principal executive officers of two illegal organizations—the Communist party of Great Britain, and the Young Communist League of Great Britain, both of which, he declared, received their orders from Moscow. Sir Travis asserted that the defendants also had attempted to seduce the armed forces to mutiny and had openly advocated civil war.

THEATRES

RIN-TIN-TIN DOES THRILLING STUNTS IN LATEST PICTURE.

"Tracked in the Snow Country" Shows Dog at His Best.

"In "Tracked in the Snow Country," starring Rin-Tin-Tin, the "Wonder Dog," at the Regent Theatre, this well known canine actor has a number of new thrills for those who have seen him in the several Warner Bros. pictures in which he has been previously presented. His most sensational performance in this picture—if not, indeed, the most sensational in any of his pictures—comes when he, the villain and the hero, are cornered in the mine, and Rin-Tin-Tin finds himself caught in a deep well, unable to come to the assistance of is master. His escape from the well with one marvelous leap, trailing the villain across the ice which breaks under him and sends him down into the cold water from which he tries vainly to extricate himself but into which he is repeatedly thrown by the dog, to finally drown, provides breathless moments for the audience.

"Tracked in the Snow Country," as the title indicates, is one of these standard melodramas of the Far North. The story has to do with the attempt of a villainous half-breed to steal from an old miner and his beautiful daughter a rich gold mine which the old man has discovered and is secretly working. Rin-Tin-Tin, the old miner's faithful dog, is largely instrumental in defeating the purposes of the half-breed, being assisted by the young forest ranger who is in love with the daughter.

June Marlowe is the daughter of the piece. Charles Sellon is the miner, David Butler the forest ranger, and Mitchell Lewis is the villain. All give satisfactory performances. The engagement at the Regent Theatre continues for two more days.

AT THE ROYAL.

FREE FALSE FACES FOR KIDDIES TO-MORROW AT 2.10.

Every child buying a ten cent ticket Saturday afternoon at the Royal will receive a false face. Hallowe'en is getting near and this is the annual custom of the Royal management. See the Royal window for different types of false faces.

DOUBLE FEATURE BILL AT ROYAL.

"Red Rider," Indian Drama, "Sport in Chance," Racing Comedy Drama

Patrons of the Royal are certainly getting their money's worth these days. Two full length features were on the programme last night, and they are both worthy of being featured by themselves. The Red Rider is a thrilling "Covered Wagon" type of story of pioneer and Indian warfare that the kiddies will "eat up."

Action and plenty of it will be found in "The Sporting Chance" now showing. In addition to action there is a cast of well known screen players who give a finished portrayal of all the characters in this story of society and the race track.

"The Sporting Chance" shows one of the most realistic race track scenes ever witnessed on the screen. After watching the events that lead up to this big scene it is unlikely that there is a person in the theatre who was not on his or her toes until the climax of the scene was reached.

Another novel effect introduced in "The Sporting Chance' is a pony race staged in a ball room, the ponies ridden by a bevy of beautiful Hollywood maindens. This is a new twist in filming entertainment in rich men's mansions and is rather cleverly introduced.

The story tells of the love of a wealthy sportsman who overstepped the bounds of speculation and finds himself in financial difficulties. He thinks that his dauhter will marry the sporting man, but a young impecunious but handsome Southerner, who has entered his ho in a famous race meets the girl and the usual complications follow.

The picture as a whole is put on in a rather extravagant manner with a cast including Lou Tellegen who is seen in the part of the villain, Dorothy Phillips as the heroine. George Fawcett as the father, and Theo Von Eltz as the hero.

The photography is excellent and the story well told and acted. It will be seen at the Royal Theatre until Saturday night.

AT THE CAPITOL

GLORIA SWANSON IN "THE COAST OF FOLLY"

A real Gloria Swanson picture is "The Coast of Folly," at the Capitol Theatre for this week-end, with the gorgeous Gloria in a role exactly suited to her temperament and her genius for wearing wonderful gowns. She does some splendid work in three entirely different characterizations, taking the part of Joyce Gathway, a young society girl, of Nadine Gathway, her own mother, who has deserted her husband and child, and the Countess de Tauro, who is Nadine twenty years later.

Joyce is the heiress to many millions, bequeathed her on condition that her name never becomes associated with scandal. However, she commences playing around with Larry Fay, and his wife, herself an unscrupulous flirt, files a suit for divorce against her husband, naming Joyce, whose millions are threatened by the scandal.

The Countess de Tauro, in Paris, Joyce's mother, who has run away from home and husband and child twenty years previous, now appears on the scene, and in a battle of wits, the stakes being her own daughter's good name and fortune, and her opponent the unscrupulous Mrs. Fay, she defeats the latter's purposes, discloses her real character, and saves her daughter. The fact of the dual role being played by Gloria Swanson, calls for some superb acting on her part. It is one of the most difficult of her many strong roles, but she carries it through with wonderful dramatic power and charm. Her gowns are, as usual, the very latest word in the realm of clothes. And there is a strong supporting cast, also as usual in the Swanson pictures.

"QUO VADIS" FILMED AS SUPER-THRILLER WITH 20,000 IN CAST

A new and gigantic production of "Quo Vadis" has just been completed and is to be shown by First National at the Capitol Theatre next Monday.

For stupendous size, both in cast and scenes; for super-thrills and for rare beauty of photography, this film version of the Sienkiewicz classic is proclaimed an unequaled masterpiece of screen artistry.

Emil Jannings, noted for his work in "Passion," heads the cast, which is said to number more than 20,000 men, women and children.

The scenes, staged in Rome on the actual site of Nero's tyrannies, are enormous. The Palatine, Circus Maximus and the Rome itself of Nero's time, half a century after the birth of Christ, form the background for the drama.

The historic debaucheries of Nero and his court and the terrible cruelties of the despot, as vividly pictured, are tempered by the tender love of the pagan Vinicius for the beautiful Christian girl, Lygia, and the unyielding faith of the followers of Peter, the Apostle, even when burned at the stake and thrown to the lions in the arena of the Circus.

Jannings, as Nero, has given an even more impressive characterization than was his in "Passion." Nero was cruel, lustful, blood-thirsty, always. Yet he was inordinately vain, foppish, childish in his self-admiration. It was thus that Jannings has portrayed him. Nero, dead 1,900 years, lives again—on the screen.

He causes beautiful slave girls to be tossed into his marble pool that his banquet guests may see how he fattens the fish for future banquets.

He burns Rome, secretly, that he may gain inspiration for verses which will excel Homer's "Burning of Troy."

He causes Christians to be burned at the stake, as "flowers" at his garden party; and hundreds of others to be thrown to the lions in the Circus Maximus to appease the populace for his crime of incendiarism.

Then, his dastardly secret exposed at last, he pleads with a servant to sink into his heart the blade which his own cowardly hand fears to do.

Thus he dies, and upon the site of ihis inhumanities rises the cross to bless the union of Vinicius, now a Christian, and Lygia.

AT THE GRAND.

"WHAT'S NEXT?"

An attractive menu of music, dancing and comedy is being served up at the Grand by the Cheer-Uptomists in a bright little revue, "What's Next," which was enjoyed by a large audience last night and will be seen again to-night.

This company of clever entertainers offered a varied programme with a lot of excellent material, well handled and staged. Miss Aileen Hyndman, the prima donna of the company, proved a vocalist of splendid ability, whose fine voice was most effectively displayed in a number of pleasing songs. Another singer who scored heavily was Clifford Lewis, the possessor of a resonnant tenor voice which he used to advantage, especially in his "O Sole Mio" number.

In Russell Lavery the Cheer-Uptomists produced a comedian of all round ability, who gave negro, Irish and rube characterizations and made a big hit in each of them. He was ably assisted by Martin Masters, who proved a very capable funmaker.

Kitty McKay was a pleasing comedienne, whose song numbers went over well.

Clever dancing was provided by Jean Shaw and Billy Garden, whose introduction of the Charleston and an Apache tango dance was a feature.

A well trained and well dressed chorus added much to the enjoyment of the programme, doing some fine dancing.

ABIE'S IRISH ROSE.

Among the bookings for the current season at the Grand Opera House there is none that is creating more interest than the forthcoming engagement of Anne Nichols' appealing comedy, "Abie's Irish Rose", the wonder play of the age, which she will present for three nights beginning Thursday, October 29th, with matinee Saturday, October 31.

"Abie's Irish Rose" is one of those plays which win through the bright and witty lines, funny situations and simple appealing love story, which is above all coherent and wonderfully human.

It was built for laughing purposes, and that it has succeeded in accomplishing the result at which its author aimed, can be attested to by the more than ten million of people who have witnessed it one or more times in the past two years.

As an establisher of lengthy runs its equal has never been known in theatrical history, as the few engagements it has played as below mentioned will verify.

Just think if you can of any play which has been offered at one theatre in any of the cities named below and has played the number of consecutive weeks this perennial wonder has.

Los Angeles forty-two weeks, San Francisco twenty-eight weeks, Pittsburgh twenty-nine weeks, Cleveland twenty-eight weeks, Columbus fourteen weeks, Toronto Canada, seventeen weeks, Chicago where it run for two years at the Studebaker Theatre, and New York City where it celebrated its third year at the Republic Theatre on May 22nd, and is still running to capacity audiences. Is it not a record to be proud of?

Miss Nichols will send her Rochester company intact to fill the engagement here, and patrons of the Grand may be assured of a treat rarely experienced in the smaller cities, that of witnessing a metropolitan success presented with the identical cast and production utilized in a metropolitan run.

Mail orders are now being filled in the order of their receipt, the regular sale not opening until October 26th.

IN MEMORIAM.

In loving memory of my dear husband, Pte. Herbert York, who entered into rest, Oct. 23, 1918:

There is someone who misses you sadly,
And finds the years long since you went;
There is someone who thinks of you daily,
But tries to be brave and content.
Loving and kind in all his ways,
Upright and just to the end of his days;
Sincere and true in heart and mind,
So I shed a tear that is silent,
And breathe a sigh of regret,
For you were ours to remember
Though all the world forget.
Oft I think of you, dear husband,
And my heart is filled with pain,
Oh, this world would be a heaven
Could we see your face again.

—Inserted by his loving wife and family.

IN MEMORIAM.

BROWN.—In loving memory of our dear son and brother, Wilfred, who died October 22, 1922.

Angels in heaven all clad in white,
Playing their harps in the city of light;
Then Jesus came, smiling, and said to His band,
I have brought you a playmate,
Come give him your hand.

He was too pure for this cold earth,
Too beautiful to stay;
And so God's holy angels
Bore our dear one away.

Worthy of our everlasting love
From those he left behind.
The flowers we place upon his grave
May wither and decay,
But the love for him who sleeps beneath
Shall never fade away.

Do not ask us if we miss him,
There is such a vacant place,
Can we ever forget his footsteps
And his dear, kind, loving face.

We grieve for you, dear Wilfred,
But not with outward show,
For hearts that mourn sincerely
Mourn silently and low.

—The Brown Family.

JONES—In loving memory of our dear mother, Mrs. W. M. Jones who passed away Oct. 23, 1920.

The rolling stream of life goes on
But still the vacant chair
Recalls the love, the voice, the smile
Of her who once sat there.

When for a while we part,
The thought will soothe our pain
That we shall still be joined in heart,
And one day meet again.

—Sadly missed by her two daughters.

COUNCIL OF LEAGUE OF NATIONS WILL MEET IN PARIS ON MONDAY PROBE GRECO-BULGAR DISPUTE

Representatives of the Two Countries Have Been Asked to State Case.

ATROCITY STORIES.

Both Sides Blame the Other For Acts of Aggression.

The fighting between the Greek and Bulgarian forces in Macedonia, growing out of frontier encounters between the guards of the two countries several days ago appears from all accounts to be slackening, at least temporarily, and on Monday the Council of the League of Nations, acting on the appeal of Bulgaria, will meet in extraordinary session in Paris to take up the dispute.

Representatives of Greece and Bulgaria have been invited to state their claims before the council.

An official communique issued at Athens stated that the military operation may be considered ended, the Greek troops have "attained their objective," by advancing into Bulgaria as far as Petrich. This was followed later by an official announcement of evacuation of Greek territory by the Bulgarians, but it was added that the Bulgars, in order to prevent re-occupation of an evacuated blockhouse, still were firing on Greek positions.

The view expressed in official quarters in the Greek capital is that the incident is now entering "a purely diplomatic phrase." It is pointed out, however, that Greece will demand satisfaction for the alleged aggression in the Demirhissar region on Monday last.

Bulgarian Plea.

On the other hand the Bulgarian authorities are insisting that the fault lies with the Greek guards. They admitted in their appeal to the League that Bulgarians shot a Greek soldier dead, but insisted that he had first attacked a Bulgarian sentinel on Bulgarian soil.

OTHER CASES.

Two Men Convicted of Reckless Driving Will Hear Punishment.

WINDSOR, Ont., Oct. 24.—(Canadian Press).—Sentence will be pronounced Monday upon persons convicted at the present sessions of the Supreme Court at Sandwich, according to a statement made by Crown Attorney James Allan yesterday. Ruth Janisse, Alfred Pentland and Edwin C. Lalonde will face Mr. Justice Grant. The first was found guilty on a charge of manslaughter, and the other two on charges of reckless driving, although originally arraigned on manslaughter charges.

Mr. Justice Grant adjourned court last night for the week-end. The Blight-Grainger case occupied the entire day. It was heard in camera.

Monday morning it is probable that the court will go on with the charge of breaking and entering and assault against Garnet Ferris, in connection with a hi-jack raid at the farm of Peter Dufour, McGregor Township, in 1922.

Following the Ferris case, which, it is anticipated, will go to the jury Monday afternoon, A. E. Fripp, K.C., Special Crown Prosecutor, expects to leave for Ottawa on private business.

NATIONAL UNITY URGED BY KING AT MASSEY HALL

Premier Considers Imperial Co-ordination Equal in Importance.

MR. MASSEY HEARD.

Admitted That His View Regarding Implement Duties Was Wrong.

TORONTO, October 24. — Canadian Press. — "National unity, and the need for national unity," this was the theme which ran through every speech at the Liberal mass meeting in Massey Hall last night.

Mr. Lapointe urged the need for bridging the gap between the east and the west; both Mr. Vincent Massey and Premier Dunning of Saskatchewan, pressed the argument.

"I am going to see," emphasized Premier King, "that so far as this government is concerned, there is going to be unity between the different sections of this country."

Mr. King added that he considered Imperial unity co-equal in importance with National unity. He urged Canadians to consider the country in three aspects—with regard to its National, its Imperial and its world status which it has achieved.

Mr. Massey was applauded when he admitted that in opposing the reduction in duties on agricultural implements a year and a half ago, he was wrong—"my view was wrong," declared Mr. Massey, "and I want you to know that it was wrong; what the government did in reducing the duties on farm implements was in the interest of agriculture, did not affect adversely industries involved, and was in the National interests."

And, speaking on the tariff issue, Premier Dunning urged a policy for "all the people." "If," he observed, "Saskatchewan were a whole country there might be some justification for absolute free trade, but Saskatchewan is not all Canada—and neither may I say is Ontario; neither of the two extremes can be good for Canadian people as a whole; neither an absolute Free Trader nor an advocate of high protection have really an all-Canadian point of view. I do not believe that people should be slaves of tariff but that the tariff should be made to serve all the people."

THE BALLOT BOX

By M. L. Harvey
212 Brock street

The Captains and the Kings depart. The thunders and shouting of battles cease. Roundhead and Cavalier alike withdraw from the field of controversy and strife.

In their stead, the silent ballot box presents itself in a thousand places. Its voiceless whisper is ominous: "Vote! Through me you decide.

"I am the prosaic ballot box. I come to replace the rapier and the reeking tube, where men have differences. I have neither emotion nor prejudice; scorn, pride, nor envy. I neither hate nor love. Yet I sit in judgment, with scales to weigh.

"Roundhead or Cavalier, you have neither rapier nor pike to-day—but a slip of paper and pencil, mightier weapons than those of a Cromwell or King Charles. I remind you but of two things: That paper is emblematic of your Conscience, and what you do to-day may in future years exalt or smite that Conscience. The pencil symbolizes the good and evil records of mankind; its marks to-day make history.

"Happiness, or tears? Be careful how you ballot!"

PRESENT DAY NEED OF YOUTH IS MORE PARENTAL CONTROL

President Coolidge Says People Leave Too Much to State.

ADDRESSED Y.M.C.A.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 24 (Canadian Press).—The present day need of American youth is "more home control through parental action," President Coolidge declared today in addressing the forty-second international convention of the Young Men's Christian Associations of Canada and the United States.

Describing the home as the "cornerstone of the nation," the President declared that control of the nation's youth from this source is preferable "to attempt in some way," to constantly increase the "Government's responsibility for the rearing of children."

"Too many people," he declared, "are neglecting the real well-being of their children, shifting responsibility for their actions and turning over supervision of their discipline and conduct to juvenile courts."

PARTY LEADERS INCUR DISLIKE OF PATENAUDE

SELL RAILWAYS.

To Relieve the Burden on Canadian Taxpayers, Says They Should Be Sold.

FARNHAM, Que., Oct. 24.—(Canadian Press).—"I have no personal ambition to serve, nor any interests to serve, even if chosen, and if I do not like the American tendencies which are noticeable in Mr. King, I also do not like the tendency towards imperialism which has been noted in Mr. Meighen. Also, both Mr. King and Mr. Meighen have tendencies toward maintenance of the national ownership of railways at all costs, whereas I say that, if necessary, they should be sold so as to relieve the burden which is pressing so heavily upon the Canadian taxpayers. Surely now you can understand why I wish to be free of men."

In these words the Hon. Mr. Patenaude, Quebec Conservative leader, explained his attitude towards the official heads of both Conservative and Liberal parties in addressing a meeting here yesterday.

POWERS AND PEKING IN CUSTOM PARLEY

Conference May Adjourn Because of Domestic Upheavals.

PEKING, Oct. 24 (United News). —Far Eastern history will be written Monday, when representatives of the Powers and the Peking Government convene in the long-deferred China custom conference with Americans in the customary mediatory role.

Civil war in the provinces puts the future of the conference in question, as the confreres may decide that that the conference may as well adjourn as soon as it meets, but whether the conference meets and continues to function or adjourns almost immediately, its importance will be great.

Waiters Want White Coats To Mark Craft

VIENNA, Oct. 24 (United Press). —Viennese coffee house waiters are demanding that the evening suits which have hitherto marked their craft, shall be abandoned in favor of white coats.

Their demands arise from the fact that the coffee house proprietors recently insisted that they buy some new clothes, as most of them show signs of many years' wear. In reply, the waiters insisted that they go into the white coat class and that the owners supply these.

COULD NOT FIND CAUSE OF DEATH

Open Verdict Returned By Jury on Dead Body in Creek.

DOCTORS' EVIDENCE.

WOODSTOCK, Ont., Oct. 24—(Canadian Press)—The question of how Thomas Henry Carr, of Paris, whose body was found in a creek near Richwood on October 9, came to his death seems destined to remain a mystery. After hearing all the available evidence at the inquest held at Drumbo yesterday, the jury brought in a verdict that there was not enough evidence to enable them to determine the cause of death. The most important evidence was that of Dr. Mitchell, of Drumbo, who admitted that he could not say whether the man was drowned or died from some other cause. There were several bruises and marks of violence on the body, he testified, particularly in the region of the throat, but he did not think that these were serious enough to be considered a cause for death. This evidence was corroborated by Dr. C. M. McKay, of Woodstock, who had assisted at the post mortem examination. Several relatives and friends of the deceased man gave evidence as to his life and habits but could throw no light on the mystery, beyond saying that they knew of nothing which would be likely to cause Carr to commit suicide.

BANDITS LOOTED CHEMICAL OFFICE

Held Up Manager and Stenographer With Silencer-Equipped Guns.

NO LICENSE MARKER.

HAMILTON, Oct. 24.—(Canadian Press.) —Threatening Alfred Winser, manager, with revolvers, two bandits this morning looted the office of Quaker City Chemical Works, escaping with $125 in cash. The police are guarding the exits from the city in the hope of stopping the robbers' car.

Winser and the stenographer were in the office of the plant when the pair made their entrance. They were unmasked and brandished revolvers equipped with silencers, Forcing the manager to tell where the money was kept, they scooped up bills and vanished in an old automobile. Winser rushed out in an effort to get the license number, but the number was missing from the rear of the car.

Bomb Found Under Home Burned Almost To End

WILKES-BARRE, Pa., Oct. 24.—(Associated Press).—With a fuse burned to within an inch of the end, a heavy charge of dynamite was found beneath the home of Frank Ciabotti. Police believe the dynamite was placed there and the fuse ignited while the family slept.

Ciabotti stated that lately he has been receiving letters threatening himself.

MEIGHEN DENIES RESIGNING FROM HEAD OF PARTY

Says Whispered Rumors Are Absurd—Sets Them at Naught.

NOT NEAR COLLAPSE.

Predicts Majority in Prairie Provinces—Liberals Depend on Progressives.

GUELPH, Ont., Oct. 24. — Canadian Press. — "Tonight I get a report that I have resigned the leadership of the Conservative party," said Right Hon. Arthur Meighen, in a campaign speech here last night. "This is even more absurd than the rumor sent out a few weeks ago by the Mackenzie King fabrication factory, that I was on the verge of collapse. This whispering campaign is practically the only one the Mackenzie King group is capable of." Mr. Meighen refuted the charge that he was in favor of the amalgamation of the Canadian National Railways with the C.P.R. The Conservative policy in that matter he defined as one of "pursuing a course which will rescue the National Railways from the fate of amalgafation or the bog of bankruptcy."

"I venture to predict that we will have more seats in the prairies than the Liberals. The Liberals will be more than ever dependent upon the Progressives even if they have a majority between them of membership of the Commons." In the remote chance that the 'Liberal-Progressive' alliance still held sway after the election, he said, "there would be a regime dependent upon "log rolling, yielding and surrender."

MARKET HALL RE-FURNISHED

New Chairs and Tables Add to Comfort of the Vendors.

POTATOES UP.

There was a good crowd of buyers at the farmers' market this morning and plenty of produce, with a large quantity of fowl for sale.

A big jump in potato prices was recorded. Fine samples that sold last week for $1.75 a bag were $2.25 this morning, and last week's sales of $1.50 quality were $2.00 a bag. Other vegetables and apples were at prevailing prices.

Upstairs, fifty new chairs have been added to the furnishing of the hall, to which new tables were recently added. The market clerk, Mr. Walter Stocker, points out that market tolls have not changed within the last thirty-three years, while eggs which hold then for a nickel a dozen, now reach the half-dollar mark.

Chickens were 20 and 25 cents a pound, eggs fifty cents a dozen, and butter from 47 to 50 cents a pound. Cream was 30 cents a pint. Honey was 25 cents a section. Ducks and geese were 25 cents a pound.

The ladies from St. James' Church who serve light refreshments had a busy morning, and a young group of girls who wished to remain incognito had a counter covered with birchbark novelties and home-made candy.

Horse radish in jars was 25 cents and 30 cents.

Pork was 19 and 21 cents a pound on the open market, and lamb 20 and 25 cents.

One dealer downstairs had little Jerusalem cherry trees that had a quick sale at 25 cents apiece.

The gasoline tax, now effective in 44 States, was originated in the State of Oregon in 1919.

COMMUNISTS SING THE RED FLAG OUTSIDE FAMOUS LONDON COURT WHERE 12 LEADERS ARE ON TRIAL

Sedition Case Now in Progress Stirs All London—Sir T. Humpreys Prosecutes.

UNDER MOSCOW.

Alleged Attempts to Seduce Troops to Mutiny and Create Civil War.

LONDON, Oct. 24.—A magistrate in the Bow Street Police Court yesterday began hearing the charges against twelve Communists taken in recent raids. The men were formally charged with inciting to sedition while outside a crowd of supporters sang the "Red Flag."

Sir Travers Humphreys, appearing for the Director of Public Prosecutions, said the defendants were being prosecuted as leaders and principal executive officers of two illegal organizations—the Communist party of Great Britain and the Young Communist League of Great Britain, both of which he declared received their orders from Moscow.

Sir Travers asserted that the defendants also had attempted to seduce armed forces to mutiny, and had openly advocated civil war.

During the morning a man in the crowd outside the court persistently waved a red flag. This was taken from him by the police, and a struggle followed. The man was arrested.

The defendants were not being tried because they called themselves Communists, Sir Travers continued, but because in the view of the prosecution all persons who disseminate by word of mouth or by public writings the doctrines of Communism are liable to trial for sedition.

He quoted extracts from books and pamphlets issued by the two organizations, urging among other things that the workers smash the capitalist state and organize soviets. The young workers, it was declared, must be educated for such a struggle.

Reckless Driving Still Prevalent

ST. CATHARINES, Ont., Oct. 24—"Everybody who drives a car should know just about in what distance they can bring it to a stop in either sand, pavement or ice," remarked Mr. Justice Mowat in Supreme Court yesterday afternoon.

Gideon Grant, a Toronto lawyer, interposed that not one person in 500 knows, to which the judge retorted: "Well, they should know. The reckless drivng in this province today is worse than anything ever before. Its about time motor drivers came to their senses and it would result in fewer accidents and deaths, and suits for damages."

3 UNKNOWN DIE IN GUN BATTLE WRECKING CAFE

Police Think Bootlegger War Responsible For Death of Men.

SOME ESCAPED.

Police Drew Cordon of Cops Around Place, But Thugs Got Away.

NEW YORK, Oct. 24 (United Press).—Three men unknown to the police were shot to death in a terrific revolver battle which wrecked a West side cafe here today. Police reserves, drawn from two precincts by the roar of guns at 4 a.m., threw a cordon around the district, but the survivors of the fight, if there were any, slipped through and escaped.

Furniture was smashed to bits, glassware and windows shattered, the walls punctured with bullets, and two men lay dead in pools of blood when the first policeman broke into the basement cafe whence came the sounds of firing.

A third man, still breathing but with a mortal wound in his head lay near a kitchen at the end of a short hallway. This man died about an hour later in Roosevelt Hospital.

When the police arrived all of the gunmen had fled. Tables and chairs had been torn apart for use as clubs in the free-for-all fight that preceded the shooting.

The police found eleven bullets embedded in the walls. The two men found dead in the hallway had been shot in the back, apparently as they fled toward the street. The man who later died at the hospital was found lying on the floor of the rear kitchen with an empty revolver nearby. The police began an investigation in the belief that the shooting was another chapter in bootleg warfare.

LONDON, October 24. — Canadian Press. — East Africa wants to develop her transport facilities and in this connection desires the British government to guarantee loans to the extent of 10,000,000 pounds as recommended by an East African commission which has looked into the matter. The Baldwin cabinet has decided to approve of the commissions recommendation in principle.

WINDSOR, Ont., Oct. 24.—(Canadian Press). — Remands of eight days were ordered yesterday by Magistrate W. E. Gundy in Police Court at Windsor in the cases of Alvin Black and Jack Pentland, both of Windsor, publicity and campaign managers for the two candidates in West Essex, who are charged with breach of a city by-law prohibiting posting election propaganda on fire alarm and police signal boxes. The cases are to be disposed of after the election.

ROMANY WOMEN INSPECTED SAFE

Were Thorough and Took Memento of $1,000 From the Collection.

WAS RECOVERED.

SELMA, Ala., Oct. 24 (United News).—In a chivalrous attempt to appease the curiosity of several gypsy women regarding the interior appearance of a bank vault full of money, an official of the Bibbs County and Trust Company escorted the women folk of a tribe through the strong room, but there will be no more favors of that kind. After the women had "inspected" the vault a check of funds showed $1,000 to be missing.

Policemen pursued the gypsies who rode in five large automobiles instead of in the gaily colored wagons with which tradition associates them. The $1,000 was recovered when the tribe was overtaken.

Forty of the wanderers are in jail.

LIBERALS MEET TO HELP SLADE

R. R. Hall Addresses Meeting in Colborne—Quotes Meighen.

TARIFF ISSUE.

R. R. Hall, K.C., in speaking in Colborne last night on behalf of Fred Slade quoted from the Rt. Hon. Arthur Meighen's speech delivered in the House of Commons on May 25th, 1920, as reported in Hansard as follows:

"We never can have a high tariff in Canada. We cannot have a high tariff in Canada for the most obvious reasons. In the first place a high tariff is unsound in principle in that it tends to eliminate one of the factors of competition, namely —foreign goods. Foreign goods must be allowed to enter into competition under fair conditions in this or any other country.

Since that time Mr. Meighen has had a sudden conversion and he now desires to increase the tariff, to have high protection, and, as many of his supporters say, "To have a tariff as high as Haman's gallows."

Between 1917 and 1919 foreign competition in Canada was largely eliminated, and Canadian manufacturers had the full advantage in effect of a tariff as high as Haman's gallows, and they took advantage of it to the full extent by increasing the cost to the consumer upon everything that he ate and wore, with the result that the "Rich became Richer and the "Poor became Poorer, and with the result that the masses were robbed for the benefit of the few.

It is on record that the Paton Manufacturing Co., Woollens made a profit in 1917 of 46 percent. on their investment, and in 1919 made a profit of 72 percent. The Manitoba Cold Storage Co., made a profit of 50 per cent. in 1917. The Ogilvie Milling Co. in 1917 made a profit of 48 per cent. The Harris Abattoir in 1917 made a net profit of 60 per cent. and the Lake of the Woods Milling Co., in 1918 made an abnormal profit out of the consumer of upwards of $400,000.

The system of an unduly protective tariff, when stripped of all its ambiguities, is a vicious system which gives the favored few the right to rob the consumer and to force him down to a lower standard of living.

It in fact forces the consumer to wear old clothes with patch upon patch, and to wear boots until the soles and heels are gone.

Principles Similar.

The underlying principles of the Laurier Tariff are the same principles for which Prime Minister King stands. The Laurier Tariff brought abnormal prosperity to Canada after he had been in power four years and so will King's.

Mr. Meighen's policy of high protection will mean increased cost of living and the making of abnormal profits on capital money invested such as were made in the year 1919 when he was about to become the leader of the Government.

The following is a statement of abnormal profits made by manufacturers on the following articles in the year 1919 upon their capital invested, the speaker said:

Women's wear	22 1-2	per cent.
Men's wear	23 1-3	" "
Woollen Yarn Mftrs	33	" "
Automobiles	76 1-2	" "
Boots and Shoes	41 1-2	" "
Cotton Textiles	26	" "
Canning Fruits, Vegetables	23 3-4	" "
Baking and Confectionery	28 3-4	" "
Meat Industry	35	" "
Profits Made Out of Meat	$30,254,000.
Glove and Mitt Industry	32 1-2

"The great consuming masses of the people have only to look at this list of abnormal profits to appreciate the extent to which they will be fleeced under a tariff that is as high as Haman's gallows and the extent to which the cost of living will go merrily rolling up and the savings of the great masses of the people will become less and less," was Mr. Hall's closing declaration.

"BRINGING UP FATHER" — Geo. McManus

Conservative Candidate Asked For Support on Policies of His Party.

ABLY SUPPORTED.

Col. McKay, Major McBrien, and Miss Galbraith, of Toronto Were Speakers.

(By a staff reporter)

LAKEFIELD, Oct. 24—Lakefield had a rousing greeting for E. A. Peck, Conservative candidate for Peterborough West, when he held a meeting here last night. On the outskirts of the village the local party was met by the Lakefield band, and escorted into town by a torchlight procession, with the band playing suitable music. After parading through the main streets the party was led to Memorial Hall which was packed to the doors with people wishing to hear the Conservative platform explained. Dr. Fraser was chairman for the evening and Messrs. Strickland and Charlton of the Lakefield Association were also on the platform. Besides Peck the speakers were Miss Galbraith, Colonel McKay and Major McBrien of Toronto, and V. J. McElderry of Peterborough.

In opening the meeting Dr. Fraser said that he wouldn't make a speech as he belonged to the silent profession, which left speechmaking to the lawyers. He said that this election was very similar to the 1878 election, which took place in his student days, and at which Sir John A. MacDonald was elected to put his "National Policy" into effect. He spoke of the young men who had left Lakefield for United States points within recent years. Speaking to Mr. Peck, he said that, while his opponents said that he was out of touch with affairs, Mr. Peck had been county solicitor for 20 years and must surely know what was wanted by the West Riding of Peterborough. Mr. Peck hadn't sought the office, but had been chosen at an open convention as the strongest candidate to redeem the riding, and was known as a square man all through the district.

E. A. Peck

In opening his address Mr. Peck congratulated the village on the splendid Memorial Hall which had been erected in honor of those who had paid the supreme sacrifice overseas. He said that there were two subjects on which he wished to speak, the general depression, and the resulting exodus to the United States. He said that if he were elected he would be able to give the fullest attention to the duties of his office and would try to be of some service to the riding and to the whole country.

"Is there depression in business?" he asked. "Perhaps there is none in Lakefield," he continued. "Your industries may be running at full time, but there is depression and slackness in Peterborough." The industries, he said, were not progressing, the men were laid off entirely or working on short time, and in larger centres the conditions were worse.

Mr. Peck quoted from the annual report of the General Manager of the Bank of Montreal. "Business generally in Canada is unsatisfactory but with some bright spots." He said that bankers are not politicians but are hard headed business men. "Our Liberal friends are content to have it so," he said, "and say that conditions are alright."

Speaking of the exodus to the United States, Mr. Peck said that the Liberals said that the people were not going to the United States, and that those who had gone were coming back, but the United States figures showed that many had entered that country in the past year with the intention of remaining permanently.

Lack of Protection

The depression was laid by the speaker to lack of protection, and he said that there was no hope for anything better from the MacKenzie King Government, in fact, it was feared that it might be worse. Mr. King himself had said little but Mr. Massey had said that the tariff should be lower and Mr. Dunning was pledged to work for lower tariff.

The remedy suggested by Mr. Peck was protection for industries, not high but adequate. He wanted to see the workingmen insured steady employment at reasonable wages. Mr. Peck said that Mr. Meighen didn't want a high tariff, although some of his speeches had been misrepresented as favoring such a tariff.

Protection, said Mr. Peck, includes protection for the farmers. A great portion of their produce is sold in Canada and this home market must be conserved for them by protection against competition from the United States and Australia. The market would be increased if the cities were larger and more prosperous.

Mr. Peck submitted the principle of protection as his platform on which he asked for support. Nothing else, he said, would work. The United States he offered as an example of a nation whose development had been largely brought about by protection, and he said that there was no reason why Canada, with its splendid resources of field, forest and mine, should not progress and develop as rapidly in the same way. He asked his hearers to think the matter over and to give him their support.

Lt.-Col. McKay.

Col. McKay was the next speaker. He referred to the associations surrounding this Memorial Hall to the dead in their country's service. He said that the reception that had been accorded Mr. Peck had been an honor to the candidate and a compliment to the Conservative party.

The speaker said that the Conservative party had always worked for the welfare and prosperity of the people of Canada, and it was the privilege and duty of its members to tender homage to the great ideals that had always actuated it in the cause of unbuilding the prosperity of the Dominion. He said that the Liberal leader, Rt. Hon. Mackenzie King, was a fine speaker and had many other good points, but criticized him for lack of sincerity and candor. "Too long," he said, "have we relied on the fallacious reasoning of an intellect educated beyond its capacity."

Col. McKay said that on October 29 West Peterboro would send back a candidate who would be a pillar in the Government of the Rt. Hon. Arthur Meighen.

The Railway Situation.

The speaker said that the railway situation was appalling. The Conservative party had arranged for the building of one railway which was needed to open up the West, and the Liberal party had made contracts to get another transcontinental railway built that was not needed. This proved so successful politically that before going to the people in 1911 the Government decided to build another line. The contracts that were made were faithfully carried out by the Borden Government, but they proved white elephants to the people and the Government found it necessary to take the roads over. This course was roundly denounced by the Liberal opposition, which promise when restored to power to hand back the lines to the private owners. When the Liberal party did get into power, said Col. McKay, the board of business men that had been running the railway was replaced by a board of political nominees, such as R. P. Gough, whose sentence for his part in the Home Bank crash was repealed because, although vice-president, it was shown that he knew nothing of the business of the bank. Suicidal competition with the C.P.R., and extravagant expenditures in fine buildings, radios, golf courses, etc., have helped increase the railway debt of Canada $234,000,000 in the past two years.

While the insane policy of the Government was causing a falling off in the traffic of the line, said the speaker, causing a cut in the staff which reduced the wage bill $8,000,000, the cost of superintendence was increased $550,000, due to raise in the salaries of the officials. The present Government and railway board have no conception of the value of money, the speaker charged, and the next government must grapple with the problem and put in an independent board that will realize that the railways at present are like a millstone on the necks of the people.

Depression in Canada.

"That the country is suffering from depression is not denied except by the King Government," continued Col. McKay. He mentioned the number of failures recorded by Duns, and agreed that they were getting fewer, but ascribed the drop in numbers to the fact that there had been such a large number fail that there wern't as many left and some of them were hanging on until after October 9. He told of a shipment of 50,000 pairs of boots made in Germany under very low wages and shipped into Montreal, under low tariff, at a price that the Canadian manufacturer could not touch. He said that it was said that the industrialists had always howled, but said a doctor did not diagnose the severity of his patient's illness by his howling, but by the evidence of his thermometer, and that the failures were the thermometer of business. He said that he was not surprised that Mr. King said that things were all right, as in 1917 Mr. King came back from his good job with the Rockfeller Foundation to try and smother the call from France and worked against conscription, so that he could not be elected in an English-speaking riding in Canada. "Will you support a man in peace time in whom no confidence could be placed in wartime?" he asked.

Hard times were ascribed by the speaker to the cogitations and vacillations of the Government. He asked the farmers if they found many people waiting to buy their produce. The market, he said, was glutted with produce from the United States before the Canadian product was ready for the market, but the tariff door for return shipments into the United States is slammed tight. Referring to the Australian treaty, Col. McKay said that climatic conditions were such in Australia that cattle could graze all the year round so that under the new treaty beef could be landed here at $18 per carcass, being produced for less than $5 a hundred; while the price of the wool equalled the cost of raising a sheep.

"The time has come for Canada to take advantage of her opportunities and keep her raw products in this country for manufacture in utter regardlessness of retaliation," said the speaker in referring to exports of raw materials. He referred particularly to asbestos, which he said, was shipped from Canada at $7 and sold after manufacture by United States workmen for $75, and said that the money paid to the workman should have been paid to Canadian workers.

He said that Mr. King had promised a cash grant to the returned soldiers before he was returned to power, but when he got into office he gave orders that no more grants were to be paid. "Solemn pledges," said the speaker, "were violated and repudiated and disregarded as coldly and callously as any scrap of paper after the purpose of the bribe had been obtained."

Speeking to the ladies, Col. McKay said that they had the opportunity of determining whether Canada was to be for Canadians or whether the wealth was to go to the people of other countries. He asked them if they were happy to see the best blood of the country crossing the border and those that remained paying homage to Mackenzie King; and if they liked to see the raw products leaving Canada and millions of dollars thrown away while the taxes were so heavy and depression rampant. In conclusion, he said, that Canada, great in the past and bound to be great in the future, would start towards that great future which is assured her after October 29.

a Miss Galbraith.

"The King Government has failed to recognize the vast importance of the tariff in the growth of industry. The condition of the country now is one of industrial demoralization and unemployment," said Miss Galbraith, of Toronto, who was the next speaker. Hundreds of men, including many returned soldiers, willing to work, are walking the streets or migrating to the United States. The migration thins the population and goods made from Canadian raw materials are dumped on the market by the American manufacturers, she said.

A raise in tariff is always followed by prosperity, said Miss Galbraith. As an example, she gave the change in conditions in Canada after the election of 1878, when the National Policy was introduced. If the Meighen Government should be returned, the Conservative party would protect industry and develop the resources of the country. No person, she said, should go hungry in a country with such resources, and there should be a welcome for immigrants.

"Has the King Government made the country rich?" asked Miss Galbraith. Industries have closed and if the King Government should be returned heaven knows where it would end, she said. Mr. Meighen has the courage to challenge with the sound principle of protection. Canada, she said, is limping along with a low protection while the United States prospers on a high tariff. "In ten years Canada has had an adverse trade balance with the United States of $2,000,000,000. Is it any wonder that the farmers can't sell their produce and that the manufacturers fail?" With adequate protection Canadian enterprise would make goods here for the Canadian market and the transportation problem would be remedied. If Canada is worth saving show it with votes on October 29, she urged the audience in closing.

Major McBrien.

Major McBrien, chairman of the Toronto Board of Education, made a plea for the expulsion of Mackenzie King, whom he said would be known to history as the Premier who ruled by compromise. He said that he wasn't there to plead on behalf of the manufacturers or the financiers or in the cause of public ownership, but because the truest test of the country's greatness was the kind of citizens it turned out, and he wanted an opportunity for the children of Canada in this country, rather than having them go to the United States after they had been educated here. The Canadian boy, he said, was born to the greatest heritage of any country of the world, and he asked why they must go to the United States to earn a livelihood. "We don't want immigrants, we want the people who are being driven out," he said. He referred to a letter received by Premier Ferguson which stated that there were 10,000 Canadians in Cleveland, and said that Canada wanted them back.

The question to be settled, he said, is not Senate reform or steamer service, but is unemployment caused by the lack of protection. Living next a high-salaried country, Canada can't afford to let in the goods from the countries of Central Europe. Unemployment is chargeable to Federal policies and not to the municipalities or provinces.

The Mackenzie King Government stands condemned for its failure to stop the emigration to the United States. An attempt was made recently which he said was too late as the people had lost confidence in the Government. Confidence must be restored by electing a Conservative Government.

He said that Mr. King had said that a man was not a patriot who waved the flag at election times. Major McBrien said that he was a flag waver and had given five of the best years of his life in upholding the flag without any help from Mackenzie King. Canadians, he said, didn't do enough flag waving, and he admired the American people for their great devotion to "Old Glory," ascribing the unity of the United States to that devotion. He said that he wouldn't call Mr. King anti-British, but asked why he should suggest changing the flag at a time when there were so many reds, and an annexation movement in the West, and a separation movement in the east. "If Mr. King were a loyal citizen he would have told the deputation that the Union Jack was Canada's flag and would not be changed."

Speaking of the election, Major McBrien said that Toronto would live up to its name, Tory Toronto, and that Hon. Mr. Murdock, who had been presumptuous enough to seek election there, would be among those defeated. He said that Mr. King himself was having a hard fight in North York. In conclusion, he said he was glad to help Mr. Peck, who was known as one of the squarest men in Canada.

V. J. McElderry.

Mr. McElderry said that the United States Government treated the tariff in a business-like way for the benefit of the people of the country. He instanced the embargo put on Canadian wheat at the present of the American farmers. The millers found that they could not make good flour for export without Canadian wheat, so they had a tariff imposed instead of an embargo, and arranged to get a drawback of 99 per cent. of the duty of 42 cents a bushel on all that was exported. The United States has found out that the tariff is a matter of business and has the highest standard of living in the world, while the Canadian market is open. He explained the working of the anti-dumping clause and the effect of its removal by the King Government. He asked the farmers if they were getting as good prices for their produce as in 1921, and said that protection was necessary to develop a home market to replace the one lost by the imposition of the Fordney tariff in the United States.

The meeting closed with the National Anthem and cheers for Mr. Peck.

GUARD THE BABY AGAINST COLDS

By Keeping Baby's Own Tablets in the House at All Times.

To guard the baby against colds nothing can equal Baby's Own Tablets. The Tablets are a mild laxative that will keep the little one's stomach and bowels working regularly. It is a recognized fact that where the stomach and bowels are in good order that colds will not exist; that the health of the little one will be good and that he will thrive and be happy.

Thousands of mothers have become convinced through the actual use of the Tablets that there is nothing to equal them in banishing constipation and indigestion; breaking up colds and simple fevers; expelling worms and making teething time easy. Among the thousands who praise Babys Own Tablets is Mrs. Alex J. Perry, Atlantic, N.S., who says:—"I always keep Baby's Own Tablets in the house as I know of no other medicine for little ones to equal them."

Baby's Own Tablets are sold by medicine dealers or by mail at 25 cents a box from The Dr. Williams Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

ROBT. GEORGE RUTHERFORD

CAMPBELLFORD, Oct. 24—Robert George Rutherford, died Friday morning at his home on the 11th concession, the boundary line between Rawdon and Seymour townships, after an illness that lasted for three years.

The deceased was born in Woodstock 66 years ago and when he was six months old his parents moved to the farm on which he died, and on which he had resided ever since. It was a 200 acre farm and half of it is now occupied by his son, Frederick M., the well known breeder of pure bred Ayrshire cattle. The late Mr. Rutherford was a successful farmer until ill health compelled him to give up active life. He was a Presbyterian in religion and a Conservative in politics all his life.

The deceased is survived by his wife, who was Miss Adaline Spencer and who was born and raised in that neighborhood, two sons and a daughter, Garnet of Havelock, Frederick M. on part of the homestead and Mrs. (Dr.) H. T. Scott of Campbellford. Mrs. John Lisle of Campbellford is a sister.

The funeral will be held Monday afternoon at 2 o'clock from the family residence to the Rylstone Church where services will be conducted by Rev. Hugh Shaw of Menie, a life long friend of the deceased, assisted by Rev. D. A. McKenzie of Burnbrae.

CARS DERAILED AT MADOC JUNCTION

No One Injured, But Tracks Badly Torn Up—Passengers Delayed.

A wreck occurred on the Canadian National Railways about four o'clock this morning, one-half mile west of Madoc Junction. Ten loaded cars and three empties were derailed, but there were no casualties. The track is badly torn up, resulting in the passengers being delayed through having to transfer around the wreck, but the railway authorities expect to have everything cleared up by this afternoon.

INFURIATED COW ASSAULTS CRAFT

Jumped From Gang Plank Into Water and Punctured Hull.

FORCED TO DOCK.

OWEN SOUND, Oct. 24 (Canadian Press) — An almost unprecedented incident is reported from Wiarton, where a cow charged a lake steamer and put it out of business.

The steamer Henry Pedwell, a small lake carrier, had brought a load of cattle down from Manitoulin Island, and included in the load was a particularly ferocious cow. When the boat was unloading, the cow jumped from the gang plank into the water. The enraged animal then charged the boat and managed to puncture the hull below water line so that steamer had to be taken to the marine railway in Wiarton and later to dry dock in Collingwood.

FILTERED RAYS FOR CANCER TREATMENT

Treatment For Head Parts Improved By Taking Out Radium Rays.

NEW YORK, Oct. 24.—(Canadian Press).—Physicians of the Memorial Hospital announced that by filtering out 90 per cent. of the caustic beta rays from radium and high voltage X-ray tubes, treatment of cancer of the tongue, lip, nose, ears and other parts of the head had been improved greatly. Filtering does not affect the heating and stimulating gamma rays. This achievement is regarded by some cancer authorities in other institutions as one of the most important advances made in the treatment of cancer since radium came into use for that purpose.

MARKETING ONTARIO'S APPLES.

The Ontario Government is to be commended upon the efforts it is making to find a market for the unusually heavy crop of apples in the Province this year, not only by arranging for the disposal of 25,000 barrels in Great Britain but by stimulating the home market by an advertising campaign to educate the people of Ontario's cities and towns to the use of their own apples.

In recent years Ontario apples have been crowded off the market here by fruit from the Pacific coast, and the Ontario urban consumer has been lured away from the home grown article by the attractive wrapping and display of the outside fruit.

Ontario produces some of the firmest, best flavored and finest apples to be found on the face of the earth and Hon. J. S. Martin, the Minister of Agriculture is on the right track when he seeks to win back for the home product the favor it formerly enjoyed.

Ontario people should make more use of their own apples and the Minister of Agriculture will do much to induce them to do so by the attractive series of advertisements he is placing before the Province through the newspapers.

TOO MUCH LIBERTY.

Dr. J. E. Davey, school health officer in Hamilton, declares that many children in that city are allowed to stay out too late at night, and as a result they are more or less incapacitated for school work in the morning.

Needless to say the criticism of the health officer is endorsed by the teachers, and the blame is placed where it belongs, on the shoulders of too indulgent parents.

The same condition to a considerable extent applies to Peterborough.

Too many youngsters are allowed an excess of freedom that is dangerous, and as the Hamilton Spectator phrases it, the young people of today are becoming a law unto themselves.

Lax habits are formed early in life and if parents refuse to assert themselves and see that they are obeyed or if they are so indifferent to the welfare of their offspring that they will not trouble themselves to do their duty it is no wonder that school health officers and school teachers are worrying over the situation that is developing.

It is a phase of the educational problem that organizations like the Home and School Association might find it profitable to study.

SETTING THE PACE.

Charles Quick of Vancouver, aged 105 years and Joseph Beland of Calumet Islands, Quebec, aged 108 years, both stoutly declare that they are going to use their franchise on Thursday.

This hoary pair, undoubtedly the oldest electors in Canada are setting a fine example to younger and more vigorous voters, many of whom seem indifferent to the issues of the campaign and some of whom in Peterborough have declared, that they are not likely to "bother" to vote.

When men over one hundred years of age have enough interest in the affairs of their home land to cast their ballots at an election there is not much excuse for the failure of comparative youngsters to exercise their franchise.

Next Thursday Canada decides the composition of the Government that will preside over the affairs for the next four years and decides for a considerable extent the policies under which she will eb governed.

Those are matters surey momentuous enough, business surely important enough to cause every elector to go to the polls—yet the fact remains that even with two political organizations exerting every effort to get out to vote, not much more than 60 per cent of those on the lists may carry out their duty as citizens of Canada next week.

THE TROTTING HORSE.

While the automobile has practically abolished the driving horse it apparetly has had not such influence upon his more aristocratic relative, the light harness horse, especially the light harness horse that is fast enough to win races. Last year there was distributed upon the Grand Circuit no less than $625,592 in purses, which is almost $50,000 more than was ever before competed for in a single season over the mile tracks which make up the major circuit. One driver won nearly $100,000. This was the redoubtable Tommy Murphy whose relation to the trotting turf is akin to the relation of Hildreth and Sande combined to the running turf. Murphy is a breeder, a trainer and driver of high-class trotters and pacers. Of course, not all the horses he drives are his own. Many of them, if not most of them, are the property of amateurs, some of them weathy, who find their chief relaxation in breeding or racing trotters, and who employ professionals of high ability like Murphy, Cox and Fleming to develop and drive them. In the past season many new records were established at distances that have only been recently recognized as racing tests. Horses on the Grand Circuit now race at five furlongs, seven furlongs, a mile and a furlong, two miles and a quarter and other distances that are standard on running tracks. Formerly the races were all at a mile, with now and then peformances at two miles or longer to prove that the modern trotter had not lost the stamina of his ancestors while improving upon his speed.

Two-year-olds now trot and pace at a speed impossible to their adult progenitors of forty years ago. This is due mainly to progressive breeding, although improved sulkies and perhaps farriery have contributed. They are as stout and as sound as those from which they have sprung and in every way they are better. Records will be reduced more slowly as time goes on, we believe, for the trotting horse is a thoroughbred in all but the technical sense of the word. He breeds true to type, and sports are no more to be found than they are in the line-bred thoroughbred. There are students of the breeding art who believe that by a return to the thoroughbred the trotter will be improved, and that a wise cross might result, in a couple of generations, in the production of a champion that might cut a full five seconds or even more from the mile record. But nearly all the breeders of the light harness horse are content to proceed by selection. It is by that process that the records have been reduced in the past and it is certain that by the same process they will be reduced in the future, though not likely by any such startling cut as advocates of the thoroughbred cross believe possible. The industry of breeding trotting and pacing horses received a terrfic blow when the automobile almost destroyed the market for roadsters, but the market for racing prospects quickly recovered and probably is as good today as ever it was. As a racing tool, a means of sport, the light harness horse was never held in higher esteem than today.—Mail and Empire.

NATURAL WEATHER SIGNS.

Weather prophecy holds a parennial fascination for reader as well as forecaster, and this notwithstanding the undoubted fact that out of many guesses—they are nothing better—few are even approximately correct. Perhaps because of greater popular familiarity with the foundation of belief, the public appears more deeply interested in signs and portents based on natural phenomena, particularly indications drawn from the behavior of birds and animals. Yet these often fail to harmonize, as witness the wild geese winging southward earlier than their wonted date, thus contradicting the prognostications of some other observer who reads a mild and open winter in the coloration of caterpillars. For, without the slightest scientific support, the early or late flght of geese and ducks is still taken as an augury. Poular belief in their infallibility as long-range forecasters persists.

Proof they give, too, primal powers,
Of a prescience more than ours,
Teach us, while they come and go,
When to sail and when to sow."

The United States Weather Bureau itself used to pay some attention to the migration of birds, but found that the natural prophets made quite as many mistakes as "Uncle Sams' official guess works," so called by Henry Watterson. The government's weather sharps do not pretend to be able to make predictions for months, or even weeks, ahead, nor do they believe for a second that their feathered or furred rivals have better advance information than they. In the bureau's opinion, "the faculty possessed by animals to interpret the signs of coming weather changes is limited to an instinctive appreciation of present atmospheric conditions, which are indicative of certain weather changes for periods of probably one or twelve hours in advance." But this may be too skeptical a view. It is unsafe to be dogmatic about a thing so mysterious and so profound as animal instinct.

The observation of naturalists, however, strengthens the Weather Bureau theory. For twenty years D. C. C. Abbott, of Trent, New Jersey, watched the muskrats build their houses and the squirrels store their nuts. He found that variations in their habits from year to year—favorite gauges of an "old-fashioned winter" or the reverse—has no relation to the ensuing winter weather. A year ago the squirrels on Long Island were unusually forehanded in gathering their winter supply of nuts, foreseeing a tough winter. Nevertheless, the winter began late and ended early.

Since last winter was not severe, the coming season will be bitter, many weatherwise observers think. John Burroughs noted that severe and mild winters alternate in eastern and northern America for a series of years—masculine and feminine winters, as he termed them, almost invariably following each other. But this formula, as he admitted, was broken now and then. He would cheerfully have granted that the geese were at least as well informed as he of the winter prospect. And Thoreau wrote of the wild geese that go honking over New York, perhaps about to settle in it, "not suspecting that greater geese than they have settled there."—St. Thomas Times-Journal.

VOICE OF THE PEOPLE.

All letters bearing on the pending General Election or political questions must bear the authentic name of the writer for publication. No letter will be published without the writer's name. This step is taken to protect the candidates from anonymous attacks and to assure Examiner readers of the legitimacy of the expressions of opinion in the communications.

NOTE WELL

Owing to space limitations no letter can be published that contains more than 300 words.

To the editor of the Examiner.—

Dear Sir.—I was present at Mr. Gordon's meeting at the Grand Opera house last night, and as soon as Mr. Gordon finished speaking I rose in my place where I was seated and I said, please may I make a statement, and ask Mr. Gordon a questio . I was greeted with cries of sit down and, throw him out, by supporters of Mr. Gordon, no doubt. Now I would courteously ask Mr. Gordon to answer any question I may ask him through your Voice of the People column. Thanking you in anticipation of a favourable reply from Mr. Gordon,

I remain, courteously yours,
JOHN SMITH,
148 Antrim Street,
October 20 Peterboro'.

FROM MR. DOBBIN.

Editor, the Examiner:—

Sir.—A letter has been received by the local board of the Mother's Allowances Commission, asking questions in regard to an allowance paid in this city to one of the beneficiaries, and suggesting tha reply to enquiries be given in the columns of the Examiner.

As the intimate facts in all cases on the local list are essentially private between the board and the recipient, if the person, who has written, will call at the secretary's office all information will be afforded but no general publicity can be made. Even though the citizens, as a whole, are partners in the work of the Commission, through the taxed amounts placed in the respective bills, and the work is done and benefits distributed in the public interest.

Respectfully,
F. H. DOBBIN,
Secretary.

To the editor of The Examiner:—

Sir.—Am not Grit or Tory, but am anxious to get along. When Jos. King and I came out Canada was importing, under protection, in 1921, 67 millions more than was exported, and she lost ten millions more that year in exchange with U.S., but the dollar rose under Mr. King and Canada exported 272 millions more than she imported last year. Why was Mr. Meighen and protection put out by over a million in 1921? Why wasn't everything just lovely then. Now, why, I could hardly buy clothes and boots and warm things for my family then. You all remember it. Protection raises prices that's why manufacturers want it. But God help us if the old prices come back. Vote for Gordon and King. That's what an anxious father's going to do though I don't know either of 'em.

ROBT. JOY,
Rink St.

NOT AN ISSUE BUT A FACT

To the editor of The Examiner.

Sir.—Collier's magazine, with a circulation of many millions sent out 1,000 men to find out from the people of the U.S. what they thought of Federal enforcement of Prohibition as against State enforeement, and the vote was pronouncedly in favour of State enforcement. Federal enforcement has led to rottenness and corruption of every kind. It is likely that the U.S. will go back to state enforcement which is really local option, and means that States that vote for prohibition and want it will enforce it, but those which do not will at least be honest about it and will no longer put the morals of the young in the hands of the underworld. The Globe, of October 17th contains an article by Prof. Jordan, of Queens, in which he says that excessive drinking in Britain is not nearly so great as alleged, and that reform by force and the abolition of good liquor are not in the least likely.

The U.S. is overwhelmed with crime, no less than 10,000 murders in one year and ten billions loss in booty. Why? Because Prohibition has made the underworld rich, powerful and attractive. That's why! It has ruined the moral phase of the country. It is an appeal to force.

In Great Britain, returns show only 8,000 in all the goals, many of which are empty.

In Ontario and the U.S., under Prohibition, goals are full and crime rampant. Why? Because prohibition cannot prohibit.

When a country gauges its standards of ethics by the lowest instead of the best in the land, it will and does fall to that level itself, and the stupidity of its good" people will pay in blood and ashes for its meanness and for its treachery to the laws of God already provided. —R. M. L.

To the editor of The Examiner:—

Sir.—Having some experience at Ottawa of our national affairs, it does not take much penetration to see that we are dying of dry rot. Is it because we have nobody to trade with? No! It is because we are not trying to trade with countries like the U.S. and the policy of running around like kittens after our own tails will never get us out of trouble. Trade is trade, and if we do not trade we will not have any trade. How absurd it is to cultivate a dog-in-the-manger policy of not allowing others to trade with us and yet expecting to trade with other people. If our tariffs, high or low, do not serve the purpose of promoting world-trade we will be just as we are forever, only more so. Ontario is in a worse state than any other province except Nova Scotia, because we have lost all iniative. The people who tell us what we ought to do and must do are no good to us when it comes to doing anything. They just live on us. We are taxing ourselves to death in this province for fine-sounding fads. We are producing in gold, silver, timber, cattle, wheat, enough to feed the world and yet we are poor and getting poorer, and it is our own fault. Until people are again free to live their own lives and to find their own markets and to cultivate that private enterprise which is the life of a people we will go down and down until the black flood of taxes closes over our head. This business of handing everything over to a government is fatal. What can governments do for us but get us into trouble and pile taxes on us. Nobody from Sir John to the present time ever contemplated a ring-around-a-rosy policy as the last word in national development and prosperity. Whoever is elected, let him stand for expansion not immigration. That is our only hope. It is time that people cannot find out, often till to late, what a government is doing for them or against them, but they do not seem to thank anybody for being bold enough and frank enough to tell them. The more people we get into this country the worse we will be if we do not expand on our trade. We insist on making the fatal blunder of supposing that trade is pushing our goods over a counter and taking in the money. It is not. Trade is Exchange.

SIX ARRESTED.

Charged With Part in Jewel Robbery in Broadway.

NEW YORK, Oct. 23.—(Canadian Press).—Six men were arrested today for a $50,000 jewel robbery in Upper Broadway last Monday, in which the automobile of a Maiden Lane jewellery concern was held up at the curb while dozens of persons were passing.

A THOUGHT.

SOME DAY, NOT FAR AWAY.

So many people treat God as a stranger. They do not deny Him—they only deny themselves to Him.

But let sickness, distress or disaster come and they call for His help long and loud.

They realize and accept God as a faithful friend in need and in deed, but they say to themselves, "Why bother with a true friend? He is always on call and ready to respond."

How fortunate it is for humans that God is forgiving! If He should show the same indifference to us that we show to Him, the sun would grow cold, the days be turned into nights and the whole world would soon become a tomb.

When I hear of a Rotary Club or a business fraternity halting for two minutes to ask God to send rain—when a hundred men or more men of all creeds and denominations bow in prayer and implore the Infinite to protect them, nothing can convince me that some day, not far away, men will stop fighting over religion and start living for it. —The Silent Partner.

OPEN LETTER NO. 29

RT. HON. W. L. MACKENZIE KING,
Prime Minister and President of the Privy Council,
Ottawa.

Dear Sir:

We are all agreed that one of the greatest aids to a quick and happy solution of Canada's present problems would be a big immigration movement! That brings up two important considerations—what class of immigrants do we want, and how are we going to attract them?

Heretofore it has been assumed that the class of immigrant we most need is the farmer. And complaints being loud and numerous that farming in Canada is not as profitable as it should be, we have tried to improve its condition, and so to attract farm settlers, by lower customs duties, in an effort to reduce farm production costs.

How has the plan succeeded? Has it gotten anywhere?

In 1924, despite tariff reductions made in the hope of benefiting agriculture, there were actually fewer farm immigrants than in 1923! And when against the total immigration for 1923 and 1924 we offset the tota emigration from our towns and cities, we find that the country has suffered a net loss.

Obviously there is something wrong—somewhere! Is it with our method for increasing immigration,—that is to say, by lower duties? Perhaps it's because we haven't gone far enough in that direction. Suppose we went the limit, and did away with customs duties altogether—except on luxuries—would our method succeed any better? Conceivably it might get us more farm settlers for a short time. But by closing up our factories, it would certainly accentuate the movement of city dwellers to the United States!

Now farmers as a rule don't sell to farmers. The natural customers for their produce are town and city folk. So if we increase our farm population by methods that decrease our urban population, are we not making things worse for our farmers, by curtailing a domestic market they can control, and increasing their dependence upon an export market over which they have no contro?

So for one thing, our method is apparently faulty. It is not calculated to secure a properly balanced increase in our population. And the farther away a country gets from a properly balanced population, the farther away it gets from being self-supporting!

But what about our assumption that it's agricultural immigration we most need? Suppose we consider for a moment the alternative—that it's urban population we most need. How can we get it?

Obviously by switching from a policy of ower duties to one of higher duties. And if our urban population increases as the result of adopting that policy, what about our farm population? Can it do other than increase in proportion? With more customers for farm produce, and with a higher purchasing power per customer due to higher wages, will not domestic supply keep pace with domestic demand, particularly if we protect farm products in the same way that we protect manufactured products?

I want to see a big immigration movement because we know that more people in Canada would mean larger markets for our farmers, manufacturers and merchants, more freight and passenger business for our railways, more clients for our professional classes, better values and saleability for real estate, more opportunity for everybody! All of us would then be better able to pay taxes! More happily still, we would have less taxes per head to pay, because the interest on our national borrowings—a fixed amount—would be spread over a larger number of people!

We have striven for those results by one method, based upon an unreasoned assumption, and have gotten nowhere. Why not let us now proceed to the alternative assumption, which seems much better founded, and upon it build by the alternative method, which seems infinitely more logical, particularly when we have the experience of the United States to prove to us that remarkable results have been obtained by a plan we have so far refused to try!

TWELVE OFFICERS OF HIGH RANK WILL JUDGE COLONEL MITCHELL

Trial of the Fiery Flier Will Open Next Wednesday.

"HERETICS TRIAL."

Says He Has No Chance of Proving His Assertions.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 24—When Colonel William Mitchell goes on trial next Wednesday on charges of conduct to the prejudice of good order and discipline, he will appear before what is said to be the highest ranking court-martial in its personnel ever convened in this country.

Colonel Mitchell is to be tried in Washington by a court of twelve officers, six of them major generals and six brigadier generals.

Major General Charles P. Summerall, commander of the Second Corps Area, with headquarters at Governors Island, N.Y., will be president of the court. He is the senior officer of the army on active service.

With one exception, the members of the court are West Pointers. Colonel Mitchell is also a West Point graduate.

There is no officer of the Air Service on the court, the two general officers of that service being ineligible on account of their own intimate concern in the public charges of Colonel Mitchell.

The court is convened by direction of President Coolidge, and it is probable he personally will review its findings.

The fiery flier is formally charged with vioating the ninety-sixth Article of War and is under technical arrest.

But when advised by friends that the court-martial had been ordered, Colonel Mitchell exploded:

"Why, they are reverting to the medieval practices of coercion. It's like the old trials of heretics. Those charges have been so worded as not to give me a chance to prove the truth of my assertions, which instituted this trial.

"I'm just going to be tried for daring to remind the conservatives that there is 'something new underneath the sun,' that there is a great new modern branch of the service, aircraft, which is being ignored in the administration of national defense."

"You notice they picked out the broadest article possible, under which to try me," remarked Mitchell with a bitter smile. "The 96th Article of War is admittedly the most embrasive of all army disciplinary measures. Officers are tried under it for kicking a horse."

TO BE HANGED.

Owen Baker, convicted before a Victoria assize jury, June 19, for the murder of Captain W. J. Gillis on the gas boat, Beryl G., off Sidney Island, September 15, 1924, must hang on November 4. The British Columbia Court of Appeal this week refused the application for a new trial.

KISSED A WINE CUP INSTEAD OF A BIBLE

Errors of Man in Windsor Court Caused Great Amusement.

WINDSOR, Ont., Oct. 24.—(Canadian Press).—The decorum of Magistrate Gundy's court was seriously upset yesterday by the hilarity of spectators when Hector Maurice, 36 years old, 1485 Parent Avenue, kissed an empty wine jug instead of the Bible when ordered to take the oath before he gave evidence in his own behalf on a charge of driving while intoxicated.

"Kiss the Book," Maurice was ordered by the court.

Maurice, confused, picked up the wine jug, an exhibit in his case, and a kiss resounded throughout the court. Several women in the audience approached a state of hysterics.

A fine of ten dollars and costs, with an order to pay thirty dollars damages to a car with which he collided, was his penalty.

WOMAN AND CHILD WALK 1,500 MILES

Trying to Journey From B. C. to Toronto to See Sick Husband.

WINNIPEG, Man., Oct. 24. —(Canadian Press).—Mrs. T. Whitehead, Victoria, B. C., and her twelve-year-old daughter, Lorraine, have arrived here after walking nearly 1,500 miles, the distance from Victoria to Qu-Appelle, Sask., in an effort to reach Toronto, where the woman's husband is sick.

Mrs. Whitehead and her daughter, being without means, decided to walk from Victoria to Toronto. They suffered many hardships before they reached Qu'Appelle. The local branch of the Great War Veterans' Association here heard of the case and furnished the railway fare to Winnipeg.

MORE AT HEAD LAKE.

One Paid a Visit to a Farm and Killed Some Sheep.

LINDSAY, Oct. 24.—(Special).—While the two little daughters of Chas. Hessman, of Franklin, were on their way home from school a few evenings ago, they saw a bear on the edge of the woods, bordering the highway. The children became quite frightened and ran to the nearest house. The little ones state that when Mr. Bruin saw them, he rose on his haunches.

Mr. Edward Magee, of Franklin, also saw the bear, and steps have been taken to round him up.

Reports from Head Lake, in the northern part of Victoria County, are to the effect that a number of bears have been seen prowling round. One of them ventured on to the farm of Mr. J. McFadden and killed a number of sheep.

FIRE IN SHIPYARD.

Three Engine Companies Engaged on Island in New York Harbor.

NEW YORK, Oct. 24.—(Canadian Press)—The fire boat Gopher Mills and three engine companies from Staten Island were called to Shooter's Island, in the harbour, yesterday, to combat a fire in the Standard Shipbuilding Corporation yards. Four hundred feet of marine ways had been reported burned at 11 o'clock. The fire started early yesterday morning and defied the efforts of the few persons near at hand. The shipyards have been inactive for some time.

BRITISH PAPER SEES DANGER IN LOCARNO PACT

Recalls Sir Wilfrid Laurier's Proposal on Eve of Great War.

IMPOSSIBLE IDEA.

Destructive of the Fundamental Principle of Sovereignty.

LONDON, Eng., Oct. 24.—(Canadian Press Cable). — Speaking to the representative of the Canadian Press and several other newspapermen yesterday, Austen Chamberlain, British Secretary for Foreign Affairs, reiterated that the Treaty of Locarno does not bind the British Dominions unless they voluntarily choose to become guarantors with Great Britain.

This week "The Outlook," which is hostile to the Locarno pact, says that before the outbreak of the Great War the late Sir Wilfrid Laurier suggested that a Dominion might remain neutral if the United Kingdom went to war, and his proposal was at once rejected on the ground that it was impossible in practice while theoretically it was destructive of the fundamental principle of sovereignty.

"Mr. Chamberlain has now in effect adopted and extended this remarkable doctrine," declares "The Outlook." "Mr. Chamberlain certainly was quite unconscious of what he had done, for he is a loyal son of a great father, but we may yet see fruit that will spring from this seed."

GERMANS REPLY TO IMPORTANT NOTE OF ALLIES

Communication Had Accused Berlin of Failure to Honor Disarmament Agreement.

THREE SECTIONS.

Council of Ambassadors' Decision Will Influence Cologne Evacuation.

PARIS, Oct. 24 (Canadian Press) —Herr Von Hoesch, the German Ambassador, yesterday afternoon, delivered the German reply to the recent allied note which charged Germany with failure to carry out the disarmament agreements. Foreign Minister Briand immediately referred it to the Council of Ambassadors. The note is made up of three sections. The first deals with what has already been accomplished in the way of disarmament, the second with what will be accomplished before November 15, and the third, what will remain to be done after that date.

The council of Ambassadors will give the communication its attention without delay as upon its report will largely depend the matter of evacuation of the Cologne area.

MADOC BRETHREN CONFER DEGREES

Stirling Lodge, I.O.O.F., Assists in Work at Joint Meeting.

MADOC, Oct. 24—On Wednesday, October 14, Madoc I.O.F. No. 179, paid Stirling Lodge a friendly visit and conferred the third degree on Stirling candidates.

Wednesday evening of this week the Stirling brothers reciprocated by invading Madoc lodge rooms, thirty strong, and exemplifying the second degree in that capable manner for which the Stirling brothers have become noted.

Besides the members of Stirling lodge many of the Springbrook brothers were present to see Madoc lodge confer the third degree upon a Springbrook candidate. The manner in which this degree was exemplified also brought much favorable comment from the assembled Oddfellows.

At the conclusion of the regular lodge session the fourth degree was conferred by the local brothers. During the refreshments Bros. Hawthorne and Wellman of Madoc and Fraser of Frankford formed an orchestra which added considerably to the enjoyment of the evening. In fact so inspiring was the music that James Brownson, one of the candidates, and Bro. Wm. McInroy, Past Grand of Springbrook, enlivened the proceedings by a fine exhibition of high-class step dancing. So skillful was their performance that one remarked that had these two gentlemen been at the Fair they would have captured all the prizes in sight. Bro. Parks of Stirling with his Irish recitations was vociferously applauded, while his rendering of "The Irish Philosopher" brought down the house.

At a meeting held in the Conservative rooms on Tuesday evening arrangements were made regarding the provision of cars for election day and the appointment of scrutineers.

RED ROSE COFFEE "is good coffee"

BACK OF A GOOD NAME

Rarely in manufacturing history has a name entrenched itself so firmly in the confidence of the entire world as the name Dodge Brothers.

Everywhere and to everyone this name means but one thing: a product built honestly of the best available materials and sold at a just price.

Behind this product, this price and this enviable reputation lie certain impressive and fundamental facts.

So important is a knowledge of these facts to the motor car buyer that Dodge Brothers (Canada) Limited, have determined to publish them, from time to time, until every newspaper reader in Canada may be presumed to have read them:

Dodge Brothers, during the past eleven years, have built and sold more than one million four hundred thousand motor cars—and more than 90% of these cars are still in service. This record requires no comment. It stands impressively alone in motor car history.

It has never been Dodge Brothers policy to build yearly models. When an improvement, that is really an improvement, is discovered, it is made at once. Their slogan, "Constantly Improved But No Yearly Models" is familiar the world over.

Dodge Brothers build one chassis and only one. This policy materially lowers manufacturing cost. It also enables Dodge Brothers engineers to concentrate their entire time and thought on the betterment of this one type.

Dodge Brothers have never had an "off year" or an "off car." This is because they have never used the public as a testing ground for "new models" or lowered the quality of their product in the slightest degree. Every change has been an improvement on the original design.

Dodge Brothers pioneered in building the first all-steel open car and the first all-steel closed car. These epochal developments have saved Dodge Brothers owners many millions of dollars by materially prolonging motor car life and by effecting marked economies in manufacture. This construction has also reduced incalculably the danger from accident and fire.

Dodge Brothers sell directly through their dealers to the purchaser. There are no sectional distributing agencies to increase the cost of distribution and the cost of the car.

Dodge Brothers have never given so-called "free service." The car is sold at a fair and honest price. Nothing is added to this original purchase price to pay for service that the owner may never need.

Dodge Brothers Dealers were pioneers in adopting the flat rate service system. By this system, the owner knows in advance what any service job will cost. There are no unpleasant surprises in his bills.

The sturdiness and long life of Dodge Brothers Motor Car is reflected in its resale value. Comparatively few Dodge Brothers Motor Cars are advertised in the resale columns of the newspapers. The values they bring testify unanswerably to their goodness—and the public's belief in their goodness.

The time has passed when transient novelties can lead a thoughtful buyer to overlook the great essentials of motor car worth. A few of these essentials, outlined above, go far to explain why Dodge Brothers name is accepted, the world over, as the hall mark of dollar-for-dollar value.

Disease Germs Doomed

Many have lost terrors for the Scientist

The progress of recent years in medical research is little short of marvellous. Daily, science kills germs by the million. Daily, new ones are being discovered, isolated and exterminated by the march of medicine.

Science is winning. What were once regarded as serious diseases are now laughed out of countenance by the doctors. Fearlessly they plunge naked hands into swarms of them, their only precaution being to rinse their hands afterwards with a reliable germicidal preparation. We are witnessing the birth of an era when the world will have little to fear from microbes.

TRINITY CHOIR LOSES LEADER

OFFICERS ELECTED.

On Thursday evening, October 22nd, the members of Trinity choir, about forty in number, gathered at the home of Miss L. Emmerson, 207 Park street, by kind invitation, to hold their annual meeting, elect officers for the ensuing year and other business and to spend a social time.

The annual report was read by the secretary treasurer, Mrs. B. McLeod and showed the past year had been an all-round good one, the membership well maintained, attendance at Sunday services and week night practices very good and all committees performing their duties excellently and the spirit of harmony amongst the members left nothing to be desired. The financial report showed a balance on hand of $15.22.

The important event of the evening was a presentation to Mr and Mrs. Geo. H. King, organist and choir leader and soprano solo respectively who are very early in November leaving Peterboro for Windsor, where they will take up duties at the Central United church, the pastor of which is the Rev. Mr. Thomas, well-known to Peterboro people by his pastorate at George street church.

The gift was a cabinet of silverware and an illuminated address which was read by Mr. J. Kennett and was as follows:

To Mr. and Mrs. Geo. H. King:

Dear friends,—

There comes a time in the life of many when farewell has to be said. Such a time has now come to you both and we, the members of your choir of Trinity United church regret very much indeed your departure from amongst us. When you came to this church eight years ago you found a very disorganized choir, but under your very able leadership as organist and choir master you succeeded in organizing and training a choir which today stands second to none amongst the choirs of the City of Peterboro and every member appreciates to the full the training they have received under your baton.

Not only we but hundreds who have received private tuition for vocal and instrumental music from you testify to the excellence of the training which is making singers and musicians of them, very many of whom have received honors and degress at the annual examinations both here and at Toronto and we cannot overlook the fact that several of your pupils now occupy prominent position as soloists in city and suburban churches. These things speak for themselves and makes us all the more regret that not ony we and Trinity church but Peterboro will be losing from its musical life two prominent and enthusiastic music lovers whose places will not be easily filled.

We are glad to know though, that in you new sphere of labor, your services and the sweet singing of Mrs. King will be much appreciated as they have been here and Windsor is to be congratulated on adding to its numbers two such enthusiasts who will be a credit to its church and city life and whose popularity in musical circles could well be en-

We ask your acceptance of the accompanying gift, a cabinet of silverware as a very small token indeed of our united esteem and respect and we wish you both and family a long and prosperous career with God's blessing ever upon you all

On behalf of Trinity United church choir: A. J. Langford, pastor; David R. Fleming, president; James Ridyard, vice-president; Bertha McLeod, secretary treasurer.

Peterborough, Ont. Oct. 31, 1925.

Mr. R .D. Fleming made the presentation which was accompanied by the autographs of the choir members

Mr. King on rising to reply and after the first shock of the surprise was over and breathing again became nomal, said he felt it was one of those times when words not only utterly failed to adequately express one's true feeling but could in no way express the thanks he would wish to convey for the great kindness and very generous gift just presented.

His work with the choir had been a pleasure and in saying goodbye to the members he wished to take that opportunity of thanking them all for their very loyal support and wished them continued success, he could not trust himself to say more just then but would do so later on.

Mrs. King with ill-concealed emotion very feelingly endorsed the words of her husband and expressed the great pleasure it had always been to work side by side with those who by their loyalty and splendid spirit of unity had made it very hard indeed, now the time had come, to say goodbye but she would look back on the years spent in Peterboro and the friendships formed as two of the pleasantest memories in life.

Mr. D. Fleming and Mr. R. F. Downey also said a few words expressing regret at the departure of Mr. and Mrs. King and wished them aboundant success in their new "sphere of labor."

Following the presentation the remainder of the evening was devoted to amusements, etc, Two guessing competitions afforded much fun, the prizes for same, donated by Miss Emmerson, being won by Miss Alva Jackson and Mrs King.

Music and singing were followed by dainty refreshments being served. A very hearty vote of thanks was accorded Miss Emmerson for her kindness in opening her home and making the evening the very enjoyable one that it was.

"For She's A Jolly Good Fellow" was heartily sung by all and the evening became a very pleasant memory.

The officers elected are as follows:

Hon. President—Rev. A. J. Langford.

President—Mr. D. R. Fleming

Vice-Pres.—Mr. James Ridyard.

Sec.-Treas.—Mrs B. McLeod.

Librarian—Mr. J. Kennett.

A.Y.P.A. MEETING.

Representatives To Convention Were Appointed—Some Community Singing.

OMEMEE, Oct. 24.—Music was the predominant feature at the A. Y. P. A. meeting on Monday, October 19. Although the weather was somewhat inclement, there was a good attendance. It was definitely arranged that Mrs. V. Jones and Miss Marion Dickson officially represent the Omemee branch at the convention at Brantford this week. The programme for the evening was opened with a solo by Mr. W. Clemett. A musical romance was then given by Miss Marion Dickson and Miss Ethel Stephenson, which afforded considerable amusement to all. The prizes were awarded to Misses E. Curry and Edna Morton. Some lively community singing was indulged in, which fitly concluded an evening devoted to music.

A set of pictures featuring missionary work along Prince Ruper coast is planned for next week, which will undoubtedly be of much interest. All members were reminded of A. Y. P. A. Sunday which is to be October 25.

"Why I Should Vote Conservative"

CHILD LABOR

is a smear of blood and tears across the face of civilization

Goods made by child labor in foreign countries freely enter the Canadian market under our low tariff policy. We prohibit the products of convict labor—Why not those of child labor too?

Clean, up-standing Canadian workers — heads of families where the children go to school—need decent living wages, and should not be asked to compete with the starvation pay of child labor in foreign countries.

Keep out the products of foreign child labor and foreign sweat-shop labor. Give our adult Canadian workers jobs that will support Canadian standards of living.

Such a move, he said, would be a proper American contribution to the latest international peace movement started by the nations of Europe at Locarno.

EMBURY ADDRESSED APSLEY ELECTORS

Appealed For Support of Protection Policy—Scores Progressives.

APSLEY, Oct. 24.—Dr. Embury, the Conservative candidate for Peterboro' Hastings, riding, accompanied by Mr. Rollins, of Coe Hill and W. Nugent, paid a visit to Apsley on Tuesday and addressed a gathering of electors in St. George's Institute in the afternoon. There was a fairly good attendance considering the inconvenient hour. W. Lean ably presided at the meeting. Mr. Chas. Rollins was the first speaker, and in opening referred to the qualifications of Dr. Embury as parliamentary candidate, recalling that he was ex-Warden of the County of Hastings, was councillor several years, and Reeve of Bancroft. He declared that the work done by Dr. Embury while Reeve was not equalled by any other small municipality in Ontario. He had, during his term of office, secured a cement bridge at Bancroft, a special grant of $2000 to the Continuation School, and a big grant for the Community Hall. He was an aggressive man, and if elected, of which he had not the least doubt, as prospects were never better, he would serve his constituency well. In dealing with the question of emigration to the United States, the speaker said if the U.S. are cute enough to keep their mills working when our own mills can't furnish work they deserve to be complimented. We spend three or four years in educating our young people in their trade and then they go away. If a tariff policy were in force it would keep them at home. The speaker then touched on the pulpwood embargo. He said that he had bought pulpwood from many who were in the hall today. There was no embargo at the present time and prices were as cheap as for the last ten or twelve years. You are told if there is an embargo you can't sell—rot! Twenty-five years ago he bought pulpwood loaded on car at $2 a cord, and it was shipped to Rochester. When mills were built in Canada it fetched more. Pulpwood was cheaper in Switzerland, so they did not need to buy here. The pulpwood embargo was just a vote catcher.

W. Nugent spoke next. He said that Mr. King in his speech at the dissolution of Parliament spoke of four factors in the coming election—tariff, transportation, emigration, taxation. He agreed that it was necessary to reduce taxation in this country. "We are taxed for nearly everything that we use, and that by direct taxation, if we lower the tariff we shall have to make it up. The U.S. Income Tax is only one-quarter of ours and people are going to the States to avoid the income tax here. I am not against the income tax, but it should be paid to the municipalities, collected and returned to them."

Some were taxed as high as 71 per cent of the income and that looks to me more like confiscation than taxation. There are two ways to reduce taxation, decrease expenditures and develop resources. Cut out all unnecessary expenditure. For instance, the late government bought a hotel in Paris for three million dollars, a Union Club in London. Two millions large expenditures from which they get no results. North Hastings and North Peterboro' had unlimited mineral resources if developed. 35 per cent. of the total tonnage carried on the railways was minerals. The only way to get the C.N.R. to pay was to get more business, and more population, and that can be done by developing resources. With regard to emigration in 1924, it cost nearly 3¼ millions to provide 148,000 emigrants. In the same year 2 million Canadians left for the U.S. If that amount was spent in developing resources it would procure more emigrants. There are nine million people in Canada. If there were twenty million covering the same territory how much easier it would be for the general taxpayer. "The speaker concluded by referring to Dr. Embury's municipal and military work.

Dr. Embury spoke very briefly. He thought that every candidate should unequivocally state his position on points on which the public desired enlightenment. He was an out and out protectionist. The protection policy was the one policy that would save the financial condition of Canada. Canada was prevented from being among the eighty three countries that had protection, by the Progressives, especially from the Western part of Canada. They all know the history of the U.F.O. government, made up of incompetency, theft and bad management, until the whole thing collapsed like a house of cards. The liberal policy was not conducive to the best interests of the country. Their policy was stated in vague terms. There must be definite statements in this campaign. Why should they have protection? Because nearly half a million Canadians went to the U.S. because they couldn't get work in their country. Why couldn't they get work here. Because the factories were closed. The industrial centres were being depopulated because there was no work. "Prohibition has been taken up by my opponent," said Dr. Embury, "I want to say that I will support any sane temperance legislation that is brought up in the House." The candidate concluded by appealing for the support of the electors, if they felt that they could trust him, he could faithfully promise that he would not betray their trust.

News Print Increased From 215 to 1,525 Tons Per Day —Bigger Pay Roll.

PORT ARTHUR, October 24. — Canadian Press. — Hon. James Lyons, Ontario Minister of Lands and Forests, last night at a public meeting, announced that his department had allotted pulp limits to the Great Lakes Paper Co., of Fort William, the Thunder Bay Paper Co., and the Provincial Paper Mills of Port Arthur, and the Nipigon Fibre Co., of Nipigon, sufficient to increase the quantity of news print manufactured at the head of the lakes from 215 to 1525 tons per day, with an increased pay roll of 9680 men, which would mean a population of over 40,000 people.

The limits were being allotted, the minister said, under guarantees that the manufacture into the finished product would be undertaken within 30 days of the signing of the agreements and he said the development thus provided for would make Port Arthur and Fort William the greatest newsprint producing centre in the world.

Mr. Meighen Speaking:

"We can never have a high tariff in Canada.

"We cannot have a high tariff in Canada for the most obvious reasons.

"In the first place a high tariff is unsound in principle in that it tends to eliminate one of the factors of competition, namely, foreign goods.

"..... we must always have in this country nothing more than a moderate tariff under any conditions whatsoever."

Hansard, May 25, 1920

Mr. Gordon Agrees with this presentation of the case by Mr. Meighen.

Liberal Publicity Committee.

DOES MR. GORDON THINK WORKING MEN ARE FOOLS?

For sheer effrontery and utter disregard of facts and conditions, nothing in the present campaign can surpass the declaration from Mr. Gordon's press bureau that "Gordon deserves every labor vote." Does Mr. Gordon imagine that the men who work in Peterboro's factories are mentally deficient that they are blind to their own interests and unable to follow for themselves the career of Mr. Gordon?

In the name of all that is sensible, why should any working man vote for Gordon?

Why should any industrial worker in Peterboro support a candidate who not only has done nothing for labor, but, on the other hand, has helped the tariff tinkerers injure Peterboro industries, throw Peterboro workers out of employment, and send hundreds of them into the United States?

MISSED HIS CHANCE!

Mr. Gordon had his chance last year to stand by the workers of Peterboro.

Mr. Gordon had the greatest opportunity of his lifetime last year to prove a real friend of labor when the tariff changes made necessary by Progressive pressure were introduced—but he failed miserably, lamentably, utterly.

There were real Liberal friends of labor in Parliament—but Mr. Gordon's name is not among the list of those who preferred to stand by the welfare of the industrial workers of their constituencies rather than to stand by the political fortunes of their party.

Euler of Kitchener was a real Liberal friends of labor when he declared, "I have a responsibility toward my constituents which I feel very keenly," and voted against the Government of which he was a member.

Raymond of Brantford was a real Liberal friend of labor when he declared, "If I have to plow a lonely furrow, at least I will attempt plow it with a Brantford plow," and voted against the Government. But Gordon of Peterboro, professed Protectionist, self-acclaimed friend of labor, with the golden opportunity of his career to show that his interest in the working man during election campaigns was not confined to mere lip-service remained servilely with the Government—and let Peterboro industries go undefended.

This is the Mr. Gordon who has his press bureau proclaim that "the man who works for his living wherever he is or whatever he does should vote for G. N. Gordon."

Does He Think the Workers of Peterboro Are Fools?

E. A. Peck did more for labor in his four years in the Legislature when he helped put the Workmen's Compensation Act on the Statute Books than all the talking Mr. Gordon could do if he lived to be a hundred.

The worker who votes for Mr. Peck votes for a policy of adequate protection that will guarantee the industrial employees of this city against the competition of foreign working conditions and low wages; he votes for his job, for his bread and butter.

The worker who votes for Mr. Gordon votes for a tariff policy that will go just as far toward free trade as Robert Forke and his Western Progressives can drive the Liberal Government—should fate be so unkind to Canada as to give her four more years of tariff reduction.

Because the only thing that the workers can depend upon Mr. Gordon to do is what he has done in the past; glue to his party and his own political interests no matter how much injury may be done to the industries of Peterboro.

GORDON BETRAYED THE WORKERS OF PETERBORO IN 1924—can the workers of Peterboro afford to take any more chances?

THINK IT OVER.

MR. PECK WON'T LIKE THESE FACTS

They are taken from a staunch Conservative publication whose editorial columns howl blue ruin while its news columns shriek prosperity. Mr. Peck quarrels with Canada Year Book figures, but a Tory Sheet gives him a knock-out blow-

That there is absolutely no truth in the blue ruin howl that is ascending from Mr. Meighen's ranks on all sides is evidenced by one of the party's strongest organs, The Financial Post. It admits through its Year Book for 1925 that Canada is improving all along the line. And it not only admits it, but enthuses over it.

The Financial Post is the Tutor, Guide, Philosopher and Mouthpiece of the Big Interests the Conservative leaders are working for. Its editorial columns fairly howl "Meighenism."

In fact, in its issues lately it has been predicting victory for the man who expounds the gospel of the Big Interests—"We for ourselves alone." Very carefully, of course, it explains that this prediction is based on the opinions of readers of the paper—THE MEN AT THE HEAD OF THE BIG INTERESTS. It is noteworthy that the Financial Post does not place Mr. Gordon among the victims of the Big Interests' steamroller, so THE MEN IN PETERBOROUGH WHO READ THE FINANCIAL POST MUST HAVE A PRETTY GOOD OPINION OF G. N. GORDON.

You know Mr. Peck's special line of talk—ruination of manufacturers by low tariff; rusting wheels of industry; cobwebby stores; and all the long, crepe-hung, rigmarole of hard times? Of course, you do. He's talking it every day.

BUT LISTEN TO THIS!

The 1925 "Financial Post Survey," prepared by the same people who now predict the election of Mr. Meighen on his blue ruin platform, tells almost enthusiastically of the improvement in all branches of Canadian business—agriculture, fishing, mining, construction, manufacture, shipping and production of all kinds. Even the large headings over the different chapters reflect the throbbing prosperity to which the blue ruin artists could not but give articulation.

THERE IS NO ARGUMENT OVER THESE FIGURES. MR. PECK DOESN'T LIKE FIGURES. HE SHOWED THE OTHER NIGHT THAT HE DOESN'T EVEN LIKE HIS OWN FIGURES REPEATED. BUT THESE FIGURES AND FACTS STAND ALONE. They are not prepared by the Government, but by the staff of this Conservative organ—a competent authority, as Mr. Peck would probably say in his legal parlance.

In the foreword the publishers say: "All theoretical survey information has been discarded, that the pages of the Survey may be given over to the EXACT PRESENTATION OF RECORDS and estimates." That establishes beyond peradventure of doubt the bona-fides of the accounts presented in the 1925 volume.

The following excerpts are taken word for word and figure for figure from the Survey without comment by the Liberal Publicity Committee.

Look them over and then try to puzzle out where Mr. Meighen, Mr. Peck, Messrs. Strickland, McElderry and Denne get their hunch that Canada is going to the dogs.

GENERAL RISE IN TOTAL VOLUME OF BUSINESS

(Financial Survey Heading)

"In the beginning of autumn, retailers in the small towns virtually all across the country began to report a slight increase in buying, and this movement gradually gathered strength. Collections gradually became easier, and the increased purchasing power of the country soon affected the manufacturing industries and the general channels of commerce. INCREASED PAY ROLLS TURNED MORE MONEY BACK INTO COMMERCE, and the improvement became general. . . . The farmer is placed in a more enviable position than that in which he has found himself since war days."

BUSINESS MOVES UPWARD

(Financial Survey Heading)

"Many factors are turning in favor of business improvement at the present time. The foreign trade position is better than it has been for a least five years. In general, conditions favor a gradual betterment.

MINERAL PRODUCTION OF CANADA

PRODUCTION

NOTABLE IMPROVEMENT HAS TAKEN PLACE IN TOTAL REVENUE, OWING TO PRICE INCREASE.

	1921	1924	Increase
Net annual Canadian production	$3,050,350,215	$3,411,359,518	$361,009,303

OUTPUT OF LEADING MINERALS

	1921	1924	Increase
Gold	$19,148,920	$25,000,000	$5,851,080
Silver	8,485,355	11,500,000	3,014,645

Nickel	6,752,571	20,000,000	13,247,429

The total value of the Canadian mineral output in 1924 was $43,076,648 greater than in 1921.

TREND OF THE STOCK MARKET

"Better earnings are already in sight for the basic producers; the turn of the distributers should come later."

GORDON'S ELECTION CONCEDED

The Financial Post, a Conservative paper that upholds the big interests, has in two issues acknowledged that Gordon will be elected over Mr. Peck-

Here is what it says:

TO BE ELECTED.

WEST PETERBORO.

HON. G. N. GORDON

LIBERAL.

That tells you what Mr. Peck's own Partizans Think!

Be on the winning side!

UNEMPLOYMENT EXISTS BUT IMPROVEMENT UNDER WAY

(Financial Survey Heading)

No comparative figures are given earlier than 1922, when the percentage of unemployed was 13.9, in January. In September, 1924, the percentage of unemployed was only 5.9 in all Canada. A chart prepared by Financial Survey shows 78 per cent. employed in 1922 and 93 per cent. employed in 1924. —(L.P.C.)

AUSTRALIAN TREATY

"Efforts toward a reciprocal tariff arrangement between Canada and Australia have continued for many years, but agreement appeared difficult, because of the similarity of many of the essential export products of both countries, AND THE MUCH LARGER MARKET WHICH AUSTRALIA OFFERS FOR CANADIAN PRODUCTS THAN CANADA FOR AUSTRALIAN GOODS. Such an agreement was, however, finally consummated. . . ."

MANUFACTURING TENDS UPWARDS AFTER LONG DEPRESSION

	1921	1924	Average Monthly Increase
Average monthly production of pig iron (long tons)	50,000	55,000	5,000
Steel (long tons)	56,000	60,000	4,000

THE CANADIAN BUILDING SITUATION

The building industry, including the production of materials as well as the construction of building and engineering projects, stands second only to agriculture among the Canadian industries. During the past year much progress has been made toward the stability of building costs, and greater productivity of labor, as well as increasing interest on the part of capital.

Construction contracts awarded:

1921	1922	1923	1924
$240,133,000	$331,843,000	$314,254,000	$276,261,000

EXPANSION OF MILLING OUTPUT

(Financial Survey Heading)

"Indication of Canada's growing importance in wheat and flour exporting is seen in the fact that during the fiscal year 1923 to 1924, exports of flour from the United States increased 61 per cent. over pre-war figures. . . . Canadian exports in the same period increased 218 per cent."

	Fiscal Year 1921-2	Fiscal Year 1923-4
Exports of flour from Canada (barrels)	7,414,282	11,714,929
	Crop Year 1920-1	Crop Year 1923-4
Canadian flour output (barrels)	9,901,000	20,702,000

AGRICULTURE

HIGHER PRICES AND LOWER COSTS OF PRODUCTION HAVE INCREASED THE VALUE OF THE FARMER'S DOLLAR.

(Financial Survey Heading)

"More significant than any other phase of agricultural progress during the year was the improvement which took place in the purchasing power of the farmers of Canada as a result of the upward movement in the prices of farm products unaccompanied by a similar trend in other prices. . . . The farmer who was in financial difficulties is enabled to liquidate his obligations, to buy the extras which he has been doing without for four years, and the general purchasing power of the rural communities has enlarged. This has in turn had a similar effect upon the wholesaler, the manufacturer and the entire business community. . . . The market for Canadian cattle in the United States improved measurably, and the exports of cattle to all countries showed a rise during the year."

	1921	1924	Increase
Total revenue from Canadian agriculture	$1,383,958,000	$1,433,320,000	$49,362,000

CROP SHIPMENTS

In the crop year from September 1, 1923 to August 31, 1924, Canada sent to the United Kingdom and to other countries by

United States ports	141,079,337 bushels of grain
By Canadian ports	126,790,482 bushels of grain
Being more by United States ports	14,288,855 bushels of grain

(Figures from Financial Survey)

This shipment of 141,079,337 bushels is equal to 52½ per cent. of Canada's water-exported grain.

In Mr. Meighen's regime 70 per cent. of Canada's grain was shipped through United States ports instead of by Canadian ports. —(L.P.C.)

SHIPPING

Sea-going vessels (exclusive of coasting vessels) entered and cleared at Canadian ports.

	Number	Tons Register	Tons Freight	Crews
1921	34,640	24,916,729	10,370,015	873,040
1923	39,055	34,278,337	15,504,782	988,471
Sea-going vessels cleared only:
1921	17,282	12,400,226	7,272,303	433,094
1923	19,593	17,182,454	11,024,582	489,236

(Note by L.P.C.: This indicates that $3,752,279 tons more freight went through Canadian ports in 1923 than in 1921, requiring 2,311 more ships, with all the employment consequent to their lading and unlading and handling.)

RAPID RISE IN CANADA'S VOLUME OF EXPORTS DURING 1924

(Financial Survey Heading)

"The increase which took place during 1924 in the volume of Canadian exports was one of the most encouraging features of the year's progress. The figures were swelled, it is true, by the abundant crops of 1923 in their passage to foreign markets, but even apart from this the shipment of goods increased in a large way and imports of foreign products at the same time showed a quite substantial reduction as a result of the increasing consumption of home products in Canada."

THE AUTOMOBILE INDUSTRY MAKES PROGRESS

(Financial Survey Heading)

	1921	1923
Value of products	$67,505,209	$96,614,176
EXPORTS	Fiscal Year 1922	Fiscal Year 1924
Passenger cars	$7,879,845	$27,246,025
Commercial cars	673,038	5,496,272
Increase		$19,366,180
Increase		4,823,234

THE TREND OF FAILURES

"There were 3,700 failures in Canada during 1922. In 1923 there was a total of 3,300, and the number declined during each successive quarter. The total for the first half of the year 1924 was 1,300, against 1,800 for the first half of 1923. During the latter half of the year the same decline continued. This naturally leads one to conclude that we are entering a period of business expansion."

NEWSPRINT

Total output finished newsprint (tons)	1,021,941	1,582,799
	Fiscal Year 1922	Fiscal Year 1924
Exports of paper (value)	$69,533,418	$96,957,962

THAT IS THE EVIDENCE. IT IS THE TRUTH, THE WHOLE TRUTH, AND NOTHING BUT THE TRUTH, CERTIFIED TO BY THE CONSERVATIVE FINANCIAL POST. Let us repeat from the introduction: "All theoretical survey information has been discarded, that the pages of the Survey may be given over to the exact presentation of records and estimates."

Can you believe what Mr. Meighen says when he declares Canada stands on the verge of ruin? Can you believe Mr. Peck when he states on the public platform: "The MacKenzie King Government has failed, in its four years of office, to improve the condition of the country or to advance the interests of the working men."

WHY, EVEN THE HENS PRODUCED EIGHT MILLION MORE EGGS FOR MR. KING THAN THEY DID FOR MR. MEIGHEN. HENS LIKE TO BE HAPPY, EVEN AS YOU AND WE. AND THERE IS ENOUGH BLUE RUIN AND WHISPER OF DEATH ASSOCIATED WITH MR. MEIGHEN TO DISCOURAGE ANY HEN.

CANADA IS ALRIGHT

She has been in a deep hole, but judicious government and careful economy have pulled her more than half way out.

BIG MEETING AT CORDOVA MINES FOR DR. EMBURY

Three Speakers Addressed People in Conservative Interests.

CANDIDATE ABSENT.

Policies of Party Were Well Set Forth in the Speeches.

HAVELOCK, Oct. 24.— Three speakers addressed a mass meeting at Cordova Mines on Wednesday evening in support of the candidature of Dr. A. T. Embury in Hastings-Peterboro. Mr. Elliott of Delora Mines, secretary of the Liberal Conservative Association for this riding, occupied the chair.

In speaking of the candidate who was unable to be present, Mr. Elliott said that he knew Dr. Embury personally and had always found him to be a straightforward man and if elected he would be a representative in the House of Comomns whom everyone would be proud of, and who would look after the interests of the riding he represented.

It is well known, he said, that the last government at Ottawa, has failed to carry out its policy, partly owing to not having a working majority in the House and depending upon the minority party who are really the controlling party of the House. The two party system is the only form of government. No country can get the best form of government when a party has to rely on a minority party, and has to make its policy to suit the minority.

Progressives, he concluded, are only a straddle the fence government and only a party to tie the hands of the government.

Mrs. William Vance, president of the Havelock Women's Liberal-Conservative Association, addressed the women and appealed to them to exercise their franchise. In canvassing among women she had found quite a number who said they are not going to vote because they do not think women should vote, and it is tragic, she said, that there are so many who are careless in playing their part in deciding the business of the country, because the vote has been given to women, through the hard times some women have passed through. The speaker then related instances in the life of Mrs. Pankhurst, showing the struggle she had endured in the cause of women's rights.

"Can any man or woman say that during the last four years we have had prosperity under the King government?" she asked. "It is time for a change. Our boys are going to the United States by the hundreds. About twenty years ago in the history of Havelock there was not a boy or man but could have got work. It is not so to-day, and I believe there is no better man for the country at this crisis than the Right Hon. Arthur Meighen who is ready and willing to take up the reins of government, and whose policy is the only remedy to life Canada from the low level it occupies at the present time.'

S. S. Joyce of Havelock, was next called. "We are here,' he said, 'to discuss in a kindly manner the great questions to be decided at the polls on October 29th. You have had the King government in power since 1921. Previous to that time we had Meighen along with Borden from 1911 to 1921. The country passed through very strenuous times between the election of the Borden government and 1921, and no premier ever passed through such a crisis as the Right Hon. R. L. Borden. You will have your Reform friends say expenses increased under Meighen and the debt has not been reduced by the King government on that account.

"A half a million of our boys went overseas to defend Canada and help Britain to save this country. Sixty thousand paid the supreme sacrifice to protect Canadians. Where was Mackenzie King while the best of our young manhood were shedding their blood for Canada's very existence? Safe in a fine office in the U.S.A., and not a resident of Canada, where he could help in the prosecution of the war.

"Regarding the tariff, Mr. Meighen says a tariff is necessary to save our industries and protect the Canadian farmer so that the U.S.A. and other countries cannot flood our markets with their products. What has occurred since King took office? Note the privileges he gave Australians by the Canada-Australia Treaty." Figures were here quoted to show that the Canadian tariff was much lower than the Australian tariff, and the Australian products, onions, cheese, eggs and fresh vegetables can enter Canada free.

"Now," he continued, "I am not a farmer, and would not be taking any part in this contest, but thought it my duty to raise my voice in protest against the Government's destructive policy. I would not be at Cordova to-night if I did not feel that the King Government is the worst government that Canada has ever known. When I came to Havelock in 1888 everything was booming, and the farmers had plenty of money. The situation to-day is just reversed.

"I was reading an article in the Toronto Daily Star of a week ago Saturday, which stated that eighty-six countries in the world have protection. Does any sensible man think that the judgment of Mackenzie King and his Cabinet is more to be relied on than the experience of those eighty-six countries? We do not have to go out of Hastings County for an example of the ill-effects of the low tariff policy. A mine of flourspar was discovered in Hastings County which was extensively used during the war. Shipments were made to the United States under a duty of $1.50 per ton. When the States learned that Canadian flourspar was being shipped into the U.S.A. at this rate and interfering with the Indiana product, they immediately raised the duty to $5.90 per ton and made it practically prohibitive. The result was that the mine closed down. This is the way the States treats her people—not such piffle as we have had with the King Government. This illustration, taken from our neighborhood, is but one of the many instances where industries have been forced to close their doors, throwing thousands of men out of employment." The speaker then gave figures from the tariff returns of June 2, 1925, showing that France, Japan and United States had increased the tariff on nearly everything mentioned while Canada had lowered her rates.

"King says", he went on, "he reduced the tax on machinery 2½%. But what else did he do? He put on a 2½% sales tax. The reform party will tell you that there is no sales tax but that is merely a dodge of the Government. As an illustration if I buy shoes direct from the manufacturer I pay 4½% sales tax which mean that a $4.00 shoe would cost me $4.18. If I buy from a jobber the jobbers say they absorb the sales tax but it is added to the price of the shoe. King puts the sales tax on the people in place of the one he took off. He has also put a tax on receipts, notes and drafts and also in order to withdraw money from the bank a tax has to be paid. All this has been done by the King Government and he still claims to be the friend of the farmer.

"Take our soldiers who returned after the war. Where have they gone? To the U.S.A. because they could not get work in Canada on account of the low tariff. With reference to the pulpwood we are sending across the line to be manufactured by Americans and when paper is returned to us we pay a high duty on our own material. Why not put on a duty and manufacture the paper in Canada?

"It has been said that the Progresives are not in line. With the Liberals, why then are there only seven constituencies in Canada where there is a three cornered contest. Mr. Brethen tells us he is not in accord with the King policy and he cannot support Meighen. If every Progressive nominated is elected Mr. Forke would not have a working majority. I read in the local paper today where Mr. Brethen takes exception to the following statement made by John A. Sexsmith on the 15th in speaking on the redistribution bill:

'In the early stages of the committee an effort was made to keep the two Peterboro ridings together and that Mr. Brethen had an opportunity on the last day and he did not take it.' Mr. Brethen's explanation is that at the final meeting that the Hon. H. H. Stevens, Conservative member for Centre Vancouver moved that Otonabee, Douro and Lakefield be added to West Peterborough and that his resolution was supoprted by every other Conservative with the exception of the late Mr. Thompson of Hastings."

The speaker said the real reason of the redistribution was to make the west riding more compact.

"In conclusion," he said, "I am satisfied that Dr. Embury will carry this riding and would like to see him rturned with the largest Conservative majority of any member in the House of Commons."

Mr. Airhart, reeve of Marmora, was the next speake and he gave an account of the history of Canada from 1837, pointing out that only once had the free trade policy been adopted since that time, and at the end of five years it was defeated. When Sir Wilfrid Laurier had attempted to bring it into force in 1911 it was again snowed under. Canada had been built up on protection and it was the only policy that would save her now.

GOLDEN WEDDING CELEBRATION HELD

Mr. and Mrs. George Robinson Were Honored on Anniversary.

NORHAM, Oct. 23.—About fifty relatives, neighbors and friends gathered at the home of Mr. and Mrs. George Robinson on Monday evening to join with Mr. and Mrs. James Montgomery in the celebration of the golden jubilee of their marriage. The home was nicely decorated with tissue paper which with bright lights in every room gave the place a gala appearance and contrasted definitely with the elements out of doors where snow and sleet were falling plentifully and the wind blowing at a fierce gale.

Mr. and Mrs. Montgomery were married in Warkworth on October 18, 1876, by Rev. Randolph Marsh. To the happy union were born nine children, three of whom have passed away, having been taken inside of one week with black throat diphtheria. Three sons and three daughters are all living within a few miles of their birthplace.

Mrs. Montgomery (nee Rachael Billings) was born in Cramahe township on August 15, 1857, and athough in her sixty-ninth year has perfect use of all her faculties and enjoyed very much the gathering of her friends.

Mr. Montgomery was born in Brighton township on April 25, 1849, and has been in failing health for more than a year.

Mr. and Mrs. Montgomery have spent all their wedded life in the Orser neighborhood where they are highly esteemed as neighbors, and several of those present Monday evening voiced in no uncertain sound their confidence in the integrity and physical ability of Mr. Montgomery, who in the days of his prime was scarcely surpassed in the work he could accomplish in one day.

During the evening an address was read by Mr. William Goodfellow and little Eva Wilson, of Campbellford, a granddaughter, presented her grandparents with a plate of letters containing many congratulations as well as a nice purse of money.

Addresses were given by Rev. J. F. Everson, of Norham, the pastor of the honored couple, Mr. Robert Carr and Mr. John Plumpton, of Campbellford. Miss Gladys and Ralph Plumpton, granchildren from Campbellford sang, "The Star of the East". Misses Eva and Ida Wilson, also grandchildren sang "When You and I Were Young Maggie". Mrs. Eldred Cameron presided at the organ.

The children are Mrs. Ernest Wilson and Mrs. John Plumpton, of Campbellford, Mrs. George Robinson, of the Orser neighborhood, Harry of Codrington, and Bruce of Colborne.

Mr. George Montgomery, of Wooler and who was present on Monday evening is the only surveving brother of Mr. Montgomery. Mr. and Mrs. Elmer Craig, grandchildren from Brighton, were also present.

A beautiful wedding cake which was made by Mrs. John Plumpton of Campbellford was served at the close of the lunch and added to the joy and pleasure of the occasion.

Following is the address:

Dear Mr. and Mrs. Montgomery,—

We your neighbors, friends, and relatives are met here tonight to congratulate you and commemorate your wedding day.

We feel that we could not allow this occasion to pass without having in some small way expressed our appreciation of the service you have rendered in this half century of wedded life amongst us.

Mr. Montgomery this ocassion brings to our minds your past faithful work amongst us. A kind father, a good husband, a true neighbor and a life-long conservative; of upright character always adnering to truthfulness and honesty.

In you Mrs. Montgomery, we recognize a good neighbor, a loving wife and an affectionate mother.

It must be a pleasure to both of you to see your six children, thirteen grandchildren and five great-grandchildren all well and happy.

We hope the twilight of your days will be as happy as the past has been and that you may still be spared many years of life together.

Sincerely,

Friends, Neighbors and Relatives

NO CHANGES IN FRENCH CABINET

Expected Resignation of Finance Minister Was Not Submitted.

TO MEET DEPUTIES.

PARIS, Oct. 23 (Canadian Press)—The French Cabinet meeting today broke up with Finance Minister Caillaux fully detailing his fiscal measures or submitting his resignation, which had been anticipated in some quarters. The Cabinet is to meet again on Monday.

While not giving details of his plans, M. Caillaux laid the financial position of the country before his colleagues in general terms.

The impression prevails that the Cabinet will meet the Chamber of Deputies next Thursday without any change in its membership, although full agreement on the financial question has not yet been reached among the ministers.

Y. W. C. A. GIRLS SHOW PROWESS IN THE WATER

Capacity Audience at Swimming Exhibition Sees Splendid Programme.

HILARIOUS EVENTS.

Some Events Raise Wild Enthusiasm Among Spectators in Gallery.

There was a capacity audience crowding the swimming pool at the Young Women's Christian Association last night. And it was a very enthusiastic audience. The applause was loud and long and the instantaneous response of the watchers to the efforts of the contestants must have a heartening influence over them. All appeared to be in their very best form and it was a very fine exhibition of skill in the water that was afforded the audience at last night's gathering. Some forty-five girls, comprising members of senior and junior classes, down to the tiny tots of five and six, whose aquatic exploits roused the highest enthusiasm in the watchers, took part in the big swimming exhibition, under the supervision of their teacher, Miss C. Littlefield, to whose careful tuition the credit for their proficiency is due.

Mayor Turner, in one of his happy little speeches, opened the program with a few brief sentences, speaking of the good done by such an institution as the Y. W. C. A. pool, his wish that a civic establishment of the kind might be possible in the city, and his wish that public support would be forthcoming, so that the Y. W. C. A. would not be compelled to work so hard to gather in their finances.

Judges for the events were Miss C. Littlefieldand Mr. G. H. Roper, assisted by Mrs. B. Gardiner, Mrs. S. Harkness, Mrs. Gerald Wood and Miss M. Jory. Presentation of prizes was in the hands of Mrs. R. W. Cormack.

Some of the events which roused real enthusiasm in the audience were the contests for the senior and junior championship cups, the new baby championship contest, with the little girls doing some extremely clever stunts in the water. Most of these little things have learned to swim this year, and the small figures, in their colored suits and tight caps, with the intense concentration manifested in their efforts, were splendid examples of the work done at the pool in training such youthful swimmers in moderately difficult feats. Swimming the length of the forty-foot pool and back, and doing some really little diving work, was part of the tiny tots' programme.

The junior life-saving championship work included several different methods of rescue and a release in the water, breast and back stroke swimming, the carrying of a subject 50 yards, and surface dives for a five-pound weight. A feature was the very fancy swing-stand dive.

The senior championship work was exceptionally interesting in its skilful carrying out, and included tests for expert long plunges and plain and fancy diving.

One of the funniest features was the chariot race, with tubs as chariots, and two swimmers conveying a baby member the length of the pool and back. A couple of the tubs capsized, and went to the bottom during the trials.

The egg and spoon races were marred by spills also, as was the umbrella race, the lighted candle race, and the event with hands and feet tied. An exciting interval was the pre-arranged fall from the balcony of Miss Eleanor Hiland, and the rescue from the same point by Miss Ina Terrace, both young ladies being fully dressed.

One of the interesting features of an event of this sort is the exhibition of different types of style in the water. Some of the girls have a long, free stroke, others seem to propel themselves in an odd manner through the slippery element, and some have a choppy stroke. Some of the swimmers slip through the water in very easy fashion, and others create a great splash. A regard for individuality in style and allowance for differing tastes probably accounts for the success of Miss Littlefield's tuition of her pupils.

The awards included three handsome silver cups, one for the Senior championship winner, one for the Junior championship winner, and the third, a tiny model, for the Baby champion. These were presented respectively by Mr. W. G. Morrow, Hon. G. N. Gordon, K.C., and Mrs. O'Conor-Fenton. Mrs. E. E. Harvey donated four silver spoons as special prizes, and a number of pretty gifts were also presented for the smaller events by the Swimming Pool Committee. A special badge was presented to Donald Carr, representing the few boy swimmers.

At the conclusion of the programme, hot chocolate and cake was served, and the contestant received a special treat of ice cream this morning from Mrs. Geo. Macdonald.

The Senior championship cup was won by Miss Mary Dunlop. Last year's winner was Miss Eleanor Hiland, who came second this year and received a silver spoon. The year before Miss Marguerite Mason was winner.

The Junior championship cup was won by Miss Sadie Levine, with Miss Margaret Dunlop receiving a silver spoon as second contestant.

The Baby champion was little Mary Kingsbury, wide-eyed, roundfaced, serious, taking her little miniature cup with much solemnity. Marion Wood and June Best came second and third in this event.

The Intermediate school girls' race was won by Miss Muriel Wilson (silver spoon), with Ina Terrance and Molly Wood in second and third places.

The Egg and Spoon races were won by Miss Mary Dunlop (silver spoon) for the Seniors, followed by Ina Terrace and Elanor Hiland, and for the Junior, Mary Nixon (bracelet).

In the Relay Race, Miss Mary Dunlop's team were winners.

Miss Sadie Levine won the prize, a vanity case, for the contest in swimming under water, with Jean Harvey and Rhoda Cullen in second and third places.

The Tub Chariot Race was won by the Misses Muriel Wilson and Ina Terrance, with little Marion Wood in the tub. The two older girls received boxes of note paper; the baby, a book.

The Umbrella Race was won by Doris Roper, who receive a ring; with Grace Cunningham, second.

The event with hands and feet tied was won by Ina Terrace (vase); second and third places going to Mary Dunlop and Jean Harvey.

TURKISH DECREE BANS DERVISHES

Government Closed Monasteries Throwing Monks Into the World.

TOTALLY UNFITTED.

CONSTANTINOPLE, October 24. —Canadian Press. — One of the most drastic and far reaching reforms in Turkish life has gone into effect, almost unnoticed by the outside world.

The government's recent decree, closing all the monasteries in the public, and permitting only secular religion, has thrown out into the world some 20,000 Turkish monks and dervishes—mystics of Islam—who who are totally unfitted by education or equipment for any other pursuit in life. The summary decree at the same time removed from Turkish life one of its strangest and weirdest classes, the dervishes.

These dervishes are divided into three categories—"Howling," "whirling" and "Whispering."

They live largely on ignorance and superstition of the Turkish peasants, who believed them to be invested with divine power.

King Edward Home and School Association at Open Meeting.

The King Edward Home and School Association held a most enjoyable open meeting last evening in the school kindergarten, for the presentation of certificates to the pupils who were successful in passing this year's Entrance Examination.

The following programme was ably rendered:

Piano Solo—Miss Mary Wood.
Vocal Solo—Miss V. Buckhain.
Vocal Quartette—Myrtle Talmer, Marjorie Baldry, Lillian Baldry, Blanche Thompson.

SEND MORE TROOPS.

Despatch Says Greeks Have Pierced Bulgarian Territory Seven Miles.

SOFIA, Oct. 24. — (Canadian Press)—Large contingents of Greek troops continue to be sent toward the Bulgarian border, a Bulgarian telegraph agency announces. It considers this an indication that the Greeks intend to enlarge the scope of their present offensive. The Government says that the Greeks have pierced Bulgarian territory to a depth of more than seven miles on a 20-mile front.

The agency declares that the population is highly excited and that a feeling is growing that a limit must soon be set to the retreat of the Bulgarian forces.

"If the Greeks are not constrained to halt their offensive," says the agency, "the Bulgarian army, though not numerous and not possessed of much material, will not look on much longer impassibly at the violation of the national soil and will defend itself."

The Bulgarian Government has sent a note to Athens reiterating its denial that Bulgarian troops have at any time violated the Greek frontier posts.

City Council, Fearing For Industries, Called On Mr. Gordon in Vain

Non-Partisan Resolution Expressing Alarm at Low Tariff Policy of the King Government, Ignored By Liberal Candidate, Who Preferred to Stand By His Party Rather Than By the City's Industries

"MOVED BY ALD. TURNER.
"SECONDED BY ALD. FIFE.

"That the City Clerk be instructed to write to Right Honourable W. L. Mackenzie King, Premier, to "Hon. Jas. A. Robb, acting Minister of Finance, and to the local members of Parliament, calling their at- "tention to the fact that depreciations in foreign currencies,

COUPLED WITH INSUFFICIENT PROTECTION

"in existing conditions, THREATEN THE LIFE AND EXISTENCE OF MANY INDUSTRIES, more especial- "ly the textile, shoe, iron and kindred industries.

"We would also respectfully call attention to the fact that during the past few years industrial con- "ditions have been such that many large and important industries have been forced to close their doors, "while others have been so badly crippled that they are now operating on short time, or with reduced "staff and are threatened with total extinction, chiefly caused by depreciated foreign currencies, which "enables industries of European countries to manufacture at low cost, and to permit them to unfairly "compete with Canadian-made articles. This condition has resulted in much unemployment, and in "many cases occurred hardship, more especially in industrial centres, and this Council would, there- "fore, urge that THE GOVERNMENT MOVE VERY CAUTIOUSLY IN MAKING ANY FURTHER DOWN- "WARD TARIFF REVISION, GIVING CONSIDERATION TO THE FACT THAT THE FURTHER HAMPER- "ING OF CANADIAN INDUSTRIES WILL LEAD TO GREATER UNEMPLOYMENT AND DEVELOP A SIT- "UATION THAT MAY PROVE VERY SERIOUS IN ITS CONCLUSIONS.

"On the contrary, this Council would urge THAT THE TARIFF BE READJUSTED so as to permit "resuming operations at the earliest possible date, AND TO SUFFICIENTLY PROTECT ALL INDUSTRIES "AFFECTED, AS WELL AS TO ENCOURAGE ADDITIONAL INDUSTRIES TO LOCATE IN CANADA.

"CARRIED."

This resolution passed by the City Council of Peterborough on March 12 last year, and attracting little attention from the average citizen at tha time should be of vital importance now.

It is not a piece of political propaganda framed by its authors in the heat of an election campaign for the purpose of winning votes.

It is the voice of the elected representatives of the people sounding at a time when no election was in sight, no votes to be sought.

It is the expression of the alarm of the men chosen to administer Peterborough's affairs at the Mackenzie King-Robert Forke Budget of 1924, a Budget which the members of Peterborough's Council, Grit and Tory alike, felt was laying an axe at the roots of industries in this city.

Where could there be a stronger endorsation of the Conservative policy of protection for which E. A. PECK stands than this non-political resolution of a City Council which felt that the industrial life of the City over which it presided was threatened by the tariff changes of the King Government.

WHAT ABOUT MR. GORDON?

A copy of this resolution was sent to Mr. Gordon, member for West Peterborough in the House of Commons.

Mr. Gordon in his campaigning in 1921 had stressed the fact that he was a protectionist. "No legitimate industry will suffer" he declared from every platform.

Yet when the Council of the industrial centre whose representative he was, urged consideration for Peterborough's industries, this professed Protectionist who had solemnly pledged himself to protect Peterborough's industries refused to move a finger.

Solemn pledges, the alarm of the City Council, his own konwledge of the conditions in Peterborough, weighed lightly in the scale against prospects of political advancement.

He helped the Government in the betrayal of the industries and the industrial workers of his own constituency, a betrayal forced by the western Progressives and guided in by Mr. King and his followers because it kept them in power.

What a Contrast!

Not all Mr. King's henchmen were as indifferent to the interests of their ridings as Mr. Gordon.

On March 12—the same date on which the Peterborough Council passed its resolution, W. D. Euler, member for North Waterloo, was on his feet opposing the tariff proposals of the Government, of which he was a member.

Like Mr. Gordon, W. D. Euler was a Liberal.

Like G. N. Gordon, W. D. Euler represented a riding in which there was a big industrial population.

Like G. N. Gordon, W. D. Euler had promised in the 1921 campaign to stand behind the industries of his constituency.

But unike G. N. Gordon, ;. D. Euler was a man whose pledged word meant more to him than political promotion.

"I HAVE A RESPONSIBILITY TO MY constituents which I feel very keenly," Mr. Euler declared as he voted against his party and for his constituency.

West Peterborough is still waiting to hear from its member a lucid explanation as to why he ignored the Council's resolution and his own pledge. The campaign is nearly over—why does not Mr. Gordon explain his desertion of the industries and the working men of Peterborough.

Who Was Right—The City Council or Mr. Gordon?

There does not seem to be any doubt as to the answer to that question.

Since last year the City Assessor's report shows that Peterborough's population has decreased by 231.

Thta means in view of the fact that the natural increase in population, the excess of births over deaths was 206, that 437 People have left Peterborough since last year.

Mr. Gordon says everybody is prosperous and he tells outside audiences that Peterborough's industries do not need protection.

The workers know just how much truth there is in these statements.

They know the conditions better than Mr. Gordon's press bureau can inform them, and they have decided that it is time for a change.

They know that when Mr. Gordon allows his press bureau to state, as it did last night, that "since Mr. Gordon has been in Parliament he has been working for the prosperity of the workers of Canada, the workers of West Peterborough," he is deliberately insulting the intelligence of the electors.

The evidence speaks for itself—Mr. Gordon was tested by this resolution of the Council of Peterborough and was found wanting.

West Peterborough needs a representative at Ottawa who will consider the welfare of Peterborough's industries and of Peterborough Couty farmers before his own personal success.

That is why West Peterborough is rallying behind

who can be depended upon to stand by his constituents.

THE CONSERVATIVE VICTORY COMMITTEE OF PETERBOROUGH.

MADOC CHURCH ANNIVERSARY

Rev. J. D. Richardson, of Peterborough, Was the Preacher.

GOOD ATTENDANCE.

MADOC, Oct. 23.—The anniversary services were held in the United Church on Sunday when Rev. Jas. Richardson of Peterboro' conducted the services. In the morning Mr. Richardson took as his text Acts 14-27: "And when they were come, and had gathered the church together, they rehearsed all that God had done with them and how he had opened the door of faith unto the Gentiles."

"It is interesting," the speaker began, "to hear people describe the things they have seen and have experienced when they return from a journey. Some tell of the discomforts and inconveniences they have suffered, and remember only the ills and troubles of the journey. Others describe the beauties of nature and talk only of the beautiful things they have seen and heard. In doing this, these people reveal an interest in God's world, and reveal a nature that is anxious to see the best in life. Nothing reveals a man so much as the kind of record he keeps in his memory."

Paul had been away on a journey. He had gone out to break new ground for Christ, and on, his return had called the church together to rehearse what had been done. If one reads the account of the journey he sees that there were many things on which Paul and Barnabas might have dwelt. They had suffered many hardships, and were footsore and weary. To crown all, Paul had been stoned by the people of Lystra. He might have given the church the impression that he was a great hero, but it is the face of God that shines through all his story. He remembered God's love and the great things he had done for them and had been doing with them.

In this there is a message for all, Mr. Richardson said. "What are we inclined to lay most stress upon?" This suggests that if we have the right spirit we will have something to raise a song about, even though it's a song in the night. Even in the bitterest experiences we will find rays of comfort and hope. Through the accidents and incidents of life, even our own failures, His love never us. As we look back at our life all things will be interpreted by love and we will see that even the trials and hardships were for God's wise purpose. No matter what difficulties or discomforts com into life man can conquer them through God. What is it that gives a man like Paul the power to see happiness and righteousness through all trouble? It was not that he was impervious to trouble but because he had seen God's gracious purpose. He had seen it in his own life and character and working through him to touch the world. So he was living in a transformed world and his life was full of joy. Can we so interpret the experiences of life?

Mr. Richardson said he wished to emphasize two points: "First, the great things God does for us and the things He does in us. The purpose of God is not our happiness, comfort or ease, but our character. He wants to make something of us as spiritual beings. Paul saw this and the thing that mattered to him was how he bore himself. Did he keep a brave heart? A sweet temper? Did he stand true? Sometimes people react bitterly. They become sour and disappointed. Others are just the opposite. Their hearts are mellowed like the golden-tinted autumn leaves. They have enriched their lives til they stand out so beautifully in the autumn time of life.

"The second point is the things that God does through us as we come in contact with the outside world. Is there any greater thing God can do than to make us the channel of blessing and inspiration through which to reach the hearts of others? We must measure our deeds by the standard of the Cross, not by material success. The good we have done, the life we have lived, our influence, and our character—that is the thing that will count."

Appropriate music was sung by the choir, Miss Lenore Vandervoort singing a solo in her usual good form, and the choir rendering the anthem "The Way of the Wicked."

Splendid congregations were present both morning and evening. In the evening no service was held in the Presbyterian Church in order to give the congregation an opportunity of hearing Mr. Richardson. The speaker took as his topic: "The Challenge to the Church," speaking from the text found in Exodus 14:15. "And the Lord said unto Moses, 'Wherefore criest thou upto me? Speak unto the children of Israel that they go forward'." Rev. Mr. Marshall of St. Peter's Church was on the platform and led in prayer. The singing added very much to the brightness of the service. The choir sang two anthems: "Praise Ye The Lord," and "Jesus Is Mine," in which Mrs. Foster took the solo part, and a trio part was taken by Mrs. Alexander, Mrs. Foster and Mrs. C. Whytock.

MANY ATTENDED ANNUAL SUPPER

Millbrook United Church Ladies Held Very Successful Affair.

GOOD PROGRAMME.

MILLBROOK, Oct. 23.—The annual fowl supper, under the auspices of the Ladies' Aid of the United Church, was held on Tuesday evening, and though roads and weather were unfavorable, proved a decided success in every particular.

The basement was appropriately decorated, sheaves of ripened grain, hollowed out pumpkins filled with rosy-cheeked apples, yellow shades on the lights, with streamers of darker hue overhead, giving it a most attractive appearance.

The same color scheme was carried out in the table decoration, smaller pumpkins filling the role of 'jardinieres," with fruit in place of flowers, and a row of lighted candles circling the edge of each. Trailing vines supplied the needed touch of green to complete the tasteful arrangement.

Miss M. E. Needham, president of the Aid, had a general oversight of all the arrangements for the supper and the programme, and also looked to the reception of guests from outside points. A host of willing workers assisted in waiting on the three long tables keeping supplies in readiness, carving fowl, pouring tea, and seating the people as places were vacated and more could be accommodated.

From about 6 p.m. until after eight o'clock there was a steady stream of arrivals, and tables were filled again and again. Several car loads came from Port Hope, Peterborough and the surrounding district, among the guests being Honorable Vincent and Mrs. Massey, who were on their way to a meeting at Pontypool, and Mr. and Mrs. F. W. Bowen, with Mr. J. Harris, of Toronto, who were also due later at meetings at Blackstock and Enniskillen. Mr. F. C. Paterson, Agricultural Representative for Durham, brought with him from Port Hope the staff of the rural school fairs, in cluding Misses B. Oke, G. Oliver, M. Scott, L. Outram, Messrs. R. Beatty, and C. Allen, and this party was joined at the supper hour by local members who have assist d at the rural fairs.

Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Vance were local members of Mr. Bowen's party, and Mr. and Mrs. H. R. Armstrong of Mr. and Mrs. Massey's group.

Apparently everyone was well satisfied with the menu provided, and also with the programme in the auditorium upstairs for which the pastor, Rev. F. H. Howard, made the necessary introductory remarks, those assisting coming on then without further announcement. The items were as follows:

Organ solo, Miss Estelle Hetherington; opening hymn; cornet duet, Messrs. G. E. and Ernest Burnham; reading, 'Almost Beyond Endurance," by Miss Audrey Rosevear, of Port Hope; encore, 'The Way to Cure a Cold"; duet, 'I Heard a Voice in the Greenwood Tree," by Mr. and Mrs. H. W. Johnston (Miss Gussie Clarry, accompanist); encore, 'The Nightshades are Falling"; violin solo, by Mr. Stewart Widdis, of Peterborough (Miss Margaret Widdis, accompanist); reading, 'Our New Baby," by Miss Rosevear; encore, 'Jack and I"; duet, 'When We're Together," by Mrs. W. Widdis, and Mrs. Johnston (violin obligato by Mr. S. Widdis); piano solo, by Miss Kathleen Sutton; reading, 'Friday Afternoon in a Primary Class," by Miss Rosevear; encore, 'The Faithful Lovers"; quartette, 'Sometime, Somewhere," by Messrs. W. H. Coombe, H. W. Johnston, M. McDowell, and V. C. Lambert (Miss S. Hetherington, accompanist); piano solo, by Miss Margaret Widdis; reading, 'My Mother," by Miss Rosevear; quartette, "Good Night," by Mrs. Johnston, Miss May Byam, Messrs. Johnston and McDowell.

This was the first time that Miss Rosevear, who is a graduate of the Margaget Eaton School of Expression, has been heard in Millbrook and the impression created was a most favorable one. It was also the first time that Miss Sutton, who is a gifted pianist, has been heard locally and the demand for an encore was insistent.

The total receipts were over two hundred and fifty dollars.

FOWL SUPPER WAS VERY SUCCESSFUL

Concert After in Lakefield Church Was Also Well Attended.

LAKEFIELD, Oct. 23.—The fowl supper and concert held under the auspices of the United Presbyterian church on Tuesday evening were very successful and were attended by a very large number of people, including many from Peterboro, Warsaw, Young's Point and other places. The supper was served from 5 to 8 in the schoolroom and was especially well arranged, with tables both in the upper and lower rooms, which made the crowd ore easily handled. The tables fairly groaned with delectable viands, to which full justice was done.

After the supper a high-class concert was given in the Church by the George Street Orchestra, of Peterboro, assisted by Miss Elma Coon, soloist, and Misses Outram and Moore, readers, and the Misses Tretheway; and a well rendered male quartette. The church, with decorations of potted plants, red berries and autumn leaves, presented a festal appearance and was filled with a capacity crowd, who enjoyed the entertainment provided. Rev. P. L. Jull occupied the chair in his customary genial manner. The following is the programme.

1, Selection, George St. Orchestra; 2, Solo, Miss Elma Coon; 3, Reading, Miss Phyllis Moore; 4, Duet, Misses Trethwaye; 5, Selection, the Orchestra; 6, Reading, Miss Phyllis Moore; 7, Mouth Organ Solo, Mr. Thompson, accompanied by Miss MacFarlane; 8, Selection, The Orchestra; 9, Male Quartette, Messrs. OBITUARY.

H. D. KENNEDY.

(Contributed).

In the passing of Harry D. Kennedy, evangelist, the church at large has lost an earnest and efficient preacher. At his summer home in Elk Rapids, Michigan, busy editing his tracts, and planning for his fall and winter campaigns, enjoying apparently the best of health, our brother was suddenly called into the immediate presence of his Master. Brother Kennedy was born June 14th, 1868, the son of Dawson and Rebecca Kennedy. He spent his boyhood days on the farm and educated in the schools of Peterboro, taking his final course of study at Moody's School, Chicago.

He was well known in this community, and the large concourse of prominent citizens coming to pay their last tribute of respect showed the high esteem in which he was held by those who knew him best. In early manhood Brother Kennedy chose the work of an evangelist, in which he was eminently successful. He was author of several devotional books of a most helpful character, and of numerous tracts which were employed in his evangelistic work. He was a Bible student of ability. One of the ministers at the funeral service said, "He could discover gems of truth where others would pass them by unnoticed."

As a preacher, he was clear, sympathetic and earnest, and he presented truth in a most original and striking manner. Brother Kennedy believed he had a message to deliver—that he was entrusted with a message, "Unto me was this grace given"; that the message did not belong to him, but rather he to the message, and that he had no authority to change it. He did not defend or explain his Master, but he proclaimed Him, and magnified his Cross with love and courage.

He was a positive preacher—one who believed with all his heart in Jesus, the Saviour of men. His own clear experience of forgiving love made him insistent that sins could be forgiven here and now—that the Gospel could change any nature, and that all men had the capacity for change. To convert and establish in righteousness was his great desire. He believed that love and sacrifice—that no cost was too high—no scrifice too great, even life itself, if it opened up the way to higher service.

He passed away in prime of life full of plans for future service, but if men live in deeds rather than in years, Brother Kennedy lived a long and useful life and was fully ready to give a good account of his stewardship. He has gone to meet the many souls, whom he, under God, led to a life of faith, and left behind him a great number of witnesses to his faithfulness.

The funeral service was held at his father's house in Peterboro, conducted by Rev. J. P. Wilson, a former pastor of Trinity Church, of which Bro. Kennedy was a member, assisted by Revs. Messrs. Todd and Langford. He leaves to mourn their loss his wife, Annie Richardson Kennedy, who was associated with him in his mission, father and mother, two brothers, one, H. P. Kennedy of Toronto, and F. W. Kennedy, New York; two sisters, Mrs. R. I. Kidd of Peterboro and Mrs. R. A. Ward of Toronto; a younger brother, Marvin S., was killed in action in the great war.

God called him in the very way he often said he would love to go. We mourn his loss as those who love and lose; but our mourning is not as of those who have no hope, and in this comforting hope that we shall meet him again some great day we will live and labor till the farewells of this earth-life shall give place to joyous greetings of the life to be hereafter.

Harry was a true friend, a good man, tender husband, devoted son, a loyal brother, a son of God—what a company will meet whom he was the means of leading heavenward. It was worth while.

It's Concentration That Counts IN ALL MARKETS

In every line of endeavor concentration is the one vital force which spells success—and particularly is it so in sales and advertising. To win and hold all markets, concentration must be made in each market; distribution as well as consumer appeal must be thorough. To sell goods in the many Ontario markets, no one or two mediums will serve to make your sales effective; nor could one or two retail outlets serve the whole Province. Each city is a distinct market in itself, covered wholly and thoroughly only through its own newspaper, and in practically every city the home newspaper reaches 100 per cent. of the homes. Street sales and down-town delivery of out-of-town mediums will not sell goods. The purchasing agent whose office is at home must be reached—and that is where all buying is planned.

20c PER LINE

will cover a 5,000 line campaign in any six newspapers of the smaller Ontario cities, plus the concentrated dealer co-operation of the newspaper. Every dealer is personally known in these newspaper offices, and is more readily influenced to a product advertised in the medium that carries his own store news.

The Backbone of Ontario

Is the Provincial Cities

It is the Provincial cities of Ontario that form the backbone of Ontario, where home life is at its best, and the people live well and happily. They enjoy the best things of life, are interested in new food products, automobiles, luxuries. They have more leisure, and the time and inclination to read their home newspaper because every news item is of interest; they know where to buy every article advertised.

Tomorrow's HOROSCOPE

By Genevieve Kemble.

SATURDAY, OCTOBER 24.

A day of possibly unplanned change, removal or journey is the presage from the strong Uranian sway, which may be interpreted as one of benefic force. However, those in the employment of others are urged to use every precaution lest they lose their positions. Also there is the hint of inharmony of unwelcome incident in affairs social, affectional or domestic. The disposition may be depressed or critical.

Those whose birthday it is may have a year of change or travel of an unexpected nature. These may be of benefit for those engaged in their own business, but those in the employment of others are under a threatening rule of the planets. Domestic affairs may not be satisfactory. A child born on this day may be restless and changeable, but should engage in business for itself.

ADVICE TO GIRLS

By Annie Laurie

DEAR ANNIE LAURIE:

Some time ago I met a young man and went out with him quite often. A few weeks ago he left the city promising to write. I gave him my address, but he has not wrote since he went away. I think that he has lost my address. Will I write to him or would it be proper. Please advise me what is best to do. DIXIE.

DIXIE: Perhaps you had better wait a little longer before starting a correspondence. Your friend ma yhave lost your address, and then again, he may have lost his enthusiasm, like the Scotchman who faltered on the way to the altar. You never can tell. Better remember the old saying, "When in doubt, don't," and in the meantime, have as good a time as possible with other friends.

DEAR ANNIE LAURIE:

Do you think it alright to go out with a chap who calls when he feels like it or would you advise dropping him altogether? Should I still go out with him until someone else is on hand. PERPLEXED.

PERPLEXED: No, I would not drop him altogether, if you like him, and he is polite and friendly whenever he calls. Perhaps he is the sort of young man who doesn't want to be tied down to one girl. On the other hand, if another chance presents itself to go out with other men, you should not regard his feelings at all in the matter, but simply suit yourself. You are entitled to treat him exactly as he treats you.

SALE OF COOKING WAS SUCCESSFUL

Y.M.C.A. Ladies' Auxiliary Raised Good Sum For Work.

A very successful and well-attended tea and sale of home made cooking and useful and ancy articles was held yesterday afternoon in the reading room of the Young men's Christion Association, under the auspices of the Ladies' Auxiliary, who realized a nice sum for the funds of their society, whose charge it is to look after the replenishing of the linen in the dormitories and dining hall of the institution.

Mrs. G. H. Roper and Mrs. D. Jordan were responsible for the decorations of the big room. These were exceptionally attractive and made a genuine autumn setting for the tea with quantities of leaves banking the fire place and decorating the wiring of four lighted piano lamps. The table was charming with yellow 'mums, red begonias and red candles in silver holders.

The guests were reecived by the president, Mrs. G. H. Roper, and Mrs W. R. Breyfogle. Mrs. Detcher acted as treasurer. Tea was poured by Mrs. J. J. Turner and Mrs. E. F. Mason, assisted by Mrs. Thomas Brown, Mrs. Thomas Barrie, Mrs. J. Garbutt, Mrs. Jackson, Mrs. T. H. Hooper and Mrs. H. Foote.

A sale of homemade cooking was in charge of Mrs. D. Loomis, Mrs. G. A. Gillespie, Mrs. Mann and Mrs. C. A. White.

The sale of useful and and fancy articles was supervised by Mrs. W. Preston, Mrs. B. H. Poole and Mrs. R. J. Martin.

During the afternoon several vocal solos were rendered by Mrs. Saunders and Mrs. E. Kitney, and instrumental duets by Mrs. T. Cruickshank and Miss Marion Adams.

ANSWERS TO WOMEN

Mr. G. N. Gordon,

Please tell us the truth about the Tariff. What has it to do with us? We don't understand all this talk in millions of dollars, and we women want to know the truth, because that's the way we will vote.

TO THE WOMEN OF PETERBORO:

The above inquiry, which came to my office this week, is a reasonable one, and I have gone to some trouble to obtain the exact facts. I give as plainly as possible and with absolute accuracy some figures showing how the Tariff affects you and me. The figures have been carefully worked out from the Tariff Rates now in force in Canada. Mr. Peck claims that the Tariff is still too low. That means that if he and his Party came into power, you and I would have to pay still higher prices. I do not believe that all goods should come into Canada absolutly free of duty but I do believe that all foodstuff should be available to you and me at the cheapest possible prices, and that our cost of living should not be increased to profit some big interest.

I will be glad to give, honestly and fairly as in this case, any further information the Women of Peterboro desire.

Yours very truly,

G. N. Gordon.

The Tariff, from Mr. Peck's standpoint, means Protection for Canadian Big Interests at your expense. Here is what it means:

LIBERAL PARTY'S TARIFF POLICY WAS EXPLAINED

Higher Duties Mean Increase in Cost of Living For Families.

BRITISH EXAMPLE.

Speaker Said Big Interests Spoiled Reciprocity Agreement With U. S.

Centreville was the scene of an enthusiastic Liberal rally last evening when the Liberal candidate the Hon. G. N. Gordon, assisted by Sam Clarke, M.P.P., S. Staples, former Progressive member for Durham and J. A. Dewart explained the policies of the Liberal party to a large crowd. J. Greer was unanimously appointed Chairman. Mr. Gordon, who spoke first due to his having another meeting at Stewart's Hall, explained at some length how the system of responsible government was brought about. As a result of this, he said, you are called upon every four or five years to render your verdict as to who shall govern your country." Parliament has just been dissolved so we appear before you to render an account of our stewardship. During the war, he said, the country added two billion dollars to the National Debt. The Government of the day did not place an income tax on the enormous profits of the times until the war had being going on for more than three years. Victory bonds, amounting to one billion six hundred and fifty million dollars were issued, free of income tax, so that the men who had made fortunes were able to invest their profits in tax free bonds, and the burden of taxation was placed by Mr. Meighen on the shoulders of the men who had to maintain and support families. Referring to Canada's trade balance, Mr. Gordon stated that in 1921 it was an adverse balance of $30,000,000. It had changed in 1922 to a favorable balance of $6,000,000. Do these figures indicate that Canada going bankrupt" he asked? He also stated that the Canadian dollar is above par in New York, the only money in the world to be in that position. Great Britain, in 1817, he said, with a population about the same as the present population of Canada had a debt just the same as Canada, but by hard work this was reduced until to-day Great Britain was the leading financial country of the world. This talk of high protection," he said, is simply a case of the higher the tariff the less competition." Since the Liberal Government has been in power we have lowered the tariff on sugar twice, we have reduced the tariff on agricultural implements which all goes towards reducing the high cost of living. Mr. Gordon stated that under Mackenzie King, Canada had exported twice as many farm implements as we did under Mr. Meighen. I believe in a tariff" he said, we can't get along without it," but it will have to be a moderate one.

If we follow a moderate tariff the farmer can use the extra money so gained for improving his holdings." In speaking of emigration and immigration, Mr. Gordon said that Canadians got the habit of leaving Canada while Mr. Meighen was in power. Now the United States has closed out all nationalities except Canadians, thus leaving Canadians a wide open door. This state of affairs is difficult to overcome," said Mr. Gordon, as it was caused by United States legislation and not by Canadian laws. I appeal to you, he said, to lend me your confidence on the record of the Liberal Government which comes to you without taint, a Government that has reduced taxation, a Government that has cut down expenditures, a Government that will look after your interests as they have in the last four years."

Sam Clarke M.P.P.

Mr. Clarke, who received a great ovation from the audience as he arose to speak, said I am glad to be here, because I feel that I owe something to the good people of South Monaghan." This election, he said, boils down to a mighty small pact—Do you want a high tariff or a moderate tariff. Parties mean nothing he said—the tariff came in about 1878 and since then the people of this Dominion have paid their shot without a kick." The tariff only benefits the manufacturer and the every day people have to suffer." I have been in the West every year for 42 years and I know conditions there and take it from me high tariff will kill that country." This is one of the most serious elections we have ever had, said Mr. Clarke—the Liberals have lowered the tariff on foodstuffs and implements and Mr. Meighen wants to raise it. If you want to kill the West" said the speaker, vote high tariff—if you want to encourage them, vote for Mr. Gordon and the Liberal party. Canada is the greatest country in the world and to keep it so the policies of the Liberal Government are necessary."

J. A. Dewart.

The speaker stated that he was talking from the viewpoint of a farmer, and as far as this election was concerned, the issue is clean cut—the tariff as it is, or higher. There are four basic industries in Canada, said Mr. Dewart, and all fresh wealth comes from these. When you erect a building, he said, you must erect it on a solid foundation or your labors are lost. Agriculture, he said, is the most important industry in the Dominion, as 40% of the national wealth is contained therein, so just as much as farming flourishes, business will flourish accordingly, and only in this way can real prosperity come to the country. Why has Liberal policy been most beneficial to the basic industries, he asked—the reason is that you cannot protect agriculture. The price of wheat, he said, is regulated in Liverpool, England and during the period of Liberal administration from 1896 to 1911, this country was prosperous. "The administration of that day under Sir Wilfred Laurier had a vision of Canada as she stands today—second to none. The speaker told of how the Liberal Government of that day had gone to the United States Government, subject to the wishes of the Canadian people, to arrange for reciprocal trade on farm products, resulting in the big markets of the United States being brought to the Canadian Farmers' door. That was the greatest opportunity the Canadian farmer ever had, declared Mr. Dewart, and it was lost due to the big interests and their cry, "No truck or trade with the Yankees." Trade is the life blood of Canada, declared Mr. Dewart and the people of this country threw away their chances in 1911. Mr. Dewart stated that the farmers were just beginning to feel the effects of the change when the war broke out and created artificial prices, due to the great demand for the troops, so that the real state of affairs was not realized until 1919 or 1920. In 1920, said Mr. Dewart, wheat was selling at $2.50 a bushel and by 1921, the price had dropped to 90 cents a bushel. The United States farmers because they did not have any agreement immediately enacted the Fordney tariff with the sole purpose of keeping the Canadian farmer from competing with the American farmer. If the Fordney tariff was not in operation to-day, said Mr. Dewart, Alsike would be worth $2 a bushel more than it is now. The speaker stated that the Liberal Government had given the farmer a square deal, they have cut the duty on agricultural implements, and the result is saved money to the farmer—Mr. Meighen voted against this on the argument that it would put the Canadian Implement manufacturers out of business, and yet we have the Hon. Vincent Massey running on a Liberal ticket. The speaker stated that there was information going around that was not reliable, "statements have been made, he said, that the Liberal Government in reducing the tariff on fertilizer had put the Canadian manufacturer out of business"—Just two days ago," said Mr. Dewart, "I met the agent of one of the largest fertilizer companies in the Dominion, and he told me that there were four fertilizer plants operating in Canada, and he also said that the only effect the tariff had on them was to reduce their profits to them and incidentally a reduction of $14 a ton to the farmer." A Conservative speaker in Ennismore, stated Mr. Dewart, in speaking of the Ford Motor plant in Ford, Ontario, said that the only reason that Ford had a factory in Canada was because of the high tariff—"Well, here are a few facts concerning the Ford Motor Company. In the first place said Mr. Dewart, there is a tax of 35% against all cars entering Canada. "Ford put $125,000 into his Walkerville plant 21 years ago and to-day it is worth $50,000,000. A Ford car in Detroit will cost you $404, and in Canada the same car will cost you $600, despite the fact that the difference in cost of manufacture is only 5% more than in the States. Everyone who has bought a Ford has bonused Henry Ford to the extent of $200 for nothing." In speaking of the Candidates, Mr. Dewart said that as far as the two candidates were concerned they were both honored citizens and from a standpoint of personal virtue both of them are on a par. Mr. Gordon is a young aggressive man who will protect the interests of the farmer as well as the city dweller, and his record is one that warrants your whole hearted support."

DAY OF PLEBISCITE OVER SAYS PREMIER

Ferguson Assures Hotel Men That Government Would Be Fearless.

TORONTO, Oct. 24. Canadian Press. — Addressing a meeting of the Provincial Hotel Keepers' Association yesterday, Premier Ferguson stated that so long as the present government continued in power at Queen's Park that the government would assume all responsibility for legislation brought down in connection with the Ontario Temperance Act or other matters affecting the hotel interests of the province.

The premier frankly declared that "the day of plebiscites on this vexed question was over," and that he never would consent to the taking of another plebiscite on the liquor problem. He wanted it distinctly understood that so far as the government was concerned it was the duty of the government to handle the problem fairly and fearlessly, and that he had tried to do that in a way that would be productive of the best results.

LONDON, Oct. 24 (United Press).—Automobiles may some day be run on fuel made from Jerusalem artichokes.

Experiments made by government research workers at Jerusalem show that the artichokes yielded a valuable fuel and now a special field of these vegetables is being grown to carry out the tests.

ANAEMIA ROBS ITS VICTIMS BY STEALTH

Conditions of Thin Blood That Could be Corrected Easily by Dr. Williams' Pink Pills are Stealing the Energy of Many Women and Girls.

Every mother should know how to recognize the symptoms of anemia, for this disease makes its approach so gradually and so stealthily that it is often far advanced before it is noticed.. Anemia literally means bloodlessness, and it is the cause of much unhappiness and loss at this time.

Simple anemia is thought to be due to lack of sunlight, to improper nourishment and insufficient out-of-door air. It is most common among people who are confined indoors by their occupations and among those who do not eat regularly or who do not select a proper diet.

Look Out for These Symptoms.

The one general symptom of anemia is pallor. The cheeks gradually lose their color, the lips become white. With this loss of color there comes a tendency to fatigue, a palpitation of the heart and breathlessness after slight exertion, with occasional headaches.

Even in health the lips are not really any redder than the rest of the skin, but they are transparent and allow the red blood to show through. The part of the blood that gives it its color is the red corpuscles and these corpuscles are made red by the hemoglobin they contain. Therefore, when the blood is deficient in hemoglobin the lips are pale. Thin blood is not to be confused with impure blood which causes the lips to become purple.

Any Girl Can Tell.

But this condition is corrected with so much ease that no one should remain anemic longer than a few days. Dr. Williams' Pink Pills supply the elements necessary to enrich the blood with such certainty that a microscopic examination after short treatment shows the actual percentage of increase in the corpuscular count. But, so marked is the improvement that a microscope is unnecessary. Any girl can tell by the growing redness of her lips, that Dr. Williams' Pink Pills are making her blood rich and red.

In ordinary anemic conditions including the anemia that afflicts girls in their 'teens, Dr. Williams' Pink Pills are all the medicine required. Fresh air, sunlight, proper food and drink taken without haste, a little rest after meals and no worry will make recovery complete.

Weak and Despondent.

Nearly all women and most men suffer at times from fits of depression and low spirits, from which they are unable to free themselves. They cannot attend to their duties satisfactorily and are unable to get any pleasure out of life. People who suffer in this way soon lose their energy of mind and body. They lack vitality because their blood is poor and ill-nourished, and their nerves are starved in consequence. The only way to obtain new health is by building up the blood with Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. The new rich blood made by these pills will carry renewed health and energy to every part of the body. Your appetite will improve, your spirits brighten and you will be endowed with fresh energy and find a new joy in living. Mrs. G. Reid, Napanee, Ont., tells of the benefit she found through the use of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. She says: "I have used Dr. Williams' Pink Pills on different occasions and cannot emphasize too strongly the benefits derived from them. I was growing nervous, my complexion was becoming sallow and my eyes dull and listless. My vitality was poor and I did not sleep well. I became despondent, losing interest in my work, which seemed to tire me so easily. I began using Dr. Williams' Pink Pills and after taking six boxes I began to enjoy life again and looked much brighter and felt happier. My appetite improved, I gained in weight and could sleep without any nervous wakefulness during the night. I also used these pills while nursing my baby and found them a wonderful help both for myself and for making my baby better natured. For these reasons I gladly recommend them to anyone who needs a tonic for the rebuilding of strength and energy."

Too Weak to Walk.

"I owe my present good health to Dr. Williams' Pink Pills," says Mrs. Annie Treherne, Brandon, Man., who tells of her new-found health as follows: "Some years ago I had an attack of pneumonia and it left me in a terribly weakened and run-down state. I was unable to walk for a long time as I had practically lost the use of my legs, and had to be carried upstairs, for I had not the strength to go myself. I became despondent over my condition, for I had tried many remedies, which failed to help me. While in this wretched condition a lady friend urged me to give Dr. Williams' Pink Pills a trial, and I procured a supply. After taking the pills for a while I could see that I was growing stronger, and I gladly continued their use until I had fully regained my old-time health and strength. Now if I feel at all run-down at any time I at once take Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, and they never fail me. I can therefore warmly recommend them to others who may be run-down."

Nature Gives Warning.

Pain is one of Nature's warnings that something is wrong with the body. Indigestion, for instance, is characterized by pains in the stomach, and often about the heart; rheumatism by sharp pains in the limbs and joints; headaches are a sign that the nerves or stomach are out of order. In some ailments, such as anaemia, pain is not so prominent. In this case Nature's warning take the form of pallor, breathlessness after slight exertion, palpitation of the heart, and loss of appetite. Whatever form these warnings take, wise people will not ignore the fact that many diseases have their origin in poor blood, and that when the blood is enriched the trouble disappears. Dr. Williams' Pink Pills are most helpful in such cases because they purify and build up the blood to its normal strength. In this way it tones up the nerves, restores the appetite and gives perfect health. Miss Hazel Berndt of Arnprior, Ont., has proved the great value of this medicine, and says: "I am a young girl and have been working in a factory for the past four years. For two years I had been in such poor health that at times I could not work. I was thin and pale, and troubled with headaches and fainting spells. I doctored nearly all this time, but it did not help me. My mother advised me to take Dr. Williams' Pink Pills and after using them for a while I could notice an improvement in my condition. I used nine boxes and can truthfully say that my health is restored. When I began taking the pills I weighed 97 pounds, and now I weigh 114. I feel that I owe my good health to Dr. Williams' Pink Pills and hope other ailing people will give them a fair trial."

OTTAWA HOPE TO SCORE WIN IN TODAY'S GAME

All the Casualties Are Recovered and Team at Full Strength.

CHANGED POSITIONS.

Return of Monohan Has Given Increased Confidence to the Side

OTTAWA, Ont., Oct. 24.—(Canadian Press).—The largest crowd of supporters that has accompanied an Ottawa Rugby team for a game in an outside town in years is expected to be on the special train carrying the Senators to-day when they leave for Moftreal, where they play M.A.A.A. a scheduled Big Four contest this afternoon.

With the team in the best possible condition, and a full roster promised, confidence reigns in the Ottawa camp that a victory will be registered to-day. The winged wheelers are not being under-rated but the locals are counting on making a big bid for the honors, and if the Red and Blue come out on top it will not be until a grim battle has been waged.

The reinstatement of Vince Monohan places the Ottawa team at full strength, and he will start at middle wing, paired off with Jerry Timmis. This releases Harold Starr for outside wing duty, and he will patrol the left flank with Don Young on the other end. Connell has been rigged up with a special helmet, and will start on the half line. Emerson will be at flying wing and Joe Tubman reports his injured leg in good enough condition to warrant his starting out at centre half. Much depends on Tubman. If he can stand the strain and kicks with his usual ability, the home team is going to have a big handicap to overcome right off the bat, the Ottawa supporters state.

The inside positions have been shifted and Doc. Pritchard and Jimmy Humphrey will flank Stew. Bruce at snap. Charlie Lynch, whose work has been a feature of Ottawa's two last games, will start at quarter. Lynch showed a polished game against Argos last Saturday and his generalship is looked to for big things.

The Ottawa line-up was announced last night as follows:

Flying wing, Emerson; halves, Connell, Tubman and Miller; quarter, Lynch; snap, Bruce; insides, Humphrey and Pritchard; middles, Timmis and Monohan; outsides, Starr and Young; subs., Ketchum, Cote, Anderson, Short, Herbert, Mulroney, Ault, James, Tighe, Kirby, Wright and Chadwick.

BASEBALL MELON WAS NOW DIVIDED

Commissioner Landis Distributed World's Series Cash to Players.

CHICAGO, Oct. 24.—(Canadian Press).—Another large slice was cut from the generously proportioned world's series melon last night when Commissioner Landis distributed cheques amounting to $154,538.11. They went to the Washington Club, defeated by the Pirates in the titular series, the Cincinnati Nationals and Philadelphia Americans, who finished second in their respective Leagues, and the St. Louis Americans, who wound up in third place. Cheques for the New York Giants, runners-up in the National League, will go forward to-day.

Connie Mack, veteran manager of the Philadelphia Athletics, who is entitled to a share in the money, wired the Commissioner last night, requesting that his portion be eliminated. An innovation came also from the Cincinnati Club, which awarded one-quarter of a share to the gatekeeper at Reds' Park.

HOCKEY LEAGUE PLAYING RULES MAY BE REVISED

Clause Dealing With Suspension of Players Committing Three Major Fouls.

ENDING PERIODS.

Question of Admitting Pittsburgh Into National Competition Will Be Discussed.

MONTREAL, October 24. Canadian Press. — While the question of the admittance of Pittsburgh into the National Hockey League will be one of the chief topics of discussion at the annual meeting of the League here on November 7th, the question of recommendations to the playing rules will hardly be overshadowed. At the meeting of the N.H.L. at New York recently the committee on rules brought in a number of recommendations which were considered and will be finally voted on at the annual session.

The following are the suggestions:

"That it be permissable to change players without waiting for a stop in the game, though one player must come off before the other goes on the ice."

Regarding the automatic suspension of players who incur three major penalties in the season, which rule was adopted last January, the following has been suggested as the clause to cover such cases:

"A player incurring two major fouls shall be cautioned by the president and that a third major foul will lead to his suspension. After the suspension the same player shall not be again suspended on this account until he has incurred three other major penalties."

The committee also suggests an addition to the section regarding the ending of periods to the effect that the timekeeper's signal at the end of a period shall terminate that period and at the end of the third, or, in case of an overtime game in which the score is tied at the end of the two extra periods of ten minutes each, end the game irrespective of the position of the puck when the signal is given.

It is also suggested that a definite rule be adopted regarding the play known as "ragging the puck" to provide that if the puck should cease to move while this play is being made, the referee shall order a face off ten feet in front of the goal in front of the team in possession.

Next year will mark the semi-centennial of the introduction of Rugby football at Yale, Harvard and Princeton.

CAR SMASH LANDS TWO MEN IN JAIL

Car Was Identified as One Stolen From Sudbury—Man in Hospital.

COBOURG, Oct. 24.—Two cars overturned on Tuesday night near the old C.N.R. subway east of Cobourg on the Provincial Highway, and as a result, Mr. B. Steinburg is in the Cobourg General Hospital suffering from concussion. As to just how serious his injuries may be, it is impossible now to say. Mr. Steinburg was driving east about 5 o'clock on Tuesday night in a closed sedan. One car passed him, and went on ahead. A touring car that was coming behind him occupied by Bert McDonald and George Oliver went to pass also, and there was some kind of a mix-up and both cars overturned. A man to whom Mr. Steinburg had given a ride escaped with bruises, but the latter was seriously injured and his car was so badly smashed, it is practically beyond repair. The men in the touring car, Oliver and McDonald, received cuts and bruises. A lady who was motoring saw the accident and took Mr. Steinburg to Cobourg General Hospital, where a physician is attending him. MacDonald and Oliver went to a local hotel and a physician was called to their aid. They are now in Cobourg jail, and soon after their admittance the jail physician was called to attend them there.

Tuesday evening Provincial Officer Cousans received a communication stating that a car had been stolen at Sudbury. The number, it is stated, was the same as that on the touring car which the two men were driving. They were accordingly taken into custody Wednesday at a hotel here, and will come before the magistrate at an early date.

COUNCIL OF LEAGUE

Official quarters in Sofia, recounting the consequences of two days of fighting, say that 25 Bulgarians have been killed and 15,000 made homeless, and that 240 square miles of Bulgarian territory has been occupied by the Greeks.

The official Greek announcement that the military operation may be considered ended seems to be borne out by a message from a correspondent of The Associated Press, who, writing from Petrich, says that as he was leaving the town, the firing had ceased and the Greek operations appeared to have stopped.

Petrich in Ruins.

PETRICH, Bulgaria, Oct. 24 (Canadian Press).—A mass of ruins now constitutes the town of Petrich and except for the Mayor and other officials, it is totally deserted. Groups of peasants, who began trekking north and as the Greek troops entered the town from the south, are presenting a picture of desolation and terror. Men, women and children are trodding the rain-soaked roads, shivering with cold, sullen and apathetic.

As a press correspondent made his way from Sofia to Petrich, he was stopped frequently by peasants who asked: "Has it come again, the war?"

The Greek artillery kept up a steady bombardment of Petrich for 24 hours before infrantry elements advanced and entered the town as it was evacuated by the Bulgarian soldiers. As the correspondent left last night, the firing ceased, and the Greek operations appeared to have stopped.

Territory Desolated.

SOFIA, Bulgaria, Oct. 24 (Canadian Press).—Twenty-five killed, 15,000 homeless and 240 square miles of Bulgarian territory occupied by the Greeks. This is the consequence of the past two days' operations, amounting to regular warfare with old Macedonian provinces the battlefield as given out in official quarters last night.

Thus far the killed are said to be about evenly divided between soldiers and civilians, but, according to official information, panic-stricken inhabitants of the invaded region are fleeing before the Greeks without food and in utmost misery, and further casualties among these people are expected within the next few days.

The Ministry of War charges that behind the advancing Greek columns of regulars, troops from Asia Minor are resorting to a veritable pillage of the occupied territory, requisitioning wheat, cereals and other foodstuffs. Petrich and seven villages are declared to have fallen into the hands of Greeks, whose advance is described as being over a 20-mile front and to a depth of more than six miles. Latest advices, received here, however, indicate that the Greek advance has come to a temporary halt.

Stories of horrors, such as cropped up during the early weeks of August, 1914, are being told in Sofia last night. The capital is seething with rage as the refugees relate of the killing of three children and four women by a shell that exploded at the Petrich railroad station.

In shelling Petrich, the Bulgarian authorities say, the Greeks used long-range guns of 155 millimetres.

Bulgar Minister at Paris.

PARIS, Oct. 24 (Canadian Press) —M. Briand had a lengthy conference last night with M. Carapanos and B. Morfoff, respectively the Greek and Bulgarian ministers to France, in the course of which the French Minister of Foreign Affairs spoke both as President of the Council of the League of Nations and a member of the French Government.

It is expected in diplomatic circles that instructions will be given to the warring troops on the Greco-Bulgarian frontier to refrain from further activities unil the dispute is settled by the League of Nations.

Telegrams explaining the situation have been sent by the League not only to the states which are members of the council, but to all the other members of the league. Should the Bulgarian charges of Greek invasion of Bulgarian soil be proved it is thought here that the League will be confronted with the most serious international dispute it has ever handled.

It is admitted by the Bulgarians that they shot a Greek soldier dead, but they insist it was on Bulgarian soil after he had attacked a Bulgarian sentinel. They alleged last night that Greek forces, including artillery, now have penetrated into Bulgarian territory to a depth of ten kilometres (about six miles) along a front of more than thirty kilometres, causing eighteen Bulgarian casualties with seven soldiers missing. They also charge that the city of Petrich has been bombarded by the Greeks. The Greek Government has not yet answered the Bulgarian charges.

Sir Eric Drummond had planned to make an official visit to Athens on November 1 at the invitation of the government, but League circles say it is probable he will postpone or annul the trip in view of yesterday's developments.

THE MARKETS

TORONTO LIVESTOCK

TORONTO, Oct. 24—Total cattle receipts at the Union Stock Yards this week were over 10,500 head, the largest run for the year. The heavy run was due to the cleaning up of a lot of cattle which had been on grass and were no use to stable together with heavy shipments of stockers and feeders from the West. The market was not disturbed to any great extent by the run, and only in the case of common and medium cows and handyweight butchers was there any decline in prices. The drop was estimated at 25 cents a cwt. in these, due in some measure to receipts of similar cattle from the West.

Rogers and Maybee bought up all the cattle suitable for export and met little competition from the packers. Prices on steers were easier judged by the sales, but on quality it was figured that the changes were insignificant. Few steers cost as high as $8 a cwt. Short keep steers scarcely averaged $7, and heifers cost $5.50 to $6.50. A few choice bulls were taken from $4.75 to $5.50 a cwt. A large quantity of export cattle will be wanted next week, but there is no reason to expect any betterment in prices, A partial embargo announced yesterday may upset the arrangements, however. Good to choice handyweight butchers were had from $6.25 to $6.75, and medium quality killing stuff was mostly around $5 a cwt. Choice butchers' cows were steady from $5 to $5.50; good cows, $4 to $4.50, and medium cows, $3 to $3.75 a cwt. The large volume of stockers and feeders sold made steady, and in cases higher prices, and only some discards were bought below $4 a cwt. Baby beeves are holding firm, the choice ones selling for $1 to $11.50 a cwt. Commission men are of the opinion that next week's cattle run will not be as heavy as this week's.

A drop in the quotation on calves at Buffalo has been followed here and prices are down a dollar a cwt. from two weeks ago. A few choice calves will still bring 12½ cents, but good calves are now selling from 10 to 11½ cents and medium calves 8 to 9 cents a pound.

Packers' buyers are complaining that lamb prices are too high, but the price has held steady with top ewes and wethers at 12½ cents and heavy lambs at 11½ to 12 cents a pound. Heavier supplies of sheep have brought choice butchers down to 7 cents a pound.

Packers made a drive on hog prices following Monday's sales at $11.75 a cwt fo.b., and the price on Wednesday and Thursday was $11.25 a cwt. An effort is to be made to get sellers to accept $11 a cwt. for week-end loadings.

STERLING EXCHANGE.

Sterling cables $4.83 1-8.
Sterling demand $4.83 5-8.

EGG MARKETS

OTTAWA, Oct. 24 (Canadian Press).—The fresh egg market continues firm with steady demand for the higher grades. The storage undertone is easy. Prices generally unchanged.

Toronto—Fresh specials 60, extras 58, Jobbing prices unchanged.

Montreal—Egg market is tame and dull with good demand for fresh extras 50 to 52.

MONTREAL GRAIN AND PRODUCE

MONTREAL, Oct, 24 (Canadian Press).—The tone of the local grain market yesterday for Ontario and Quebec oats was steady with a moderate amount of business passing. Some trading was reported in spring wheat grades of flour on a steady demand from local and country buyers. There was no change in the winter wheat flour.

A fair trade continued in most lines of millfeed and the tone of the market was steady. The movement of rolled oats for export account continued fairly large. The tone of the baled hay market was steady under a fair demand.

Beans were quoted at from $3.40 to $2.50 per bushel.

A feature of the local egg situation continues to be the strong undertone to the market for strictly fresh eggs owing to the small supplies coming forward and prices were again higher yesterday. The receipts were 5,382 cases, as compared with 1,893 for the same day last week, and 1,220 for the corresponding day a year ago.

The feature of the potato trade was the easier feeling that developed in the market, and prices were reduced 10c per bag.

The receipts of butter were 2,939 packages, as compared with 1,196 for the same day last week, and 3,977 for the corresponding day a year ago. There was a better feeling in the market according to some in the trade, and a little more business was also reported which was attributed to an improved demand from local buyers for supplies.

The receipts of cheese were 5,447 boxes, as against 9,942 for the same day last week, and 4,745 for the corresponding day a year ago. The demand from English importers for supplies around the present level of prices showed some improvement and a fair volume of business resulted in this direction.

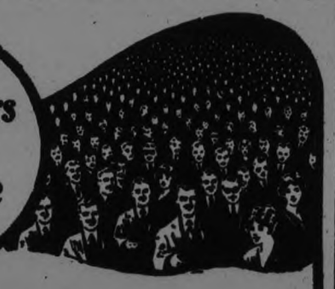
110,000 Policyholders in the Mutual Life of Canada



Safety in Numbers

THE Mutual Life of Canada is a company of approximately 110,000 policyholders bonded together for mutual protection and support in time of trouble. They obtain the insurance practically at cost. Surplus profits over and above provision of necessary reserves are divided among participating policyholders.

Last year, the sum of $2,689,000 was thus distributed to Mutual policyholders as dividends.

Mutual profit-participating policyholders have three options: (1) They may apply their profits to increasing the face value of their policies; (2) They may apply them to reducing premiums; (3) They may take out their profits in cash.

The Mutual Book tells the whole story. Write for it.

THEATRES

AT THE GRAND.

ABIE'S IRISH ROSE.

An attraction that is, and has been commanding the attention of theatre-goers throughout the country for the past four years, and unless all signs fail, will continue to do so, is Anne Nichols' history-making comedy success, "Abies' Irish Rose", which the management of the Grand Opera House has secured for an engagement of three nights beginning Thursday, October 29th, with matinee on Saturday, October 31. They believe the attraction will prove the most important event in the city's theatrical history.

The inability to take care of the crowds anxious to see and laugh at "Abie" in the customary period of theatrical engagements, is only what has taken place in every city in which it has been presented. As a rule, week following week is rolled up with a regularity which has shattered every known record run on this continent and made the big producing managers of New York gasp with amazement and envy. After all, in the last analysis, there is nothing to be amazed at in considering the phenomenal success of "Abie's Irish Rose" for giving the public what it wants, with a persistance enough to demand it, and it follows that the ordinary law of supply and demand must be fulfilled.

In her play Miss Nichols follows the line of least resistance. She believes the present day theatregoers wanted amusement of a clean, wholesome order, and she endeavored to supply this demand. Bedroom farce has had its day, sex-problem plays had been overworked even from a humorous angle, mystery plays were a glut on the market. What remained? Why not a few pages from everday life as millions live and know it? Introduce characters with strong dominating racial differences, expressing their individual viewpoint of thought and life; introduce human heart interest, love's young dream, love of family, sacrifice, then embellish all these ingredients with dialogue of brilliant wit and infectious humor, involve everybody in a whirl of hilarious complications, and what is the result? A tornado of mirth, a Niagara of laughter—such is "Abie's Irish Rose."

Miss Nichols will present the attraction to this city with the entire cast and production intact, which recently finished the phenomenal run of eight weeks at the Gayety Theatre in Rochester and six weeks in Whiting Opera House at Syracuse.

AT THE CAPITOL

ITALY'S KING SEES "QUO VADIS" FILMED.

Victor Emmanuel Watches Cameras Grind on Christians Hurled to Lions.

It is a common occurrence for notables to visit American picture studios — so common in fact, that their presence attracts but little attention.

Yet never has the distinction of a visit by a king been paid one. Even the Prince of Wales, during his last tour of this country, ignored, or, perhaps it would be better to say, was unable to accept the innumerable invitations showered upon him to see how American movies are made.

During the filming of "Quo Vadis," the new gigantic screen version of the Sienkiewicz novel which First National will present at the Capital Theatre next Monday, however, one of the few sideline spectators admitted into the studio was none other than His Royal Highness the King of Italy.

But that was because the picture was made in Rome.

The King's visit was during the filming of the sequences showing Nero causing the Christian martyrs to be hurled to the lions in the Circus arena.

It is a thrilling scene, not only as it now appears on the screen, but in the cameraizing of it as well. A gigantic replica of the ancient Circus was built and packed with twenty thousand men, women and children garbed as Roman citizenry of Nero's time.

Into the arena, much larger than the average football gridiron, was lashed and driven the band of Christian martyrs — prayerful, yet smiling in the strength of their faith.

Then came the lions, a hundred or more — ferocious and half-famished. As they lunged for their human prey, snarling and roaring, a dozen cameras were cranking, cutting, then cranking again. Scores of "shots" of the scene were taken from as many angles. Infiinite care had to be observed to protect the actors in the arena from actual attack by the savage beasts.

Throughout an afternoon the King sat watching the unique proceedings. He had come to the "location" incognito—plainly dressed and accompanied by only a small party of friends.

Practically all of those in the great scene knew that a king was watching their actions. Word of his presence had been passed throughout the multitude. But it caused little agitation.

Kings are not so rare in Europe as they are in America.

AT THE REGENT

ANOTHER DE MILLE SCREEN SENSATION.

Cecil B. DeMille, outstanding directorial genius of the film industry, has lived up to his reputation and created another sensational offering in "Hell's Highroad," his first independent production from Producers Distributing Company, which opens at the Regent Theatre Monday.

The statement might sound like a platitude because the picture going public has become so used to seeing the unusual from Mr. DeMille. In the present instance, however, the producing director has excelled himself. Rupert Julian, who directs the picture, under Mr. DeMille's personal supervision, has managed to combine spectacular effects and big punch scenes with a gripping story of teary tenements and mirthful mansions. The value that the story has, is accentuated by the strong contrast between these two phases of life, a contrast that is brought out in an entirely different manner from that which the film fans usually see.

Leatrice Joy plays the part of the society girl who loves money not so much for itself but because of an honest conviction that it is essential to happy married life. The man of her choice, played by Edmund Burns, fails to share this view, so the woman, thwarted in attaining her goal by direct suasion, turns to subterfuge. She gets a wealthy man about town to place her husband on the path to wealth. The idea turns out to be a boomerang. Infected by the money lure, the man now sets about to discard everything that does not contribute to his ambition —and that includes his wife.

Mr. DeMille has turned his tale deftly in showing how the penitent wife, conscious of her error of judgment, sets about to ward off this catastrophe, and incidently, her rival. The situation has been used to good advantage in providing another DeMille "punch" scene, one that carries realism along with the melodramatic action. The conclusion is necessarily satisfying and carries with it its own lesson.

Too much cannot be said for the work of Miss Joy who started out as a DeMille protege and is, as a star, still a DeMille protege. She has acquired poise and restraint along with the photographic beauty that was always one of her assets. As Judy Nichols she gives a sympathetic portrayal. Edmund Burns, another screen favorite, who has benefited by association with Mr. DeMille, is a convincing weakling and then hero. Robert Edeson is the same accomplished actor as ever and Julia Faye vamps in her most vampish way.

With such a cast under DeMille's supervision "Hell's Highroad" was bound to be good. It is more than that. It is the best of a long series of DeMille successes.

GREATEST JACK LONDON FICTION SUCCESS FILMED.

AT ROYAL NEXT WEEK.

"Adventure," three-Crowded Drama of Cannibal Islands, Picturized By Paramount Under the Direction of Victor Fleming.

"Adventure," one of the last stories from the pen of the late Jack London, has been transferred to the screen by the Paramount organization, under the personal supervision of Victor Fleming. Native moviegoers are assured of an hour of excellent entertainment, when this picturesque film drama of the South Sea begins its local engagement next week at the Royal Theatre.

If Jack London were alive today, he would probably be one of the most sought-after writers of screen material. He knew how to build up strong, dramatic plots that vibrated with action and life-like characters. His stories breathe a spirit of realism because he wrote of things and people and places that he himself had seen, observed and visited.

"Adventure" is a story of the present-day life in the savage Solomon Islands of the South Seas. London wrote of that uncivilized corner of the earth from personal, intimate knowledge. He lived in the South Seas for a number of years. Many of the incidents he narrates and which the picture vividly recreates really happened. It is a certainty that the chief characters in the story are prototypes of persons London actually met during the course of his travels in the tropics.

The plot centres around the dynamic adventures of a copra plantation owner and his business partner —a fearless woman soldier of fortune. A stirring encounter with head-hunting cannibals, a thrilling under-sea fight, a fierce primitive duel and an exciting ship battle are among the outstanding features in this de luxe screen play.

The notable cast assembled offers convincing evidence of the scrupulous care that went into the making of this production. Every one of the players chosen has a part that suits him to the proverbial 'T.' Those who are featured include such brilliant screen favorites as Tom Moore, Pauline Starke, Wallace Beery and Raymond Hatton.

The Toronto Globe had the following to say of "Drusilla With A Million" which appeared in Massey Hall, Toronto, recently. It is coming to Peterborough shortly under the auspices of the Local Council of Women from whom tickets can be obtained. This is what the Globe had to say:

"Drusilla with a Million," the big motion picture at Massey Hall, begins the second week of its successful engagement this afternoon at 2.15 o'clock. It is seldom that a motion picture comes to Toronto which captures the entire city so completely by storm—especially the women folks. "Drusilla with a Million" has a sentiment about it that fascinates and holds one almost breathless. Then there are the babies—more than a score of them, whose antics and comical efforts throughout the production create endless applause and excitement. Another critic said it was a relief from the sordid sex pictures that have overrun the market so much of late. "Drusilla with a Million" will continue all next week at Massey Hall.

Southern Hemisphere Report Sends Wheat Price Higher

CHICAGO, Oct. 24 (Canadian Press).—Material new upturns today in wheat values here followed an overnight advance of quotations at Liverpool together with reports of continued unfavorable crop conditions in Argentina and Australia. Unofficial estimates of te yield in Australia were reduced to 110,000,000 bushels or less as against 147,000,000 bushels a year ago.

The scantiness of primary domestic receipts tended also to lift prices. The opening, 1-2 to 2 3-8c higher, new style, December 143 to 143 1-4 and May 141 to 141 1-2, was followed by a rise to 143 1-8 for December and 142 for May.

Kirkland Lake and Beaver Led On Standard Exchange

TORONTO, Oct. 24. —(Canadian Press.) — Performances of Kirkland Lake and Beaver, absorbing a bulk of trading on the standard mining exchange this morning, were outstanding features of the standard's closing session of the week. Kirkland Lake, in dealing amounting to almost 70,000 shares, climbed to 59 1-2 and closed at high, an eighth point advance, and Beaver, in transactions of more than 95,000 shares, was raised up to 39 1-4, five and a quarter points higher. Elsewhere the trend was mixed. Tough Oakes eased one and Vipond two, and Keeley was two lower at 149. Everett and Argonaut each improved a half point.

Active Week Is Closed With Strong Session

TORONTO, October 24. Canadian Press. — The Toronto Stock Exchange closed an active week this morning with a market that in strength and activity surpassed any for a long time. Advances were registered in every section of the exceptionally broad list dealt in, the best exampel of this being the two point gain by Bank of Commerce and one and a half advance by Imperial Bank

Consolidated Smelters, the active leader, sold up 2¼ points at 162 5-8, after reaching 163½; Brazilian closed at the half mark mark of 79½, a gain of a point and a half; British Columbia Fishing advanced 5-8s at 56 5-8; Canadian Canners preferred advanced one and seven eighths at 63 7-8, and Davies a point and a half at 35½, and all these were actively dealt in. Twin City gained two and Winnipeg and Dominion Stores preferred a point each.

The Merry Men of the Greenwood had not been very merry all week. They were a bit worried, to put it mildly all because of the fancy their fathers had taken to the life in the woods.

It was just dandy of their fathers to spend all last Saturday afternoon heping to fix up the old log cabin in the woodland glade, so that the Merry Men would have a cosy headquarters, but it was not quite so dandy when the boys overheard their fathers talking about forming some sort of an Ali Baba and the forty Thieves club among themselves so that they could turn boys again. They were certainly sorry they were not boys.

"Yes, and did you hear Mr. Bonter telling Mrs. Bonter that they had a secret cave in the Greenwood?" whispered Ned the Red, as the puzzled and hard thinking boys gathered in Johnson's big barn hayloft.

"I tell you what, fellows," said Wess Johnson, shaking his finger in everyone's face, "I'm not going to be any second rate Robin Hood, with the Greenwood full of our Dads playing the Forty Thieves. They will be looking for something to steal all the time; they can't play Ali Baba without being wicked thieves, and first thing we know, they'll be stealing the only horn I've got."

Well, if its our own secret cave that they know about, we will make a raid on it ourselves and maybe we'd get a lot of things," ventured Friar Tuck, "and besides, maybe it's not our cave that they know about."

"Oh, don't fool yourself," gloomily announced Little John, "my dad used to play in these woods years ago; he may not mean our cave, but if he explored the Greenwood half as much as we do I can tell you, fellows, we're just out o'luck. My mother says he thinks he's a boy again. I'm not going to mention nature in our house again; no siree, not for any money. Why, my Dad is getting to know the birds now, better than I do."

"Ah, dry up, Mr. Gloom," bawled Tommy Scott.

"That's just what Sam and Tim and I were thinking," said Angus Biggar meaning Sam Sweet and Tim Doyle, "let's go on up to the cave and see if there are any traces of the thieves."

It was raining, dull and raw, and the natural thing, you would think, would be for the Merry Men to make merry in the new log cabin headquarters, especialy as the fireplace was finished and nothing wanting but their presence.

Well, the boys did not discuss the question, but just naturally avoided the log cabin, so lately connected with the forming of opposition in the Greenwood. The whole bottom, so to speak, had fallen out of the Merry Men pot. And the boys had just naturally gone back to the barn loft, there to sum up the whole situation.

"Come on, lads, let's make for the cave," called Wess, as he started to run across the field to the cedar-rail fence.

"Suppose our Dads have blocked the entrance to the cave, with a big rock?" thought Charlie Knight aloud.

This was a new angle of trouble. This was indeed serious.

All the boys mounted the fence-rail and began to argue about the combined strength of the boys, against possible big rocks that their Dads might roll into place before the door.

"No, that 'Open Sesame' magic is no good against any place my Dad shuts," said Bernie Brown, "when he shuts a place, believe me, it stays shut."

Roy Preston quietly mumbled in a half undertone, something about never having noticed any big stones which might serve as cave closers. Roy Preston uses his eyes; he is a keen observer. The idea of inspecting the cave before further worry soon took hold, and the Merry Men, wandered through the damp woods up the trail, in the direction of the cave, silent and in single file, led by Robin Hood.

The cave, which is about twenty feet each way, is set in the side of the hill, being part of a limestone ridge, and formed perhaps by removal of blocks of stone. The front, or opening is almost as wide as the interior.

Robin Hood held the Merry Men in order and they all gathered to one side, appointing Robin Hood, Little John and Friar Tuck to investigate. As a matter of fact, Friar Tuck appointed himself and the other two, and the other lads agreed.

Very cautiously, Robin Hood, Friar Tuck and Little John crept forward to peek into the cave.

Not a sound was heard, so they all three stepped to the opening and went to enter.

"Whoop!" cried Wess, "an owl!"

That is all he had time to say, for the Great Horned Owl, which had been hiding in the cave, jumped into the air and at the opening, seeking outer safety, and making sure of passing out before the boys had a chance to block him. He struck Wess on the head with one wing and all three boys fell in a heap.

The yelling and general row brought all the Merry Men in a wild scramble. There was a terrible smell of skunk, which Wess said came from the owl, as it kills and eats skunks, regardless of smell. However, in this case, the owl had been using the cave for a retreat. There was a half eaten crow on the rough board table. Wess explained that the crows hate the Grate Horned Owl and for a good reason, and probably the owl got the crow and then was worried by the other crows and retreated to the cave.

After the excitement, the boys had time to take a look around.

The rough board table was not their work. It had a short piece of candle . That looked bad.

"Hey, fellows, look!" exclaimed Walter Wilder, holding a sheet of paper in the air.

Robin Hood grabbed the paper without ceremony, but was all Dutch to him . "Nope, can't make it out," said he.

Little John next seized the paper, which, by the way, was found under a stone in a corner.

"Why, this is my own Dad's writing," emphatically announced Little John, "and this is a secret code he used when he was a boy. He told me about it once. The alphabet is reversed and every fourth letter has a secret sign. We can tell the letters and I guess we can guess the signs, if we have most of the word to go by.

And, after what seemed ages to the other boys, this is what Little John handed to Robin Hood to read aloud. "All-a Bad-a Dad-a and the Forty Thieves will take notice to meet secretly in Johnson's barn next Saturday, to get new thieves clothes for the All-a Bad-a Dad-a Band. Signed: Rob 'em Good."

The boys took an oath to tell no one, but to hide in the loft and watch.

IN MEMORIAM

WEAVER.—In Loving Memory of our Dear Father, Mr. Robert Weaver, died October 24, 1923.
When the evening shades are falling
And we are sitting alone.
To our hearts there comes a longing:
If he only could be home.
Oft and oft our thoughts do wonder
To a grave so far away,
Where we laid our darling father,
Just two years ago today.
Surrounded by friends, we are lonely
Amidst pleasures we feel blue;
A smile on our face and a heartache,
Aching and longing for you.
Frends may think we have forgotten you,
When at times they see us smile.
But they little know the sorrow
Which that smile hides all the while.

Women's Meeting In the G. W. V. A. HALL, Tuesday

Night at 8 o'clock. ADDRESS BY MRS. C. H. THORBURN.

Liberal Publicity Committee, 395 George street, Peterborough

Arthur Meighen in Peterborough Lays Charge Against Ministers Of Insincerity on Tariff Policy

Extols Protection as Only Remedy of Trade and Solving of Kindred Problems of Immigration and of National Railways.

CRITICISM OF HON. G. N. GORDON

Raise Tax on Farm Produce To Level of Imposts of United States Would Place Powerful Duties on Incoming Manufactured Goods.

The visit of the Right Honorable Arthur Meighen to Peterborough on Saturday night created a great deal of interest and the Grand Opera House was unable to accommodate the large number of people desirous of hearing the Conservative leader. After the first meeting was over Mr. Meighen addressd an overflow gathering in Victoria Hall, where J. F. Strickland presided over a full house.

The meeting in the Opera House was presided over by V. J. McElderry, President of the Liberal-Conservative Association of West Peterboro. Accompanying him on the platform were E. A. Peck, the Conservative candidate, and Mrs. Howard Fallis, who both addressed the audience, and leading officers of the party organization. Senator Gideon Robinson who was also billed to speak was prevented from reaching the city on account of missing a connection.

The arrival of Mr. Meighen, halfway through the speech of Mrs. Fallis was the signal for an enthusiastic demonstration, the audience rising, and a salvo of cheering greeted the ex-Premier.

Right Honorable Arthur Meighen

The strain of electioneering is evidently telling on Mr. Meighen. His voice was very hoarse and he looked tired and worn.

At the opening of his address, Mr. Meighen paid a graceful compliment to the local candidate. There was joy in the Conservative camp, he said, when they heard that Mr Peck had accepted the nomination In discussing the questions before the electorate, said Mr. Meighen, while there were some other issues, the chief issue was the tariff.

Of late years, he said, a whispering campaign had been carried on all over the country by the Liberal party. This campaign had been more or less successful. It was successful in 1921 and at 2 or 3 by-elections since. That campaign was now nation-wide. Wherever he went, he found it, but it went from house to house. He was at a loss to conceive of any calumny that had not been used. It was always varied in accordane with the interests of different localities.

Attitude Towards the C.N.R.

The government were attempting to convince the railwaymen that the Conservatives had a design to merge the National Railways with the C. P.R. He did not know why he should be called upon to give a daily and categorical denial. Never had any saying of his been quoted as a basis for this assertion. He did not know why they should persist in this statement unless they thought the railwaymen were gullible. But he was sure the railwaymen did not want their franchise stolen from them by misrepresentation. A recommendation of amalgamation had been passed by a Senate Committee in a report, but he was the only one to denounce that committee for meeting in secret. Further, not a Conservative had supported amalgamation when the matter came up in the House. No party would dare to carry out such a plan without a mandate from the people. He would not assume any such right without a mandate nor even if he got a majority in the coming election would he regard it as a mandate.

Then it was asserted that he was going to starve the system. That was untrue. He would not deny it capital for essential improvement and extension. The Hon. G. P. Graham—they would be shocked when he told them—had made a suggestion before an audience that the Conservative would deny such needed capital. "No government," declared Mr. Meighen, "of which I am the head will ever deny money for extension, but it will deny money for too luxurious traffic." But there would be no interference with management. If any government wanted to drive the system into bankruptcy, he did not know of any better method than that of pouring out money on all kinds of investments and unncessary luxuries. He would take the course that would serve the system best and the country best.

U. S. Establishes Schools For Prohibition Agents

SPRINGFIELD, Ill., Oct. 26.—Ethics in catching bootleggers are being taught here in a school for prohibition agents.

Recognizing tha the crude tactics of agents in the enforcement work in some sections have brought both the officers and the law into disrepute the government establis'ed the school in an effort to teach the dry agent how "to gain respect, not only for himself but also the prohibition law."

WEATHER

For the eighth week-end in succession, we had rain again Saturday and Sunday. This time the total was .84 of an inch. The rain, and high wind that followed, has almost completely denuded many of the trees of their leaves, and they now bear a gaunt and desolate appearance. The third week in October is the usual date for this event. As Mrs. Hemans says in her little poem in one of the old red-backed school readers: "The melancholy days have come, the saddest of the year,"—perhaps the reader may remember the rest of the verse, or verses. The lines have escaped me. Anyhow it is an apt description of the fall season. Temperature this morning 32 degrees. Yesterday at noon the barometer was at an unusually low figure and gave warning of the high wind that followed later.—W.P.

Greeks Better Equipped and Outnumber Their Opponents.

LONDON, Oct. 26. — Canadian Press. — The Daily Express prints a despatch from Levonovo, the Bulgarian headquarters, four miles from Petrich, dated Sunday, saying that the Bulgarians and Greeks continue to wage intermittent warfare. The correspondent, however, confines details to the doings of the Greeks, not mentioning any Bulgar retaliation.

He says that on Sunday he could see the Greek shells falling upon one of the Bulgarian mountain batteries, which arrived on Friday night, but which had not been used. The Greeks were declared greatly to outnumber the Bulgars, and their artillery, machine guns and airplanes to make an advance an easy task for them, especially as the Bulgarians are under strict control, and ordered not to retaliate.

"The Strume valley," says the despatch, "is dotted with refugees ... ing to take the cattle to safety. Petrich is waiting its fate.

The inhabitants are leaving in terror. The intention of the Greeks now seems to have been averted from Petrich to Fedmza, which is constantly shelled. The food problem is becoming serious."

Were Trapped When Motor Broke Through the Railing.

SAULT STE MARIE, Ont., Oct. 26. — Canadian Press. Yesterday morning the bodies of two people, John Hulme, aged 45, blacksmith shop foreman of the Algoma Steel Company, and Mrs. James Penfold, aged 42, were taken from the tail race at the Spanish River Pulp and Paper Co. mills, as the result of an auto accident.

The discovery of a broken railing in the bridge approach led to the belief that an accident had occurred, and Diver Huston of the ship canal staff, who was sent down by the police, discovered the auto.

Ropes were attached to the machine and it was raised to the surface

The body of Mrs Penfold floated out of a broken window of the car body of Hulme was discovered under it, where he was crushed when the machine overturned after leaping the embankment, and plunging into 20 feet of swiftly running water

Hulmes watch stopped a few minutes after one o'clock which leads the police to believe that the accident occurred shortly before that hour.

Shotgun Hidden in Hay Proved Fatal To Farmer

MOOSE JAW, Oct. 26 Canadian Press). — When Harold Clack, a farmer of Mortlach, stuck his fork into the hay in his barn, both barrels of a shot gun concealed in the mow were exploded, and Clack was struck in the stomach. He lived only four hours. No reason for the gun being in the hay has been given.

GREAT DAMAGE BY EARTHQUAKE IN PERSIAN GULF

Seven Thousand People Died in Earthuake and Storm.

MANY SHIPS LOST.

Pearl Fishing Fleet Was Almost Entirely Wiped Out.

KARACHI, British India, Oct. 26.—(Canadian Press.)—Brief details of the disaster caused by a cyclonic storm in the Persian Gulf, confirm early reports of great loss of life and the destruction of many small vessels.

Despatches to the Daily Gazette say that 7,000 persons perished in the cyclone, which was accompanied by an earthquake and other disturbances.

The pearl fishing fleet was almost entirely swept out of existence, more than 200 boats being sunk. British naval vessels suffered minor damage, such as the loss of boats.

The islands of Tamb and Heinjam were severely shaken and many acres of date palms at Basra were devastated.

Fur Garters Latest Fad Shoulder Necklaces, Too

PARIS, Oct. 26 (Canadian Press). — Fur garters are the latest fad of the Parisienne. Short skirts made them fashionable. Dressmakers, quick to ride the crest of the wave are beginning to design them so that fur ornaments shall be visible even when the skirt itself falls a little below the knees.

Another feminine fancy noted this fall is the shoulder necklace, smart women now wear long strings of pearls hanging down their backs.

Farmer Premier Aids Liberal Candidate in Durham Constituency

Hon. Chas. Dunning, Prime Minister of Saskatchewan, Pleads That One Part of Canada Should Not Be Set Against Another.

WEST RESPECTS NAME OF MASSEY.

Two Ministers of Government at Port Hope— Australian Cow and Hen Don't Frighten the Farmers of the West.

(By A Staff Reporter)

PORT HOPE, Oct. 26.—The Liberal party's ideals of national unity and goodwill were personified here on Saturday afternoon in the presence on the same political platform of the Hon. Charles A. Dunning, Premier of Saskatchewan, and the Hon. Vincent Massey, both Ministers of the Dominion Government, the one a representative of the farmers of Canada's vast west, the other the late president of the Massey-Harris Company, manufacturers of agricultural implements.

Supporting the candidature of Mr. Massey in Durham county, Premier Dunning said he had come east to present to the electors of Ontario the attitude and the desires of the people of the west in this election.

"The west holds out the right hand of fellowship to the east," he pledged, "the fellowship not of the 200,000 people who were there when I came as an emigrant lad, but of 2,000,000 people asking not that our interests shall be set before yours, but that we may come together as one people and march forward to a great destiny."

Canada must have but one fiscal system, Mr Dunning declared to the audience which packed the Royal Theatre. "We can't have one policy for one part and another for the other part. One part of this country cannot have its interests served without regard for the rest of the country Saskatchewan cannot have its interests prevail over Toronto and Montreal. We are all the rest of Canada, but neither can membersof the one great family. Free trade is the policy for Saskatchewan cannot have its interests prevail over the rest of Canada, but neither can Toronto and Montreal. We are all members of the one great family. Free trade is the policy for Saskatchewan if Saskatchewan were all Canada, but Saskatchewan cannot get its way, must not, at the expense of all Canada. Neither extreme will permit this country to live The tariff must serve all the people, and none of the people shall be made slaves of the tariff. That is the philosophy I have come east to propound."

Mr. Dunning said he could not discover how high Mr. Meighen proposed to raise the tariff. In the farming country it was to be moderate, not too high; in some centres of the east is was to be brick for brick with the tariff wall of the United States, and in other places where specific industries were to be considered it was to be a tariff of 75 per cent.

Mr. Dunning said that this was the most critical election since the opening of Western Canada, critical for all Canada, he added. The policy of Mr. Meighen tended to foster sectional division and disunity, whereas Canada should adhere to the principle on which Confederation was based, the principle of unity in diversity, upon which the British Empire itself had been built, and not by attempting to pour the people into one mould.

Praise for Massey.

"Any government is as good as the men in it, and no better," was the Hon. Mr. Dunning's epigrammatic remark in beginning his address. "I know the reputation and the character of Mr. Massey and I know he will add lustre to the Parliament of Canada as the representative of Durham. I realize that I may seem to be in an anomalous position as Premier of an agricultural province supporting one of the leading manufacturers of this country. It used to be in the West hat you could get nowhere unless you cursed the C.P.R. and the manfacturers. Today, however, public men may say a kind word for the C.P.R. without being howled down. Heaping abuse on the C.P.R. and the Massey-Harris Company used to be a popular practice, and in my judgment there was a time when they deserved it. The fact that there is a kindlier attitude toward the manufacturers is due to men like Vincent Massey, who visited the West, met the people of the Prairies, and by direct contact learned their needs and their problems. Thats why the name of Massey commands respect in the West and is reflecting lustre on this constituency.

"When I read the Conservative propaganda that the Government has sold out to the West, I wonder what sort of traitorous accusation they are making as if we in the West were foreigners. And may I say that we in the West know you much better than you know us, because so many of our families have their roots in the East. One reason why I came East was because I welcomed the opportunity to appear with Mr. Massey. Another reason was because I thought that in this election the East should understand the Western point of view. I am taking an active part in this election as Premier of Saskatchewan, because the great issue at stake means more to the people of Saskatchewan, who have reposed their confidence in me,

Sic 'em Biddy!

Mr. Peck's political propaganda does not stop at trifles.

The spectre of an Australian hen is the latest aid to his political aspirations conjured by his busy mind.

Hens are noted for their scratching, and Mr. Peck hopes the Australian hen may be able to scratch a few crosses opposite his name on West Peterborough ballots.

The Australian hen may be able to do that, but the one thing she can't do—and well Mr. Peck knows it—is lay eggs in Canada.

But Mr. Peck is trying to scare the farmers of this enlightened district with the spectre of an Australian hen laying millions of eggs all over the countryside; glutting the market, in fact. Bet you a dollar the Australian hen is laughing under its wing at Mr. Peck!

CANDIDATE REPLY TO QUESTIONAIRES

Both Contestants in Election Answered Questions Submitted.

At a meeting of the Peterborough Branch of the Prohibition Union held on October 16, a resolution was passed authorising the Chairman and Secretary to submit a questionnaire to the candidates for the Federal Parliament, and to publish their answers in The Examiner. Following is a copy of the letter sent to the Hon. G. N. Gordon and Mr. E. A. Peck, together with their replies:

Peterboro', October 16, 1925.

Dear Sir:—The Prohibition Union of Peterborough, associated with the Prohibition Federation of Canada, which seeks the ultimate elimination from Canada of the traffic in, and use of alcohol for beverage purposes, requests a statement of your attitude towards the following questions, also if you so wish, would like you to state your position in general regarding the Prohibition question.

Are you in favor of:

1. The automatic prohibition of the manufacture of liquor within, export out of or the importation into any Province whose Legislature having prohibited the sale requests this Federal support, or whose electorate on referendum have voted for prohibition of sale.

2. The refusal of Federal license to establish any new brewery or distillery in any Province which has legislated as aforesaid.

3. The adoption of a thoroughly friendly policy of complete co-operation with the United States of America in the enforcement of the Constitution and Law of that country and the removal from international relations of the irritation caused by now existing facilities for the evasion of those laws.

We would like an early reply.

Peterboro', Ont., October 22, 1925.

From Hon. Mr. Gordon.

I beg to acknowledge your inquiry of the 13th instant.

As a member of the Government, if I make a pledge, it would bind the Government to carry out this pledge, and without consulting the Government I can not make that pledge.

However, I am personally in sympathy with the policies indicated in each of the paragraphs, one, two and three, and if I were a private member not bound by the position I hold, I would accept without qualifications the policy suggested.

I might add that this Government has agreed to a convention with the the United States to stop rum running between the two countries, and has passed a law to prevent the distribution of alcohol falsely shown on a bill of lading, and making that a criminal offence.

I think you can rest assured the Government will issue no more new distillery or brewery licenses except renewals. Yours faithfully,

—G. N. Gordon.

From Mr. Peck.

Peterboro', October 24, 1925.

I beg to acknowledge receipt of your letter.

I do not regard the temperance question to be an issue in this campaign. None of the leaders of any of the parties have made any reference to this subject.

It is to be observed that legislation to regulate traffic in alcoholic beverages rests mainly with the various Provinces of the Dominion, and each Province appears to have adopted a different method of dealing with the situation.

In my opinion, the Dominion should give all reasonable aid to support such laws as may be adopted by any of the Provinces and to co-operate, as far as possible, in restraining any infraction of the measures which such Provinces may from time to time adopt dealing with the liquor traffic. Yours sincerely,

—E. A. Peck.

KNOW WHAT IS BEST

SHOULD WOMEN KNOW?

Should women know that whole races now living have never seen a case of cancer, tuberculosis, goitre, heart, liver, or kidney disease and that science attributes their immunity to the foods they eat? Surely yes, since women know that these diseases are rampant among civilized races whose foods differ radically.

Races who know nothing of "denatured" white flour, polished rice, refined cereals, white sugar, etc., but who live upon nature's whole grains, milk, eggs, nuts, beans, vegetables and fruits are free from the above diseases, but when they adopt our "denatured" foods, they soon die out with our dread diseases.

The greatest curse of civilized man is the refining of the "Protective Substances" out of his grain foods.

Roman Meal contains three whole grains. It is rich in the "Protective Substances" refined out of flour, other cereals, rice, sugar, etc. It keeps the blood non-acid, "cool", and invigorating, being the only alkaline cereal.

Blood should be kept naturally alkaline by using alkaline foods, but flour, other cereals, meats, fats, and sweets are "Excess Acid" and largely consumed by civilized races. Might they not cause disease? Science says they do, because they are acid-formers and "Deficient" in "Protective growth and repair substances." Acid foods "heat the blood", alkaline foods "cool the blood." Roman Meal is alkaline enough to correct the acids of flour, other cereals, meats, and sweets. Use it as porridge, muffins, pancakes, johnny cake, etc., or mix with white flour in the proportion of 25% in all domestic baking. Roman Meal is sold by your grocer.

PUFF STUFF, QUACK DOCTOR

SCENE—THE GRAND OPERA HOUSE.

TIME—SATURDAY NIGHT.

Ladies and Gentlemen: I am the great and celebrated Dr. Puff Stuff Meighen, just arrived in this city to give advice and dispense my medicines for the benefit of my fellow-creatures. I have studied and been educated in twelve universities, have travelled throughout all Canada from the sun's oriental exaltation to its occidental declination, and have, by the entreaties of Dr. Peck, Dr. Denne and others, been prevailed upon to favor this city with my notice, out of mere pity to languishing mortals. I am prepared, being the Aesculapius of the age, to guarantee to all persons, young or old, blind or lame, deaf or dumb, curable or incurable, sure and certain relief from all ills of this world whether arising out of natural or induced causes, produced by hard work or no work, and whether contracted since my last visit when I cured all that were then afflicted, or re-infections because of the unfortunate conditions which prevented my administering the complete dose at that time.

I have here the only sovereign medicine in the world. This is nature's palladium, health's magazine; and it works seven manners of ways, as nature herself requires, for it scorns to be confined to any particular way of operation. If a business happen to have its brains beat out, or head chopped off, two drops seasonably applied will recall the fleeting spirits, re-enthrone the deposed workers, cement the discontinuity of the parts, and in six minutes restore the lifeless business to all its pristine functions, vital, natural and export. I have it under the hands and seals of eighty-one of the greatest sultans, sophys, bashaws, viziers, chams, old women mufties, etc., in Christendom and elsewhere, to verificate the truth of my operations; and that I have absolutely performed such cures as are really beyond common human abilities is also attested by my aides and assistants here beside me, Dr. Peck, Dr. Denne, Dr. Strickland, Dr. McElderry and others.

Ladies and Gentlemen: I am the physician to the great and mighty Big Interests. I was converted to Christianity and High Tariff during the embassy of the late Sir John A. MacDonald, but I have learned a few things since then. I formerly served humanity in Portage La Prairie, but owing to circumstances over which I had no control I was compelled to leave that there place, and that I have come to this here city may be reckoned the greatest blessing that ever happened to Peterborough. I have brought with me the following unparalleled, inestimable and never-to-be-matched medicines:

The first is called the Great Mery Tonkytok Protection, from Wandy Whang Whang—one drop of which, poured into any of your factories, if you should happen to have the misfortune to lose your trade, will cause a new set to sprout out like mushrooms from a hot-bed; and if any person should happen to be troubled with that unpleasant and redundant exuberance called taxes, it will remove it in three applications, and with greater ease than the best safety razor on the market.

I'm also very celebrated in the cure of the eyes. People who could not see the light have come to me, taken one application, and gone away with their eyes opened, completely cured. In the year 1921, as I well remember, there were, due to my work, over one million more persons in all parts of Canada had their eyes wide open than could not see.

This here bottle, which I holds in my hand, is called the grand elliptical, Asiatical, Nonsencical High-tariff cordial, which cures all diseases incident to humanity. I don't like to talk of myself, ladies and gentlemen, because the man who talks of himself is a hegotist; but this I will venture to say of myself, that I am not only the greatest physician and philosopher of the age, but the greatest genius that ever illuminated mankind—but you know I don't like to talk of myself. You should only read one or two of my list of cures, out of the many thousands I have by me; if you knew the benefit so many people have received from my grand, elliptical, Asiatical, Nonsencical, Highertariff cordial, that cures all diseases incident to humanity, none of you would be such fools as to be sick. I'll just read you one or two:

"Sir,—I am a United States citizen, operating a textile plant. I suffered from loss of profits, large outgo and small income, with complications. After taking one dose of your grand, elliptical, Asiatical, Nonsencical Highertariff cordial things immediately looked brighter. Now I only operate my works half time and pay my men ten per cent. less wages than before."

"Sir,—I am a boot and shoe manufacturer. One bottle of your specific increased my profits 50 per cent. Have you anything you can recommend to satisfy my customers, to whom, of course, I charged the cost of my cure?"

"Sir,—Venturing too near the North Pole in an effort to cultivate bananas, I was, by a sudden disaster, blown into a million of atoms, with all my plant. By this unpleasant accident I was rendered unfit for my business, but hearing of your grand, elliptical, Asiatical, Nonsencical Highertariff cordial, I was persuaded to make essay thereof. The first bottle united my strayed particles, the second animated my shattered frame, the third effected a radical cure, the fourth sent me to the bank to count my balance which was becoming burdensome to the banker, and to recount the wonderful effects of your grand, elliptical Asiatical, Nonsencical Highertariff cordial, that cures all diseases incidental to humanity."

Now, ladies and gentlemen, these are just a few of the recommendations I have on file; doubtless my good friends here, Dr. Peck and the others, have many more of which they will tell you. Can I sell you a bottle of this matchless cure-all, this sovereign remedy? Make haste, or you'll be too late, as I must catch the first train out of town.

No? Well, I'll leave Dr. Peck here as my agent; he will have a supply on hand for the next few days.

FARMER PREMIER AIDS LIBERAL CANDIDATE

than any provincial issue we have ever had to decide.

West Must Be Considered.

We are told by our Conservative friends that a high tariff is a development of the old national policy of 1879. I believe that if the framers of the national policy were here today, they would be the first to point out that a national policy dealing with the settlements on the St. Lawrence River and the Great Lakes could not be considered a national policy today when there are 2,000,000 people between the head of the Lakes and the Rockies who were not there in 1879. The great West has been opened up, and where there are two million people today, there were not 1,000 white people in 1879. Are those people not to be considered in any policy that is supposed to be a national policy? We are asking to be allowed to come along with the rest of Canada, and not to be treated as a separate colony of Canada.

Amazing Logic.

What does the tariff mean to us in the West A tax pure and simple, and it is the highest ordinary tax borne by our people.

I have read in the press the Conservative slogan "Higher Protection and Lower Taxation," and I have been amazed at the logic of it. How can we increase the highest tax we have and at the same time and as a result of it produce lower taxation. You know it can't be done."

Increase Coal Price.

Referring to the pledge of Mr. Meighen to put a higher tariff on coal, Mr. Dunning declared that one certain result would be an increase in the cost to coal consumers in the East.

No one pretended that higher protection would be of any advantage to the West, not even Mr. Meighen. Quoting from The Montreal Gazette, which he said was the Toriest of all Tory papers, Mr. Dunning pointed out that Mr. Meighen recognized that his proposal of a high tariff could not benefit the West or the Maritimes.

"But he offers us compensation," Mr. Dunning continued. "It is a sort of horse trade he proposes. We of the West are accustomed to horse traders, but in any trade we do like to see the other fellow's horse (laughter). Mr. Meighen proposes to strike off a proportion of our freight bills on the shipping of our basic products. And he says the Conservative party is committed to that.

Injure Ontario Farmers.

In plain language it means that we in the West are going to be soaked by a high tariff, but we are to get a vague, indefinate bonus to enable us to ship our products into your markets. And that bonus is to be paid out of the treasury of Canada. I dont think this scheme will appeal to the farmers of Ontario. I don't think they will look with favor on this proposal of Mr. Meighen's whereby the Western farmers will be paid a bonus out of the Dominion treasury to enable us to compete with you in your own market. That's Mr. Meighen's plan of compensation. Any money taken out of the Dominion treasury must be raised by taxing the Canadian people. Mr. Meighen doesn't tell us how much he is going to compensate us. He doesn't show us his horse.

Promote Quarrels.

Well, this proposal doesn't attract us. We believe it will tend to increase the friction between the East and the West. It is likely to promote quarrels as to how big that bonus should be. If it was not big enough we'd be kicking, and if it really was big enough for us, you'd be kicking.

What are the basic products of the West? Wheat is one of them This year we have 400,000,000 bushels of wheat; but the whole of Canada consumes in one year only 40,000,000 bushels. That means, according to Mr. Meighen's plan, that there would be a bonus on only one bushel out of every ten, or on one carload out of every ten. I have a high regard for Mr. Meighen personally, but I think his policies are awful. Will you tell me how Mr. Meighen is going to set up the machinery whereby he can decide which carload of grain out of every ten is to get his bonus? It is impractical on the face of it.

We need world markets for our wheat. We could feed this year 80,000,000, and as we have but 8,000,000 in Canada, we must sell elsewhere.

Find Ontario Markets.

But we have other products. Just now in Saskatchewan we are looking for a market for our surplus potatoes. Give us a bonus on potatoes and I'll guarantee to flood the markets of Ontario with Saskatchewan potatoes. We have thousands of acres of virgin land and we don't have to fertilize it to grow potatoes. Let Mr. Meighen give us a freight bonus on potatoes and I know who would go out of the potato business. That would not make the potato growers of Ontario and Quebec feel kindly toward us, and for that reason Mr. Meighen's bonus would not benefit us in the least. You see it applies only to that portion of our products as can be used in these central provinces. Let us stand together, not trying to cut each other's throats as in the past.

What about butter? That is another basic product. We have been lectured by our Conservative friends about the advantages of mixed farming. If we go in extensively for mixed farming and get this bonus all will be lovely for us, but I don't know how it will help the butter producers of Durham.

The wheat farmers of Saskatchewan have shipped 9,000,000 pounds of butter this year to date to the British market. Give us a freight bonus on butter and you will readily understand how we could compete with you in butter in your own home markets.

The Australian Hen.

We are told a lot these days about the danger of the Australian hen and the Australian cow, because the new treaty admits their products at lower duties than those granted to other countries.

In the West we are not worrying about the Australian cow. We are competing with New Zealand butter in the British market right now, and at the London Dairy Show two weeks ago Canada took four out of six prizes for quality and Saskatchewan took first prize.

Down here you are told that a danger exists from the Australian hen. They don't tell us much about that in the West. If any Canadian would rather eat an egg that was laid in Australia, shipped to the seaboard, carried across the ocean, and the equator, to Vancouver, then brought to Port Hope—if any Port Hope citizen would rather have that Australia egg instead of an egg laid here in Durham then I say he deserves all he gets. (Laughter.)

We are forced to listen to such amusing stuff as this Australian henfruit bogey, and if we hadn't a sense of humor we might be deceived into believing it. I wondered about it myself when I heard all the talk down here, but I quit worrying about the Australian hen when I found out what she had to do to compete with a hen of mine."

Not Canadian Products.

Reading a list described as agricultural products imported into Canada on which it was proposed that there should be a tariff high enough to protect the Canadian producers, and which amounted last year to $116,000,000, Mr. Dunning kept the audience in continuous laughter as he enumerated some of these products.

"Tea and coffee were imported to the amount of $16,000,000, but I haven't heard of either tea or coffee being grown in Durham County. Then these $2,000,000 worth of cocoa and sugar imports amounted to $42,000,000. It may be possible to produce beet sugar down here, but if you put up the tariff high enough to protect those who would grow sugar beets you would have 999 farmers paying a lot more for their sugar for every one that would benefit by the protection, and all the town dwellers would have to pay for the higher duty. We have on this list sago, rice and olive oil. Any of these produced down here? And oranges, $5,500,000. I don't think that if you put the tariff as high as Haman's gallows it would grow a single orange in this country. And nuts. Ah, there now, we're getting somewhere. (Laughter). Figs, prunes, lime juice, and so on. In fact more than half the total value of the imports refers to goods not grown in Canada at all. And for the other half we propose not the blank idea of a high tariff, but a plan where by a board of competent authorities."

Mr. Dunning said he hoped the farmers of Ontario would not make the mistake of the farmers of the United States in assenting to the high tariff idea.

Testimony of U.S. Farmers.

"Only last week thirty-five American farmers came to Saskatchewan and bought a section of land apiece. They told me that on the whole prices were no better in the United States, and they were trying to pay interest and taxes on land valued at ten times what our land is valued at. The all around effect of the tariff was that the farmer got the benefit of one dollar while he paid seven dollars.

I was down near the international boundary. Down there you get a "close up" of how the tariff works. I found that Americans near the border buy their clothes in Canada and Canadians go over to the American side to buy their boots. The American tariff on woollens is the highest in the world, yet the woollen industry is in such poor shape that two weeks ago the manufacturers announced a ten per cent. cut in the wages of their employees, while the American consumer pays more for clothes than the Canadian pays.

Mr. Meighen As Prophet.

Mr. Meighen has been predicting that he will get 30 members from the West. I can tell you one of Mr. Meighen's attempts at prophecy. Last June, in the Provincial elections, he predicted that Dr. Anderson would be the Prime Minister of Saskatchewan. But Dr. Anderson came back with two followers in a house of 63. Mr. Meighen will find cold comfort from the results of the elections west of the Great Lakes, because the people have studied the tariff question for years and they know it won't work."

KING DECLARES

political contest such as this is, to raise a controversy as to the position that parliament may take with respect to a request that has not yet been made. No request has come to us to become a part of this treaty.

What advantage is there then, at this moment to raise a controversy with respect to a question of this sort? Having regard to my own responsibility as head of the government, I could not obey the constitutional rule of procedure that I want to see followed throughout the Empire and come here tonight and say in the name of the government of Canada, what the government is going to do. The present government is not a one-man government.

"I will say in regard to Mr Meighen that I think he will agree with me—if he agrees in nothing else—that at this moment when Europe is celebrating and rejoicing over one of the greatest treaties that was ever made in the whole world, it would hardly be befitting either of the political parties in this country to seek to raise a question on an issue of that kind at a moment such as this."

The report of the Babson Commercial Agency for October, 1925, was quoted extensively by the Prime Minister to the effect that there was "promise of better times ahead."

"For the first time in five years the index of business conditions has risen above the normal in the Babson chart,' stated the October report on Canada. The outlook, according to the report quoted, "is for sound business improvement.

The prime minister spoke of the "wail of depression.. which opponents were crying throughout the country, and compared this with the Babson report which stated that "Canada is now emerging from a long period of depression. A long series of business failures had reached a climax in numbers and total liabilities.

Within three days of the end of the campaign, people were to be warned against all kinds of scares and alleged scandals. "You have seen some of it already," said the Prime Minister. "In every general election, that is the method of the Tory party within four or five days of elections." Nothing had been brought forward which could discredit the government. During the four years in office nothing had been brought forward which could discredit the Government. During the four years in office nothing had been brought before the public accounts committee of the House of Commons which could prove anything but honest government.

Recalling that it was just 25 years since he himself had come to Ottawa, Mr. King made a special appeal to civil servants. The civil service was, he said, the permanent government which carried on the administration of the country, while elected governments came and went. Civil servants were vitally interested in the cost of living because of their fixed salaries. The high tariff policy of the Conservative party would increase the cost of living.

Mr. Meighen's high tariff manifesto, issued on the eve of the last session of parliament, had been held over and postponed until it was going to be ridiculed by the entire country. Towards the end of the session when it was finally introduced as a special resolution, it was disposed of in five hours and only 25 Conservative members had turned up to vote for it. All other parties, including Progressives, Independents, Labor and Liberal, had combined to vote against the resolution because if such a policy went into effect it would increase the cost of living.

The Conservative leader had tried to frighten the farmers with the competition which they would suffer from the Australian treaty, in butter and eggs which would have to be shipped 10,000 miles. The Australian Treaty had been a chance for Canada to give a preference to the sister dominion in raisins. Now the Government opponents were saying that to increase the tariff on raisins from the United States in order to give the preference to Australia would increase living costs. "If that is the result of merely one commodity, what would be the result of Mr. Meighen's tariff policy which would raise the tariff on all the commodities of everyday life?"

The Prime Minister spoke with appreciation of the work of E. R. R. Chevrier, member of the last parliament for the City of Ottawa, and recalled that Norman Wilson, the other Liberal candidate for Ottawa, had shared the same desk with him in the House of Commons in 1908 when both were elected to Parliament for the first time.

Premier King will spend the remaining days of the campaign in his own constituency of North York. Today he will speak at Mount Albert and Queensville in the afternoon and at Sutton at night. On Tusday he will speak at King City and Maple in the afternoon, and at Thornhill in the evening. On Wednesday, Mr. King will be in Schomberg in the afternoon, and at Holland Landing, Aurora and Newmarket at night.

"The Province of Quebec is still standing by the Liberal party," Hon. P. J. A. Cardin, Minister of Marine and Fisheries, said in a brief address following the Prime Minister, "Quebec will return on October 29 its full quota of sixty-five members. The verdict on Thursday will be merely a confirmation of the decision that was reached in 1921."

"Today there are no Meighen candidates in the province of Quebec. They are all Independents. These gentlemen are evidently ashamed of their chief and ashamed of their standard. They are afraid to mention the name of Rt. Hon. Arthur Meighen anywhere in Quebec," said the minister.

"You English-speaking people have been very loyal in the past in your support of Sir Wilfrid Laurier, a French-speaking Canadian as Prime Minister of this country. Let me assure you that the Province of Quebec will now reciprocate by rallying to the support of the present Prime Minister, Mr. Mackenzie King.

SPITZBERGER GETS FIRST NATIVE EGG

Rarity Is Mounted and Suitably Inscribed to Commemorate Occasion.

BARENTSBURG, Green Harbor, Spitzbergen, Oct. 26.—(Associated Press).—Spitzbergen is paying due honor to its first locally laid hen's egg. Eggs, as eggs, are not scarce here, for those of the eider duck and tern may be picked up by thousands in summer. But the product of the ordinary barnyard fowl heretofore has been unknown.

The egg was laid in the hennery of Director Dresselbuye of the Dutch Coal Company, who is making an attempt to acclimatize chickens. His hen house, owing to the bitterness of the weather, is heated. It has to be darkened during a part of each twenty-four hours of the midnight sun period. In the Arctic winter artificial sunlight has to be provided. Thus the hens are being made to feel at home just under the 78th degree, northern latitude.

The newly laid egg has been mounted on a little stand and a suitable inscription placed on it. What will be done with it when it reaches the period of senility has not been stated.

CONSERVATIVES LAUD LAURIER IN A MEETING AT THOMASBURG

Annexation is the Issue in This Election, Orator Tells Audience.

PORTER SPEAKS

John Kingston Presided and Hon. J. R. Cooke Spoke.

THOMASBURG, Oct. 24—Thomasburg met the Conservative candidate this week and turned out in full force for the occasion. Mr. Tummon was a prominent figure in the Oddfellows Hall before the speaking began and a good many people knew him without any introdution. E. Guss Porter, K.C., addressed the gathering.

John Kingston, president of the Conservative Club was the chairman of the evening. On the platform with him were the Hon. J. R. Cooke, M.P.P., Geo. H. Stokes, President of the Conservative Association of South Hastings, E. Guss Porter, Councilman Brown of Rawden and S. B. Rollins, reeve of Tweed.

The candidate in his address stressed several points which were applicable to the people present.

Farming Matters

He told the men and women in the audience the effect which the King regime was having on them. The duty on a bushel of wheat entering the States was 42 cents but the same bushel coming into Canada from the States was only 12 cents. The duty on a dozen eggs was 8 cents into the States but only 3 cents when they are coming the other way. Mr. Tummon explained to those present that the reason for the ten cent drop in eggs last summer was because eggs in large quantities came into Montreal from the south. This knocked the props from under the price and flooded the market.

Other raw materials were dealt with in the explanation. Canada sold $13 worth of pulpwood to the States and bought it back as paper at $90. The $77 was left in the States. He explained the fluorspar mine situation in detail pointing out that as before and always it is the low tariff which caused the disaster. Before fluorspar was discovered in Canada the duty on this mineral coming into the States from Europe was $7 a ton. When Canada found her deposits United States sent the duty up to $5.60 a ton to protect Indiana. The housing problem was solved by King by lowering the tariff. There was no demand for houses now in Ontario as formerly.

Ancient History

When S. B. Rollins, Reeve of Tweed, was called he paid a tribute to Sir Wifred Laurier and spent some time contrasting the one time leader of the Liberals with the present one. He asked the audience if they had ever heard of a bread line in Canada before two or three years ago. Mr. Meighen could relieve the situation. He was one of the ablest minds since the Laurier and Macdonald time. Laurier had not reduced the tariff when he succeeded Sir John Macdonald. He raised it in places where it was needed. Premier Borden raised it some more, but Mr. King destroyed al his work and practically levelled the tariff wall. "Mr. King is more American than British," exclaimed Mr. Rollins.

The Hon. J. R. Cooke was called upon by the chairman and gave one of the best addresses ever heard in Thomasburg.

The matter of women's franchise was reviewed and the fact that the firsts tep in national building was home building was stressed.

It followed naturally, he said, that the influence of women would be good, no matter where it was exerted, so that when they entered the arena of politics the nation was the gainer. "No real man will deny this," was the contention of Mr. Cooke.

He gave a comprehensive sketch of the size of Canada in relation to other parts of the world, Canada's national resources, matters of tariff and the state of the public debt. Each family in Canada was shouldered with $2,000 of the debt. The Province of Ontario laid $120 on each family. The expenses of the Dominion, Provincial and municipal governments were totalled at $400 for each family of five.

"Politics in its pure sense is the seeing of the future of the country," explained the speaker. He quoted Earl Grey, former Governor-General of Canada, who said one, "The time will come when the greatest empire of the earth will be on this continent and the capital will be on Canadian soil."

Mr Cooke predicted that Canada would be a sovereign state eventually. When this came there would be only a strengthening of the bonds between Canada and England. Such empire was possible, he said. The attitude of a Canadian toward the Mother Country and his own should be that of love towards his mother and wife.

In his review of the history of Canada since Confederation, he stopped when he came to the name of Laurier. "Laurier was one of the biggest men who ever lived on this North American Continent," said Mr. Cooke. "Every patriotic Canadian man should be proud of Laurier and Macdonald, regardless of politics."

He gave a comprehensive explanation of the problems which faced these two former Premiers. Under their respective regimes the trend of men and money was toward the Canadian West. Under King, the trend was south, to the States.

The political difference of Meighen and King were contrasted at length. The careers of each were expanded and enlarged for the benefit of the people who came through the cold night to hear the political situation. King's object was evidently the absorption of Canada by the United States, the speaker said. He recalled the election some 33 or 34 years ago, when the issue was "annexation." This year the issue was the same as it was then, only the word annexation was not mentioned openly.

In 1911 the Liberals advocated what they were pleased to call "reciprocity," which was again annexation in effect. They went down to defeat as they were sure to go this time. "You have a plain choice at this election. You can vote for Mr. King and build up the United States or put Mr. Meighen in power and build Canada," he concluded.

Gus. Porter.

E. Gus. Porter, known by every man and woman in the audience, was called upon to deliver his ideas.

"Mr. King is guilty of obtaining office under fraud and false pretenses," charged Mr. Porter, who set forth at once to prove his charge. He told of the convention of the National Liberty party in the City of Quebec and the convention which framed the party planks and which choose a man who would carry out these ideas. Mr. King promised at great length to do this, but as soon as he gained power he was quoted as saying "he didn't consider these promises binding."

Mr. Porter gave the sketch of only two of the planks for lack of time. He showed the manner in which the economic situation was handled and dealt with tariff and the fashion in which "economy" had been practised by Mr. King. It was Mr. King who had said "The financial situation calls for the profoundest consideration and the exercise of severe economy by the Government." The war expenses had been shouldered by the Borden and Meighen Government. This left much money to Mr. King to spend foolishly.

"No man can tell when Canada will recover if King gets three more years at Ottawa," was the pronouncement of the veteran politician. If this happened the majority which King would have would be from the Progressives.

Meighen says the issue is 'tariff'; King says it is so many things that no one could pin him down to any one."

George Stokes spoke for a few moments, saying that the campaign in this riding was a silent one for the Liberals, but warned the hearers that rumors were being floated. Mr. Stokes heard yesterday that he wasn't going to vote for Mr. Tummon because of jealousy. This was the nature of the Liberal campaign, he said.

Women of Canada--

A continuance of the present Liberal Tariff Policy means depopulation, stagnation and hard times.

If I could tell you all the instances I personally know of where sons and daughters have gone to the United States, in many cases to be educated in American Schools and Universities, the better to fit themselves to get a position in the United States, I sincerely believe you would think seriously before casting your votes for a Party without a definite Policy for the upbuilding of Canada.

Do not vote for a particular Candidate but vote for the Party that has a definite concrete Policy--The Conservative Party.

Y.W.C.A.'S GOOD WORK.

The Young Women's Christian Association is to be congratulated upon the splendid work it has been doing, not only in teaching the girls of Peterborough to swim, but in interesting so many of them in life-saving.

The more girls who know how to go to the rescue of a person who is in difficulties in the water and know how to resuscitate such persons when rescued, the greater will be the reduction in the number of drowning accidents.

An appallingly large number of such accidents occurs each summer in Ontario and in the majority of cases the victims are people who have not been able to swim, or those who while able to swim know nothing about how to rescue a drowning person, and lose their own lives in trying to save others.

The Y.W.C.A. has been doing consistently good work with its swimmiping pool and those responsible are entitled to much credit for the showing that has been made.

NO SINECURE FOR LEADERS.

Those who believe that the leaders of great political parties have something of a sinecure are certainly not right about such leaders at election time at least.

Saturday's activities of Right Honourable Arthur Meighen indicated that the life of a political general during a campaign is not a bed of roses.

Mr. Meighen, who had spoken at Guelph the night before, arrived in Toronto on an early morning train, motored to Port Hope and addressed a meeting shortly before noon.

Later he travelled to Lindsay where he spoke during the afternoon.

In the evening he motored to Peterborough and after speaking for an hour in the Opera House, gave his fourth speech of the day in Victoria Hall.

Ask the average man to travel from Guelph to Peterborough via Port Hope and Lindsay, much of the distance by motor and give four speeches during the day, and he'd quall at the prospect.

Mr. King and Mr. Meighen have been doing that kind of thing for weeks and although the election is only a couple of days away they still have plenty of talking to do.

VOTE AS YOU LIKE—BUT VOTE.

The Canadian Research Insttiute using the slogan "Vote as you like—but vote" urges the people of Canada in connection with Thursday's election to regard the vote as a prize, a privilege and a duty of free men.

On Thursday the citizen of Canada will elect 245 representatives to the Dominion House of Commons. These representatives will for a period control the destiny of a nation of over 9,000,000 people having an aggregate tangible wealth of about 22,195,000,000 and a potential wealth of untold amount.

They will determine whether the Dominion revenue for the year ending March 31, 1924 amounting to $405,651,450 of which $341,718,807 was derived from taxation and whether the expenditure including deficits on the Canadian National Railways and Government Merchant Marines amounting to $396,410,081 will be exceeded or diminished in the next five years.

They will also determine the sources from which Dominion revenue to be obtained and the proportions in which it is to be borne.

The decisions and actions of these representatives in the coming parliament will have a direct bearing on the country as a whole and thus directly or indirectly on you and your business.

Again our British ancestors had a long and bitter struggle before the franchise was granted them.

It was a prize dearly won. It conferred a privilege upon many which up to that time had been jealously guarded by the few.

It placed upon each citizen the duty and responsibility of exercising this great worke in a proper manner.

These things should be considered by every voter, especially in view of the fact while 81.5 per cent of those on the list voted in 1900, the total votes cast fell to 77 per cent. in 1911 and 70.03 in 1923.

WHERE CAN HE BE FOUND?

It is well to look for perfection, to seek to develop it in ourselves, and to even expect it; but it is not well to be discouraged if it is not found, says the Ottawa Journal. The ideal is seldom, if ever, attained; and perhaps that is best for a race too apt to be satisfied with mediocrity. It leaves us constantly with higher attitudes to beckon us onward and upward.

It seems the perfect human being, in the physical sense, is as hard to find as is the faultless human being in all other respects. The Life Extension Institute has examined 400,000 persons, without discovering one that came up to the 100 per cent. standard. While this is regrettable, it should not be altogether surprising. The gauge may have been set beyond human possibilities. That is the first thought. The next is that heredity and disregard of eugenics are constantly in operation on the side of imperfection. In other words, the combination of factors necessary for absolute perfection is exceedingly elaborate, and to a large extent complicated.

We are the product of our forbears. They probably had as little of plan in their thoughts about their descendants as we have—if they thought at all about the matter. There are few things left more to chance than the perpetuation of our race along sound lines. The Romans and the Grecians, at the zenith of their civilization, cared more for physical perfection than we do. At all events, they had some definite notions of a system that would bring it about.

Perhaps unconsciously, and more or less without fixed ideals in view, we are slowly moving in a direction full of promise. Our love of athletics, open-air sports, and fast-multiplying public playgrounds for the children of the land, represent a vague groping along a hopeful pathway. As we begin to see the definite and satisfactory fruits of these measures, we may find it worth while to bring more intelligence, more of scientific method, to bear on them. And in that way we shall at least be making progress toward that far-away goal, and a highly desirable goal.

The other day at the National Council of Congregational Churches held in Washington, President Coolidge gave a very significant address on the relation of law enforcement and moral and religious instruction. This question has been brought to the front by the steadily increasing growth of lawlessness and crime that is taking place all over the United States. Lawlessness has become a moral epidemic that has created alarm in the minds of all those who are deeply concerned for the welfare of the nation. At this convention the President spoke out boldly, and declared that a religious revival was necessary to banish the prevalent disregard for law and obtain respect for government and the rights of others. No amount of law enforcement, the President declared, could ever take the place of moral and religious instruction.

The Council was evidently deeply impressed by what the Chief Magistrate of the Republic said. Where the spirit of lawlessness prevails, the utmost vigilance and ingenuity on the part of the officers of the law is substantially wasted. The spirit of obedience to law can not be inculcated by force but only by religious instruction. The President did not deny that education had its place. He was willing to give due credit to what may be accomplished by the schools, but said: "An intellectual growth will only add to our confusion unless it is accompanied by a moral growth. I do not know of any source of moral power other than that which comes from religion." The general failure to respect the laws of the land, he held, came from a failure to revere the precepts of religion, the remedy for which could come only from religion. In this regard he said:

"But there is another and more basic reason why the government cannot supply the source and motive for the complete reformation of society. In the progress of the human race religious beliefs were developed before the formation of governments. It is my understanding that government rests on religion. While in our own country we have wisely separated the church and the state in order to emancipate faith from all political interference, nevertheless the forms and theories of our government were laid in accordance with the prevailing religious convictions of the people. The great revival of the middle of the eighteenth century had a marked influence upon our Revolutionary period. The claim to the right to freedom, the claim to the right of equality, with the resultant right to self-government—the rule of the people—have no foundation other than the common brotherhood of man derived fromthe common Fatherhood of God. The righteous authority of the law depends for its sanction upon its harmony with the righteous authority of the Almighty. If this faith is set aside, the foundations of our institutions, fail, the citizen is deposed from the high estate which he holds as amenable to a universal conscience, society reverts to a system of class and caste, and the government instead of being imposed by reason from within is imposed by force from without. Freedom and democracy would give way to despotism and slavery. I do not know of any adequate support for our form of government except that which comes from religion."

These words of President Coolidge made a deep impression not only upon the members of the National Council of Congregational Churches, but they have made a strong appeal to the religious forces of the entire country. The message constitutes a challenge to the churches and religious leads of the United States which they cannot afford to ignore. The church is the salt of national life, and if it loses its savor, if it fails to grip the consciences of the people, if it fails to impress upon their minds the fundamental principles of the eternal, changeless moral laws which are the foundation and safeguard of enlightened society, the result will be lawlessness and the breakdown of the authority of government.—Brantford Expositor.

MONTREAL MARKETS

MONTREAL, Oct. 26 (Canadian Press).—There was some enquiry from foreign buyers for grain in the local market on Saturday, but no business of any importance was transacted, prices remaining firm. In sympathy with the further strength in the Canadian cash wheat satuation on Saturday, a firm feeling prevailed in the market for spring wheat grades of flour and prices were fully maintained. The tone of the market for winter wheat flour was also firm with a small trade passing.

There was no change in the condition of the market for millfeed. A fair trade was done in standard grades of rolled oats, and prices were unchanged.

Beans were quoted at from $2.40 to $2.50 per bushel.

The receipts of eggs in Montreal on Saturday were 861 cases as again 1,659 cases for the same day last week, and 402 cases for the corresponding day a year ago, while the total arrivals for the week ending October 24, 1925, were 10,621 cases, as compared with 9,805 cases for the previous week, and 11,345 cases for the same week last year. The total receipts from May 1, 1925, to date were 295,643 cases, as against 330,669 cases for the same period of 1924. The receipts last week showed an increase of 816 cases, as compared with the previous week, and a decrease of 724 cases with the same week last year, while the total arrivals for the season to date have been 35,026 cases below a year ago.

Owing to the marked falling off in the production of eggs throughout the country, which is usual at this period of the year, and the very small supplies of strictly fresh stock available, the undertone to the market here has continued strong and prices are steadily tending towards a higher level, the demand being in excess of the offerings. There has been no important change in the condition of the market for storage eggs.

The receipts of butter in Montreal for the week ending October 24, 1925, were 9,072 packages which show an increase of 532 packages, as compared with the previous week, and a decrease of 12,458 packages with the same week last year, and the total arrivals from May 1 to date have been 25,265 packages smaller than the same period for 1924.

For the best part of the week the market was quiet and the undertone was easy, but towards the close an improved demand developed for supplies for local account, with the result that a better feeling prevailed and prices ruled much steadier.

The receipts of cheese in Montreal for the week ending October 24, 1025, were 40,544 boxes, which show a decrease of 8,236 boxes, as compared with the previous week, and a decrease of 3,040 boxes with the same week last year, while the total receipts for the season to date have been 71,961 moxes in excess of 1924.

The movement of cheese for export account the past week has been much larger than the two previous ones, which would indicate that there has been an improved demand from foreign buyers for supplies at the lower level of prices ruling and the market closed rather more active, with Western No. 1 white and colored quoted at 23 3-4 to 24c per lb., and Eastern grades at 23 1-4 to 23 1-2c per lb.

Have You Instant Heat Whenever You Need It?

When the children come in cold from out-of-doors—when furnace heat is slow on bitter winter mornings—whenever you need extra warmth in rooms that you want to use—what a comfort to have at your command the instant, odorless heat from a Gas Heater.

A Gas Heater provides radiant heat at its best. It lends an air of attractiveness to any room, giving it all the beauty and charm of an open fire, with no smoke, no ashes, and no carrying of fuel.

The instant you turn the key, steady, intense flames, leaping up within the glowers, pour forth a flood of sun-like heat.

Save coal with Gas Heaters all winter and have convenient heat in spring and fall when furnace fires are bothersome and wasteful.

OPEN LETTER NO. 30

RT. HON. W. L. MACKENZIE KING,
Prime Minister and President of the Privy Council,
Ottawa.

Dear Sir:

The swarming millions in the big cities and factory towns of the United States constitutes a grand market for farm produce of every kind, But only for United States farm produce! The Government of that country has served notice on the world that it intends to preserve the United States market for the exclusive benefit of United States farmers!

Epitomizing past policies and forecasting their continuance President Coolidge recently said:—"We have built agriculture squarely into the structure of our protective system, and the American farmer must not be undersold at home by New Zealand mutton, Argentine beef, Canadian wheat, Danish butter, Bulgarian tobacco, Chinese eggs, or Cuban sugar!"

Seeing that they refuse the Canadian farmer entry into their big market, one would think that, in common decency, they would leave him undisturbed in his own small market. But they don't!

They would have to, if we employed the same methods to keep their farmers out that they employ to keep our farmers out. But we have been a bit careless. We've left our gates open! So in they swarm with their early fruits and vegetables, just as though they were sure of a welcome at the hands of a people against whom they have hung out, on their own gates, a "No admittance" sign!

How many thousands of tons of fruits and vegetables do you suppose are left to rot on the fields in Canada every year? And how much do you suppose that unharvested crop would be worth to our farmers, if it could only be turned into cash at regular prices?

One reason why there is so little demand for it—why it is left to rot—is because so many of our town and city folk get pretty nearly their fill of southern fruits and vegetables before our own come onto the market! And as a nation, we've been careless enough about the interests of our farmers to stand for a tariff that lets them do it!

If well-to-do city folk are not content to wait for Canadian fruits and vegetables, but must satiate themselves with out-of-season stuff from the Southern States, why not make them pay handsomely for it? Why not put on specific duties equivalent to 200 or 300 percent ad valorem?

Then, if the stuff still comes in, the country will at least get a worthwhile revenue out of it! And if it stops coming in, our farmers will be that much better off!

Yours respectfully,

RAIL TRIP TO THE WEST REVEALS GLORY OF CANADA'S WONDERLAND

Massive Grandeur of Scenery Around Lake Superior Strikes the Eye of the Traveler — Mighty Sea in Fury Is Unforget table Memory.

NEVER FAILING INTEREST ALL THE WAY.

To gain an idea of the far-flung stretches of the great Dominion, it is only necessa y to embark on a two or three days' trip on one of the trains that travel on steel rails over the breadth of this great land. The trip from Toronto to Winnipeg is one of the most interesting, particularly if one goes at harvest time, when the harvesters throng at the Union Station in long lines, carting their bags and boxes in sweaty hands, eating bananas and ham sandwiches on the steps their clattering polyglot tongues assailing the ears on every hand, and start out, in their eyes the look of the wayfarer, for the harvest fields. They fill the colonist cars, sleeping, with long legs dangling over, on the upper hardwood bunks, playing cards and the fiddle in the hot, dusty cars, tumbling out at the few stopping-places to get a drink of coffee or a piece of pie at the wayside refreshment stands.

An Englishman, who went to Winnipeg via the Canadian Pacific Railway route exclaimed over the prevalence of rocks and Christmas trees," but there is more than that to the landscape. For the seeing eye, there is much of interest: the heavily wooded stretches of country, with low conifers blotting out the sloping hillsides, the names of places along the way. Musk" and Bolkow" and the Woman River," log houses with modern green shingled roofs and Doukhober children peeping from their rude doors, rusty pipes sticking through the clapboarded sides of huts that look as if they had been thrown down in the midst of this rocky land, little churches and stores and houses huddled close to the railroad, with the mountains rising up behind them, rocky ledges of red sandstone and white granite that one could touch with the hand, from the car window, tall white birch trees fringing a calm mirrored lake, stretching their long white trunks, like ghostly fingers, to the sky a stretch o high rock frowning over a stagnant pool edged with water lillies and above all else, the unforgettable beds of pansies at the stations, rich luxuriant, plentiful, reminding one of the peacock feather in the old tale. Finding a feather of this type in a copy of the Sacred Koran, the finder reproved it for its impertinence in intruding into a holy place, but the feather replied, Beauty has a place in every station in life." So with the beds of wonderful pansies that a rough-looking station hand at one of the stopping points, Chapleau, plucked for the ladies of the party in the standard coaches.

At White River, the coldest and the hottest place in Canada, in winter and summer, one gets out for a few minutes, to admire the "Oshkosh B'Gosh Brotherhood Overall" sign, with the slogan, "They make good or we will," and at Fort William, on the way out, one turns one's timepiece back an hour. The timetable tells you that you arrive at Fort William at 11.40, stay fifteen minutes, then depart at 10.55, thus making allowance for the hour's difference in time.

Near White River too, are the dead, black trees, like a forgotten graveyard of lost souls, shivering in the breeze of a damp morning. Blasted by fire and skinned by the moose and deer which abound in these parts, they stand like ghostly sentinels.

But the most interesting portion of the route is around Jackfish Bay, renowned for its fine fish that come aboard for the dining-car service. From Heron to Nipigon are the long miles that skirt the placid blue waters of Lake Superior, the mighty father of the five inland seas, lying calm and peaceful in its majestic isolation, with white fringes of sandy beaches to its indigo waves. There are long black islands in this lake, covered with thick black growth of timber and it has far reaching vistas, with vague outlines on a shadowy horizon. The impression of majestic power that enfolds Superior reaches to the observation car watchers, and they ride for miles in silence, taking in the massive, lofty grandeur of these frowning headlands over dark waters, or sun-touched spaces where blue ripples wash over sandy shores. On the left, as one skirts the lake, are towering walls of solid rock, sheer black and grey and red heights of granite and one passes at times through tunnels cut from the living rock. At one point, the train makes a complete circle, the smoke from its stack curling and clinging to damp trees and reaching out over the mild waters of the inland ocean. Suddenly the rock wall shifts to the right, the lake is blotted out, a deep ravine appears, filled with dark trees, and then once again there is the long vista of the blue lake. On the return journey from Winnipeg, we ran into a storm, and have another unforgetable memory of the mighty sea rising under furious black clouds, and writhing in agony under the downward swoop of wicked streaks of light. Superior is like its name, wonderful, bold, rugged in outline, its majestic simplicity etching itself on the eye of the beholder.

One other item in the landscape that clings to the memory is the profusion of wild blooms of an odd color, a deep, almost purplish red, that grow on every side as the train makes its way through these rocky spaces. They are sturdy blossoms, giving a point of lovely color to the landscape, and belong to the family of wild asters. They scale the rocky walls and project from high pinnacles, they grow in carpets in the little valleys and they appear as a bed of ruddy color through the low undergrowth.

This is the type of scenery around Lake Superior, that makes one wonder why Canadians travel far afield in search of wonderful mountains and lakes. It is wonderful in its grandeur, majestic in its outlines, unforgettable in its beauty.

BULGARS MAKE STAND AGAINST GREEK TROOPS

Orders Issued to Use All Force to Repel the Invaders.

EXCELLENT MORALE.

Sofia is Sending New Protest to the League of Nations.

SOFIA, Bulgaria, Oct. 26—Bulgaria is sending troops into the "war area" and has decided to make a stand as far as her limited military strength permits, in case the Greeks continue to invade the territory granted her under the treaty of Neuilly. This is stated in authoritative quarters here.

The artillery sent to the affected district is limited to two field guns, but it is asserted that if brought into action they will fire upon the invaders until silenced by their superior long range guns.

The morale of the officers and soldiers is said to be excellent, they vowing to die rather than allow the Greeks to advance further.

Despatches received in the Bulgarian capital says the Greeks this morning continue bombarding the open city of Petrich, 150 shrapnel shells falling into the town up to ten a.m.

The Bulgarian Government is sending a new protest to the League of Nations.

KING DECLARES LOCARNO PACT IS NOT AN ISSUE

Not Binding on Canada and No Reason For Discussion at Present.

SOUNDS A WARNING.

Says Tories Raise Scares and Scandals on Eve of Elections.

OTTAWA, Oct. 26 (Canadian Press).—The Locarno Treaty should not be made an issue in the concluding days of the general election campaign, Premier King told an audience of 12,000 at the last great mass meetng of his tour, in the Capital Saturday night.

Replying to a questionaire sent to certain candidates by John S. Ewart, K.C., asking for their attitude toward the Locarno Treaty, Mr. King quoted the terms of that treaty to the effect that they "impose no obligation upon any of the British Dominions or upon India unless the government of any such Dominion or of India signifies its acceptance thereof." This, said Mr. King, was the acceptance of what had been the Liberal point of view on Empire relations.

Premier King quoted Mr. Chamberlain, British Foreign Secretary, as saying that "no Dominion can be committed except by its own government acting with the consent of its own parliament.' Mr. King added: "May I say that to my mind is the essential thing in the matter of this national obligation, that we should maintain as between the Mother Country and the Dominions the supremacy of parliament in each constituent part. As long as the supremacy of parliament is maintained in the different parts of the Dominion and the different parts of the Empire, I can see no reason why we should be concerned with respect to any treaty or any agreement that may ever be entered into. I believe the people of Canada will rise to the occasion whenever the occasion comes when they have to make a decision, but I think it would be a mistake in the middle of a great

ROCKEFELLER IN MOVEMENT FOR GARDEN HOMES

John D., Jr., Puts $150,000 in Corporation That Founded Colony.

FOR WAGE EARNERS.

Has Opened Other Houses For Employees of Standard Oil Company.

John D. Rockefeller Jr. has extended his interest in behalf of moderate-price housing for wage-earners by taking $150,000 in stock in the City Housing Corporation, of New York, which was founded in 1924 and which has built a $2,000,000 "garden" colony in Queens accommodating 350 families.

Alexander M. Bing, President, in making this announcement at a meeting of the Advisory Board of the corporation at the Hotel Roosevelt last night, reported further accessions of support for its 1926 program. Plans for the coming year called, he said, for a $2,000,000 improvement of an adjoining two blocks in Queens which would provide homes for at least 270 more families. The corporation is capitalized at $2,000,000 and limits dividends to 6 per cent.

No emphasis is placed on the fiscal membership Mr. Rockefeller has taken in the corporation, but the announcement was commented upon by representative welfare workers as seeming to confirm the trend his benefactions had taken recently in the direction of better housing for workers.

Other Aid for Workers

Mr. Rockefeller's first appearance in this movement was in connection with the building of model homes for Standard Oil Company employes at Bayonne, N.J. The first of this month he opened the Rockefeller Garden Apartments. These apartments comprised five buildings under a single room, with space for eighty-two families. Members of the staff of the Rockefeller Foundation Laboratories received first choice as tenants and the rest of the apartments were let to wage earners on condition that the families had children.

The first 1 to 0 score ever recorded in a world series baseball game was in 1905, when the Giants blanked the Athletics by the margin of a single run.

Mr. Meighen evaded the question.

Gordon challenged Mr. Meighen to say that increased tariff would not mean increased prices to the consumer.

Mr. Meighen did not say so.

Silent on Coal Issue

If Mr. Meighen is returned to power with a majority your coal will cost you at least $20 a ton. Nothing can be more certain. It is on Mr. Meighen's pledged word.

Do you remember how, on Saturday night, he solemnly warned his audience that a duty would be placed on early vegetables imported from United States?

In just the same way, with the same vehemence, Mr. Meighen promised an Edmonton audience on October 5th that if the Conservative party was elected he would put a high tariff on American coal so as to compel the consumer in Ontario to burn the product of Alberta mines. He gave the same pledge at Nanaimo.

Mr. Meighen did not mention that in Peterborough, although he had two opportunities. It would not have been a popular announcement.

His supporters here said a week ago: "Mr. Meighen will explain it when he comes."

Mr. Meighen never mentioned coal in either of his addresses in Peterborough. He didn't dare!

A Startling Prospect

His promise to the western coal coal men was the solemn pledge of a party leader, which, beyond question or doubt, will be carried out should Canada be so foolish as to return him at the head of his party.

United States' anthracite is sold in Peterborough at around $16 a ton. Alberta coal was sold at $15, when it was hauled at the special freight rate of $7. The C.N.R. officials say it cannot be hauled at less than $12 a ton—$5 more than at present. It naturally follows that the normal price would be $20 a ton. And to make Alberta coal saleable here the cost to the consumer of United States' coal would have to be raised to $20.

WHICHEVER WAY YOU GO, YOU WILL PAY THE BILL. ANTHRACITE AT $20 INSTEAD OF $16; ALBERTA COAL AT $20 INSTEAD OF $15.

There is no loyal citizen in Peterborough who would not rather burn Alberta coal than imported fuel if the price were equal. But Mr. Meighen has no plan to keep the price equal. HIS CURE-ALL WILL BE APPLIED. AND EVERY HOME IN ONTARIO WILL BE TAXED AT LEAST $4 FOR EVERY TON OF COAL BURNED.

And Mr. Meighen is discreetly silent on the subject in Peterborough.

Mr. Meighen said Canada's production of steel in 1924 was only half the production in 1920.

Mr. Meighen was misleading. In the first six months of 1924 Canada produced approximately the same number of long tons of steel as in the whole year of 1921.

Mr. Meighen said: What Canada needs is not so much higher tariff as to know the tariff is stable.

Mr. Meighen is contradicting reports that have come from other meetings, where he is reported as having said that Canadian industries need higher protection.

Mr. Meighen said that last year Canada imported $125,000,000 worth of textiles.

Mr. Meighen forgot to mention that in 1921, under his administration, Canada imported $243,608,000 worth of textiles.

Mr. Meighen said Canada last year imported $40,000,000 worth of woollen and knitted goods, and three years ago only $28,000,000.

Mr. Meighen was mistaken. In 1924 the imports were $47,000,000, and in 1921 they were $67,000,000.

Mr. Meighen said that whereas production in United States is increasing, production in Canada is decreasing.

Mr. Meighen was mistaken. In 1924 the value of production in Canada was $400,000,000 greater than in 1921 under his administration.

Mr. Meighen said the principle factor in the success of United States is the high tariff wall.

Mr. Meighen forgot that United States was one of the most prosperous nations in the world before the high tariff wall was built against Canada.

Mr. Meighen said Mr. Gordon had been reported as saying there are forty factories in Peterborough, all working overtime.

Mr. Meighen was guilty here of petty political philandering that ill becomes a party leader. Mr. Gordon never uttered such a statement, and Mr. Meighen could have had no definite information on which to base the false insinuation.

CANADIAN ARTIST WILL HONOR POET

Robert Johnston Chosen to Paint Mural of Walt Whitman.

Years ago citizens of Camden, N.J., were not so proud of their fellow townsman, Walt Whitman, the poet—a good many of them were not, at any rate.

But to-day he has assumed somewhat the position of a patron saint, and casting about for some way to do him honor a group of capitalists erected a magnificent hotel to his memory in his native town. They have combined in expert manner a tribute to a poet and a temple dedicated to the commercial traveler, a feat which would scarcely be possible outside the United States.

In erecting the hostelry, however, those responsible did decide to offer some thoroughly uncommercial token of their esteem. It was to take the form of a painting, and the Philadelphia Art Association was requested to search this continent and discover the artist best fitted to undertake the task.

The Philadelphia esthetes broadcast a request for sketches. The finished canvas was to be a mural, depicting the poet in an allegorical setting. Fifty-two painters from all parts of the United States and Canada contributed their ideas and the Philadelphians examined all carefully.

Then they announced it as their unanimous decision that Robert E. Johnston, an illustrator working in oils, should be entrusted with the work.

Since that date, there have appeared in print a wide variety of biographical sketches, interviews with the artist and summaries of his past achievements. These have all been very thorough and they have only omitted one fact from their survey of the painter's past. They fail to state that Robert E. Johnston is a Canadian.

His early work was done in Toronto study clubs and art societies. He earned his living by doing commercial art with a number of Canadian concerns, and other artists who knew him and had studied with him considered him a thorough craftsman and a painter who had painstakingly built a solid foundation on which to base his future work.

Some time ago he was asked to leave Canada and go to Chicago. The offer made was better than tempting, and he set out for the city of winds and water. At the border, customs officials began asking questions which he, as a good and respectable Canadian, felt were unnecessary.

"I don't want to go to your country anyway," was his comment and only answer as he turned round and caught the next train back to Toronto.

Sir Henry Had Chance To Win on the Horses

Sir Henry Thornton does not believe in hunches. If the president of the Canadian National Railways did believe in hunches he might have enjoyed the pleasure of standing behind the pay wicket in the mutuel buildings at least twice on the closing day of a Toronto meet.

Horse lovers and the social four hundred swarmed the members' lawn on get-away day. They also swarmed the bull-ring where sad-eyed gentlemen hand out gaily decorated cardboard slips that represent bets on certain horses. George Beardmore, Master of the fox hounds, himself the owner of a stable of show horses, looked over the program with Sir Henry. They discussed the merits of the horses.

"If I were you Sir Henry, and if I were a betting man, I should take a hunch chance on the entries of Mr. McCreery—Thorndale and Thorndyke.

Sir Henry smiled. He did not bet either Thorndale or Thorndyke. Perhaps he didn't bet any horse, but if he did he would have received more than five dollars for every one he bet.

ELECTION REPORTS

Extraordinary arrangements have been completed by the Examiner to give a complete service on the general election returns on Thursday night by bulletin and by special editions.

The official telegraph service on the contest, that of Canadian Press, will be received by a special wire in The Examiner office, and a second special wire to the office will bring a supplementary service.

West Peterborough, Hastings - Peterborough, Durham, Northumberland and Victoria results will be obtained at their respective centres by special and staff reporters. Because of the interest attaching to the new riding that replaces East Peterborough, and to the candidature of Hon Vincent Massey, special attention will be paid to obtaining full and prompt reports from Hastings-Peterborough and Durham.

The bulletin board in front of the Examiner office will be in use for the broadcasting of results in tabloid from six o'clock until the issue is finally decided, and similar bulletins are being arranged in the outlying districts at places to be announced later. Extras will be issued regularly giving details of the progress of the election, and these will be distributed at central points in each ward as well as in the centre of the city.

The Examiner has throughout the campaign given full and free reports to the meetings and activities of all candidates in its area, including Hon. G. N. Gordon, E. A. Peck, G. E. Brethen, Dr. Embury, F. W. Bowen, F. J. Slade, Hon. Vincent Massey, and M. E. Maybee. The reports were in all cases written by Staff Reporters and Correspondents, who presented in an unbiased manner the spirit of the meetings they attended.

On election night it is intended to round out this service by giving prompt and efficient reports. Three extra telephone lines have been installed for the convenience of persons calling for reports, making five lines in all.

All news, social activities, etc., for publication in Thursday's regular edition must be received before 11 a.m. on Thursday, and want ads. and notices must be received before noon on Thursday.

Meighen Held Up Factories!

Rt. Hon. Arthur Meighen was very solicitous for Peterborough Manufacturers on Saturday, and even more anxious for the good of the workers in the factories.

BUT IN 1920 HE DELIBERATELY TOOK A SLAP AT EVERY MANUFACTURER AND EVERY WORKER He was in power then, and didn't at the moment need votes.

G. N. Gordon and E. G. Porter, representing Peterborough and Belleville, waited on Mr. Meighen in Ottawa and told him of a scarcity of water that threatened to hold up industry through lack of power. MR. MEIGHEN ABSOLUTELY REFUSED TO LET WATER FLOW TO TURN THE WHEELS OF THE FACTORIES HERE. He said it was necessary to maintain the water levels for navigation and lumbering.

Down in Brantford Mr. Meighen wound up two businesses by placing tractors on the free list. Liberal Publicity Committee 395 George street, Peterborough

P. C. I. BOYS WON FIRST GAME, 6-5, BEATING OSHAWA

Two Light, Clever, Evenly Matched Teams Battled For Points.

WIND WAS BAD.

The Game Was Close All Through, Winning Touch Coming Near End.

Coach Browne's P.C.I. rugby squad, playing their first game of the season, defeated the Oshawa High School team 6—1, at Alexandra Park Saturday afternoon in a game in the Eastern group of the Interscholastic O.R.F.U.

The game was brimful of good, clean rugby between two light, clever, and very evenly-matched teams and throughout it was punctuated plentifuly with brilliant open-field running by the opposing back-field players. Many a time scoring was prevented on both sides by a player running back the kicks, matching his wits and speed against a host of tacklers.

There was a stiff breeze blowing cornerwise across the field and P.C.I. chose the aid of the wind for the first quarter. Oshawa kicked off to Bookhout, who ran the ball back to his 40-yard mark, and the game was on. With the wind in their backs, Peterborough failed to make yards once in the first quarter. Their own inexperience had as much to do with their failure as the strength of the Oshawa defensive. Time after time the ball carrier broke through for eight and ten yard gains only to be called back and the team lose an extra 10 yards through offside interference.

The wings were down under every kick and their good tackling kept Oshawa continually hedged in and on the defensive. However the Oshawa crew made yards reapeatedly through the line and out-played the Peterborough youths during most of the first half.

Shortly before half time, Wood, the shifty-footed P.C.I. half was injured, and Westbrook, a rooky, finished the game at right half, Dormer going in at flying wing.

Hubbell did the booting for Oshawa and Bookhout for P.C.I. Both kicks mightily, but the sturdy P.C.I. had a material advantage throughout although the kickers were never given good protection several kicks being blocked before they ever started flight by both sides.

Oshawa missed a splendid chance to score a touchdown in the second quarter. Wood tumbled a special punt near his own goal line and the ball rolled into touch, giving Oshawa possession two yards out. The first play, however, was disastrous to Oshawa. The ball was not advanced and the team lost 10 yards by a wide offside interference. Hubbel nevertheless was able to kick to the deadline for a single point.

No score followed this and half time was called with the score 1—0 for the motor town collegians.

After half time the Peterborough boys hit their stride and made several prolonged offensives, advancing the ball by steady marches down the field. Bookhout's long booming kicks had the Oshawa backs badly worried, and several times rouges were narrowly averted by thrilling runs through P.C.I. tacklers by Hubbel and Rowden.

Before the third quarter ended the Garnet and Grey had evened the score with a kick to the dead line by "Bookie" for the single point.

In the last quarter the Peterborough boys began to play more like the Garnet and Grey teams of old.

Beginning the quarter on their own 20-yard line, Morrison advanced the ball twenty yards on a good run. Bookhout galloped through to advance it fifteen more.

After an exchange of punts they pressed on again. Bookhout crashed through for a gain of twelve yards and Westbrook playing his first game for the Collegiate had the honour of scoring the only touchdown of the game for his school.

On a kick play from the Oshawa 35 yard line he slipped around the left end, and eluded every tackle, like a snake, twisting and turning, placing the ball squarely behind the goal posts. This made the score 6—1 for he Petes.

Killally made a splendid effort at converting. The ball carried by the witchery of the cross field breeze struck the uprights and no score resulted.

Peterborough continued to assail the Oshawa defence the line players leaving big holes for the ball carriers. Westbrooke was away for another touchdown when he skirted the end on an extend but was called for stepping over the side line. In the dying moments of the game, Rowden saved Oshawa by catching the ball on the run at his own goal line and making a sensational 50-yard run before he was brought down by a P.C.I. tackler. A fumble by Doughty put Oshawa again within scoring distance, but errors nullified the chance and time was called without further scoring.

For Oshawa Lowden and Cohen, last year's quarter back, and Thurston, were the best ball carriers, while the tackling of the wily Cohen, Gummow and Millichamp saved scores repeatedly.

Bookhout, Westbrook and Morrison were the big yard gainers for P.C.I. Rishor and Martyn on the wings tackled cleverly, stopping many an Oshawa extend. Morrison and Melbourne broke through to stop plays being marshalled behind the enemy line and the hefty bookhout and Amys stopped the plunging bucks effectively.

Mr. Gordon's Election Not Conceded By Mr. Gordon Even

Mr. Gordon's election may be conceded by the Financial Post which ,by the way, is not a Conservative organ or a Tory sheet, as Mr. Gordon's advertising terms it, but a financial journal with no party affiliations or connections as every business man knows.

It is not conceded by anybody else not even by Mr. Gordon who is too busy trying to rally his scattered forces to go to the assistance of other Liberal candidates or even to attend Premier King's Toronto Mass Meeting where other new Cabinet Ministers were being presented to the people of the Province.

THE SWING IS STILL TO PECK AND THE LAST MINUTE VOTERS who like to be with a winner are falling in line with the Conservative candidate to increase the magnets.

STORY OF VAN HORNE IS TOLD TO ROTARIANS

Rotarian Flavelle, of Lindsay, Discusses Railroader's Early Career.

A SPLENDID ADDRESS.

Story Full of Interest is Given at Local Club's Luncheon.

A most interesting story of the early life of Sir William Van Horne builder of the Canadian Pacific Railway was given by Rotarian Wm. Flavelle of Lindsay at today's luncheon of the Peterboro Rotary Club.

Rotarian Flavelle had evidently made an exhaustive study of Van Horne's career and the wealth of informamtion he had boiled down into a short paper was full of interest to Rotarians. The glimpses he gave of Van Horne's determination, his ambition, his mastery of detail, his attention to every department of railroading when he was but a mere youngster, his love for his mother, his hobby of collecting fossils and his general interest in geology even while closely engaged in his work afforded his hearers an opportunity to get a new conception of the master railroader.

Rotarian Flavelle traced the early career of Van Horne and promised to give the story of the C.P.R. in a later paper, an announcement that was received with applause.

The Rotarians were urged by President J. H. Seels to use their franchise on Thursday and to induce others to do so.

TORY ORATORS CRITICIZED KING

Many Issues Discussed By Speakers Supporting F. W. Bowen.

LARGE AUDIENCE.

MILLBROOK, October 26. — A capacity audience greeted F. W. Bowen, the Conservative candidate in Durham, at his first public meeting here in the present campaign, held in the town hall on Friday evening, Warden J. L. McCamus occupying the chair.

Elaborate stage decorations were arranged in honor of Mr. Bowen, flowering house plants, and large wicker chairs, giving the platform an inviting appearance, while a motto immediately in front bore the words: "Welcome to our Durham boy, Bowen." A big Union Jack covered the curtain at the rear of the stage, and many smaller flags were in evidence on the platform and in other parts of the hall.

Members of the executive of the Women's Conservative Association with Mrs. Bowen, Mrs. E. Moran, Major Lewis, M.P.P., (Toronto), A. J. Fallis, M.P.P. Bert Reid (Clarke), and M. Dillon (Toronto), were among those who had seats on the platform.

Major Lewis was the first speaker, Mr. Bowen having a meeting at Campbellcroft before coming on to Millbrook.

The opening remark, "I hope you will have a Durham boy to represent Durham County," brought a reply from the audience, "That's the stuff, old man!" and an outburst of applause followed.

Conditions at the present time are exactly similar to those leading up to the election of 1878—hard times, an exodus to the States, industrial depression, difficulty in finding a market for the farmers crops, and the bars let down admitting United States goods to unfair competition with Canadian produce—the speaker said, and proceeded to deal with some issues in the present campaign.

The exodus to the States, and the broken promises of Mackenzie King to the returned men, received the major portion of attention during Major Lewis' address. Regarding the latter, and speaking as a returned man, he stated that Mr. King received a big vote from the soldier element in 1921 because he made them a distinct promise of an additional cash bonus of from $1,000 to $2 000, and that their claims would receive the most sympathetic consideration from his government. On the other hand, Mr. Meighen, when approached, had made a straight reply, expressing his sympathy with the men, but stating that, in view of the finances of the country, he could not see his way to give them a cash gratuity.

"Mr. King has been in power now for four years, and neither by speech, motion, or in any other way, has he made an effort toward keeping his promise. Instead, estimates have been cut down, hospitals closed, and I can assure you he will receive a different vote from the returned men this time."

The $2,000,000 deposited in the government coffers as Canada's share of the profits from the British Expeditionary Force canteens, the speaker insisted, should be given to the returned men who are out of work, and to the wives of those who have died. Referring to the reimbursement of the Massey-Harris Company from the German Reparations Fund, the question was asked, "Whom else have they compensated besides the Massey-Harris Company? And this was done while the Honorable Vincent Massey was the company's president—a situation he doesn't enjoy at the present time."

"Mackenzie King, with Honorable G. N. Gordon and other of his lieutenants, are telling us Canada is prospering from ocean to ocean. They are making lots of noise, but we would like a little more light on the subject. Why should nearly 500,000 of our young men have paid the head tax, and crossed over the border with the intention of settling there permanently, if they cold make a living here? We are losing the flower of our manhood, and womanhood, and bringing in from Central Europe an undesirable class of settlers to take their places. The people will not be misled by false statements, and Mr. King will be left outside on October 29th, I can assure you also, that he will not be lonely, for he will have a number of his ministers for company."

Quoting from a recent speech of Honorable G. N. Gordon's, referring to the closing of the Libby Owens Glass Company, of Hamilton, because of the cost of silica sand ($5.00 a ton at the Hamilton dock), the speaker said this company, and two others instanced, had closed their doors, leaving plants that had cost millions of dollars idle, and putting 1,500 men out off employment, because of the tariff on glass has been twice reduced during the King regime.

"There are silica sand deposits within twenty-five miles of Hamilton. But the reduction in duty has flooded this country with glass products from the States and Belgium to the tune of $8,000,000 last year—products which should have been made in Canada, thus giving employment to Canadian workmen."

"The United States Department of Commerce, in its report, speaks of Canada as a 'northern extension of the States, economically and socially'—is that what Canada's going to be?" An emphatic "No" came in reply from the audience.

"We do not want a protected market for manufacturers alone, but a natural market for Canadian products in Canadian towns and cities which they can have if they have this market to themselves. This is a bread and butter campaign, with positions for Canadian workmen in Canadian factories, and the prevention of American goods flooding our markets," among the objectives in view. For this reason I appeal to you to elect Fred W. Bowen next Thursday. I will even venture a prophecy, and assert that the Conservative party will have 131 seats in the Federal House when the results of the polls become known."

F. W. Bowen.

Mr. Bowen was given a rousing reception when he arrived in the hall, and took his place on the platform. He expressed appreciation of the splendid audience, and said he believed it an indication of the fact that the people are taking this election very seriously, and honestly desirous of voting in the best interests of Canada.

The extravagance, and other features of the King Government, Mr. Bowen asserted, are responsible for the present business depression, the reduction in the tariff causing the closing of Canadian factories and driving Canadians to the States to seek employment.

"The fiscal policy is the main issue before us. If we lose our grip on that, we lose our weapon of protection in trade competition with other countries. A lower tariff means cheap goods, and cheap labor coming in. We should have facilities to manufacture our natural products into the finished article here; every merchant, and every farmer, would benefit as a result, and it is for us to rise up, then, to a policy of reason and common sense. When it comes to the tariff, there is no imaginary line between Canada and the States."

In this campaign, Mr. Bowen said, we have as opponent a manufacturer, who has a controlling interest in the stock of the company of which he was president. He was probably asked to resign, though he may have done so voluntarily, and he now lacks the prestige which the presidency gave him. His firm's factory at Batavia, New York, is going strong under protection.

"Vote for Massey if you prefer factories flourishing in the United States; if not, vote for me, for I stand behind the policy of protection of the Honorable Arthur Meighen."

Referring to the alleged extravagance of the King Government, the speaker instanced the $3,000,000 for the Scribe Hotel at Paris, "largely filled with offices for the purpose of securing immigration to this country; but if we have no work for the men already here, why bring more in? The cream of our manhood is now being welcomed to important positions in the States.' The radio for the C.N.R. ("and I question if it was needed, or has gained more passengers for the railway), the golf courses at Jasper Park, the wharf at Belle River with 65 inhabitants), and the Quebec harbor, were other things pointed out as unnecessary expenditure.

"The result of this extravagance is that taxes are very high, and the people are, apparently, only the medium through whom the country's business is done."

The increased capital expenditures in connection with the C.N.R. came in for a share of attention, and figures were given showing that while the railway cost approximately $6,000,000, "we couldn't sell out for that."

In his concluding remarks, Mr. Bowen appealed for support on the ground of being a Durham boy. "I have been in the county all my life. I have nothing to say against Mr. Massey personally, it is on policy that we differ. There has been a good deal said regarding a University trained man as member for this riding in preference to one who has had only a High School education; but as one of yourselves, understanding from practical experience the the farmers problems, I ask for your vote and influence on October 29th. In closing I wish to say a word with regard to the women's vote which is 53 per cent. of the electorate. I believe they should line up behind the Honorable Arthur Meighen, because it was a Conservative government which gave them the franchise.

A beautiful bouquet of flowers was presented to Mrs. Bowen, as her husband finished his address; Mary Vance, the little daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Vance, secretaries of the Men's and Women's Conservative Associations, respectively, making the gift of the fragrant sheaf. Mrs. Bowen made a graceful reply, and Miss Buchanan, of Orono, sang "Canada for the Canadians, Every Time," with "O Canada," as encore, thus making a pleasing interlude in the programme of addresses.

Mrs. Eva Moran of Toronto spoke briefly, making her appeal from the standpoint of the "woman in the home,' for the men who have been forced to seek employment out of Canada, and for a fairer attitude toward the boys who went overseas, many of whom were in the bread line last winter, and are still out of work. Educating the consumer to insist upon "Made in Canada' goods was another feature of Mrs. Moran's address.

Mr. Bert Reid was introduced a voice from the audience called out: "Bert, you're about ten days' late from the time you were advertised to speak"; the reference being to Mr. Reid having been billed to speak at the Massey meeting more than a week previously. "Wait until I get through," was the reply, and the speaker went on to say, "Neither Mr. Massey, nor his agents, asked me to be here to speak on that occasion. How could I be here, when I knew nothing about it?"

Mr. Reid's speech was marked by brevity and humor and his suggestion that Mr. King has "solved the house problem in Canada," brought forth a ready applause. "When he took office four years ago few vacant houses were to be found; now so many are going across the line there is plenty of house room."

"What would induce a farmer to get on the platform with a manufacturer, a millionaire and an outsider? How could I do it?" was a remark that created much amusement. "Practical experience counts more than any other quality in farming, and what does Vincent Massey know about it? How could he know? I am not well enough halter broke to be led very far, and I like to see a "made in Canada" label on the goods I buy. Why isn't a man born and raised in Durham and who you know—good enough to represent you at Ottawa?"

To this question, urgently put, a voice replied, with equal emphasis: "He is!" and the speaker sat down amid a gale of laughter and applause.

Mr. M. Dillon of Toronto was the concluding speaker in a lengthy programme which did not close until 11.30 p.m. ,and he urged coming to a wise decision as to the men, the policy and the programme to get the best good out of an election, and "that of the Honorable Arthur Meighen, and the party he represents is pre-eminently the best."

"I am not here to say Canada is going to the dogs—I'm too self-respecting to say that. But I do say we need caution—if you will, pessimistic caution—and a leadership that will examine every programme on its merits, and shoot full of holes any programme that is not in the best interests of the country."

The disadvantage of sending natural products out of Canada to be made into the finished article elsewhere, the loss to the country from the exodus to the States, the captal oblication which works out at $235? against every farm and household in Canada, the necessity of a reduction in government expenditure, and a protective tariff which is avowedly a Conservative policy, with a wise consideration for ways and means of meeting national debts which must be paid, were some of the points taken up with as much detail as the lateness of the hour would permit, by Mr. Dillon.

The meeting closed with cheers for the King and for the candidate, Mr F. W. Bowen, followed by the National Anthem.

The Millbrook band furnished music on the green in front of the town hall for an hour before the meeting opened, and within the hall Miss Ethel Richardson presided at the piano and kept the people entertained as the seating capacity rapidly filled up, many having to stand throughout the entire evening.

Don't Believe

Your teeth are naturally "off color"

You can give them dazzling whiteness in a few days and firm your gums simply by removing the dingy film that clouds them this NEW way

HERE is a simple test that proves the truth of the recent dental statement that dull, "off-color" teeth can be lightened amazingly, even given dazzling whiteness.

In a few days you can work a great change in the color of your teeth. Can give them clear and charming gleam.

There is a new way in tooth and gum care. A way that removes the dingy film that clouds your teeth. A film that absorbs discolorations and keeps teeth dingy looking.

Just run your tongue across your teeth. And you will feel that film. It is the great enemy of pretty teeth and healthy gums. It clings to teeth, gets into crevices and stays. It forms a breeding place for germs. It lays your gums open to bacterial attack, your teeth open to decay. Those germs, with tartar, are the chief cause of pyorrhea.

Old-time methods failed in successfully fighting film. So ugly teeth were common. You must remove it. Ordinary brushing won't do it satisfactorily. Under it are the clear, whiter teeth you envy in others.

Now modern science has perfected an effective film combatant, called Pepsodent. It acts to curdle film, then removes it. It firms and protects gums; beautifies teeth quickly and correctly.

BANK MANAGER SLAIN IN HOME

He and His Wife Found Dead Early This Morning.

DETAILS VAGUE.

MONTREAL, Oct. 26—(Canadian Press).—Charles Bernard, manager of the sub agency of the Banque Canadienne Nationale, at Rougemount, Que., and his wife, were found murdered in their beds this morning at an early hour.

The double murder is believed to have been committed on Friday morning, according to information in the hands of the Provincial Police. The bank was closed on Saturday for no reason known to the officials, who have stated that they expected the manager to make his returns today.

The bank manager was found on the stairway leading to the street, dead, with his throat cut by an axe.

In bed with a bullet through her head, Mrs. Bernard was later discovered by neighbors, who became alarmed and forced open the door of the Bernard home. The details of the tragedy are very vague, owing to the impossibility of reaching Rougemont by long distance telephone. All the wires in that section have been damaged by last night's storm.

To the Women Voters

Mr. Gordon's press bureau used over half a page of advertising on Saturday night to endeavour to present adequate Protection to you as something that would send the cost of living up by leaps and bounds.

"Protection," says Mr. Gordon through his advertising, "drives people out of Canada because it fleeces them here."

Does Mr. Gordon think the women voters subnormal in intelligence?

He must when he tries to make them believe that hundreds of thousands of Canadians have gone to the United States, the most highly protected country in the world because protection "fleeced" them here.

You women of Peterboro know why they have gone to the United States; they have gone because they were sure of steady work and good wages.

And that brings us the very crux of the issue of Protection. It cannot be put better than it has been expressed by the Labour Leader, published in the interests of the Trades Unions of Canada a Labour paper supporting the Conservative party in this election because it believes in Protection. Here are its views:

"We admit we never went to college. We cannot "perhaps string together a line of theories and make them "read like facts in the political manner of our Free Trade "politicians, but this we have done—we have worked in "the factories of Canada as mechanics for 25 years; we "have raised a family solely on the wages we have earned, "and we are quite certain that we know more about the "practical conditions under which the workers of Canada "labor and live than the whole King Cabinet put together, "with perhaps the exception of the Minister of Labor, and "Mr. Murdock has been away from the workshop so long "that he has lost track with those who were once his fellow-"workers, and our experience has been this: As long as "we had jobs, and our pay envelope came regularly every "Friday night, things were always O.K. with us—the wife "was happy, our children well fed and clothed, and we "ourselves were satisfied to use our last efforts to get ahead "of the game.

This being the case, it is our opinion that irrespective of all theorists, the job is of paramount importance to the worker, and it is cerain that jobs and Free Trade never had gone together in recent years. The only thing the worker has to sell is his labor, either by hand or brain, and unless he can find a market for his labor, he sure is out of luck.

A protective tariff is the first essential towards jobs, and economic security for the worker. "The Labor Leader" is not concerned with Liberalism or Conservatism, or any other "ism" as such, but we are interested in the welfare of the workers because being workers, we can appreciate just what it means to be out of a job or working on short time. During recent years we have experienced both, and if we can prevent it, we do not intend to continue on part time employment."

Women of Peterboro, hasn't that been your own experience?

There have been plenty of cheap goods in Peterboro's stores in the last four years because the merchants have been compelled by the pressure of depression to slash and re-slash.

You have seen bargains in the store windows or read advertisements of bargains and you have been unable to take advantage of them because the family income was reduced by your husband being out of work or only employed on part time.

The bargains were no good to you because you hadn't the money to buy them. Isn't that so?

And that brings us to the choice you must make on Thursday.

If you housewives of Peterboro want imported bargains that will cheat you of the income to buy them with vote for Mr. Gordon.

If you woman workers of Peterboro want imported bargains that will destroy your job, vote for Mr. Gordon.

But if you want your husband's job and your job protected, if you see that it is better to have good wages and no imported bargains, than to have imported bargains and no wages, vote for Mr. Peck, who stands for Adequate Protection for Peterboro's industries and Peterboro's country farmers.

APPLE CROP IS BEST IN YEARS

Ontario Government is Backing Trial For New Markets.

MUCH ADVERTISING.

"From the standpoint of quality, this year's apple crop is one of the best Ontario has ever gathered," said Hon John S. Martin, Minister of Agriculture. "In view of this fact, the Government feels justified in particularly commending it to the people of Ontario and elsewhere. We have a special interest in the crop because in the early growing months we were able to render considerable assistance to the growers in spraying the trees and the application of the best methods of production. Partly due to this fact, an extraordinary percentage of the crop will grade No. 1. We feel that the consumers should take advantage of the opportunity to secure this high class orchard product. It will be available everywhere at moderate prices.

"In order to facilitate the marketing of this splendid crop," the Minister added, "the Department is rendering assistance in two ways. In the first place, it is supervising the grading and handling, and guaranteeing the price in connection with exports of certain leading standard varieties, to the extent of 25,000 barrels. Most of this will go into undeveloped markets and as it will bear the Government stamp as to quality, it is expected to establish the name of Ontario for apples of high quality. A large portion of the crop will, of course, go to the British market and the Western market, but there will be plenty left for the people in Ontario. In order to bring this opportunity to the attention of all the people, the Department is sponsoring an advertising campaign which will place the value of apples prominently before the consumer by means of the daily and weekly press. Consumers will not only get good value for their money but will also assist in establishing more firmly an important branch of our fruit industry. The apples will be handled through the regular channels of trade and all that is necessary for the consumer to do is to ask or Ontario apples."

Behind the advertising of Ontario apples will be an intensive merchandising effort in which all fruit dealers, wholesale and retail, and all growers are invited to co-operate. Mr. Martin is one of the most extensive advertisers of poultry and poultry products in America. He has a wide experience in advertising and other business promotion methods.

BOOK REVIEW

WILD GEESE—By Martha Ostenso
As Reviewed by M. McCall.
(Published by McClelland & Stewart, Limited, Toronto.)

IN WILD GEESE, winner of the $13,500 prize, Martha Ostenso has written a powerful story of the harsh and lonely Northland. There is silent, gripping drama in the life of the Gare family; Caleb, his wife, Amelia; Martin, aged twenty; Judith, Ellen and Charley.

Caleb Gare, commanding, demanding, dominating and tyrannical was obsessed by the land, not for love or patriotic feeling toward it, but for what he and the human machines, called his family, could drag from it for his enrichment. Work, work, work, beginning every day at 5 a.m., and none might go to bed until Caleb gave the word. Meals waited for none in that house, except Caleb, and none dared eat until he arrived.

Martin, at the age of twenty, had long ago learned the futility of opposing his father and stumbled on, a dreamer of dreams he had no hope of fulfilling. The only fire brand in the family was Judith. Every revolt was taken out by Caleb on Amelia, his wife, not in blows but in soft-voiced purring threats of disclosing some secret which would disgrace her in the narrow-minded community about her, and prevent any one from marrying into the family. Her task was to see that none of the children left the farm.

Into this alien atmosphere came Lind Archer, pretty, dainty, refined, to teach at Oeland, during the season between April and October, when weather and farm work permitted the children to attend to the mere matter of education —where one trustee, a Scandinavian, spoke a few words of English and under stood less—the other trustee being Caleb Garo.

Lind lived with the Garos and her sympathy went out to the family, especially Judith, seventeen, and beautiful, with a finely developed figure, clothed in overalls and coarse smock, her feet encased in heavy toe-capped boots—Judith, who hated farm work, plowing, harrowing, tossing hay, cleaning stables, milking cows, watering cattle, until her arms and hands were reddened and coarsened beyond repair.

In her heart she carried a deadly hatred of her father, which looked out stark and unashamed from her beautiful brooding eyes. No visitors ever came to the house. The family went nowhere, not even to the next farm, two miles distant. No pleasure ever entered their lives, and yet love found both. Ellen, of the noble brow and tightly pulled back hair and red-rimmed eyes, vaguely blue, behind the silver-rimmed glasses that were never made for her—and love left her, at the command of her domineering father.

With Judith, the outcome was different and the closing scenes of the book, Judith's flight with the man she loved; the punishment meted out to Amelia—her refusal and the terrible beating at the hands of her maniacal husband; the sudden fire swooping down on the farm; Caleb's frantic effort to save his acres of flax—more to him than God —keep the reader tense with excitement.

The love story of Mark and Lind gleams out like some fairy pattern of gold thread on a densely black background. Over all, like an organ accompaniment to a solemn theme, the honk of the wild geese, ever coming and going, marking the beginning and end of growth, and emphasizing the loneliness of the Northland.

A notable engineering feat recently completed was the laying of a gas main 7,200 feet long across the [illegible] of the Hudson River at New[illegible] N. Y.

BRITAIN ATTENDS CHINA CONFERENCE

Realizes Empire Will Come To Its Own as World Power.

By LLOYD ALLEN,
(United Press Staff Correspondent).

LONDON, Oct. 26 (United Press).—Great Britain's policy at the forthcoming Pekingconferencetodiscuss Chinese tariff reform will be guided by the realization that the day is coming when China will come into its own as great world power.

One striking example of the changed viewpoint regarding China, as compared with policies favored some decades back, is the general appreciation among all parties here, from extreme Tory to extreme Labor, that the day has passed when it is possible even to dream of using force in dealing with the gigantic Oriental Republic.

Britain's actions, through her representatives at the Tariff Conference, will be based on the enunciated Chinese policy of the present British Government, the main point of which is that China should develop a capable central government, strong enough to collect its legitimate revenues and safeguard property.

Moreover Britain will be willing to start abolition of extra-territoriality, in which she will be prepared to go as far as anyone, whenever she is assured that a permanent constitutional government has been established.

At the Tariff Conference Britain will do her best to see that the movement for increased tariffs is linked up with an undertaking by China to set up a firm government which would use the augmented revenues properly.

The Canton situation, it is felt, will prove the most embarrassing obstacle to consummation of a policy that Peking and Britain desire, namely, the beginning of an era of peace and prosperity.

With Britain's immense investments in China itself, to say nothing of her huge commitments in the Orient generally, any trouble in China invariably rebounds against British interests in the Eastern Hemisphere.

In the City of London, the heart of the Empire's financial system, business men to-day frequently express the opinion that china's pre-war treaties must sooner or later be revised; the sooner the better, in order to consolidate an understanding between London and Peking that would work to the disadvantage of the allegedly Russian led Canton regime.

Meanwhile, leaders of the British Labor Party emphatically support the movement to ameliorate the present plight of the underpaid and overworked Chinese factory hands. They see in the Chinese system of sweated abor, a menace to the future of the working man in England.

These, and other non-governmental views regarding China eventually affect he main Imperial Policy in one way or another. But for all practical purpose the official announcements of Austen Chamberlain, Foreign Secretary, express the united will of Britain and undoubtedly represent a policy that would be enforced by any government of the day, be it Labor, Liberal or Conservative.

Propinquity In Pools To Promote Marriage

By MINOTT SAUNDERS,
(United Press Staff Correspondent).

PARIS, Oct. 26 (United Press).—Mixed bathing, to encourage marriages and increase the birth-rate, is advocated for "pool, old-fashioned prudish Paris," by M. Rene Friquet, a member of the Municipal Council.

Prudish is not the word generally used to describe the "Gay City," but the fact remains that, in quiet walks of life outside the Montmartre and Montparnasse, there is quite a different Paris than that lighter side known to tourists. The city regulations do not allow mixed bathing in the municipal swimming baths, and M. Friquet is causing a mild sensation among his puritanical colleagues by demanding that regulations shou'd forthwith be made to bring Paris up to date in this respect.

M. Friquet envisages all sorts of blessings from permission for the strong and the fair mingle at least one day a week in the municipal baths. He points out that this should be a natural sequal to the recent creation of a marriage club where young men and women are brought together at dances and social functions for the express purpose of getting acquainted with serious matrimonial intentions.

Many romances, he says, would grow up between lonely men and maidens shivering on the brink of the municipality's cold water, and blossom and bear fruit in happy marriages if the city fathers could get over their prudish ideas. He does not believe that young people who attend modern revues where nudity is featured will be greatly shocked or morally injured by mixed bathing.

RADIO TUBE PATENT FINALLY AWARDED

G. E. Company Wins Court Battle Started Twelve Years Ago.

SCHENECTADY, N. Y., Oct. 26.—A twelve-year battle for the basic patent rights of the modern vacuum tube, used extensively in radio, X-ray and similar work, was concluded Tuesday with the award of the patent to the General Electric Company, it was accounced.

The type of tube involved in the litigation was invented in 1912 by Dr. Irving Langmuir, assistant director of the General Electric research laboratory, and has been the centre of long controversy in the United States Patent Office. During the war the legal battle was suspended because of the necessity of war work being done by the litigants, but it again began after the armistice and has just been concluded.

The tube is characterized by its hard, constant vacuum and its general reliability, permitting operation with more than 10,000 volts, as well as smaller amounts such as are used in home radio receiving sets. The invention is described as making possible the enormous development of practical radio within the past ten years.

SEVEN ARRESTED ON CHARGE OF STEALING AUTOS

Five Suspects Are Juveniles All the Cars Are Recovered

FIRST CLUE.

Meritorious Work of Detective and Constable Led to Discovery.

TORONTO, Oct. 26. — Seven youths, five of whom are juveniles, were arrested in Toronto by Detective Harry Clarke and P. C. Warner, of Pape avenue police division, jointly charged with the theft of seven automobiles. The first arrest was made during the early hours of Saturday, and the last arrest a few minutes before noon.

All of the seven cars were recovered, with little loss. The arrests the police believe, will stop the epidemic of auto theits that have been going on in the east end of the city during the past month. Officials of the police department give the two officers credit for their meritorious work.

The first clue which led to the arrests was found following the recovery of an auto owned by and stolen from Charles Tilley, 90 Richmond street east, on an empty lot at Hastings avenue and Queen street early on Saturday.

Detective Harry Clarke in the police speed car, with P. C. Warner at the wheel, took Jack Nattress of Hastings avenue, into custody, directly after recovering the auto. The police had watched for the coming of anyone to take this car from the empty lot, but without avail.

Faces Five Charges.

After the arrest of Nattrass, who will face five chages of thefts of automobiles, there followed a chase by Clarke and Warner which led the police had watched for the coming of other and took almost 12 hours to complete. When the round was complete. When the round was completed, Clinton Miller, Strathcona avenue, and five other juveniles, were also in custody charged with the theft of the cars.

"There has been an epidemic of auto thefts in the east end during the past month," said Detective Clarke. "We have been following the trail of the stolen cars for that length of time."

NORTH MONAGHAN COUNCIL

The October meeting of the Township Council of North Monaghan was held at the Court House, Peterborough, on Monday, October 19, with Reeve H. B. Rye in the chair.

The meeting was held for the purpose of hearing complaints as to why a certain portion of the highway in lots 8 and 9, in the 11th Concession should not be closed and a new road opened in place thereof, in lot 9. There were no appeals either personally or by letter, and the council proceeded to declare that portion of the old road closed and the new road opened, plans and descriptions being on file in the office of the clerk. By-law 871 for the closing of the old road and the opening of the new one was passed.

John Whitfield was present, and presented his report on the collection of the poll tax to date, which showed collections amounting to $155.00.

F. D. Kerr, K.C., attended the meeting and reported on the Brown Street water main. He pointed out that under the Public Utilities Act passed in 1924 the Council was given power to collect the water rates and any additional costs that might be incurred thereby, and to determine what each individual should pay. It was suggested that the present method of collection continue until such time as the method fails, and that the council should then pass a by-law for the collection of water rates, and determining the amounts.

John Whitfield made application personally for the position of tax collector. He asked for a salary of $225.00 for collecting the property and $25.00 for collecting the poll tax. A resolution was passed reappointing him tax collectof at a salary of $235.00, to include the collection of both taxes for 1926, and that he be paid 10 per cent for the collection of the poll tax for 1925.

By-law 873 was passed levying county rates and township rates for the year 1925, as follows: County rates, 11 4-10 mills; township rates, 3 7-10 mills.

By-law 874 was passed levying school rates for 1925.

By-law 875 was passed appointing John Whitfield tax collector.

A communication was read from the County Clerk, notifying the Township that certain roads under the new road system, by an order-in-council, reverted to the Township.

U. S. FORBIDS ENTRY COUNTESS KAROLYI

State Department Approves Refusal of Passport By Paris Consul.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 26. — Permission for Countess Catherine Karolyi, wife of Count Michael Karolyi, former President of the Hungarian Republic, to visit this country on a lecture tour, has been refused, it was learned the other day at the State Department.

The Countess had asked to have her passport vised in Paris. This request was refused under the existing laws, and the action was approved by the State Department. The application was made last week, at which time Countess Karolyi was under contract to deliver a series of lectures in the United States, and at the same time pay a visit to Mrs. Ralph B. Strassburger at Norristown, Pa.

Mr. Strassburger conferred with President Coolidge, who said he would not interfere in the matter and would approve of the action of the State Department.

Mr. Strassburger assured Secretary Kellogg that the lecture contract had been cancelled and that the present purpose of the Countess' visit was to be a guest for a month at his home.

He sought to find out whether the State Department would permit the Countess to make this visit, now that her lecture tour had been abandoned. State Department officials declined to indicate what their attitude would be if another application was made, but gave Mr. Strassburger the impression that they would not approve of her coming here.

Mr. Strassburger feels that the law which permits the State Department to keep foreigners out of this country because of their political views is unjust and not American. He said he intended to do everything he could to have the law thoroughly tested and repealed. Accordingly, he cabled the Countess to make a new application and state in it that she does not intend to make any speeches while here, but is coming purely on a visit.

After seeing the President and Secretary Kellogg, Mr. Strassburger called upon Senator Borah of Idaho, chairman of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, who has long opposed the law which arbitrarily gives the State Department authority to forbid passports to foreigners because of their political views. He was greatly interested in the case last year when Count Karolyi was denied permission to speak here. He said he wanted to study the present case before taking any action.

YOUTH SHOT WHEN COMPANION TRIPS

Two Were on Hunting Expedition—Wound Thought Not Serious.

CAMPBELLFORD, Oct. 26.—Harry, the 16 year old son of Mr. and Mrs. Samuel John Lambert, Front street, was accidentally shot Saturday by a companion while the two were hunting in the vicinity of Johnston's nursery. Harry was carrying a shot gun, and his comrade, Will Smith, was armed with a 22 rifle. As they were walking along, with Harry in the lead, the other boy stumbled, and his rifle was discharged, the bullet entering the shoulder of the other boy.

Harry was taken to the house of a neighbor, and Dr. E. F. Richardson, who was called, removed him in his car to his surgery, where the wound was dressed, after which the injured lad was taken to his home. The bullet has not been extracted. The boy is resting comfortably and unless complications set in within a few days, no serious results are feared.

Liberal Publicity Committee

SUPPORTED MR. PECK.

The Right Honorable Arthur Meighen, Conservative leader in the House of Commons, who addressed two large meetings here on Saturday in the interests of E. A. Peck.

ARTHUR MEIGHEN IN PETERBOROUGH

Immigration.

He would now deal with what was before the people. Mr. King had said he had a policy on immigration, but nobody had heard it. Mr. King had made fourteen announcements of immigration policy. Millions had been poured out to get the smallest immigration ever known. There had been three ministers of immigration under the present Government. The third was the member for West Peterboro, who had received notice that he would have to get out to make room for a man from the West. Lots of people were going to get portfolios in this government that was not to be. Fourteen immigration policies, four ministers, but no immigrants.

There were only 111,500 immigrants to Canada last year. Before the war the number was 400,000. In the last year of office of the Conservative Government, there were 148,000, and the cost was only one-third of what was expended last year. Mr. King was making all kinds of announcements as to where he was going to put them. Everywhere he went, he announced that particular place as the location of the newcomers. At Edmonton, he announced his spearhead policy. The Peace River was to be the spearhead of the future immigration. The inference was that there was no room in the other areas. The new minister had spoken of the great stream of immigrants that was to come from the Sauth. The speaker asked any of his audience to get the figures from the Government stastistician. He himself had tried to get them. He had even tried to get them over the phone, and at last he got the immigration figures for 3 months—27,796 less for the same period last year. They were going to have this year a little more than half of the number of last year's immigrants.

A New York paper had sent a trained investigator to find out where last year's emmigrants finally settled. He reported that more than half were in the United States.

Tariffs Discussed.

He would come to the fiscal policy. What was the principle? The Government had none on tariff. A reduction here, whittling there just enough to keep the Progressives to give the needed majority. The Liberals had a majority of one but that could not be relied on. They required a dozen at least and they made the reductions to keep a majority. The Prime Minister had said in effect, "It's not all you would like," but as he had said of Mr. Drury, "we are going the same way, only not travelling so fast as you."

Under these circumstances industries never knew what was going to happen next. Had the industries of Peterboro expanded? Had they not experienced contraction, resulting in men being thrown out of work? Mr. Gordon was reported to have said there were 40 industries working overtime. With so many reports it was hard to know exactly what had been said. Instability was the cause of Canada's position to-day. "I read where Mr. Gordon quoted a sentence of mine that I did not believe in a high tariff. He said he agreed with me. I thought when I read that, why did he not agree with me then? Why did he not support me? I think he was then running in an election against me."

Charges Insincerity.

We do not need a high tariff. So much as a tariff that will give protection and stop the log rolling of the past 4 years. Why the drift and drag of the last 4 years? Why the reduction in 1923 and 1924? "Do you think it was because they believed in low tariffs?" Mr. Motherwell probably believed, so did Mr. Stewart, but not the others. They only wanted to count an alliance with the Progressives, an alliance that had proved their ruin. Mr. Meighen asserted that when Mr. Fielding made a few reductions, just sufficient to please the Progressives, he asked the Minister, "Is this all the reductions?" It is not according to the big prospectus of tariff reductions which your party issued. Mr. Fielding's answer was, "I never voted on that platform. I never intend to vote on that platform." Four years had passed, said Mr. Meighen, and not all the foreshadowed reductions were yet in effect. The reason given was that they had not a majority. Not a majority? They had 130 Progressives tied up to the policy. This was a proof that they did not believe a word of it. In the next House, if, by any chance, the combined Progressives and Liberals had a majority (he did not think they would), the dependence on the Progressives would be greater than ever. Would there be 117 Libera's in the next House? Nobody believed there would be. They would do well if they had half that number. In that case there would be more bargain by legislation than ever, more log rolling and no stability whatever.

He had read a speech by Mr. King, who said that on going into the House he would injure no industry. The speaker said he had spoken recently in Dunnville and the heads of two of the biggest industries there told him they were worked one-third capacity due to the tariff policy of the Government. In Guelph almost the same state of affairs prevailed. Industries were closed all over the country. The general result was stagnation and instability.

Farm Implements.

With regard to farm implements, the first reduction was followed by an increase in prices. A decrease in prices succeeded the second tariff drop, because the 6 per cent. sales tax was taken off and prices dropped exactly to that extent.

This did not hurt the manufacturer. Mr. Massey came straightway from Toronto, procured concessions, admitting free everything that went into the manufacture of implements. The result was that in two months the country had the biggest drop in steel production it had ever experienced. Canada was now manufacturing one-half the steel ingots and pig iron compared with before the reduction. The United States total production of all was manufacturing one half more than ever her production during the inflated period of the war. Canada had become the greatest customer of the United States in iron and steel.

Work and Wages.

This was for the masses. The Liberals accused him of being in the hinds of "big interests," while they were solicitous for the welfare of the masses. He had read some figures in the Brantford paper relative to steel workers' incomes. And surely a Brantford paper was qualified to speak on that subject. Mr. Meighen then read out a statement showing that wages had dropped from 20½ millions to 7 millions. "Where did that other 13½ millions go?" asked Mr. Meighen. "To the farmers? Not a dollar. Not a five cent piece.' The United States' worker got it. Some of the Canadian workers got a share, but they had to go to the United States to get it. This was a tariff for the worker, but it was for the United States' worker. It was a tariff for the home, but that was a United States home. There were failures in business. He did not know what the West Peterboro member would say if questioned on the subject, but he supposed his reply would be "Not me."

Business Failures.

Mr. Meighen recalled that he had made a statement at Stratford, that there had been 2,000 failures since the King Government had directed the affairs of the country. These were not all due to the policy of the Government. Some were because of inefficincy, but others were results of the atmosphere of uncertainty. When he made that statement, he did not dream of being challenged. But the Prime Minister said, according to a press report, that there had not been 100. Mr. Meighen said the figures he had quoted were from the report of R. G. Dun. He appealed to the business men present to vouch for the reliability of this authority. The numbers, according to this firm, were 792 failures in 1922, 857 in 1923, and 625 in 1924. Now they wanted him to give all the names of those who had failed. He told them to write to Dun's. As a matter of fact, he had had the list but had given it to a pressman. "Mr. King then said," declared Mr. Meighen, "that if I could prove my statement, he would give me the Premiership. But, is he the donor of the Premiership? The people will decide that in four days (Cheers and Laughter).

Contrast With U. S.

Dun and Cole knew the facts all right.

The United States had 44 failures per million of population. Canada had 84 per million. Some might say: "Oh, you are including some that are so small as not to be worth including. Well, listen to this. The average failures were $48,000 in Canada and $49,000 in U. S. Was this because of inefficient business men? Nobody believed that. Was the U. S. a better country? Canada was a better country than the United States knew how to have. There was nothing comparable to Ontario in the States. They had nothing like Canada's Empire of the West. Canada had a better people than had the States. Let the Government answer why the country was not prosperous.

Textiles.

Mr. Meighen dwelt at some length on the textile industry. There was machinery enough in Canada to produce 100 millions worth of materials. Annually the country was importing 125 millions in textile goods. Would it not be better to use those machines that were lying idle, and give work to 25,000 people representing defendants to the number of probably 100,000. In woollen our products had gone down 14 million dollars and our imports had increased by 12 million dollars. If they thought that was a sound policy, then vote for Mr. Gordon.

The Exodus.

Mrs. Fallis, of whom Peterborough should be proud, had said between 400,000 and 500,000 had paid head tax in entering the States. Many others had got in by subterfuge, and it was safe to put the number at 600,000 at least. The trend in or out of a country was the best barometer of its prosperity. Many poeple might leave a country during a big war. Canada lost numerous citizens by emigration during the Great War. Others might leave because of a crop failure. But they had the finest succession of crops known in the history of Canada. The 1917 crop was probably heavier than any, but there never had been such a series of so bountiful crops. In spite of this 600,000 of the best citizens had left the country and the stream of immigration had run dry. Under those conditions how could they expect prosperity for mixed farmers. It was a suicidal policy to remove the market away from the mixed farmer. The closer his market, the greater the value of his products. But if they wanted to add to the value of the holdings off the American farmer to the detriment of those at home all they had to do was to continue present policies.

Taxpayers and industries contributed to the Federal treasury. Remove the taxpayer to the United States and Uncle Sam paid off his war debt, but taxes at home could not be reduced.

Government's Claim of Tax Reduction.

Mr. King was declaring that his Government had collected 37 million dollars less in taxes than had the previous Conservative Government. When the present Government came into power they raised the sales tax from 3 to 6 per cent. Afterwards they reduced this by 1 per cent., and then declared "We have reduced taxation." The present Government owed 300 million dollars more on railways than had the previous Government. "Of that 300 million," declared Mr. Meighen, "100 million is owing to ourselves—it is an internal debt. Outside we are 200 million more in debt." The King Government last year collected 300 millions in taxes. "In our last year of office we collected $400,000,000 but that was from a greater income. Where we collected 75c the present Government collects a dollar. They only got three-quarters of the income tax we got. The reason — people haven't got the income. What has really been reduced is the capacity to pay. The results: Higher taxes, lower incomes and no immigration." If they wanted this to continue, said Mr. Meighen, return the Government. But if they wanted it stopped, then return the Conservatives, capable of ruling the country.

Liberals and Progressives.

Mr. King said he was solicitous for industries. But would the candidates whom he was supporting show a desire to protect industry. There were 18 of them in this province against protection, high or low. In Manitoba there were six Progressives who had no Liberals against them. This was the case in the constituency which he was contesting, where his opponent in all his speeches declared that a tariff policy mean exploiting the West for the benefit of the East. The Regina Leader had said that protection was a discredited doctrine, and had no place in the march of progress. It was now proposed to set up a tariff commission. Probably the Liberal candidate here was making a lot of it. A tariff commission could only advise, could not propose. Let 50 tariff commissions be established, and men like Mr. Forke and Mr. Leader would not support tariff recommendations.

Blames Liberals.

A great deal was heard about the breaking of Confederation. Mr. Massey had said that Canada was in danger of breaking at the Great Lakes. What did he know about it? When had he been in the West. If the West was against protection — and it had been again and again — why was it against protection? Every Liberal who had gone out there had denounced protection as a scheme for the classes against the masses, and as destructive to agriculture. The West had been poisoned. But the West was just as stoutly Canadian as the East. The experience of 4 years had taught the people there what the tariff meant. They knew there that the agitation had been mostly engineered, by the Liberals first, and afterwards by the Progressives, for the purpose of political propaganda. It would be found that more Conservatives than Liberals would be returned from the West. Every Conservative candidate from coast to coast stands by the same policy as I am advocating, the policy that 18 years of public life had taught him was essential. Britain had adopted partial protection by her safeguarding of Industries Act. Britain had only partial protection and she had a million and a quarter unemployed. Canada was the only country in the world to lower the tariff, and Canada was the only country where the population, on payment of a few dollars, could cross into another country where a similar language was spoken. It was ironical to hear of some politicians were weeping tears over the plight of the United States, but Canada was paying millions to induce immigrants to come in, while the States were spending millions to keep them out. Last year the United States production totalled 61 billion dollars; Canada was down so much that 20,000 fewer men were now employed on the railways. The head of the railway system had said if the railways could get 300 million dollars worth of traffic carriage the system would pay. He said the railways could handle traffic but could not make it. If goods manufactured outside the country were made within its borders, not only would the railway get the traffic of the one car of finished products. It would also handle the six cars of raw materials. Make the goods outside and the railway got only the one car to handle and that only part of the way from the border.

Protection For Farmers.

With regard to farm products, he would first raise the tariff to the U.S. level and investigate afterwards. Those who were fond of buying vegetables ahead of season imported from the south could take warning, for they would be made thereby to contribute to the national treasury, by a tariff that would save the home market. These policies would be embedded into law, and for the first time in five years the country would find itself with a national policy that would encourage its development.

Amid loud and prolonged cheering, Mr. Meighen resumed his seat, having spoken for an hour and six minutes.

E. A. Peck

The candidate was received with cheers as he took the platform to address the electors. After expressing his pleasure at seeing such an audience, he said that it was because he felt deeply the depression in trade and exodus from Canada that he had accepted the nomination to contest West Peterborough in the Conservative interests. The Liberals, he said, did not admit that there was any depression or exodus but right in Peterborough there were industries working half time or closed down entirely, while the men were walking the streets seeking work or else had gone to the United States. The population of the city had slipped, too, which was not a satisfactory condition. "It is strange," said Mr. Peck, "that in a country with such natural resources men are unable to get work. Is it not possible that there is something wrong with the government?"

The speaker said that the Liberals suggested no remedy, saying that prosperity was just around the corner, but that prosperity would not come out from her corner while Mackenzie King was at the head of the Government.

The cause of labor had been neglected, said Mr. Peck, and foreign goods made under conditions that would not be tolerated in Canada were allowed to come into Canada to the detriment of Canadian Labor.

A protective tariff, not high, but adjusted so as to give adequate protection to industries, was the remedy suggested by Mr. Peck. Another way in which he said labor could be protected was by the retention of Canada's raw materials for manufacture in this country, rather than having them shipped out in an unfinished state. The railways in this way would get more traffic and the railway difficulty would work itself out.

"The Liberals," said Mr. Peck, "say that higher prices would follow an increase in the tariff. That would not necessarily follow, but it would be better to submit to a slight increase rather than have the money leave the country." Mr. King's platform, he said, was national unity and people are asked to make sacrifices for national unity. "Why," asked Mr Peck, "should the western farmer not be asked to make a slight sacrifice as well as the people of the east?"

He would only pay a trifle more, if any, while under lower tariff the working man in the east would be out of work and have nothing."

Mr. Peck said he was sure the western farmers were as loyal to Canada and as good sports as the people of the east, and they would be willing to make some sacrifice for Canadian unity.

On the platform of reasonable protection Mr. Peck said he appealed to the electors and asked those present to mark their ballots in his favor.

Loud applause greeted his speech at many times.

Mrs. H. T. Fallis.

Mrs. Fallis said that she wished to say a word to women, whom she said were vitally interested in the tariff. Formerly she had considered tariff a political football which was brought out at every election and then put back on the shelf after it had been kicked around for a while.

Mrs. Fallis said that the Liberal claim was that lowering the tariff would decrease the cost of living She quoted the report of the Department of Labor showing that the cost level of 223 commodities had been 153.3 in June, 1922, and 156.7 in June, 1925, and the average family budget had been $20.58 in 1922, and was $20.67 in 1925. She held up conditions in India and China as evidences of what resulted from an extremely low price in food products. She asserted that many who had voted Liberal in 1921 on the promise of free food and an untaxed dinner pail were now walking the streets or working in the United States. "What difference does it make if prices are low if the factory doors are closed and the men have no money in their pockets?" she asked. "The policy we want is not free food but one that will keep industries running so the cost of living will take care of itself."

Mrs. Fallis referred to the great honor that had been conferred on the city by the appointment of the sitting member to the portfolio of Immigration and said that one of the first things Mr. Gordon had said he would do, would be to bring back the Canadians from the United States. She asked how he was going to bring them back if, as his leader had said, very few had gone and they were coming back. Even if Mr. Cordon were able in some way to bring them back, she said, they would be unable to find work when they came back, as there was hardly enough for those who were here. One thing they would be able to get, she said, would be homes, as the King Government had solved the housing problem.

She urged the farmers present to read the Australian Treaty and see how it admitted farm products free or at a low rate of duty to compete with the Canadian farmers' produce. She said that the French Treaty would make up to them any losses they would sustain, as when they were unable to get good prices for their produce, they would be able to buy their brandies and champagnes and fine silks and velvets for their wives under a low rate of duty.

Mrs. Fallis said that Mr. Meighen was a Canadian through and through, whereas Mr. King had been partly educated in the United States and had been there during the war, yet he accused Mr. Meighen of being unpatriotic. She said that at a recent meeting where Mr. King had quoted, the lines of Scott:

Breathes there a man with soul so dead,
Who never to himself hath said,
This is my own, my native land;
that he should not have stopped there, but should have recited the next three:

Whose heart hath ne'er within him burned,
As home his footsteps he hath turned,
From wandering on a foreign strand.

Mrs. Fallis said that in his speech announcing the dissolution of Parliament Mr. King had said that the reason he had been unable to solve some of the problems had been because he had had to depend on the Progressives for a majority, and that he would need a straight majority of Liberals. She asked how he would be able to do this when in many seats there were no Liberal candidates and the Liberals were being urged to vote for the Progressives. If he were returned to office he would be more dependent on the Progressives than ever, so that he couldn't expect to give good Government.

Many of the Liberals, she said, are deserting Mr. King because they know that the King-Robb-Stewart type of Liberalism is not the old Liberalism for which they had worked, and they know that they must return a straight Conservative majority. All the Conservatives are one the same platform, she said, and would be a unit behind Mr. Meighen, while the Liberals were split, some favoring protection, some tariff for revenue, some low tariff, and some free trade, so that Mr. King would have difficulty in formulating a definite policy.

She urged all her hearers to mark their ballots for Mr. Peck and to return a man who would support Mr. Meighen and his policy.

—too old to work!

Maybe there's an old fellow working beside you—a sort of pensioner the firm keeps on. His productive years are gone. While he was a producer he didn't save.

If you could analyze that old fellow's thoughts, you'd find him sadly rueing the years when he spent all he made. Instead of being able to retire to a comfortable, independent old age, he's working for a mere pittance, to keep body and soul together.

Man! Don't let yourself come to that. Invest a few dollars each year now—when you can save the money—in an Imperial Endowment Policy. It will provide a regular monthly pension to keep you in comfortable independence when you are old.

We have an interesting booklet which tells all about it. Ask for a free copy to-day—while you are in good health.

Let's Lay the Ghost

You know the stoutest-hearted people often have a sneaking fear of ghosts. Some people won't go into a dark room at night; others won't pass a grave-yard.

But only a very few grown-ups can be frightened by children's make-up on Hallo-owe'en night. They know the ghosts and goblins are only childish tricks.

AND THE TARIFF IS THE TRICK GHOST OF THE MEIGHEN PARTY AND THE INTERESTS FOR WHICH MEIGHEN STANDS.

It is saved up for election time—put away in a closet to be trotted out to do its stuff every four years or so.

It's a trained ghost, and it used to give a very creditable performance to crowded houses.

But it's getting moth-eaten. The audience can see through the holes to where the big interests are pulling the strings.

Some people like to be fooled; but sensible people like a little ART in the ARTists who entertain them.

The Tarifff Ghost

The tariff ghost was booed off the stage everywhere in Canada at its last performance.

It was a rank show then, but it is worse now. The ghost hasn't even a new shroud. There's no new scenery. There's not even a new set of lines.

R-U-I-N! B-L-U-E R-U-I-N!

That is all that is intelligible out of all the groanings and mumblings of the chief actor.

A few weeks ago a show called "Spooks" came to the Royal Theatre here, and boys were paid to dress up in white and walk the streets shouting "S-P-O-O-K-S" to advertise it.

Just like the Conservative tariff ghost, which says:

"Vote for Gordon and the goblins 'll get you. They'll drive your sons and daughters out of the country. They'll shut your factory doors. They'll throw a spell over the city and grass will grow through your newest concrete paving."

That's the message from the stars the trick tariff ghost writes on the Conservative publicity slate.

It's All Bunk!

Meighen and his interests don't care a ghost's rap about your children.

WHAT THEY WANT IS MORE PROFITS.

The tariff ghost never writes that down—he's a trained ghost.

The men who brought the ghost show here and are managing his performance want you to think Gordon is a free trader—one of the goblins.

But you know, irrespective of your party, that Gordon is the ablest and most aggressive and energetic representative West Peterborough has had in the Federal or any other Parliament for a decade.

No man with any brains would endeavour to wreck the industries in the city where he makes his living.

Let the ghost of Mr. Meighen's tariff policy rap and write and talk his head off.

Vote for G. N. Gordon

YOUNGS POINT ELECTORS HEAR ARGUMENT FOR LIBERAL CAUSE

Wet Weather Fails to Damp Ardour of Gordon Supporters.

DISCUSS TRADE.

Speakers Hail Dawn of Brighter Era and Canadian Development.

Despite unfavorable weather conditions Young's Point people turned out en masse on Saturday night to listen to the Liberal candidate, G. N. Gordon and his supporter, J. Dewart. The hall was brilliantly lighted for the occasion by a Delco light equipment furnished by Mr. Watson of Peterborough.

While Mr. Gordon was speaking at Buckhorn, Mr. Dewart held the audience with a complete review of the political situation.

F. M. Young—Chairman.

Appointed as chairman, Mr. Young introduced the first speaker and said that the presence of so many was gratifying under the circumstances. A comparison was drawn, which Mr. Young used as showing the similarity of the Dominion to a business concern. The electors were the share holders and appointed directors or Parliament members to look after their interests. In 1921, one of the directors had deemed it expedient to resign. In a spectacular by-election G. N. Gordon had been selected by the people as their representative. A year later the people had decided to change the whole directorate, but among them was still G. N. Gordon, with a doubled majority.

On viewing the facts it could be seen that the country had an operating surplus instead of a deficit—the C.N.R. was on a working basis—the Canadian dollar was the most valuable in the world. Considering the matter from a personal standpoint, the chairman submitted that the candidate by his sensational advancement to positions of prominence had brought honour not only to himself, but to the entire constituency which he represented.

J. H. Dewart.

"The business of the country should not be a dull subject and the success of all national enterprise depends on the interest which the electors take in matters of appointing legislators. It is very important to have a good government and equally important that the best public men be appointed to that government. Canada has had many splendid statesmen for whom no one party deserves all the credit." The speaker continued by paying a tribute to the power of such men as MacDonald and Laurier. Mr. Dewart believed that MacKenzie King was a worthy successor.

As an instance of the good which the Premier had done the speaker indicated the lowering of duties on farm implements which lowered the cost of production in agricultural pursuits. A binder was only used a few days in the year; it cost about $250.00 and in two or three years would be practically be valueless for re-sale because of the rapid depreciation. The same was true of any implement used in agriculture. Any measure which could reduce the cost of these essential tools would be welcome to the farmer.

The King government lowered the duties on the implements against the active opposition of Meighen, who had predicted that the measure would drive the manufacturers out of the country. As a matter of fact they did protest at first but, Mr. Dewart declared, they are now of one mind regarding the beneficial results of that piece of legislation.

The Fertilizer industry was said to have been affected in a similar manner, but in reality the advance in sales was sufficient to counteract the lowered prices. The issue was clear cut one. On the one hand was Mr. King contending that the tariff was high enough, on the other, Mr. Meighen, who wants to raise the scale of duties.

Competition and Trade.

Competition, declared the speaker, was the life of trade. If a tariff wall were to be erected, this desirable competition was eliminated and the home manufacturers would revel in unfair profits. Meighen does not say on what articles he intends raising the tariff, but the electors could depend on it that what ever it was, the price would jump. He may double the duties and that would leave the Canadian consumer entirely at the mercy of the Canadian manufacturer, for trusts and combines flourish in the shade of tariff walls.

It was all a question of the purchasing power of the dollar. If the duties were increased on essentials the purchasing power of the Canadian dollar would diminish in an equal proportion No industry, the speaker asserted, was yielding smaller dividends than agriculture.

The manufacturer was going to make all the profits he could and the manufacturer was right behind the Conservative party.

Mr. Dewart couldnt understand why Mr. Meighen was staking the result of the issue on the one plank of Protection. He supposed it was the only thing Meighen had to depend on to get support from the operators of factories.

The country was now paying for reckless expenditure of the Borden-Meighen period. Sir Arthur Currie had said that vast sums had been thrown away. The Ross rifle, although condemned by the British army authorities was the arm with which the Canadian troops had been presented. Two contingents had been equipped with these rifles, only to have them thrown in the scrap heap and the more dependable Lee-Enfield substituted. The speaker had also seen a big dump composed solely of Oliver equipment which had also been condemned by the British army board. In Lindsay was a monster arsenal which had never turned out a shell or a cartridge.

Mr. Dewart admitted that much of the expenditure had been a direct result of the stress under which the country labored, but he also contended that it was due largely to faulty advice from those at the head of national affairs—Meighen had added to the National Debt, while King had balanced it during the second year he was in power, and in later years had decreased it.

Other achievements were, a general decrease in taxation, the removal of the English embargo on cattle, the bettered condition of the Canadian National Railways, the position of the Canadian money unit. King wants a united Canada, while Meighen's policy is sectional, concluded the speaker.

The Candidate.

Mr. Gordon admitted that the National Debt was a great problem, but it was a problem for which the Conservative party was largely responsible. The cost of the war had been defrayed with borrowed money and now was the time of paying back for the use of that capital. Men had made stupendous profits during the war but for three and a half years their vast incomes were not taxed and they were allowed to invest the bulk of their gains in Victory bonds which were taken on long term rates, and bore no tax. Now, 55 cents of every dollar levied was used for war payments, while 45 cents only remained for the development of the country.

Trade conditions were greatly improved. The lifting of the cattle embargo in England had opened the export market for Canadian beef to the extent that 3½ millions of dollars would be realized from that branch of agriculture alone this year. That, the speaker contended was vastly different to the conditions prevalent a few years ago when Western cattle glutted the Union stock yards, cutting prices to half of what obtains at present.

Dairy products for export had doubled in price while flour had jumped from a trade of 15 thousand barrels in 1921 to 20 thousand in 1924, and this year would increase that figure for where there was an export crop of 129 million bushels in 1921, in 1924 256 million bushels had gone to foreign countries from Canada's wheat lands. The National debt was greatly decreased, and people were now able to see the light of a brighter day and know that actual progress was being made.

The conditions of a favourable trade balance and lowered taxation was regarded in a sanguine light by the speaker. Every dollar collected in needless taxation was a dollar less for the development of the ratepayer's property. Under the Honourable Charles Murphy, Postmaster General, a deficit had been turned into a profit so that the department would now be enabled to improve the service and develop the rural routes. The C.P.R. might also be taken as a barometer of improved conditions, Mr. Gordon declared, and statistics showed that in the current year the net profits had been highest since 1916, when munitions of war had been moved by the more expensive and speedier express service.

The lowered duties on farm machinery was a direct benefit to the farmer who not being forced to such heavy expenditures for implements were able to raise the standard of living and invest their money in the comforts of the home.

The King government, Mr. Gordon maintained, had been economical; their expenditures directed where the greatest returns would follow. The rebuilding of the Young's Point Lock would greatly benefit the Trent Canal System, and the fact that two million tourists had visited Canada last year seemed to the speaker a convincing argument for these facilities being afforded.

Asking for the support of the people, Mr. Gordon said that he believed he could do much for the constituency and pleaded that the use of the franchise might be made, no matter whether the vote was for himself or for Mr. Peck.

If it was his fortune to be elected, the speaker promised to confer frequently with the people in order to keep in close touch with the needs of the community and to obtain suggestions for its improvement from the electors.

The meeting closed with the singing of the National Anthem and cheers for Mr. Gordon.

MEIGHEN LAUDS TARIFF POLICY

Address at Lindsay in Support of Candidature of T. H. Stinson.

ONLY PANACEA.

LINDSAY, Oct. 26.—Motoring from from Port Hope where he addressed a meeting in the interests of Mr. Bowen, the Conservative candidate for Dulham, Hon. Arthur Meighen Saturday afternoon addressed a gathering in the Armories which taxed the capacity of the building. The meeting was held in the interests of T. H. Stinson, the Liberal-Conservative candidate for Victoria and Haliburton, the chair being taken by F. R. Wilford. Mr. Meighen did not arrive until long after three o'clock and was given an enthusiastic reception. He was sufferinr from hoarseness, the result of his record-breaking campaign of speechmaking. His address was similar to the one delivered in Guelph on Friday evening, save that he took the opportunity of denying the statement to the effect that he was in favor of the amalgamation of our great railway systems. He also severely scored the alliance of the Liberals and Progressives, and referred to the spectacle as he termed it of Premier King preaching national unity in the east and giving his blessing to the Progressives in the west. He referred to the policy of protection as the only panacea for the ills of the country, referred to the industrial stagnation in the country, and the exodus of the best blood of the country to the United States.

T. H. Stinson, in his address, referred to the fact that the fight in the riding was between the Progressives and the Liberals. He had no fault to find with those who supported U. F. O. four years ago and voted against him. They had been given extravagant promises by that body—promises that had never been carried out. To-day the Progressive party was disorganized, and he would have serious fault to find with the electorate did they repeat the vote of four years ago. Mr. Stinson severely criticized Mr. Thurston, the riding's Progressive representative in the last House, for terming the Lindsay Arsenal and Trent Valley Canal menageries. Reference was made to the great value of the canal as a mecca for tourists. The tourist trade was a great asset to this district, he stated, and everything possible should be done to increase it. Mr. Stinson, in referring to the depression and stagnation prevailing in the country, stated that Lindsay's population had dropped 250 during the past year, while the local pay roll had decreased some $500,000 in the past four years.

The potato crop in general isn't very good here, but Mr. Wm. Shaw said that he never had a better crop of potatoes.

The apple crop is splendid. Mr. W. R. Harrison picked 12 barrels of golden tolman sweets.

He picked two barrels of northern spies off one small tree. He sold a few barrels of the tolman sweet apples at $3.50 per barrel.

SIR JAMES WOODS' ANSWER

To the Honorable Charles Dunning, on the ABSENCE of Protection in the Woolen Industry

The Honorable Charles Dunning, Premier of Saskatchewan, on the Hon. Mackenzie King's platform at Massey Hall on Friday night, October 23rd, said:

"A prominent Canadian engaged in the woolen trade asks for protection of his product of merely 12½% on top of the 25% he already has. And he also says he wants his raw materials free. He is a high protectionist all right on what he has to sell, but he wants no protection for the producers of his raw material. You cannot get anywhere with that kind of jiggery-pokery."

Premier Dunning was referring to an open letter which I wrote to the Hon. G. N. Gordon, of Peterborough, and to which the latter has made no answer.

Anyone taking the time to read the letter, which is here re-published, will see how Premier Dunning has misrepresented the facts.

1. There is at present no protection of 25% or any other amount on my product, dry spun yarn.

2. The protection I asked for was 12½ per cent.

3. With wool, the raw material for our industry entering Canada free as at present the manufacture of dry spun yarn can be carried on in Canada with 12½ per cent. protection.

4. But I am in favor of tariff protection for wool growers as well as manufacturers.

I do not know any industry that could mean more to the farmers and the small communities of Canada than the wool growing and wool manufacturing industry. It should be safeguarded in every reasonable way.

I am surprised to learn that Premier Dunning, coming from the Prairie Provinces, where sheep raising and wool growing might be made an important and profitable branch of agriculture if it were reasonably protected, is so strongly opposed to granting this industry the tariff protection which would benefit both farmers and manufacturers.

J. W. WOODS

An Open Letter to Which I Received No Reply

Toronto, October 16th, 1925.

To the Hon.
G. N. GORDON, K.C., M.P.,
Peterborough, Ont.

Dear Sir:

My attention has been called to one of your campaign speeches in which you state that tariff has nothing to do with any industrial stagnation that exists in Peterborough.

A fact, well known to you, is that the Canadian Woollen Mills, of Peterborough, in 1920 installed a new and up-to-date plant for spinning yarn by the French system and in 1923, because of the lack of any tariff protection and for no other reason, they got rid of this plant, which I purchased and moved to Toronto.

Someone may ask why I should purchase a plant which cannot be operated profitably. The answer is that I have confidence in the common sense of the people.

Given a tariff of 12½% and free raw material, our plant will be operated to capacity.

Since we got the Peterborough plant, our loss in this department of our business has amounted to many thousand of dollars, but this, I hope, will end soon after October 29th.

A wearisome dispute goes on as to the number of citizens Canada is losing to the United States. I find, on investigating, that of the spinners on the French Dry Spun System who were in our employ in 1919-20 approximately ninety per cent. are now working in the United States, and a reasonable tariff, a tariff compensate for low wages paid in European countries would bring most of these people back.

Yours truly,

J. W. WOODS

HEAVY DEMAND FOR CHAMPAGNE CORKS

To Stimulate Trade By Increased Consumption of Material Underneath.

LONDON, Oct. 26 (United Press).—Purchase of used champagne corks at prices of from four to twelve cents each is an unusual device to stimulate trade brought to light here.

The corks are bought by wine merchants from waiters. The theory is that the waiter will urge on diners the brand of champagne whose merchants will buy back the extracted corks at the highest price. The price paid varies with the grade of the champagne sold.

ANNIVERSARY SERVICES.

Warsaw United Church Had Very Successful Celebration.

WARSAW, Oct. 26.—The Sunday collections at the United Church Anniversary services were over eighty dollars.

The fowl supper and entertainment on Monday evening was a great success. The ladies had their arrangements made, and carried them out well. There was no crowding in the supper room.

There was, as usual, an abundance of good eats. For the program, given by the George Street Sunday school orchestra, the church was crowded; draw-seats were used, and chairs were brought from the Sunday school room. The entertainment given by the orchestra was delightful, most of the numbers were encored, and the encores were kindly responded to.

The evening receipts were about one hundred and fifty-three dollars.

On Tuesday evening there was a little social to dispose of the cooking over the supper. About twelve dollars was realized. This will about cover the expenses. What was not used at the social was sold.

Next Sunday, the anniversary services at Bethel will be held, and there will be no service in the Warsaw church.

Anna McMurray, one of Mr. Patrick McMurray's daughters, was able to return to school on Monday. She was home a week, after being bitten by dogs the Sunday before. The little girl was climbing a fence, into her own home field, when a couple of dogs attacked her. Just how or why seems undecided. A third dog, which belongs to Mr. M. McManus appeared on the scene, and directed the quarrelling dogs' attention from the child to himself. The little girl got to her home, but fell unconscious on the door step. Two dogs which are supposed to have been the offenders have been shot.

Eggs are bringing 3 8-42 cents in the village stores.

There is below the average of plowing done so far, and farmers are forging ahead at it in spite of storms.

PONTYPOOL, Oct. 23.—The anniversary service of the Manvers Church was held Sunday, Oct. 18th. Poulter led in prayer followed by an anthem by the Pontypool Choir, Sing unto the Lord." The preacher read for the lesson the 19th Psalm. He too the subject for his sermon from 15th chap. of John. am the vine, ye are the branches," giving as an illustration, how impossible it is when a branch is severed from a tree, for it to bear fruit, so it is with members of the church who are separated from Christ. They cannot be fruitful. In the next part of the chapter, Christ was telling his disciples to love one another and lastly to testify to all the world what the Lord had done for them. After the offering, the choir rendered another anthem, Miss Muir acting as organist and the service concluded in the usual way. The service in the evening was well attended, the preacher taking for his subject, The knowledge of God is a necessary antecedent to the love of God," found in the fourth Epistle of John The church was nicely decorated with flowers and fruit for the occasion.

The sale of Mr. Roy Kellett's farm stock and implements took place Saturday afternoon, everything selling at a high figure, sheep and lambs brought $18 apiece and year-old ewes $30 a piece, and the machinery also went at a fair price. COUPLE CELEBRATE DIAMOND WEDDING

Fifty-nine of 60 Years Spent in Oak Lake Vicinity.

(By a Staff Reporter.)

OAK LAKE, Oct. 24.—Surrounded by their children, grand and great-grand children, Mr. and Mrs. James Wood celebrated their diamond wedding anniversary on Friday, the husband being 82 and the wife 79 years old. Fifty-nine of the 60 years of their married life were spent in this vicinity, and the diamond anniversary supper was held in the log house in which they were married and in which they lived for four years after their marriage. The house is still in a good state of preservation and on Friday night echoed with the strains of violin music and the sound of dancing just as it did 60 years ago. It was the first residence ever erected in this district, as such is a historic landmark. Mr. Wood helped his parents, who were the first settlers in this neighborhood, 65 years ago.

Born in Camden.

Mr. Ward was born in Camden, Ont., in 1843 and came to Seymour with his parents when he was 10 years old.

When he was 17, the family moved to Oak Lake when the log house was built, the foundation having been cut from the primeval forest. It was far removed from civilization and the only means of reaching it was by trails through the woods.

Married at 22.

After the Wood family had blazed the way, other settlers came in. Among these was Selinda Monroe, who had been born at Healey Falls, and what at the time her parents moved to Oak Lake was 17 years old. Two years later she and James Wood were married, the first wedding in this community. The clergyman who performed it was Rev. Mr. Hardy (his first name is not recalled), who resided at Norwood and ministered to the settlers in every direction far and near. He was one of those devout circuit riders who in all seasons and in all kinds of weather, travelled the forest trails on horseback, with his heart full of zeal and his saddle bags filled with religious literature. For a wedding, a death or a christening, he could always be counted upon. At the time he married Mr. and Mrs. Wood, Mr. Hardy was advanced in years and has been dead for many years.

For four years the young couple lived in their pioneer home and at the end of that time they moved to Reed City, Mich., where the husband engaged in lumbering operations. At the end of a year they returned to Oak Lake, and have remained here ever since.

This district at that time was the centre of a large lumbering business and Mr. Wood spent the best years of an active life in helping to salvage the pine which grew in profusion on all sides. He is today as bright and active as many a man of 60. His hearing is unimpaired and his sight is so good that he can on clear days see the fire town eight miles away, built by the Government for the detection of forest fires, although the building is only eight feet square and from that distance looks like a mere speck on the landscape. He and his wife are now living alone in a peaceful valley a few miles from their first home, spending the evening of their lives in comfort and surrounded by their children. John, a son, lives on the homestead, in a neat frame house built just across the lane from the log cabin. Besides farming, he conducts a successful resort both in the summer and during the deer hunting season.

Mrs. Wood, like her husband, enjoys the best of health and both seem assured of many more years of vigorous old age. They have had eleven children, eight of whom survive. They are: Mrs. Albert Nicholson, their eldest daughter, who lives at Oak Lake; James of Havelock; Daniel of Trout Lake; Mrs. Andrew Aulthouse of Healey Falls; John, Herbert and Howard, and Mrs. Roy Aulthouse of Ooak Lake. Including the greand children and three great grandchildren, there are 38 descendants of the venerable couple, and every one of these was at the celebration. Rev. Samuel Carr, Methodist pastor of Apsley, was present, and the marriage ceremony of 60 years ago was repeated.

Mrs. Nicholson, the oldest daughter, at the celebration, read to the assembled guests a carefully prepared sketch of of the history of the family. In choice phrases, she expressed appreciation of all the aged parents had done for their family, rearing them under difficulties in a region at that time remote, but managing to give them all the advantages which a growing settlement could afford.

There are only four of the original pioneers left here, Mr. and Mrs. Forbes, besides Mr. and Mrs. Wood. The latter have always been noted for their kindly hospitality and now in the evening of their life nothing pleases them better than to welcome relatives and friends to their little home. Their's has been a life of strenuous endeavor, but they have overcome all their difficulties and the devoted family that they have reared, and the honor showed them by the latter at the celebration, both regard as the greatest recompense for all their hardships.

PRIEST'S STATEMENT CAUSES DISCUSSION

Rev. J. J. Curran Says Coal Strike Will Soon Be Settled.

PHILADELPHIA, Pa., Oct. 26.—(Canadian Press).—A statement by Rev. John J. Curran, rector of St. Mary's Roman Catholic Church in Wilkes Barre, in which he predicted an early settlement of the anthracite mine trouble brought varied expressions of opinion yesterday from those in close touch with the situation.

Father Curran said he had conferred with John L. Lewis, international president of the United Mine Workers in Atlantic City last week, and "had unswerving faith and confidence" in him as a "model citizen and safe leader of men", and felt that he would "do the right thing" by the miners, the operators and the public.

"I feel," added the priest's statement, "that in a comparatively short time, we shall hear favorably from him and that the strike will soon come to an amicable and successful end."

LECTURER RELATED STORY OF CANADA

Second University Extension Lecture in Marmora Showed Increase in Attendance.

MARMORA, Oct. 24.—The second lecturer of the University Extension Course was delivered in the Town Hall, Marmora, on Friday evening by Prof. A. P. Coleman, the eminent geologist. His subject, "The Opening up of Canada," was beautifully illustrated by lantern slides.

The chairman for the occasion was Mr. J. Collins, principal of Marmora Continuation School. The attendance proved more encouraging than at the initial lecture of the series. Prof. Coleman prefaced his lecture with the remark that whilst Greece and Rome were in their prime Canada was without human inhabitants. Canada was then a vast untouched forest. Hardly any place exists to-day where you can see the original forest. In those bygone days too the snow lasted longer than it does now.

He would take up his subject from the general point of view. The first creature to open up Canada was the beaver. Prof. Coleman detailed the habits of the beaver, explaining its purpose in making dams and showing how beaver meadows were of some importance to first settlers as they were the first clearings.

The next to open up Canada were the Northwest Indians. This they did through making canoes to use on the waterways in commerce and travel. A weak point of their equipment lay in the poor quality of their tools. A stone axe could not fell a tree so speedily as a beaver.

The French-Canadian coureurs de bois, or "runners of the woods," came next. They were after beaver skins, and had this advantage over the Indians in that they had steel. They were followed by the British land surveyors who were followed by French-Canadian lumbermen. The geologists came next. Their labours took them also to the prairies where, with few lakes, different methods of transportation had to be followed. The lecturer told here of the Red River carts which were used for a distance of 1,000 miles. After the prairies, we come to the mountains. The mountain Indians travelled on ponies. As the camel is referred to as "the ship of the desert," so could the pony be called as "the canoe of the mountain."

The gold seekers of British Columbia were next touched upon and after them, the mountaineers. The concluding portion of the lecture dealt very interestingly with the modern method of surveying with hydroplanes, wherein it was stated that mapping of territory can be accomplished at a thousand times the rate as it was possible with the use of canoe.

Dr. Thomson moved a vote of thanks to the lecturer which was carried with applause.

PETERBOROUGH HOSPITALS ARE ON APPROVED LISTS PREPARED BY U. S. COLLEGE OF SURGEONS

Eighth Annual Survey Shows Many Hospitals on List.

LIST OF INTEREST.

Patients and Doctors Can Select Hospital With Care.

In the presence of a great international congress of surgeons and hospital people at the Bellevue-Stratford Hotel, Philadelphia, recently, Franklin H. Martin, M.D., Chicago, Director General of the American College of Surgeons, officially announced the list of approved hospitals up to October 1, 1925. This list is the result of the eighth annual Hospital Standardization survey made by the American College of Surgeons, including 2,380 hospitals. In presenting the report he said in part: "This list of approved hospitals is of general interest. The patient can more intelligently and more safely choose a hospital and a doctor when ill. The young woman with the noble ambition to become a nurse is assisted in her selection of a training school The recent medical graduate eager for more practical experience seeks the approved hospital for his internship. Federal, state, municipal and philanthropic organizations frequently consult this list in their selection of institutions when rendering financial assistance. Already the American Railway Association has urged their 14,000 surgeons to select for their patient so far as possible hospitals approved by the American College of Surgeons. The United States Army, Navy, Veterans' Bureau, Public Health Service, and National Homes for Disabled Volunteer Soldiers share enthusiastically in this program and the approved hospitals of these groups appear on the list to-day. The American College of Surgeons appreciates the opportunity to better hospital and medical services for the 14,000,000 patients passing through the hospitals of the United States and Canada annually. This movement has now become part of the social and economic life of our people. The requirements are minimal and fundamental. They are applicable to any hospital regardless of size, type or location. Any institution ethical and honest, reaching the standard is acceptable. The public is therefore asking why certain hospitals are not on the list."

The hospitals whose names appear on the approved list to-day are those recognized as fulfilling the fundamental requirements for good service to the patient, as assured through (a) efficient staff organization; (b) adequate diagnostic and therapeutic facilities; (c) trained personnel; (d) complete case records; (e) periodic check-up or medical audit of the clinical work of the hospital.

From the 1925 survey of 2,395 hospitals in the United States and Canada 1,564 or 65.7 percentage meet the requirements of Hospital Standardization. In the province of Ontario out of 66 hospitals surveyed 36 or 54.5 percentage have been accredited and appear to-day on the approved list as announced by the American College of Surgeons.

The asterisk indicates that certain hospitals have accepted the requirements which result in the best scientific care of the patient but are not, for the lack of time or other acceptable reasons, carrying them out in every detail.

Finds Saghalien Island Has Big Coal Deposits

TOKIO, October 26. — The northern part of the Island Saghalien could supply all the coal needed by the factories of Japan if mining was carried on according to plans drawn by experts, said Mr. Hidiakoff, chief of the Russian Investigation Commission, just returned from there.

"The coal deposits are great and almost immeasurable," he said. "Veins are so numerous that mines can be readily established in almost any part of the northern territory. The quality is also so good that the best of coal tar can be obtained from it."

According to the annual report of the Swedish Fish Dealers' Association, the use of seafood in Sweden has trebled in the last twelve years, while prices have increased an average of 70 per cent.

Will Mr. Massey Open His Notes And Explain?

IN TORONTO MEN CAN'T GET JOBS.
IN BATAVIA, U S., JOBS CAN'T GET MEN.

The following advertisement appeared in the Buffalo News, for thirteen insertions, starting Sept. 25th. Brought only twenty men. Seventy needed.

They can't be had, apparently. Wages in the Massey-Harris plant in Batavia, N.Y., are fifteen per cent. higher than in Toronto.

The following is a copy of the advertisement. See what is promised:

MALLEABLE MOULDERS WANTED. Starting new foundry Oct. 25. Steady work. Good working conditions. Apply in person, Massey-Harris Co., Inc., Batavia, New York, U.S.A.

Is it any wonder that skilled mechanics are leaving Canada, when the same firm, making the same products, pays higher wages to make implements to be sold in Canada to the detriment of the steady work of Canadian mechanics.

FOR HOME CONTENTMENT

Lucky is the home that boasts an open firepace which is such a joy and comfort these cool Fall days before one lights the furnace. More and more are the home builders taking into consideration the decorative value of a fireplace, whether it be in the hall, the living room, the dining room, or bedroom. And more than fortunate is the woman who can boast a fireplace in all these rooms. However, all of us are not fortunate enough to live in houses where such comforts can easily be installed.

Those of us who live in apartments consider ourselves lucky if we have one open grate in the living room. Can anything be more cheery than the flickering light from a log fire playing over a cozy room.

No more does one consider brass the only thing that can be used for various fittings. The many graceful, wrought-iron accessories are just as charming and combine most effectively with any style of decoration. They have, too, the value of being easier to keep clean for the busy housewife or business woman.

The red-brick fireplace shown above, while simple in line, made a charming background for the fittings of wrought iron in Colonial pattern. The andirons and holder with the tongs, hearth-brush and shovel are quite inexpensive, compared to the same outfit in brass. Then one may have a fireside screen of wrought iron, and with the wall brackets also in wrought iron, a charming effect is obtained.

One thing should be remembered in connection with a fireplace—don't overload the mantel shelf with a lot of decorations. The fewer and simpler the decorations, the more charming the effect. The two brass figures with the yellow glazed bowl filled with Autumn leaves, showing in the illustration, are sufficient, artistic and most effective.

USELESS QUALIFICATION

The French Foreign Minister, M. Briand, tells an excellent story of how a friend with a vitriolic wit scored over a political opponent.

The opponent was criticizing in the Chamber of Deputies a bill brought in by Briand's friend.

"When," he declared, "I first read the text of the ridiculous and impossible measure I thought I was becoming mad."

"Becoming" interjected the wit. "Becoming, indeed! How fond the honorable member is of adding unnecessary words."

At a wedding in St. Louis not long ago the "best man" was a woman.

IT PAYS TO ADVERTISE

ADVICE TO GIRLS

By Annie Laurie

DEAR MISS LAURIE:

Could you kindly give me advice on the following:

1.—If a boy is out walking with a boy friend, and on meeting another boy, which boy should be introduced to the other?

2.—What polite remarks should be made by each?

3.—On being introduced to a girl, what should a boy say?

Thanking you in advance.

1.—The younger boy should be introduced to the older one. If there is no appreciable difference in their ages, it might be better to introduce your companion to the boy you meet.

2.—That is rather an odd question. Boys are usually not very conventional in these matters. At a certain age, they will probably just stare at each other and say "Hello." An explanation of your walk or where you are going or what you are going to do might act as a curtain-raiser.

3.—If she is a flapper, you can say, "Where have you been all my life?"—that is, if you are the he-flapper type. As you appear to be somewhat conventional, you had better limit your remarks to the standard pattern, and say, "I am very pleased (or happy, if she happens to be extra pretty) to meet you." Or tell her you have heard a lot about her from some mutual friend. If you are stuck for something to say after that, ask her if she knows So-and-So, and later on, you can converse about the movies, or anything else that comes handy. At a pinch, insert a compliment, about her eyes, or her dress, or anything at all. Flattery seldom fails to make a good impression on a girl, even though she may think you are trying to kid her. Left to herself, the girl will probably be able to contribute some gems to the conversation herself. They usually do.

DEAR ANNIE LAURIE:

Some months ago a young man proposed to me. I informed him I could never love him, but would be pleased to continue his friendship. He promised to call again, but has never done so and now purposely avoids me.

What can I do to regain his love, for I know that I do love him? Would it be proper to write him?

HANDICAP.

HANDICAP: Yes, my dear, under the circumstances I think you ought to write the young man and invite him to call. He will realize that your change of attitude toward him means a change of heart—and he will, therefore, act accordingly.

DEAR ANNIE LAURIE:

I am only a young girl in my teens. I am going with a young man and think a lot of him.

But there was another fellow asked me to go to a fair. As the one I have been going with was not going, would there be any harm to go?

Hoping to hear from you soon. Thanking you. TOPSY.

TOPSY: No, there wouldn't be any harm in going, Topsy. The only thing you are likely to do, if the first young man has any serious intentions at all, is to spoil to a certain extent his feeling for you, that is, if he is of a jealous nature. However, if he is simply going out with you occasionally, a little competition for your favor won't do you any harm in his eyes. The whole thing depends on your own feelings in the matter. If you like him, and know that he likes you, and feel that you will hurt him by going out with someone else, don't go. If the affair is simply one of friendship, do not worry about him, but have all the fun you can while you are in your teens.

Tomorrow's HOROSCOPE

By Genevieve Kemble

TUESDAY, OCTOBER 27.

A fortunate day is the augury formed from the predominant planetary operations. The trine of Saturn to Luna may result in the breaking up of an old congestion, making way for activity and progress along cherished lines. There is a sign which may be read as bringing favors of value or honors or recognition from those in high places or employers. Good fortune should not be jeopardized by a tendency to impulsive acts or ill weighed words.

Those whose birthday it is may look for a favorable year for all their affairs, with old obstacles removed and fine progress in all endeavors. But they should be on guard against rash acts and speech. Employment is under excellent rule, presaging promotion or preferment for those qualified. A child born on this day will have stable qualities and should use in life to good position and be financially successful.

Mrs. FALLIS ADMITS That Higher Tariff Will Increase The Cost of Living.

Professes to Represent Women of West Peterboro but boldly stands for adding to their worries.

Mrs. Fallis must know quite well that higher tariff is designed to benefit the big interests—not the housewife. So well does she know it that she admitted on Saturday night that higher tariff will mean higher prices. It is true that to take the sting off that astonishing admission she said the universal prosperity that would follow higher tariff would leave everyone with more money, but you know that your slice of the profits would be almighty small.

Mr. Peck himself made the same admission from the same platform, and he added, "Is it not much better to submit to a slight increase than to let the money go out of the city?"

THEY ADMIT THAT THEIR POLICY WILL INCREASE YOUR COST OF LIVING, AND HAVE THE NERVE TO ASK YOUR SUPPORT ON THAT. IT IS THE ONLY PLANK IN MR. PECK'S PLATFORM—HIGHER PRICES FOR YOU, HIGHER PROFITS FOR THE BIG INTERESTS

Gordon does not believe in free trade. He believes in protecting infant industries, but only until they are able to support themselves. He DOES NOT believe in taxing the many to favor the few, and that is exactly what Mr. Peck preaches.

HERE IS THE PROOF

Canada has to-day a tariff to raise sufficient revenue on which to run the country's business, and this is placed so as to protect needy industries.

This Protection makes you pay
$1.27 for $1 worth of mustard.
Mr. Peck demands still higher Protection.

This Protection makes you pay
$1.35 for $1 worth of condensed coffee and milk.
Mr. Peck demands still higher Protection.

This Protection makes you pay
$1.32 for $1 worth of toilet preparations: hair oil, tooth paste, etc.
Mr. Peck demands still higher Protection.

This Protection makes you pay
$2.70 for $2 corsets.
Mr. Peck demands still higher Protection.

This Protection makes you pay
$1.40 for $1 worth of ribbons.
Mr. Peck demands still higher Protection.

This Protection makes you pay
$13.50 for $10 worth of jewellery.
Mr. Peck demands still higher Protection.

This Protection makes you pay
$67.50 for a $50 sewing machine.
Mr. Peck demands still higher Protection.

SUPPOSE PECK GETS IN

If Mr. Peck should by any chance happen to win the election, and Mr. Meighen had a majority in the House, what would happen? The price of all of these would go up; coal would go up $4 or $5 a ton; and foodstuffs would be increased all around. Mr. Meighen has said so.

Do you think for one minute that your husband's pay cheque will show any difference? The boss will have to pay more for what HE eats and uses, so he may CUT the cheque. Certainly having to pay more for his groceries will not make him inclined to be generous!

Peterborough women will admit that it is hard enough now to make the money go around. Mrs. Fallis and Mr. Peck have admitted the only hope in their policy is of higher prices.

ARE YOU WILLING TO PAY?

If you do not want to see your grocery bills mounting week by week, then vote against these irresponsible people and put your "X" opposit Mr. Gordon's name.

Liberal Publicity Committee 395 George street, Peterborough

ONCE UPON A TIME — JACK AND THE BEAN STALK. X — by W. J. ENRIGHT.

ADVERTISEMENT ADVERTISEMENT ADVERTISEMENT ADVERTISEMENT ADVERTISEMENT ADVERTISEMENT ADVERTISEMENT ADVERTISEMENT

Mr. Peck Believes Our Industries Worth Keeping—

BUT MR. GORDON THROWS OFF THE MASK IN HIS ADVERTISING AND ATTACKS THE WHOLE PRINCIPLE OF PROTECTION

The most startling statement that has been made in the local election campaign was made in the advertisement of the Liberal publicity committee in Saturday's Examiner issued in Mr. Gordon's behalf and presumably authorized and checked over by him, to the effect that industries that cannot thrive under the present tariff are not worth keeping.

LET THAT SINK IN.

This was not a Western grain grower and free trader expounding his doctrine of low tariff or no tariff at all to an audience of prairie electors.

This was G. N. Gordon, appealing to the electors of an industrial city for support, the same G. N. Gordon who twenty-four hours earlier claimed that he should get every labour vote.

And he says in effect, if not exactly in those words, that Peterborough industries that cannot carry on business under the present tariff are not worth keeping.

The exact phrase used was "industries that cannot carry on business by getting from $1.25 to $1.45 for things that are sold in other countries for $1.00 are not worth keeping," which is just a longer way of saying "under the present tariff."

OUT DRURYING DRURY.

Mr. Gordon acted in the House last year as if he did not think that Peterborough's industries were worth keeping and now he practically says so, apparently trying to out-Drury Drury in his admiration of free trade, fo the advertisement of Mr. Gordon goes on to say: "Protection drives people out of Canada because it fleeces them here."

You men and women who work in such factories as the Brinton Carpet works, the Bonner Worth and Auburn plants of the Canadian Woollens, in the Wm. Hamilton Co. and Peter Hamilton Co. industries that have been particularly affected by the tariff tinkering of the Government—what do you think of Mr. Gordon's statement that those industries are not worth keeping.

They have not thrived under the traiff now in force. Close them up! They're not worth keeping! That is the position Mr. Gordon now takes.

No voter who read Saturday's Liberal advertisement "Answers to Women" could take any other meaning out of the attack made upon Protection.

THE DEATH KNELL OF PROTECTION.

Mr. Gordon, who told you in 1921 that he was a protectionist and who allied himself with Western Free Traders in 1924 to hamstring industries has come out in his true colours at last.

He is sounding the death knell of Protection.

Mr. Gordon and Mr. Dunning got into a tangle over their portfolios; now, apparently, Mr. Dunninfi has got Mr. Gordon's portfolio, and as a fair exchange has given Mr. Gordon his policy.

The theory that industries that cannot thrive under the present tariff are not worth keeping and that Protection is driving people out of Canada because it is fleecing them here may do for grain growers in Saskatchewan, but it will not do for industrial workers in Peterborough.

The mask is off. Mr. Gordon who has failed to act as a protectionist now reveals by his advertisement of Saturday that he does not believe in Protection.

That revelation will be the death knell of Mr. Gordon's political career in West Peterborough.

NO FREE TRADER HERE.

The people of this city and riding are not free traders. They believe in reasonable protection and many of them supported Mr. Gordon four years ago because they believed him when he said that he was just as much a Protectionist as any Conservative.

They can no longer do so in view of his attack upon the principle of Protection and his callous indifference to the fate of Peterborough's industries and of Peterborough's industrial workers.

MR. PECK'S POLICY.

Mr. Peck believes that Peterborough's industries are worth keeping; that they should be given a chance to work at full capacity under adequate protection; and that that policy would not only cause full operation of the plants now here, but would bring more industries to this city.

How many new industries has Peterborough secured under the King Government?

How many industries in Peterborough have worked full time and at full capacity under the King Government?

Between Mr. Gordon who says in his advertising that industries that cannot carry on under the present tariff are not worth keeping and that protection is driving people out of Canada, and Mr. Peck who says that industries must be protected sufficiently to enable them to compete against low wage foreign competition, no intelligent man or woman can surely have any difficulty in deciding.

Mr. Gordon's open attack upon the principle of protection makes him utterly impossible as a representative of the riding of West Peterborough.

The workers of Peterborough, the merchants who depend upon these workers for their business, the farmers of Peterborough County who depend upon Peterborough as the market for the greater part of their produce, cannot in their own interess vote any other way than for the candidate who stands for adequate protection.

THE CANDIDATE OF COURSE IS

E. A. PECK

HIS ELECTION IS SURE.

—The Conservative Victory Committee of Peterborough.

HEAVY RAIN WAS NO DETERRENT; LARGE AUDIENCE HEARD MASSEY

Liberal Candidate For Durham, Spoke in Bethany on Saturday.

OPPOSED TARIFF.

Prof. Sisson, of Toronto, Also Spoke Against Protection.

BETHANY, Oct. 26.—Although the night was dark with a heavy downpour of rain, the town hall was almost filled on Saturday night with people of both parties to hear what Hon. Vincent Massey, the Liberal candidate, had to say on the issues of the day.

Mr. E. Richards, of Millbrook, acted as chairman for the evening. After the orchestra, which had come with Mr. Massey, had played while the people gathered, the chairman called the meeting to order, calling upon Mr. O. Gamsby of Orono for a song, which he gave in his usual witty manner.

Mr. Massey.

The chairman then called upon Mr. Massey. In commencing his address, the speaker said that while somewhat a stranger he felt very much at home in the County of Durham, as every moment of his spare time was spent at his farm at Canton. He believed that Durham was a good place, and that the men and women were the salt of the earth. While he was not an expert in farming himself, his desire was to give aid to the farmers, and he would to the best of his ability if elected. "Now, I have come," he said, "to give a political speech, but I hardly know how to make one but the time has come to make a decision for the issue is so great and so vital. One thing that the people want to hear is no personal or abusive things for that has nothing to do with the election; although there have been things said about me that are not true, I would like to take a minute to explain. One was that the firm which I have an interest in received a large sum of money from the government." The speaker explained the money which was received by his firm and other firms was money for damages done during the war, and that a million and a half was paid over by the Meighen government out of German money and it was held in trust for that purpose. The other story was that the Massey firm had a large factory in the United States and that more men were employed there than in the Canadian factory—something like 4,000 men—whereas he said that they had a factory in the United States but only had 670 men, with 2,590 in the Toronto factory. He said it was much easier to throw stones than to build stones.

"Now," he said, "we are facing a general election and the result will be how we think—act and vote. It is different to what it was years ago. We have more of an independent vote and I believe the U.F.O. party has done this. It gave a contribution to the Canadian life. The farmers have been going through a hard time in Canada. They were hard hit after the war. What," he asked, "were the conditions in 1923 as compared to 1914? It was this—in 1914, one bushel of wheat would buy as much as three bushels in 1923, but now we are coming out of that state of things, although there is a party that is putting a dense gloom over things that makes our flesh almost creep and nothing will do only a high tariff. Canada to-night is on the way to prosperity. There are better times in sight with a great crop in the west. There will be more employment. Factories will be opened up, so why should there be gloom.

"Mr. Meighen's high tariff, what is it?" he asked. "I have noticed on the different bill boards (this) 'High tariff —lower taxes.' I ask is that reasonable. No, it is this: 'High tariff equals High taxes,' and as sure as it reads so it will be. They will not have the high tariff in the west nor in the Maritime provinches. Then again it is a sectional tariff. They do not tell the same story in the city as in the country, nor the same in the west.

"Now, ladies and gentlemen, I say that we have a great issue before us. What are we going to do with it? Do you want the high tariff or are we going to smash it on Thursday so that it will never be heard of again. It is in your hands to decide."

Always an Exodus.

About the people going into the U.S.A., he said: "We have heard a lot of that in the last few weeks and it is not a new thing whatever and we regret that and yet we are proud that some of the high positions in the U.S.A. are held by Canadians, but we would like them in this country as well. In the years between 1881 and 1901 or two 10-year periods, there were 7 and 8 out of every 100 went to the States," he said, "which is a greater number. Then take the next 10 years when there were just 3 out of 100. You say, 'why this?' The world ran out of food supplies and they looked to Canada when the farm conditions became better and that meant that more work was available, but there will always be a coming and going across the line, but there has been a good number returned.

"Now we want to build Canada up, and if I am elected I will do all I can to fulfil your wishes as I have severed myself from the position I held in the city that I might give all my time to the issues of the day, for I cannot see how a high tariff will be of any benefit to the farmer.

"Why," he asked in conclusion, "was there not a tariff put on diamonds which would have brought in about a million and a half a year?"

Professor Sissons.

The next speaker was Professor Sisson of Toronto. He said that he was sorry that the chairman had called him professor as he too had a farm in the County of Durham and that at half-past six he was drawing in apples to get them out of the rain.

He, too, said that the Progressive party had considered the matter before going to Mr. Massey. A committee was chosen, of which he was one, and went to Mr. Massey with two questions: "Where do you stand on the atriff?"—to which the reply was that he did not believe in high tariff. The other question was re the finance of the campaign. Both questions were answered satisfactorily and the Progressive party joined in to support Mr. Massey's platform.

The speaker said he could not see how any farmer could see the benefit in a high tariff. It would not be possible to have a high tariff without high taxes. They would have to be paid by the people—although they might not see it. "People," he said, "take chloroform to get teeth drawn so that the pain will not be felt, but the pain is there just the same. So it will be with the high tariff. The tax will be there. A tariff might be alright in the month of March on eggs to help keep the price up but it would be no use the rest of the year. Nor would it be any use on the rest of the farm produce. Yet Mr. Meighen says, 'Protect the farmer.'

"Now, in this riding we want men who can make a success. I want to say that Mr. Massey has made a big sacrifice. He was president of the firm, besides other positions he held. He has given up all these that he might give all his time, if elected, to the business of this riding. This will be determined next Thursday and I do not think that the Meighen party will have the slightest chance."

Mr. Massey, in his speech, said he hoped that the ladies would use their vote. He said he was sorry to say that only 25 per cent of the women's votes were polled. He also appealed to the young people to turn out on Thursday.

Mr. Gansby was again called upon to sing another song, after which he made a few remarks, among which he said if he ever was sent down to Ottawa to help make the laws, he would make one that everyone having a vote should be compelled to use it. (Applause.)

The meeting closed with the National Anthem.

BLUE RUIN CRY DEPRECATED AT LIBERAL ROOMS

Speakers Were Optimistic Regarding Prospects of Electing G. N. Gordon.

REFORMS EFFECTED.

Kingston Penitentiary Stopped From Competing Against Peterborough Factory.

G. N. Gordon's Committee rooms were jammed to the door on Saturday night, when a regular army of speakers deliberated on the Liberal government and their policies under the Chairmanship of J. J. Hartley, President of the local Liberal Association. The first speaker, R. Deyell said that a week ago he was none to optimistic regarding the cause, but he firmly believed that the tide had turned. He said that the Liberal party had built a good foundation, and the Government was strongly entrenched. There is a great deal of talk, said the speaker, of hard times. During the last twenty years there has been a great deal of progress. People have adopted a faster mode of living. The money of to-day is not so badly tied up as it was then, due to people spending their money easier. The speaker declared that Mr. Meighen's policy was one of pessimism, and outsiders who listen to him, naturally get a poor opinion of the Dominion. We need settlers in Canada but how can we induce them to come here, when Mr. Meighen goes around spreading his blue ruin policy. We have a large country, he said, which should have twenty million of a population to carry on properly, and if the Liberal Government is returned, the day when we will have that population will be hastened. The speaker said that there were too many issues at stake for anyone to deal in personalities. The Liberal Government, he said, during the last four years have been a credit to Canada —they took office under difficulties and since 1921 they have reduced the National Debt in addition to reducing taxation 25%. The Liberal party has succeeded in weathering the gale and is now sailing in calm waters.z "I ask you," he said, if a party has made good under adverse circumstances, why should it not be given a chance to continue. The answer lies with the Electors of this Riding on Oct. 29th.

W. Rudkins.

The speaker stated that when he was a young man, he was employed with the Peterborough Lock Works, and in 1895 this firm was badly handicapped in its business of manufacturing locks by competition from the inmates of Kingston Penitentiary. In 1896, when the Laurier Government came into power, a deputation from Peterboro' met the Government and explained their circumstances with the result that there never was another lock made in the Kingston Penitentiary. A short time after that, the speaker said, he was connected with a manufacturing industry in this town, and had a great deal of trouble with partly manufactured articles entering Canada and being finished here, and the Liberal Government rectified that also. The Liberal Government has always had to fight and always will fight, said the speaker, and the Hon. G. N. Gordon has always been a friend to the working man, and for that reason if no other should receive wholehearted support.

Dr. J. J. Craig.

Dr. Craig stated that he was very much interested in this riding, and who shall represent it in Ottawa. "I have known the Hon. G. N. Gordon for the last six years, I know his qualities and there is no man, in my opinion, better qualified than he, to represent this riding." The speaker said that he had been on a trip through the West this summer, and from his observations the west would vote Liberal. They have no use for Meighen's policy of high protection, he said, and their own Progressives have not brought them anything, so they have turned to Mackenzie King and his policy for a united Canada.

Our bank clearings have increased, declared Dr. Craig, our exports have increased, and our dollar is above par, the only dollar in the world to be in that condition, and it all goes to show that the tide has turned. Taxes have been reduced 25%. The high cost of living is gradually going down. Mr. Meighen, he said, is talking high tariff, but he does not tell you what effect it will have on prices. The main basic industry in this country is agriculture and 40% of our national wealth comes from this source. In concluding the speaker declared that the Hon. G. N. Gordon was a man of ability and character, and was in a position to give Peterborough the place it should have in the affairs of Canada.

L. Humber.

The speaker declared that he was a Labor man and was proud to be here in the interests of the Liberal party. Meighen's policy, he stated, was nothing but disloyalty to the industries of Great Britain. The policy of Meighen he stated, was to do away with preferential trade between Great Britain and Canada. The Liberal slogan is "Trade within the Empire," but while Britain is depressed to-day, Mr. Meighen's policy would increase that depression by 50% and loyal Canadians don't want that. The day is not far distant, he said, when all the nations will adopt the Golden rule "Treat others as you would be treated," and a nation the size of the British Empire, with its immense natural resources could conform to the slogan of the Liberal party, "Trade within the Empire." To-day as a result of the Liberal party being in power, the Canadian dollar is the best dollar in the world. Under Meighen, he said, it was only worth 82 cents. The Meighen policy, "was an insult to the intelligence of the Canadian people." In concluding he said, it is a duty to elect the Hon. G. N. Gordon as Mackenzie King has said that he wants the Hon. G. N. Gordon to assist him in responsible Government. "We all know the Hon. G. N. Gordon, and he has represented us faithfully and it is up to you all to elect him on the twenty-ninth us he stands for progress and prosperity."

J. Begley.

The speaker stated that he had been a Liberal for many years and had a great admiration for the Hon. G. N. Gordon and the Rt. Hon. Mackenzie King, "and I have," he said, "so much respect and regard for Mr. Peck that I don't want to send him to Ottawa to get his wings singed by those rascals of politicians down there." The speaker stated that Mr. Meighen speakin in the West had told the farmer that industry paid three-quarters of the tax, but any intelligent elector knows different to that. Socialism, he declared, gets many of its arguments from the talk that industries should be protected. If industry has been injured, he said, the Conservatives are responsible for it. He told of how when Mackenzie King went into power, there was a naval college on the Atlantic coast for the purpose of training midshipmen. In this school, he said, there were 39 pupils and 39 teachers, and it was costing the Government $3000 a year per man. When the Hon. G. P. Graham as Minister of Militia took office, one of the first things he did was to abolish this school. The speaker stated that there was a surplus of over three hundred thousand bushels of wheat a year in this country to dispose of and yet Meighen talks the home market to the farmers. "We must," he said, "export if we want a greater and a better Canada, and the higher we raise the tariff, the more opposition we will meet in the countries we want to do business with." In appealing for support for the candidate, he said the Hon. G. N. Gordon is the man and his record proves it. He has made good and it is up to you to give him your support on the twenty-ninth.

R. F. Sedgewick.

Mr. Sedgwick in a short talk called for the united efforts of all to elect the Hon. G. N. Gordon. He said, "you all know what Gordon stands for, and as we have only three working days left between now and the election, everyone should get out and work." The responsibility lies with his supporters and if by any accident he was not returned it would be a disgrace to Peterborough.

About forty years ago electric light began to supplant gas, and most people made up their minds that gas lighting was doomed. Then Baron Auer con Welsbach came to the rescue. He discovered that cotton fabric, if soaked in a nitrate solution composed of ninety-nine parts of thorium and one of cerium, and then placed over a hot flame to burn out all impurities, would glow with a white incandescence, giving out a pure white light of astonishing power. By making a cone of this fabic he produced the incandescent gas mantle, which, if placed over a gas jet, cut the consumption of gas by half, and at the same time gave ten times more light. This invention saved the gas lighting industry, and is to-day being used extensively upon oil as well as gas lights.

DORO FUNERAL.

DOURO, Oct. 23.—The funeral of the late John J. O'Leary was held on Wednesday morning from his late residence to St. Joseph's Church and cemetery. Solemn requiem mass was sung by his brother, Rev. Michael O'Leary of Bracebridge, with Rev. Fr. Costello of St. Peter's Cathedral, Peterboro', as deacon; Rev. J. Guiry, of the Immaculate Conception parish, as sub-deacon, and Rev. Fr. Galvin, of Downeyville, as master of ceremonies. Present in the sanctuary were Rev. Mon. McColl, Rev. J. J. O'Brien and Rev. P. McGuire, Peterboro'; Rev. Fr. McAuley, of Eunismore, and the pastor, Rev. M. J. McGuire.

Rev. Fr. P. McGuire preached a splendid sermon on death, taking as his text: "Not my will but thine be done." During our Lord's passion He prayed to his Father: "If it be possible let this chalice pass from me but not my will but thine be done." The first announcement that one must die is often terrible to leave our family and our home and friends, but faith teaches us to be resigned to the will of God. We realize that this is only a temporary home; death has no terrors to one whose whole life has been a preparation. We know not the time nor place of death. We must not waste our time struggling after the perishable things of this world. We must give unto Caesar the things that are Caesar's and to God the things that are God's.

The pall-bearers were all neighbors of deceased: Messrs. Thos. Ryan, Cornelius Heffernan, James Sweeney, Samuel O'Brien, Robt. Heffernan and Peter Doherty.

Many spiritual offerings were sent or brought by friends.

Among those from a distance who attended the funeral were: Mrs. F. Pluard of Harvey; Mrs. J. Corkery and son Joseph of Otonabee; Mrs. Kenealley, Peterboro'; Daniel Lynch, Otonabee; William Herlihey, Downeyville; Mr. and Mrs. Frank Scollard, Ennismore; Mr. and Mrs. Neil Quinlan, Mr. and Mrs. Andrew Quinlan, Asphodel; Mr. and Mrs. James Collins, Peterboro'; Mr. Holdship and two daughters, Montreal; Mrs. McDonald and son Vincent, Detroit; Edward Fitzgerald, Otonabee; Mr. and Mrs. Gus Bolin, Keene; Michael Kenneally, Keene; Fred Hurley, Otonabee; Robt. Leahy, Lindsay; Mr. and Mrs. Pat. McNuity, Mrs. Mary McNulty, Miss Mary McNulty and Chas. McNulty, Norwood; Phillip Fitzpatrick, Norwood; Dr. Devlin, Peterboro'; Mrs. Eric White, Peterboro; Mr. and Mrs. Herb. Kylie, Keene; Mrs. Hanna Lynch and family, Otonabee; Mr. Chas. Finn and sister, Asphodel.

PETES WON GAME BUT LOST ROUND

Were the Superior Team Throughout on Saturday, But Weak at Scoring.

Peterboro's Junior O.R.F.U. team passed out of the picture at Riverside Park on Saturday when they succeeded in winning their game with Barrie by 4 points to 0 but fell short of overcoming the 12 point lead set up by the northern rrs on their own field a week ago. Barrie won the round 14 to 6.

The Petes dominated the play throughout and were never in danger of being scored upon themselves but their attack seemed to collapse scoring position. Twice in the last just when they had worked into a half of the game they had first down with the ball only a yard or two outside the Barrie line but on both occasions the final assault failed when a touchdown seemed inevitable. In mid field they smashed through for yards repeatedly, fine plunging by Rye, Mulholland and Griffin and a series of well executed plays, gaining ground steadily but lose in the punch seemed to evaporate.

Barrie showed little save a steady defence and a splendid kicking and catching half in Carson whose long spirals were a source of strength to his own team and of trouble to the Petes. He was the outstanding performer on the visiting lineup although the wing line deserves credit for tightening up at critical moments.

The Petes had the edge in the first period but play was for the most part confined to midfield. Early in the second period they started a march down the field that looked good for a touch but they were finally held and forced to kick, Mulholland booting to the dead line for a single. A little later Mulholland again kicked one for a point leaving the score 2 to 0 at half time.

In the third period the Petes carried the play to the visitors and looked to have a royal chance to pull the round out of the fire. They worked the ball almost to the Barrie line and with three downs to go a try seemed certain. The first pass out was fumbled, the second snapped two soon and on the third down Barrie tightened and stopped Rye. The visitors had got out of a tight corner and it put pep into their play for the remainder of the period.

The Petes fought hard to save the day in the closing session but once again were held almost at the line and although they pressed throughout two singles on kicks by Mulohlland were the best they could do and the game wound up 4 to 0.

Rye and Mulholland were always prominent for the Petes and Robson was the outstanding Barrie performer.

The teams:

Barrie—Flying wing, Scott; halves Doyle, Carson, Payne; quarter, Hall; snap, Griyner; inside wings, Duff, Powell; middle wings, Clark, Dally; inside wings, Stone, McKnight; subs, Cowan, Luck, Dobson.

Peterboro—Fying wings, Turner, Outram; halves, Mulholland, Rye; quarter, Fraser; snap, McLeish; inside wings, Miller, Lane; middle wings, Griffin, Yelland; outside wings, Henry, Milloy; subs, Redpath Catton, Fleming, Manning, Reynolds, Fawcett.

Referee—"Toots" Lalonde, Toronto.

Umpire—Joe Batten, Peterboro.

SARNIA BEAT WINDSOR.

WINDSOR, Ont., Oct. 16 (Canadian Press) — Scoring two touchdowns, a kick over and a rouge, Sarnia Collegiate Saturday afternoon defeated the local Collegiate rugby team by 12 to 0. The Windsor boys were outplayed. Sarnia displaying greater knowledge of the game. The visiting team also was much heavier.

University of Alberta Scored Good Win over Calgary Tigers.

CALGARY, Alta., Oct. 26. — Saturday's football contest resulted in the University of Alberta squad setting back the Calgary Tigers 19 to 11, in the first of the home and home games to decide the Alberta Rugby Union championship and the right to represent the province in the semi-finals of the inter-provincial series.

In many parts of rural England there is an ancient superstition that blackberries must be gathered before September 20, for on that date every year the Devil leaves his mark on the berries which are still growing, and people foolish enough to pick the fruit after that date are certain to fall into the hands of his Satanic Majesty.

SCULLERS WON TOUGH BATTLE

Twenty Minutes' Overtime Were Required to Defeat Toronto University.

GOOD FOOTBALL.

HAMILTON, Ont., October 26. — Canadian Press. — In a strenuous battle which went 20 minutes overtime in a heavy rain, the Hamilton Rowing Club defeated Varsity in a Senior R.F.U. fixture here yesterday. The score was 11 to 9. A slippery ball and a muddy field had their effects on the play but on the whole it was football of a superior order. The score remained low in the first half, but the game speeded up in the third quarter, when Varsity had a three point lead. Rowing Club tied the score when there was less than a minute to go, necessitating twenty minutes overtime. Hamiltons winning points came in the final ten minutes.

Crawford was the outstanding star for the winners, receiving able assistance from Elford and Wright.

Creighton and Bentley played fine games for the visitors.

To the same question concerning the champion's meeting Gene Tunney or "any other serious contender," a total of 2539 answered that they believed he had no such intention, while 141 answered "Yes."

WINNIPEG TO JOIN NEW COMPETITION

International Hockey League Will Include Teams From Both Countries.

WINNIPEG, Man., Oct. 26—The Maroons of Winnipeg with Jack Hughes as manager will carry the colors of Winnipeg in the new International hockey league, according to decisions made at a league meeting in Minneapolis Saturday.

Whether or not another Canadian team wil be in the league is doubtful. James W. Gemmill, Sault Ste. Marie, who attended the meeting repeated previous statements that the Soo players might go to the New York amateur club. Until this was decided, he said, his organization could make no decision. He expressed the hope that his organization would be in the International League. Other delegates were in agreement and the matter of definite league organization was deferred for a future meeting.

In addition to Winnipeg and the Soo, other clubs represented at the meeting were as follows: Duluth, St. Paul, Minneapolis, Ribbing, Minn., Eveleth and Marquette.

A new constitution and by-laws were adopted to meet the needs of the new organization. The meeting adjourned early in the afternoon and was to meet again today.

No announcement was made of the probable personnel of the teams from south of the border but the Maroons of this city will start out with the following men: Charlie Gardener, Jack Hughes, Billy Borland, Harold McMunn, Cliff O'Meara, Pete Spears, Somers and Conley. This aggregation has already had some practice.

INSIDE GOLF.

Maker of 51 Golf Champions, "Golf's most successful teacher," says "Chick" Evans

By CHESTER HORTON

One great peculiarity about the average golfer is that he can be so easily satisfied in the matter of the amount of golf instruction he takes while he is so hard to satisfy with respect to the game he plays. Each time he plays he is certain he will burn up the course next time out. This suggests that the indoor schools which will flourish more than ever this fall and winter, make golf practically a year round game. The indoor school not only offers the golfer a splendid form of exercise, but its greatest value next to the exercise, is that it develops the finger and hand muscles to a fine sense of touch with the clubs. Of one thing you may be sure in golf: All expert players have, in common, a very definate sense of touch with their clubs. Their muscles can actually feel the clubhead. They swing it as if it were a weight. The indoor schools help develop that.

OMEMEE HEARD TORY SPEAKERS DEFEND TARIFF

Liberals and Progresives Were Under Fire From T. H. Stinson.

EXAMPLE OF U. S.

King Government Accused of Breaking Pledges to Returned Soldiers.

OMEMEE, Oct. 23.—A goodly number of the people of Omemee and vicinity turned out on Wednesday evening to hear the Conservative candidate, T. H. Stinson, and his colleague, J. P. Chaplin, M. P., of St. Catharines, present their views as to the attitude of present government in comparison to the Conservative policies. The meeting was held in Coronation Hall. R. J. Patterson, M. P. P., for Victoria and Haliburton, acted as chairman.

The first number on the programme was a solo by Mr. Thurston, entitled: 'How Do You Do?" which seems to be a favorite with the musicians who assisted.

T. H. Stinson.

Mr. Stinson was the first speaker. He opened his remarks by challening one or two statements made by his opponent, B. McNevin.

'There are only two sides to a question and all must fall in with one party or the other." He made reference to the promises which the Progressiv party had previously made in the Provincial House, which could not be fulfilled and when they went out of power left a tale of woe which none of the old parties ever did before. 'Look at the Progressive party in the Dominion House. Have they done anything?"

Mr. Stinson, who was the defeated candidate in 1921, takes the same stand on the platform as he did then. 'After what has taken place in the last four years, I ask you: 'Am I right or wrong?'" He referred to the loss in population and also cited the progress of Canada under the leadership of Sir Wilfrid Laurier, and Sir Robert Bolden, when a protective policy was carried out and afterward tackled Premier King in regard to tinkering with the tariff.

Heavy Taxation.

'If the population is decreased, it means that the people who are left will find the taxes heavier. We have direct tax, income tax, etc., to face. There are certain economies which must be made by the government, but on the other hand there are certain taxes which can not be controlled and if we are going to lighten the taxes we must have more people to pay them. We have a machine, the National Railways, to keep up without any further capital investment and we should induce more people to come in and keep up our industries. No country was ever built up by developing foreign industry. Develop agriculture on the one hand—develop industry on the other. Sixty-three per cent of the wheat grown in Canada is consumed in Canada, the rest goes to a foreign market. Have industries built up in our own country, and, having that, we are helping our farmers. No nation ever b came great and prosperous, except under a protective tariff. The United States maintain a tariff three times as high as Canada and under this protection has become the wealthiest nation in the world. Let us adopt a policy which is building other nations."

Duties on Eggs and Cheese.

Mr. Stinson compared the duty on eggs, cheese, and lastly, butter, for which we pay eight cents per pound while United States charges four cents per pound, but did not compare quantities, which is an important fact. We ship 10 pounds over there to one pound coming in. He used the Omemee Tanning Company as an illustration of the ill effects of a low tariff, and read a letter from Mr. Edwards, the president of the company, whereby if a better market could be obtained, 80 to 100 men would be given employment.

"When we have a market at home, why not retain it, and not give way to foreign markets." In conclusion, the candidate asked the electors to get the facts clearly, and vote on principle, not on prejudice, "and we will then be doing our duty to God, country and fellow-man."

J. P. Chaplin.

J. P. Chaplin, of St. Catharines, was the next speaker. In the course of his lengthy address he devoted much time to the Hon. Vincent Massey and his administration. Mr. Chaplin thought that possibly some of the electors of Durham might be present and spoke on behalf of his good friend, Fred Bowen, the Conservative candidate, in preference to Massey, who, he stated, would never have the respect of his opponents.

The speaker made reference to the broken pledges made by the King Government to the returned soldiers, the Intercolonial Railway, and to the people in the Maritime Provinces. He then struck the tariff question.

Spoke on Tariff.

The duty has been reduced on agricultural implements, but have the farmers bought them any cheaper? In 1921, when the government came into power, implements were cheaper than to-day after duty was reduced. It has only caused our workmen to go to the country while we are employing Americans to do our work, after having sold the goods to the United States. The import of agricultural implements into Canada for four months of this year, from April to July, was $4,000,000, which is an increase over last year of $1,000,000.

When the King government came into power the sales tax was three per cent. This was raised to six per cent and when a kick came, they lowered it to five per cent, and thought it wonderful. The sales tax last year was reduced $3,000,000. How could it be saved without a reduction in business and these gentlemen take the credit.

French Treaty.

He referred to the treaty made with France, whereby French wine was allowed to come in at the low charge of 15 cents per gallon while our own grape growers and manufacturers paid 30 cents per gallon excise tax. Let the people who drink the wine pay the tax. When the minister was approached as to the treaty made, he referred to the budget and the home people's rate was reduced to 7½ cents per gallon, which meant a loss to the government of about $200,000.

He further quoted the following figures to show the difference between the Australian tariff and the Canadian tariff, according to the treaty made by Premier King:

Fresh and smoked meat, to Australia, 5 cents pound; Canadian charge, half cent;

Canned meat, to Australia, 5 cents pound; Canadian charge, 1 cent per pound;

Butter—Australian tariff, 6 cents per pound; Canadian tariff, 1 cent per pound;

Vegetables—Australian tariff, 50 cents per cwt.; to Canada, free;

And several other articles in the same proportion.

"What would you do if you had a man in your employ of that sort?" said the speaker. "Would you continue him there and increase his salary?" Whenever this government gets a treaty in hand we get the worst of it. There was no treaty with Germany in 1923, and the sales increased $10,000,000, but by the treaty with France they were reduced from $15,000,000 to $10,000,000, which shows we are better off without a treaty.

Unemployment is starving everyone. Would senate reform benefit or give a man a job? The Liberal government has always talked about it. They never did anything and won't now.

The immigration department has cost the country over $3,000,000. Thousands of immigrants have been brought in through the International and Canadian Pacific Railways. About one-half of these, which we paid for, have gone to the United States. We cannot keep our people at home and yet we are striving to bring more; our people are taxed to provide education and off they go to United States, a highly protected country. We are lying aside United States and if we don't pay approximately what they pay, our people will leave us. We must give decent wages in order to live decently.

The United States, with an earlier spring, is able to put fruit, such as strawberries, on the market ahead of the Canadian farmer, and it comes in at a paltry rate of duty. "I say, those who can afford to buy this should pay the taxes, and in doing so, help our own growers. Don't you think it time for a change?" said the speaker. (Applause.)

Mr. Chaplin, in closing, stated he believes that the farmers of all shades of political opinions are beginning to see there must be a tariff in this country, and made an appeal to the electors for protection to the farmer and manufacturers by keeping industries at home, by electing the Conservative candidate, Mr. T. H. Stinson.

Bert MacLean, of Lindsay, made a brief speech, endorsing the statements of the previous speakers and also referring to the poor market which is now available for horses.

MASSEY SPOKE AT PONTYPOOL

Large Attendance to Hear Liberal Candidate Explain Policies.

SPOKE ON TARIFF.

PONTYPOOL, Oct. 23.—The meeting held by Hon. Vincent Massey, the Liberal candidate for Durham, in the Orange Hall, Pontypool, on Tuesday night was well attended, the hall being filled. M. H. Staples, Orono, acted as chairman. Mr. Oldfield, of Toronto, favored the gathering with several songs that were highly appreciated: also, Orme Garnsby, of Oronto, gave some selections in his usual capable manner. The syncopated orchestra of Orono added greatly to the evening's entertainment.

Mr. Massey gave a few introductory remarks and stated that he did not know much about this part of the county or the people, but knew more about Hope where he had a farm and more about farming as he was very much interested. He claimed to be a citizen of the county, and then he commenced about the tariff question, explaining his views very capably. He stated that much political capital was made by the report that he had 4,000 men in his factory in the States and less in the factory in Toronto. He stated that there were only 670 in the factory in the States and in Toronto there were over 2,000.

Mr. M. H. Staples then made a speech, in which he stated he had always voted Conservative up to the year 1911, giving his reasons for his change of views.

The meeting closed by singing the National Anthem.

The National Confectioners' Association has donated $5,000 in prizes for the nation-wide candy display contest to be held the week of November 9th.

THE DICE ARE LOADED! THE CARDS ARE STACKED!

Me..! You can't win the way these fellows play!

You pay through the nose for nearly everything you buy now, and Peck and the manufacturers who are behind him want you to pay more.

RIGHT NOW you are paying $1.25 and $1.45 for things that are sold in other countries for $1—and industries that cannot carry on business on that margin are not worth keeping. But Mr. Peck would make you pay more.

IS IT A SQUARE DEAL to raise the cost of your living to favor wealthy men and make them more wealthy?

CAN YOU BEAT IT?

Turn to the Women's Page and see what your wife would be up against in making ends meet if Peck should win this election.

Take the list and go through the house with her. Figure out whether you can afford to pay any more. Look at her grocery bill tonight and ask what she thinks of the plan to increase the profits of the wealthy by adding to its total.

Then take the list and ask any supporter of Mr. Peck to tell you what he means by saying increased tariff would not mean increased cost of living.

WE UNDERSTAND THIS!

You may be befuddled by politicians speaking in millions of dollars; but you and I can understand the question when we look at these examples from our own every-day living expenses.

The tariff is a tax on goods coming into Canada. Today, under Liberal administration, we have a tariff for revenue only—just enough to run the country on. This is placed so as to protect judiciously the needy manufacturers—men who are fighting against odds to build industry in Canada.

But Mr. Peck is determined, if given the chance, to build up a tariff to protect ALL manufacturers, AND YOU WILL PAY THE BILL.

If you want to help your wife make ends meet—if you want to live comfortably—if you want a little laid by for a rainy day—vote against the profiteers, the big interests, and Mr. Peck.

DON'T FORGET THE WOMEN WORKER.

Nearly all the Provinces of Canada guarantee a minimum wage to women workers. This wage is from two to four times the wage paid to women workers in Europe. Do women workers in Canada want the starvation wages of Europe? Then are Canadian women voters going to vote for the low tariff policy of the King government? Vote for Mr. PECK who will see that goods made in European sweat shops are harder to import.

KING'S WHARF NEWS

KING'S WHARF, Oct. 26.—A splendid auction sale of household furniture, live stock, and implements was held on the farm of the late Andrew Morrissey, Friday. The weather was very fine. A large crowd was present and a large number of articles was disposed of at very high figures. Geo. and Ted Jackson were the auctioneers and started at 1 o'clock sharp and sold till 9 o'clock that night, then had to leave a large part of household furniture un-sold. The bidding was brisk but the large amount to be sold and the short days left it not sold.

The weather has not settled yet and the farmers are snatching an hour or so each day to try and pick their apples and dig their potatoes. The potatoes in general are a poor crop but a few people have them extra good. The apples are very plentiful and a large number of the orchards are not picked as the crop was so good. No doubt the heavy frosts will help to spoil any that were not in before.

The most thrilling world's series in history was that of 1912, when the New York Giants and Boston Red Sox were the contending teams. After each club had scored three victories and one tie game had been played, the Boston team won the tenth inning of the eighth game. The Giants, who had taken the lead in the first half of the tenth, saw victory turned into defeat when Snod grass made his famous muff of an outfield fly in the latter half of the inning.

DOURO PEOPLE HEAR POLICIES

R. R. Hall, K.C., J. J. Duffus and Dr. Munro Spoke on Liberal Platform.

COUGHLIN IN CHAIR.

A meeting was held on Saturday evening in Douro, in support of Hon. G. N Gordon. The Reeve of Douro, Mr. Coughlin occupied the chair. He said that he was chairman at Mr. Peck's meeting held there, but he felt more at home in being chairman of a Liberal meeting.

Dr. Munro, of Warsaw, was the first speaker. He said that Liberalism has always stood for the rights of the common people as against the priveleged classes. Liberalism stands for equality of opportunity for all the people, while Toryism stands for opportunity to the favorite few. Mr. Meighen has adopted the slogan in this election which reads "Higher Tariff and Lower Taxes." That is a foolish slogan. A higher tariff means increased taxes. Any fool can find that out by going to the Custom House in Peterborough, where he will find out that the higher the duty imposed on imported goods, the more you pay in a customs tax. The man who invented that slogan had something wrong with his head.

Dr. Munro referred to the steady growth and progress under the King administration, the increase in our foreign trade, the better conditions among our farmers and the better conditions that are in store for all if the King Government is returned. "It is the duty of all of us to see that every vote that can be obtained is cast for the Hon. G. N. Gordon on Thursay next," he concluded.

J. J. Duffus was the next speaker and gave facts and figures in support of the following statements.

The Canadian dollar under the Meighen administration was only worth 80 cent in the United States, but now it is worth over 100 cents under the King administration.

Under the Meighen administration, Canada bought more goods from foreign countries than she sold and hence the trade balances were against Canada, but last year under the King administration Canada sold $284,000,000 on that one year's business. This year is showing a more favorable balance still.

Under the Meighen administration, he said, the debt was increasing by the tens of millions, but in 1923, the national debt was decreased to the extent of $35,000,000, and has been reduced every year ever since, and in addition to that the national annual tax bill has been reduced 25 per cent as well. The fact is that the Canadian people as a whole just paid last year the enormous sum of $114,000,000 less taxes than was paid in the last year of the Meighen administration.

Under the Meighen administration the five and one half per cent Canadian bond was only worth 90 cents on the dollar, but to-day under the King administration, it is worth 104 cents on the dollar.

Mr. Meighen takes a gloomy view of the future prospects of Canada, but Mr. King takes a hopeful view. Mr. Meighen thinks the United States holds out a hopeful future for our young men, but Mr. King knows what can be done with our rich resources and advises them to remain in the land that has a real future, in a land where the fabrication of our great natural resources in land, mines, timber, and fisheries, will, with united co-operation and co-ordination by the Canadian people bring forth, under the King government a united and prosperous Canada.

Our course is clear, the King government will be returned to power and it is in the interests of each and all that

Mr. Hall said in opening his address that the Tories of Peterboro' thought that Mr. Gordon had not given him proper support in 1917. Does Mr. Hall complain? He has not. The fact is, Gordon is a Liberal and should be supported. Mr. Hall said, "I nominated Gordon at the Bye-election, I nominated him at the General election, and again at this election, and each time he has been a winner, and this time will be no exception." They tell you the issues are the tariff. Poor tariff, it is too bad that it should suffer. It is too bad that our taxes should not increase, that the many should not be taxed for the benefit of the favored few. Take a lamp for instance, and raise the tariff on it 100% and what is the result. The manufacturer will increase his price just enough to pocket the difference. Meighen's platform is protection, and protection is nothing else but a tax, which protects the favored few. The King government is going to win, so let us all give Gordon a chance. He has and will make good.

According to law, church bells in Mexica may not ring more than a minute at a time.

"TIDES OF PASSION," SPLENDID PICTURE, WILL APPEAL TO LADIES

ROYAL NOW PLAYING

It's good news for the fans that a picture starring Mae Marsh is coming to town. It's "Tides of Passion," a Vitagraph, and it opens a run at the Royal Theatre to-day.

Mae Marsh is not only recognized everywhere as one of the greatest of screen actresses, but she is universally beloved. The new production is declared to be one that is admirably adapted to her rare talents as an actress and one destined to give her a yet firmer hold on the affections of the public.

"Tides of Passion" is an adaptation of Bazil King's popular novel, "In the Garden of Charity." It tells a powerful story, one that not only entertains but makes folks think. It's entertainment qualities are said to be without limit, and the height of thrills is reached when two girls find themselves marooned on a narrow ledge in the ocean, in imminent peril of death from the mad sea waves and the lashing winds. Their rescue forms one of the most startlingly realistic scenes ever filmed.

DOUBLE PROGRAMME THURSDAY AT ROYAL

AT THE CAPITOL

LIONS BATTLE MEN IN FILM THRILLER

Wild animals, as actors in motion pictures, are always an uncertain quantity. Should you investigae closely in film circles, you would find more than one extra man or woman who bears the scars of his or her contact with beasts before the camera, and several stars, as well.

While every precaution is taken to protect the human players in such scenes, the minds of the animal players can't always be read. While performing peaceably to the lash of their trainer's whip at one moment, the next might bring open rebellion and disaster to the ones nearest them.

Such precautions were taken during the filming of First National's new and gigantic version of the Sienkiewicz classic, "Quo Vadis." The scene is that where Nero orders the Christians thrown to the lions in the Circus Maximus to hide his crime of burning Rome.

One hundred men, women and children are seen huddled together in the centre of the vast stadium. Fifty half-famished, snarling lions are turned upon them from the pits. In the vast amphitheatre surrounding them is jammed the populace of Rome, celebrating a Roman holiday.

The lions charge the Christians, presumably rending them to shreds.

In making this scene, a score of expert marksmen, gripping automatic pistols beneath their robes, were stationed among the Christians. While acting the terrified roles of the martyrs they at the same time kept watchful eye upon the beasts and were quick to shoot at the instant they perceived a lion going beyond his role in ferocity.

As a further protection, each human player was fully insured, not only against loss of life, but physical injury during the filming of the sequence.

The realism of the scene is declared by pre-view critics to be amazing as well as replete with thrills.

Emil Jannings heads the huge cast in the picture, which will be shown at the Capitol Theatre today.

AT THE REGENT

LEATRICE JOY BACK WITH CECIL B. DEMILLE.

"Love's Highroad" Marks Renewal of Long Association in Screen Work.

Leatrice Joy, who heads the cast in "Love's Highroad," the Cecil B. DeMille supervised production that opens at the Regent Theatre for a 3-day run, is said to be like President Coolidge in that she believes in getting right down to the root of things. This in a large measure is said to be responsible for her phenomenal success as a screen actress.

At 16, Leatrice was a New Orleans school girl. A picture company chose that city as the base of its operations and immediately on hearing of its arrival she lost no time in presenting herself as an applicant, or perhaps, supplicant, for a part in their first production. Sometime later she heard of a company reputed to be doing things near Wilkes-Barre, Pa., and came north. The experience she acquired while working with these two companies, together with her sound common sense, soon told her that of all places for a girl with screen ambitions to reach the top, Hollywood, Cal., was that place. So west she went.

Soon after arriving she received a part in a Metro production, where Cecil De Mille found her, and realizing her possibilities took her under his wing. Since then she has been starred and featured in many lavish productions and in varied and difficult roles.

"Love's Highroad" is directed by Rupert Julian under the personal supervision of Mr. DeMille. Supporting Miss Joy is an especially selected cast, including Edmund Burns, Robt. Edeson, Julia Faye and Helene Sullivan.

AT THE GRAND.

ABIE'S IRISH ROSE.

Anne Nichols' excellent Rochester company and production of her wonder play of the age, "Abie's Irish Rose", having added new laurels and fame to its celebrated author and producer by recently completing an eight weeks engagement at the Gayety Theatre, has been secured by the management of the Grand Opera House for an engagement of three nights beginning Thursday, October 29th, with matinee Saturday, October 31st.

In sending the attraction to this city, Miss Nichols has not changed one member of the cast nor a single detail in the production, it being her aim to give the patrons of the theatres in the smaller cities surrounding the key cities played, the same cast and production utilized during its runs, thereby giving one and all theatregoers the opportunity of seeing her fascinating and appealing comedy at its best.

"Abie's Irish Rose" is the seventeenth play Miss Nichols has written and is without doubt the most popular of all. This by no means infers that this was the only successful one, for her "Just Married" was one of the big New York and Chicago hits of two years ago, while for the past eight or nine years, she has furnished the young Irish tenor, Fiske O'Hara, with a new play every year from her pen.

It is no more conjecture to say that Abie will live for years in the minds of lovers of all that is clean and wholesome in the theatre, and the precedent it has established in theatrical history will no doubt place its author and producer in the hall of fame, for it is a matter of record that never since the advent of the marionette theatre and its stepping into the background for the arrival of the animated stage, has any play been equal to the task accomplished by this record-breaking perennial.

Mail orders are now being filled in the order of their receipt if accompanied by remittance, the regular seat sale not opening until Monday, October 26th.

A WORD TO CANADIAN WORKERS

MR. GORDON comes out in print and claims that every Canadian worker in the West Riding owes Mr. Gordon a vote.

Not for what he has done for the worker, but what he will do in lowering the prices of all necessaries by strangling such a tariff as would in any way benefit the working man and his wife and household.

Mr. Gordon Says: "Don't make or help to make anything you can buy abroad for less money than you or others can afford to have it made.

Be obedient. Don't think for yourself. Let Mr. Gordon do all the thinking, just as he tells you he is thinking of buying slices of Canadian farms to bestow on a selected brand of immigrant, who will be content to farm on 50 acres on a plan of "intensive cultivation." Mr. Gordon knows it all.

From the Canadian Labor Press comes an appeal to the worker that flatters Mr. Gordon's appeal. Carefully read what follows and see how it squares with the claim that "Every worker owes Gordon his vote."

Canadian Worker, where do you stand? With Conservtaives, Co-operation, Certainty and Consistency; or with Liberals, Losses, Laxity and Lamenation?

Fellow Worker! Upon the answer to the above questions through the means of your vote on October 29 depends the welfare of Canadians for the next four years.

A vote for a candidate pledged to reta in the present Liberal Government in power means the country will drift along in its present wholly unsatisfactory condition, with accompanying increase in unemployment, unhappiness and misery for you and your family.

It means in all probability that you will eventually be compelled to part from your family in order to earn a living. It means that you may be compelled to break up your home and migrate to a foreign country in order to obtain for your family the necessaries of life. It means that you may be forced to contribute by your toil to the prosperity of a foreign country.

It means that with certainty, part of your earnings, even if you are lucky enough to be employed in Canada, will be diverted to the welfare of the Republic to the south. It means inertia in legislative matters affecting your welfare... It means that measures adopted in other countries for the ameliora tion of labor conditions will not be adopted here.

It means that you must struggle on, saving a few dollars while you are employed, against the time when you will be out of work and require to spend them. It means for you simply nothing but four years' stagnation with constant fear of unemployment and lay-offs during which time you must watch your country become an ever-increasing dependent of other countries.

It means if you are a father with grown-up boys, that whilst you live at home, your boys require to go to the States in order to earn a living and the pleasures you anticipated when a young married man—of seeing your family around you when you were getting up in years—remain merely a dream.

On the other hand, if you have paid the attention to this most vital question that you should do, then undoubtedly you will vote for a Government that will take measures to protect your job from outside competition, from the cheapness of wages much lower than yours, from the sweated labor methods of Europe, from the ever-present menace of being thrown out of work and from the distress of seeing your family separated.

You can only gain these things by using your votes to elect Conservative candidates pledged to a policy of complete and adequate protection for your job, for a 100 per cent. payroll in Canada, for a policy of co-operation between all classes, for the common good, for a policy that will be consistent and certain.

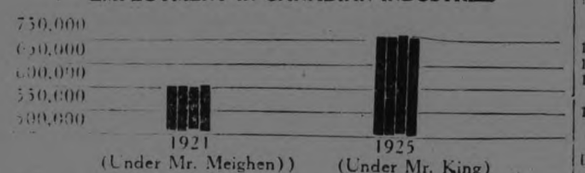
If you do that then the Dominion will advance toward an era of progress, prosperity and influence hitherto unequalled. If you do not, then the next four years will be a period of losses, laxity and lament.

FELLOW WORKER! REMEMBER, IT'S UP TO YOU!

The Liberal-Conservative Party asks you to register your vote for MR. PECK. Not only your vote, but the vote of your wife, who is vitally interested with you in your circumstances.

The Truth!

EMPLOYMENT IN CANADIAN INDUSTRIES



This is the average over the first six months in each year, showing that in the first period of this year there were on the average 121 841 more men employed in Canadian industries than under Mr. Meighen. Mr. Meighen claimed on Saturday night that our industries are declining, but he produced no evidence. These figures are from the statistics published by the Department of Labour, the same publication from which Mrs. Fallis quoted some other figures on Saturday.

Labor Paper Advises Workers to Support Protection Candidates

This is a Bread-and-Butter Election

(The Labor Leader.)

Politics is the simplest of all studies, if you just go about it from the right angle.

All you have to remember, as a working man, is that your first duty is to yourself and to your family. Gauge every issue from that standpoint, and you cannot go far wrong!

In the last analysis, the pay envelope is the thing that really counts. Its size and its regularity form the acid test that will infallibly determine what policies, being wholesome, are safe for you to support; and what policies, being dangerous, must be actively opposed.

Will Senate Reform affect your pay envelope? No; of course not! From your standpoint, therefore, Senate Reform is merely a side issue, purposely raised to distract you, to confuse you!

Will control of ocean rates—if such a thing be practicable—affect your pay envelope? Directly, No; indirectly, Yes. And that affect will be a prejudicial one, insofar as it will cheapen the cost of delivering to Canada the products of cheap European labor.

Will the lowering of duties on manufactured goods—ostensibly to reduce the cost of living—affect your pay envelope? Decidedly YES! Regardless of where you work—in a factory or elsewhere—the size and regularity of your pay envelope is threatened every time the duties on manufactured products are lowered!

It cannot be otherwise. Lower duties are inevitably followed by larger importations of foreign goods, produced by foreign workmen, to displace Canadian made goods, produced by Canadian workmen. That means less employment available in Canada for direct production, with correspondingly less employment in clerical, commercial, transportation and other fields.

Less employment means more competition for jobs, more workers reduced from full time to part time, with a constant tendency meanwhile towards lower wages.

You want to maintain—to improve, if possible—your standard of living. How can you possibly succeed in that endeavor when, by reason of lower duties, freer entry is made in a foreign country where the standard of living is deplorably low?

You want a shorter working day. Again, how can you possibly succeed in obtaining it when lower duties are making it easier to sell in Canada goods that have been given to competitive products that have been made by foreign workers who regularly put in twelve hours a day?

National Unity is a subject upon which it is easy to wax eloquent. But what do you—what MUST you—think of National Unity preachers who, to attain their objective, advocate measures that will compel yoo to make all the sacrifice, even to the point of surrendering your means of livelihood?

Time enough to make minor sacrifices in the cause of National Unity after you have first taken care of yourself and your family!

Protection for Canada means Protection for YOU!

VOTE PROTECTION!. VOTE FOR PECK!

COTTAGE DEPREDATIONS.

Suggests That Owners Mark Goods in Distinctive Manner.

In view of the frequency of late of the depredations on summer cottages and the difficulty of establishing definite proof Provincial Constable Maker suggests that the cottage owners check their property with some distinguishing mark. Constable Maker says that he has frequently discovered goods which he had reason to believe were stolen but the owners were unable to swear that it was their property.

HEAVY WEEK END ACCIDENT TOLL

Cars Collided in Various Parts of the City—Remarkably Few Injuries.

AUTOS DAMAGED.

The week-end took its accustomed toll of automobile parts although there were no fatalities and the injuries were few.

H. J. Anderson was driving a large coupe up George Street, and at a point near Dublin Street overtook another car which turned west on the intersection. Swerving to avoid this car, Anderson did not see, until too late, a gravel wagon which was going north. The driver attempted to put on his brakes but they failed to work, and the car hit a tree and a telephone pole, moving the latter two inches. One side of the car was completely demolished. G. Hewitt of Rutherford Street suffered a minor cut on his leg.

J. L. Jeffries of Boswell Avenue was driving north on Monaghan Road, and when crossing Charlotte Street was hit by a car driven by E. L. Ferguson. Running boards and fenders suffered slight injuries but no one was hurt.

A meat market truck and a bicycle collided at the corner of Aylmer and Charlotte. The cycle was ridden by F. W. Skitch. No injuries resulted.

Russell Wells, another cyclist, was proceeding north along Hunter when a motor car interrupted the even tenor of his way. Slight damage resulted to the rear wheel but the rider escaped uninjured.

Six people were going down Monaghan Road when the transmission locked, and as a result the car turned turtle. The occupants were none the worse for their experience, but the car is a wreck.

On Park Street, south of Prince Street, E. Saunders of McKellar Street was driving south when he was hit by A. McColl of Bethune Street. McColl acknowledged that he was at fault, as he was using a wind-shield wiper and lost control of his car.

H. H. Crary, 479 Park Street, was driving his auto north on Burnham when Fred Follis of Bethany, who was driving east on Hunter Street, struck him. Crary said that Follis did not keep near enough to the curb but cut across in front of him. Both cars were damaged.

Decline With Thanks Offer of Lower Wage

Who will higher tariff help?

Will it help the mechanic, who will have to pay more for what he buys? You know a higher tariff does mean higher prices—S. T. Medd said so at Mr. Peck's meeting at Young's Point, and Mrs. Fallis admitted it on Saturday night.

Take an example. An article is produced here for $3 and sold for $4. A similar article is brought in from another country and sold at $4. Then a duty of $1 is put on, and the imported article costs $5 here. Immediately the home manufacturer raises his price to $4.75, making a profit of $1.75 instead of only $1. YOU must pay. That is the reason why these big interests are supporting Mr. Meighen and are dictating to him what he must do and say. THEY WANT MORE PROFITS.

Are you credulous enough to think that the excess profits would be passed on in the form of wages? You know they wouldn't.

The textile factories in United States have high protection. They have cut their workers' wages ten per cent.

That's the kind of prosperity Mr. Peck offers the workers of Peterborough—less wages and higher prices.

HYDRO ENGINEER PROMISES THAT INCREASE IN SUBURBAN POWER RATES WILL BE RE-CONSIDERED

Mr. Gaby Received Delegation From City and District To-day.

SUGGEST AREA PLAN.

Township Users May Form United Areas and Have Low Rates.

TORONTO, Oct. 27.—A reconsideration of the 90 per cent increase of Hydro Electric rates in the suburbs of Peterborough which were to go into effect on November first was promised today by Mr. Gaby to a delegation from Peterborough including W. H. Bradburn, M.P.P. for West Peterborough, and Col. Johnston, M.P.P. for East Peterborough.

The new arrangement suggested by members of the delegation is to discuss the possibility of forming limited areas in the townships in which the suburbs find themselves.

The four township councils are to meet the Hydro engineers and the Public Utilities Commission of Peterborough and a complete new valuation is to be made.

In case limited or voted areas are formed, Mr. Gaby stated that he thought that the kilowat hour charge could be reduced almost to what it always has been.

E. F. Mason, head of the Public Utilities Commission of Peterborough, asked Mr. Gaby whether he would allow the Commission to ignore the new rates until the matter was finally settled. At first, Mr. Gaby thought it would be better to collect the new rates, starting November first, and rebate the difference after the final decision.

Retain Old Rate

Mr. Mason then stated that the Public Utilities Commission had already agreed to carry these customers on the old rate till the first of the year, because November first had seemed to be too short notice.

"If the city of Peterborough consents to carry them till the new year," replied Mr. Gaby, "I'm willing to recommend that arrangement to the Hydro Commission."

In reply to how long it would take

Moose Turns Jockey But Deserts His Mount

MANOTICK, Oct. 27.—(Canadian Press).—With a large live bull moose straddled across the radiator of his small sedan, H. H. Boyd of Ottawa made a hurried stop on Prescott Highway near here early yesterday morning. Mr. Boyd was returning from Kingston at a fair speed when he was suddenly confronted by the moose, which was standing across the road. His car hit the animal broadside and it was carried 20 feet straddled across the radiator before Mr. Boyd could stop. The animal disentangled itself from the car and made his getaway.

VESSELS STRANDED

Public Services Disrupted in Many Places in Newfoundland.

ST. JOHN'S, Nfld., Oct. 27.—(Canadian Press).—Partial restoration of telephone and telegraphic communication with outside points brought in yesterday the first news of tragedies resulting from the hurricane which struck Newfoundland over the week-end and caused at least two deaths, heavy losses to shipping and disrupted public services in many places.

According to meagre reports reaching the city to-day, James Jackman, a 13-year-old youth, and Captain Vision of a French liquor-carrying schooner, St. Pierre and St. Louis, were victims of the gale and two schooners were wrecked. The Jackman boy was blown into a reservoir at Bell Island and drowned before aid could reach him. Captain Vision was washed overboard from the St. Pierre and St. Louis just before the vessel stranded at Lemaline. No details of the stranding were available last night, but it is believed the remainder of the crew escaped. The vessel was bound for St. Pierre, presumably from a French port.

A report from Bonavista stated that another vessel, the Alma Guy, was a total loss on the rocks there. No details were given. The coal-carrying schooner Carrie and Nellie, which stranded on the rocks at Fermeuse Saturday, floated off with the tide Sunday.

Adjoining Ridings of Peterboro and Durham Singled Out By Premier King For Political Influence If Government Returned.

GORDON DISCUSSES TEXTILES.

Declares Canadian Woollens Company Suffered From Watered Stock Rather Than From the Lack of Protection.

To a crowd of men and women that filled the Grand Opera House last night to the dimmest row of the upper gallery, the Hon. Vincent Massey, Liberal candidate in the adjoining constituency of Durham, appealed for the re-election of Peterboro's Cabinet Minister, the Hon. G. N. Gordon.

It was Mr. Massey's introduction to a Peterboro audience, and to the Liberals at least his association with Mr. Gordon held up a vision of the political prominence and eminence in store for the two neighboring ridings if the Government emerges with victory on Thursday. Many Conservatives were scattered throughout the audience, attracted by the publicity given to Mr. Massey's strenuous campaign, his personality and his position in Canadian industrial affairs. His address, however, lacked the sweep and swing of some of those which he has delivered in his own arena. An engagement at Mount Pleasant preoccupied him, and demanded his early departure. Thus it remained for Mr. Gordon to assume the major burden of the evening, and in spite of the weight of death's touch in his family, he delivered a typical Gordon speech, defending his record in Parliament, and replying at length to the letter published in the press by Sir James Woods, a Toronto millionaire manufacturer.

Accepting the Woods' challenge to discuss the conditions of the textile industry, Mr. Gordon declared that its depression was not merely local, but world wide, and that the Canadian Woollen Company was handicapped not so much by a lack of protective tariff as by a copious infusion of watered stock.

Textile Trade Hit

Introductory to his exposition of the conditions in the textile industry Mr. Gordon said that the stringency was world wide. He cited the unemployment in the Bradford district in England, and quoted President Green of the American Federation of Labor as saying that he would ask the United States government to cut the tariff on textiles because of the poor wages paid in that industry, notwithstanding the higher tariff protection given them in the U. S. Labor was not being protected in that industry. The textile industry

Petition Dismissed of 3 Indians Convicted of Murdering Merchant.

REASONS LATER.

Privy Council is Not a Court of Criminal Appeal.

LONDON, Oct. 27. — (Canadian Press).—The sensational Malabar Hill murder in India last January was recalled at a sitting of the Judicial Committee of the Privy Council here yesterday when Sir John Simon, in behalf of three Indians sentenced to death for the murder of Abdul Kadir Baule, a rich Parsee merchant of Bombay, petitioned for leave to appeal against the conviction and sentence.

The petition was dismissed without their lordships of the Judicial Committee hearing argument from the Crown counsel in the case. They intimated that they would give their reasons in writing for refusing to grant the petition.

Sir John Simon, in pressing for leave to appeal to the Judicial Committee on behalf of the condemned trio of Indians, urged that his reason for taking this step was the fact that there was no court of criminal appeal in India.

A few years ago the Privy Council was petitioned to interfere with sentences resulting from a riot in Winnipeg, but the Judicial Committee on that occasion insisted that the Privy Council was not a court of criminal appeal and never had been a criminal appeal court.

The Malaber murder caused an international sensation. The victim, Abdul Kadir Baule, was taking a motor ride at the time, accompanied by the beautiful 22-year-old nautch (dancing) girl, Humtaz Begum Mustapha, said to have been formerly a favorite of the Maharaiah of Indore. The murder occurred during an attempt by nine Indians to abduct the dancing girl. She escaped, but her face was mutilated. Only three of the nine would-be abductors were convicted of the murder of the Bombay merchant.

Resolution Framed By Austen Chamberlain Was Carried.

24 HOUR LIMIT.

Allied Officers Delegated to Report on Extent of Compliance.

PARIS, Oct. 27. — (Canadian Press).—The Council of the League of Nations last night delivered what is virtually an ultimatum to Greece and Bulgaria that they must unconditionally and within 24 hours, order all troops to retire behind their respective frontiers.

It is the first time since the birth of the League that the Council has gone so far. Its action constitutes the supreme test of the League's power to break up war. It was carried out in a tense atmosphere in the crowded Clock Hall of the Foreign Office, and was accompanied by an admonition from Austen Chamberlain, British Foreign Secretary, that it would be an intolerable thing—"indeed, an affront to civilization"—if, with all the machinery of the League at their disposal and the Council ever ready with its good offices, frontier incidents like those between Greece and Bulgaria should lead to war-like operations instead of being submitted for peaceful adjustment to the Council, which would always safeguard the honor and interests of the nations involved.

The resolution, subsequently adopted unanimously, was really a reproof to both Greece and Bulgaria for their failure to obey President Briand's injunction to cease all hostilities and withdraw behind their frontiers. It was framed by Mr. Chamberlain after the Greek representative, M. Caranaos, had told the Council that the Greek troops would evacuate Bulgarian soil as soon as all the Bulgarians got out of Greece, and after Bulgarian insistence that Bulgarians are not on Greek soil at all.

It declared that the Council was not satisfied that military operations had ceased and that the troops had been withdrawn, and, after fixing a 24-hour limit for the issuance of instructions for such withdrawal, the Council fixed 60 hours for assurance of the fulfillment of the orders.

The American Woollen Company closed last year with a deficit of more than $11,000,000. It was the most disastrous year in its 26 years' career. Only once before—in 1913—did it report an operating loss, and that was only $677,884, following the Underwood tariff bill.

HYDRO ENGINEER

the Commission's engineers to make the new valuation, Mr. Gaby said only a few weeks.

Their investigation and the striking of a new rate would be completed long before the new year. If there is any delay, it was indicated, it would come from the township councils.

It was pointed out by Mr. Wilson and Mr. Curtis that many of the farmers and suburban users of Hydro outside Peterborough had installed their own poles and equipment. Mr. Gaby replied that the Commission had not been informed of this fact by the city when the Hydro engineers had made the valuation in an attempt to strike a cost rate for the power by which the city of Peterborough would not be losing money in supplying these consumers.

Buy Customers' Poles

In the case of people who had paid for their own poles and equipment before the Hydro had taken the system over, Mr. Gaby informed the delegation that the usual course was to reimburse these consumers and charge them the regular rate instead of allowing any special privileges.

It was pointed out by Mr. Gaby that while the forming of limited areas would benefit the people in them, such a course would practically prevent the more thinly populated districts of the townships involved from ever securing Hydro power on account of the prohibitive cost, since they would have to pay the whole charge of installation and charges on this capital expenditure. Such a district would be Chemong.

Mr. Gaby did not agree with the selfish policy of some of the delegation who thought this was only fair. "I don't think it is," he said. "People throughout the more thinly populated sections should have the benefits of power, too."

H. B. Rye, Reeve of North Monaghan township, pointed out that this district was settled by factory workers at least fifty per cent of whom would have to give up using power if the new schedule went into effect.

Increase Small

Mr. Gaby, in reply to a question, told the delegation that the present rate for power in such limited or voted areas in townships was only about fifty per cent more than in Urban municipalities. This was how it worked out in Scarboro and York township, suburbs of Toronto.

Mr. Rye told of having a flat rate from the old privately owned Otonabee and Seymour Power Company of sixty cents which was later raised one dollar a month. He could not see why the Hydro could not produce power for that price if a privately owned company could and make a profit. The present Hydro rate amounted to $17 a year and, if the new rates went into effect, would be double this amount.

Complaints were made about broken contracts. These suburban people, it was pointed out, had been promised that the Hydro rates would not be raised when they had started to use it.

Mr. Gaby replied that the case of the Peterborough suburb people was not unique. "The same thing is happening outside the cities of Oshawa and Toronto," he said. "In view of the fact that the power is going further out into the rural districts in these townships, it had been found necessary to strike a more equitable rate."

A Blow to the Worker

There's no use beating about the bush. Meighen prides himself upon his steadfastness when he sets himself to a task. His party boasts it's leader's adherence to his promises.

That's that.

If Meighen gets into power there will be a heavy tariff on coal to encourage the sale here of western coal. He promised it at Edmonton and Nanaimo and he boasts that he never changes.

What arguments are necessary to indicate the utter savagery of such a proposal? The workers of Peterborough have enough to worry about now to provide their winter's supply. Many folk have barely enough means to buy coal to keep them warm in our winter climate, but if the price goes up—as Mr. Meighen promises them—they will suffer the rigors of the cold of a Canadian winter.

But apart from this aspect, we see the purchasing price of the workman's dollar reduced, and it will be no fractional reduction either. If the same method of high protection is applied to other commodities how are people to make ends meet? The mill-owner, for instance, whose goods go into every home, will make the ultimate purchaser pay the the additional cost of the fuel, while the latter bears the burden direct for what he uses himself.

This example of the curse of high protection should be enough for every elector in the city.

Vote Against It!

REVOLVER FIRING AT MEETING SUDDEN OUTBREAK OF FIGHTING INTERRUPTS QUEBEC PREMIER

Wiring Was Cut, Lights Were Put Out and Battle Began.

POT SHOTS AT AUTOS.

Gathering Was in the Interests of Liberal Candidate —Intruders Blamed.

QUEBEC, Oct. 27.—(Canadian Press).—The sudden severing of electric wiring, which threw the place into utter darkness while Premier Taschereau was speaking, followed by revolver shots, stone-throwing and general pandemonium, made a political meeting at Chateau Richer in Charlevoix County, without precedent in the history of that constituency.

The meeting was held in the interests of P. F. Casgrain, Liberal candidate, who had the support of the Prime Minister of the Province of Quebec. It was while Mr. Taschereau was addressing the crowd that all the lights suddenly went out. A battle royal ensued in the darkness, and after stones had been heaved in the direction of the platform, the sudden barking of a revolver broke out above the din. The shots were answered by other weapons outside the building, whose owners, according to accounts of the evening, began taking "pot shots" at passing automobiles. When the uproar was at its height and it seemed certain there must be many serious casualties, the wiring was repaired and the flood of light brought the turmoil to a close.

Premier Taschereau deplored the occurrence, and laid the responsibility at the doors of "irresponsible parties who do not belong to Chateau Richer."

MASSEY AND GORDON APPEAR AS PLEDGES FOR CABINET HONORS

was experiencing difficulties here because of all industries it was generally suffering most.

Mr. Gordon said that a letter had been addressed to him by Sir James W. Woods asking whether he knew that the French spinning mill of the Canadian Woollens Co. at Peterboro had shut down in 1923 due to lack of tariff protection.

"The letter was not sent to me, but I read it in the Press," said Mr. Gordon. "The machinery for the French spinning mill was ordered in 1916 under Mr. Meighen, was delivered in 1919 and started operations in 1920. The mill operated at a loss for three years. Its product was the raw material of such companies as Penman's who make hosiery and undergarments. When a tariff was proposed on the French spun yarn I asked what Penman's would say. Were they willing to pay more for their raw material?"

If a tariff of 12 1-2 per cent was placed on the yarn manufactured by Sir James Woods prices would advance 12 1-2 per cent, and obviously the manufacturers using this material would need a similar protection of 12 1-2 per cent.

Protest from Penman's

"I received a strongly worded protest from the Penman company. They pointed out that an increase in protection would materially effect their manufacturing costs. As manufacturers of stockings and underclothes they pointed out that the effect of the tariff would mean an increase in the cost to the consuming public, the purchasers of stockings and underwear.

When the Canadian Woollens were starting the French yarn system they should have gone to Sir Henry Drayton and asked him for a bounty to assist that industry. To increase the tariff would have increased the price of every pair of stockings sold in Canada. They operated two years under Mr. Meighen and Sir Henry Drayton told me they did not ask him for any increased protection during that time.

They operated one year under the Liberal Government. In 1920 when the Conservatives were in power British currency stood at 15 per cent discount in Canada and British Woollen manufacturers were at a tremendous advantage in selling goods in the Canadian market. Actually the condition of exchange gave British manufacturers a preference of nearly 15 per cent. Today when British currency is practically at par the British manufacturer has lost this advantage and yet we hear these lamentations of Sir James Wood."

Mr. Gordon presented a financial statement of the York Knitting Mills of which Sir James Woods is president showing the success of their operations in this country.

Canadian Woollens History

Dealing with the Canadian Woollens Company, Mr. Gordon recalled that it represented a merger of the Auburn Woollen Co., the Bonner-Worth Company and the Standard Woollen Mills company. The total combined assets of the three companies, based on a war time valuation, was $764,376.18.

The company was incorporated with $1,750,000 preferred stock and $1,750,000 common stock, making a total capitalization of $3,500,000, which was four times greater than the combined assets of the three constituent concerns. Goodwill was taken into the balance sheet at one million dollars despite the fact that the business obtained was in competition with other Canadian concerns and that the lowest priced goods obtained the preference with the retailers.

According to the directors' report for 1925 the operating profit amounted to $77,122, a sum more than sufficient to pay to per cent interest on the oriignal assets of the companies forming the merger. The reserve fund for depreciation of plant and equipment amounted to $703,174, a sum almost equal to the original assets. Processes, trademarks and goodwill are valued at $1,449,937.81, a sum equal to twice the original assets.

Mr. Gordon said that he was reluctant about criticising the affairs of a Peterboro business. He had letters of thanks by the dozen from the Canadian Woollens Co., thanking him for his efforts in behalf of that firm, but it was time to show that it had a million dollars of absolutely watered stock that did not represent a cent of value. It was shot through with water that would have to be squeezed out before it could pay any dividend on an honest dollar

One of the first industries to be investigated by the proposed tariff board, Mr Gordon suggested, was the textile business, in an effort to improve the situation in the woollen and textile business in Canada It was chiefly because of the watered stock in the Canadian Woollen Company that the price of their stock had shrunk from $100 to less than $50 a share. Incidentally, Mr. Gordon said that in the salary list Mr. Edgar Worth had received $30,000 a year and J. W. Worth $10,000.

Longer Working Day.

Sir James Woods was now in control of the Richard Hall Store in this city, through one of his companies, the speaker continued.

"One of the first things this millionaire of Toronto did was to increase the hours of the girls in the store ½ hour in the morning and to take 15 minutes off their lunch hour at noon a a means of increasing his profits. When Sir James Woods talks of protection does he not think that the girls of the Richard Hall store need some protection against increased working hours?

Mr. Gordon quoted statistics showing that the imports of carpets and rugs into Canada had been reduced from $2,592,000 in 1921, under Mr. Meighen's administration, to $1,788,000 in 1924, under the King government.

"Why didn't Mr. Meighen protect the Brinton Carpet Co. when he had the opportunity?" Mr. Gordon asked. "The imports of clocks and watches amounted to $1,500,000 less under MacKenzie King than under Arthur Meighen. Why didn't Mr. Meighen give the clock manufacturers more protection? He didn't dare raise the tariff because the people would not stand for it."

Mr. Gordon said that Mr. Meighens proposal to raise the tariff on coal would increase the price to every householder in the country and put the shutters on every moulding shop.

Favorable Trade Balance.

"In 1921 Canada had an adverse trade balance of $30,000,000 because we were bringing in more goods than we exported. In 1922 we had changed that to a favorable trade balance of $6,000,000; in 1923 it was $142,000,000 in our favor; in 1924 this had increased to $165,000,000, and for the 12 months preceding Sept. 30, Canada showed a balance of trade in her favor of $285,000,000, the highest since Confederation.

The Canadian dollar was worth 85c when Mr. Meighen was in power. When we were paying interest to the United States we were required to pay the rate of 5½ per cent. interest, and 15 cents more to reach parity with the United States dollar. In other words under Mr. Meighen we were actually paying 20½ per cent. on loans from the United States. Today the Canadian dollar is above par with the American dollar and last Saturday the United States shipped $1,000,000 in gold to Canada to raise their credit balance in Canada."

The Canadian dollar is the only dollar in the world to-day above par par of the U.S. dollar.

Mr. Gordon said that H. P. Kennedy, the cattle exporter, formerly of Peterboro, had told him that the exports of cattle this year would be worth $12,000,000 to the Canadian farmer, and the price today is the highest since 1916 being $9.25 per cwt. for export cattle. Much of the credit for the removal of the British embargo on cattle by the late Bonar Law was due to the Hon. Manning Doherty of the Drury Government, and also to the efforts of the Dominion Government.

A Gordon Achievement.

"From his statements, I believe Mr. Meighen intends to tax foods if he is returned. In 1921 he proposed a sales tax on food, which would have been pyramided on every turnover until it reached the consumer, and would have increased the cost of living. I put up a fight against it and had the assistance of the experts of the millers, we forced Mr. Meighen and Sir Henry Drayton to abandon that tax on food and to throw it out. That is one thing for which I'm entitled credit.

Mr. Gordon related his part in the opposition to a 35 per cent duty on copper, one of the raw materials used by the C.G.E. Co.

"Not that they ever gave me much help at election time," Mr. Gordon interpolated. However, I feel sorry for them in that respect. Some day they may help me. I suggested to the Finance Minister that he give a bounty on copper. As a result the Government voted one million dollars as a bounty to Canadian copper smelters, so as to avoid putting a tariff on copper and thereby affecting the business of concerns using copper as one of their raw materials in manufacturing. That's one thing I've never heard Mr. Peck give me any credit for.

In the whisperings on the street they say I fomented a strike at the C.G.E. I can call my friend Archie McIntyre here on the platform with me as a witness. He was Mayor at the time. A deputation from the C.G.E. asked us if we would urge upon the management of the company that a conciliation board be consulted to decided who was right or wrong in the dispute. I appealed in every way I could that the matter be referred to a conciliation board, but the management refused to consent. So that was that, and I resent the imputation and the rumors that I did anything more on that occasion than try to bring harmony into the company's relations with those employees.

The General Electric Company in the United States followed a different policy. Some years ago the company found itself on the eve of a strike. The men, through their union, agreed to ask Mackenzie King to act as an intermediary. He was called in to negotiate between the disputing parties. The high officials met together and an agreement was decided upon, with the result that there was no strike, nor any unrest. And the same plan started 18 years ago is working today."

Under the direction of Mr. Durland, the new president of the C.G.E. Co., Mr. Gordon believed that healthy relations would exist, and that the company was on the way to business expansion, as indicated by the contract for the Aluminum Company's power equipment of $1,500,000.

Retained By Toronto.

A year before I was appointed a member of the Cabinet, a Conservative member of Parliament, Tommy Church, the chairman of the Toronto Harbor Board, asked me to act for Toronto Harbor Commission. I was asked to act in an advisory capacity after the viaduct plan had been put through Parliament — a question involving twenty-seven millions of dollars. Mr. Church was good enough to tell me that I was chosen because of my experience and success in tackling big problems. I am proud to say that the matter was put through successfully, and I received a thousand dollars for my services."

Mr. Gordon spoke to his constituents regarding the duties of a Cabinet Minister. "I am absolutely opposed to a member of the government engaging in any sort of business," he said.

"For my own part I have not touched a brief since I have been a Minister. All my time, all my energy, whatever ability I possess, belongs to the country."

In the course of a conversation, one of the Toronto Harbor Commissions paid tribute to Mr. Gordon's ability. "In my opinion, he is one of the most able lawyers in the Dominion," he said, "and that opinion was endorsed by a member of the commission. When the viaduct question came up it was Mr. Church who suggested Mr. Gordon. He was retained because we knew he was experienced in tackling big problems. He is aggressive and forceful: he has the ability to get things done—and that is what we wanted.

"In the negotiations regarding the viaduct he justified our judgment. He interviewed the solicitors of the two railway companies; he was in constant touch with me, and he threw all his energy into the task. It is hardly necessary to say that he accomplished what he set out to accomplish."

Vincent Massey.

"Mr. Gordon, your candidate, is the possessor of many fine qualities and is remarkably well fitted in a physical sense for the ardours of extensive campaigning such as is being carried on at the present time. Not only, however, is he fitted in this way, but by his record while a representative of this important constituency, he has shown that he is a man in whom can be reposed the most absolute confidence."

With that graceful compliment to the ability of the Liberal candidate for the East Peterboro riding, Hon. Vincent Massey began the statement of his brief for the cause which he pleaded. Continuing, he stated that the results of the contest would be far-reaching with much hinging on the issue which was presenting a fundamental cleavage between the two contending parties. The Conservative leader would give the impression there was only one thing to do and that was to grasp at the straw of protection. It was very easy for Mr. Meighen to cry out for more protection, but he was not doing it consistently; in the maritimes, he said, the tariff would not be too high; in Ontario he declaimed that he would build the tariff brick by brick until it attained to the level of that enforced by the United States; out west he again modified his promise by saying that the tariff would not be too high.

Canada, the speaker asserted, was an exporting country, yet Meighen was proposing something which would, if practised, set the city against the farmer. He was threatening the stability of the country in an effort which he declared would establish it. The great principles of the election were to avoid extremes and get a national unity in the fundamental meaning of the word. The tariff properly handled might be made an instrument in furthering that much desired and even necessary state of affairs, but as Mr. Meighen intends to operate it, nothing but disrupsion and disintegration would follow.

"On Thursday we are going to sweep away the delusion that the millenium will be brought in by a protective tariff. Mr. King's proposal to establish an advisory board with the object of reviewing matters pertinent to this subject comes closest, in my estimation, to giving any hope for final and satisfactory adjustment," said Mr. Massey.

Good-will was important in business relations, and none the less was this so in national dealings. There must be mutual confidence between the east and the west and not occupy positions opposed to one another.

That there had been bad times in the country, the speaker freely admitted. It was impossible to stand the world on its head with a great war and bad times not result. Canada, however, had been fortunate when compared with European nations, and to make comparisons with the United States was unfair. The States had entered the war two or three years later than Canada, and it was not to be expected that that country would suffer to the extent which Canada had suffered.

The stress was not all due to the war, however, declared Mr. Massey. Following the war came a period of over-expansion. People bought new farms and built new factories in an effort to maintain production at the height which it reached during the war. Values fell and the farmer sold three bushels of wheat for the price which was usually paid for one in war time.

"Factories," said the speaker, "were forced to cut down on their production, but business was now approaching normal again with factory smoke beginning to pour out of the chimneys——"

"Why are the chimneys smoking in every other country?" interpolated a heckler.

"They're smoking in Canada now, sir," was the speedy retort of Mr. Massey.

J. J. Hartley presided as chairman and Mrs. George King and Miss M. Masson contributed vocal numbers.

LEAGUE ENERGETICALLY

All the troops must be warned that resumption of firing will be visited with severe punishment, and both governments, Athens and Sofia, must give all facilities to the military officers of Great Britain, France and Italy, who will immediately repair to the war zone and report to the Council whether the Council's edict has been carried out

"And let it be carefully understood," said M. Briand, "that this time limit runs from now until it will suffice to retire to the special frontiers; there must be no shooting from the frontiers."

M. Morloff, representing Bulgaria, said quietly: "My government authorizes me to conform unconditionally to any invitation addressed to it."

M. Carapanos, like M. Morloff, seemed to shrink under the Council's implied condemnation. "I have no objections," he said almost inaudibly, "but I must transmit the details to Athens. I think that my government will comply."

M. Briand, still weak from the hemorrhage of the nose from which he suffered earlier in the day, again intervened. "We consider the words of both of you encouraging. We shall now pursue our task with independence and dignity."

The Council adjourned until 10 o'clock this morning, when it is expected the Greeks and Bulgarians will be permitted to present their respective views as to the cause of the conflict.

The Council is proceeding confidentially in the assumption that its decision will be obeyed, and believes that it can inaugurate a discussion of the question and ascertain the facts and responsibility, as well as the problem fixing the amount of renarations due.

The Council chamber was packed to the doors. A large number of prominent French women attended, while the notable figures present included M. Loucheur, M. Boncour and the diplomatic representatives of a large number of states not represented in the Council.

The rapidity with which the League machinery got into action and the Council's unhesitating assertion of the League's authority was one of the main topics of discussion in Paris last night. During the secret session of the Council, several members, including Paul Hymans of Belgium, frankly intimated that the League's future was at stake. They declared that if the covenant was to mean anything in the future, the pacification of Europe must be enforced now on any members of the League who seemed to be evading obligations which they had sacredly undertaken.

Withdraw Behind Frontiers.

ATHENS, Oct. 27. — (Canadian Press).—Prior to the action taken by the Council of the League of Nations, it was announced that Greece and Bulgaria had agreed to a suggestion by Roumania that the two countries withdraw their troops behind the frontiers. The necessary steps, it is asserted, will be taken to-day by a military commission, which will proceed to Demirkapu.

TARIFF CHANGES ARE DEMANDED IN ADDRESSES

Dark Picture of Conditions Was Drawn By Maybee's Supporters.

LOCAL CONDITIONS.

Government Assailed For Extravagance and Mismanagement—Leaders Compared.

CAMPBELLFORD, Oct. 27. — The electors of this town had the tariff question related to local condition at the meeting held here on Saturday night in the Regent Theatre in the interests of M. E. Maybee, the Conservative candidate, when R. C. Weston, a member of the shoe company of that name discussed the present fiscal policy as it affects that industry. This company has for the past three years or more been running four days a week, and this slackness is attributed to the competition of the American manufacturer.

Even Mr. Meighen himself could scarcely paint a darker picture of conditions in Canada than did Mr. Weston in his address. Canada, he said, owes more money than any country in the world with the exception of Germany, and Canada's per capita debt is greater than that of Germany. The greater part of this debt has been incurred by our adverse trade balance with the United States, and the country has been mortgaged to the Americans to meet this obligation.

There is, according to Mr. Weston, only one way out. We must make more goods at home and keep our own people here. In 1924, the total production of shoes in Canada was three and a half millions less than in 1923. A Toronto paper attempts to account for this by saying that more Canadians are now riding in automobiles, but Mr. Weston thinks that those in the cars must be wearing American made shoes. The imports of shoes from across the border are increasing year by year and when Germany gets on her feet and begins to send footwear here, Mr Weston fears that the Canadian manufacturers will be swamped unless the duty on boots and shoes is raised.

Every twenty-second person in Canada, according to Mr. Weston, is wearing shoes not made here. It is not correct to say that fine shoes or shoes that fit are not made in Canada, as the output of the home factories is equal to that of the United States.

Mr. Weston declared that there should not be a Liberal vote cast in Campbellford. All the industries in the town are feeling the pinch of hard times. The Government is not to blame for all of this trouble, but is responsible for a part of it and a change of Government would help. Protection has made the United States the richest country in the world, and protection will make Canada prosperous.

Address to The Women.

Miss T. McKissock of Toronto spoke directly to the large number of ladies in the audience, urging them to study political questions and when they had acquired knowledge to pass it on to others. She concluded her address by saying 'Keep on Hoping."

Mr. Maybee's Address

Mr. Maybee spoke along the same lines as those which he followed in his speech at Warkworth on Nomination day.

There is no doubt as to his popularity in Campbellford, and he was given a hearty reception by the audience. He dealt with the tariff, especially as it affects the farmer, the attempt of the Government to regulate the ocean freight rates, and with the Australian Treaty, and asked the electors for a repetition of the generous support which they gave him four years ago.

Cobourg Sends Help

Cobourg sent a car load of its leading political lights to support Mr. Maybee; these including Col. F. D. Boggs, president, and A. R. Willmott, secretary of the Northumberland Conservative Association; Captain David C. Dick, of the Cobourg Textile Works, and John Stone, a manufacturer of ladies dresses. Both of the two latter complain of hard times which they attribute to the fiscal policy of the King Government. Captain Dick said he had been a Liberal up to 1911, but broke with his party in that year on the reciprocity issue, and the present policy of the party, he declared, is really reciprocity under another name.

Mr. Stone declared himself a Liberal yet, the only one of his family to wear those colors, but in this election, he cannot support the party. He agreed with Captain Dick when the latter said that Premier King's policy, a policy not Liberal, but really dictated by the Progressives and forced upon him, is out of date, unsound, and un-Canadian.

Candidates and Leaders.

Major Belford, M.L.A. for Northumberland, giving reasons why the electors should vote the Conservative ticket, contrasted the candidates, the leaders and the policies of the two parties.

The candidates, he said, are both estimable gentlemen. Personally no fault can be found with either of them, but while Mr. Maybee has always been a consistent protectionists, Mr. Slade was a Progressive four years ago and might become one again if elected to Parliament.

As to the leaders—Mr. Meighen during the war was filling a man's sized job at Ottawa, being entrusted with the duty of enforcing the Conscription Act, while Premier King was drawing $25,000 a year working for the Rockefeller Foundation in the United States. The Major would not say that Mr. King should have gone to France, but he did think that during the war, he should have found some work at home.

Addressing the farmers, Major Belford told them that the Americans had the cream of the Canadian market as the low tariff enabled them to send their early fruits and vegetables into this country. If he had his way he would build the tariff wall so high that not a bushel of potatoes could come in and not a single tomato could be thrown over the barricade.

The best men, said the Major, who were in the King Cabinet at the beginning of his term have left it. During the past four years there has been a steady decadence in the calibre of the Premier's associations. The Government railway had been taken out of politics by placing it in the hands of a commission of inexperienced men, one of theme a mere youth of 75. There has been extravagance in th managemenet of the road; golf links were built, radios installed on the trains and expensive buildings purchased in Paris and London. These innovations might be all right if the country could afford them, but financial conditions demanded economy in public affairs.

A five minute address by Col. Boggs concluded the speech-making and at 11 o'clock the meeting broke up with the usual cheers.

Musical Programme.

The speeches were interspersed with musical selections by the following well-known singers: Miss Hazel Atkinson, Mrs. E. Bates, Clifford Rogers, W. C. Maguire and Walter Benson; Miss Lucina Hawley and R. T. Cowell playing the accompaniments.

G. A. Kingston, who presided, invited the following to the platform: Mrs. M. E. Maybee and daughter; Miss McKessock, W. J. Armstrong, Reeve W. S. Brills, J. A. Anderson, ex-Reeve George Van Volkenburg, A. R. Willmott and Mr. Maybee and the other speakers.

WEDDING BELLS.

JAKINS—ANDERSON.

LINDSAY, Oct. 27.—(Special).—St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church was the scene of a quiet matrimonial event Saturday afternoon, when Miss Annie Anderson, daughter of Mr. James W. Anderson, C.P.R. agent, and Mrs. Anderson, of Peterboro, was united in marriage to Mr. P. Jakins of Lindsay. Rev. Mr. Allen of Peterboro performed the ceremony.

The nuptials attracted a large gathering of the friends of the contracting parties, who are quite popular here. The bride was assisted by Mrs. Arthur Lipsett, of Lindsay and the groomsman was Mr. E. S. Meehan, manager of the Academy Theatre, the groom being a member of the Academy orchestra.

The wedding march was played by Mr. S. F. Chamberlain, organist of St. Andrew's church, and during the ceremony Mrs. Peter Spratt rendered a solo.

Among the out of town guests were Mr. and Mrs. James W. Anderson of Peterboro, and Mr. and Mrs. D. H. Elliott, Belleville.

Two associations of World War veterans from France, with 130 members, and four from Poland, with 450,000, have been admitted to membership of the Fidac.

121,841 More People were employed in our Industries during the first six months of 1925 than during the same period of 1921.

Those are figures taken from the statistics published by the Department of Labour.

How could we believe that Mr. Meighen and Mr. Peck are sincere when they are clamouring that our industries are declining, and that uneasiness is felt throughout Canada? The reverse is the truth, and we prove it by facts that cannot be denied nor disputed.

The monthly reports tabulated by the Dominion Bureau of Statistics from over 5,000 firms show that they were employing:

IN 1921		IN 1925
January	602,444 persons	January	690,538 persons
February	613,983 persons	February	709,878 persons
March	606,518 persons	March	715,158 persons
April	597,572 persons	April	718,524 persons
May	606,441 persons	May	748,448 persons
June	603,494 persons	June	778,951 persons
Average: 605,075 per month		Average: 726,916 per month

Increase in 1925 - 121,841

What more convincing proof can be had of our industrial progress than this big increase in the number of persons employed in our various industries?

We have proved:—

That our industries are unquestionably more prosperous in 1925 than they were in 1921. We have also a further proof of it from the market prices of the shares of industrial institutions which are higher now than in 1921.

That the savings banks deposits have increased year after year since 1921, and that the last six months show a remarkable increase—another conclusive proof that there is employment, and the Canadian people are prosperous.

That since 1921, employment has steadily increased, and that the official figures show an increase of 121,841 persons employed during the first six months of 1925, as compared with the same period in 1921.

These are the facts which prove most conclusively that our industrial development has made great strides, and that confidence and prosperity are returning to Canada—in spite of the statements of Mr. Meighen, and his Peterborough ally, Mr. Peck.

Now that an era of prosperity is returning to Canada, this is not the time for a change in Government, which would give rise to uneasiness in industry, trade and finance. The Liberal Party has proven the wisdom of their administration, and need your co-operation and support in their further efforts in conducting the affairs of this Country. See that you give them this on October 29th, in the best interests, not only of Peterborough, but of Canada as a whole.

YOUR DUTY ON THURSDAY.

The Examiner publishes tonight a complete list of the polling sub-divisions in West Peterborough, for the benefit of electors who have not yet ascertained where they will exercise the franchise on Thursday.

This list will not be repeated and it suggested that every voter should cut it out of tonight's paper and keep it for reference.

It is the duty of every elector to poll his ballot on Thursday and The Examiner in urging that duty upon the voters has endeavoured to facilitate matters by supplying as much information as possible, the publication of the complete list of polling sub-divisions being one of the means adopted to accomplish that result.

This is an important election.

Much depends upon the result and no voter in his own interest can afford to neglect his opportunity of saying who shall be the representative of West Peterborough in Ottawa for the next five years and of indicating what shoud be the policies followed by this country in the next four or five years.

ELECTION PREDICTIONS.

As the campaign draws to a close the two old parties continue to hurl forth predictions as to the result throughout the country.

Both Government and Conservative organizations claim a majority over all in their last bulletins; you can take your choice according to your political affiliations.

As to the Progressives the situation is a little clearer.

They cannot expect to improve their position very much, inasmuch as they had only 62 members in the last House and have but 72 candidates in the field in the present campaign.

They expect to win most of the Western rural seats, albeit both Liberals and Conservatives both are claiming gains there.

From the Maritimes little news of the campaign reaches Ontario.

It is evident that the Government expects to lose some seats there, although it is difficult to estimate the extent to which the Conservatives will gain.

In Quebec the predictions run all the way from a clean Liberal sweep of the whole 65 seats to a gain of twenty seats by the opposition.

The biggest battle ground remains in our own province and the campaign here is vigorous to a degree, a condition that should result in the polling of an usualy large vote if the weather conditions are at all favourable.

CO-OPERATION IS NEEDED.

The Examiner's preparation for receiving and announcing the election results on Thursday are practically complete and the co-operation of election officials and the public generally is urged, in order that the service shall be as effective as possible.

Election oficials on duty at the various polling divisions can be of the greatest assistance if they will telephone the Examiner the result at their poll as soon as it is known.

The public generally can be of equally great assistance if they will be as brief as possible in their telephone queries.

It will readily be recognized that with thousands of people anxious to know the results it is impossible for The Examiner to go into details as to the vote in any particular riding.

The Examiner has arranged for a complete telegraph service and as far as possible will answer telephone calls and supply information as to the result of the voting both here and throughout the country, but our friends are requested to help us out by not insisting upon too many details over the telephone.

Deputy returning officers are asked to note that the chief electoral officer has requested that they should as soon as possible after the votes are counted communicate the results to the press.

With this co-operation The Examiner hopes to be able to furnish a quick, accurate and complete election night service.

THE MAZE OF TAXES.

Mr. Andrew Mellon, Uncle Sam's secretary of the treasury, aims to wipe out the so-called nuisance taxes, says the St. Catharines Journal. They have overgrown themselves and now cost almost as much to collect as they produce atogether.

Our own government might do well to attempt the same reform. We are in a maze of overlapping federal taxes. Right behind the federal government's entaglement march the provincial and civic governments with their own levies. The tax problem will be a hard one to solve, but it must be solved, because it is getting out of hand and because people are becoming more enlightened, and once they know the situation they will demand that it be simplified. The ultimate solution, many persons think, should be a rate based on the total annual production of the country, and collected on sales. Scientific study would reveal what point in the distribution would be most efficacious for that collection. In Canada's present condition, such a rate would be about ten per cent. in Federal costs alone, aside from the railway debt. Pretty stiff, but Canada is not going to stay in this position. With more people and correspondingly production, and a greater measure of public economy, the tax rate could be brought down to two or three per cent. It would take an expert to do it, and he would have to be free from political fetters.

THE PARTIES IN BRITAIN.

Politicians in Great Britain were struck with the small difference between the the Labor conference at Liverpool and of the National Union of Conservative and Unionist Associations held at Brighton, says the Globe. The activity of the Communists might indeed have given a sinsister aspect to the Liverpool meeting had not the real leaders of Labor taken a firm attitude against them and all they stood for. In both conferences the good of the community at large was the aim that was uppermost, and differences lay chiefly in the lines proposed to be pursued.

Extreme party sentiment in Great Britain is snowing a tendency to disappear. The younger generation of Conservatives is breaking away from Tory traditions, and many members of "old families" are found supporting the views and programs of Labor. That the son of the present Prime Minister should have abandoned the Conservative fold for the Labor camp is a significant indication of what is taking place politically throughout the Kingdom. Men and women, members of what are known as "the classes", are everywhere proclaiming opinions that not many years ago would have been denounced as little less anarchistic. Sons and even the daughters of the titled and wealthy are found seeking nomination to Parliament as candidates of the Labor party. On the other hand, at the Conseravtive convention in Brighton workingmen, we are told, were strongly in evidence, as much so, in fact, as the business and professional men, who have constituted heretofore the largest element of that party's support.

The passing of the old Toryism of Britain, in which any such thing as equality between the landowner and the workingman was impossible, is a feature of the political situation, and s bound to be of the utmost value in preventing the growth of demoralization doctrines in the body politic.

SERMONS AND CHURCH ATTENDANCE.

A short time ago the Archbishop of Canterbury started a world-wide discussion on sermons and their relation to church attendance by the declaration that he was disturbed by the quality of his clergy's sermons. He remarked that a calling which once supplied the intellectual as well as the spiritual leadership of the people had found itself overtaken by the spread of popular education, and the temptations of the golf course and the automobile were reinforced by the consequent "easy thinness of thought" into which the disheartened minister is likely to fall when he finds the modern probems of life and fact too much for him. It is intolerable to the primate "that we clergy should leave it to the daily newspapers of the popular novelist to give guidance and to suggest sturdy thought." This observation of the Archbishop indicates that he has been casting glances toward some of the popular currents of thought that have become powerful and dominating influences in British private and public life.

Following this the members of the Congregational Union have taken the same attitude as that expressed by the Archbishop of Canterbury, that if the churches in Britain want to appeal to the public they must put more humanity into their sermons. The Rev. J. D. Jones, chairman of the Union, at its recent annual meeting gave his solution of poor church attendance:

> "My answer is preaching, preaching with grip and reality in it; but to make great preachers there must be great hearers. No man can preach with passion and fervor to a chilly congregation. The great mass of our peope appear to be drifting away from religion. The habit of worship is falling into disuse The Sabbath is rapidly ceasing to be a day of rest. Seventy-five per cent. of our manhood is clean outside of the churches. The concentration of men's thoughts is upon the so-called good things of life."

Now that this powerful section of the Free Church has confirmed the strictures of the Archbishop of Canterbury, the controversy has become searching both within and without the churches. The question is not confined to Great Britain, however, but has extended across the Atlantic. The opinions appears to be that a consecrated, informed, resolute and imaginative minister of the gospel, who deals in vital and heart-searching themes, and who preaches sermons that are aflame with spiritual vision and zeal, and adorned with the choicest product of wide and scholarly reading, can almost anywhere fill a church Sunday after Sunday. Moreover, there appears to be a very general conviction that the people are crying out for strong, positive, and virile leadership in thought, and that if they do not get it from the pulpits they will look for it elsewhere — Brantford Expositor.

EDITORIAL NOTES AND COMMENT.

"Vote as you like on Thursday—but vote", says the Canadian Research Institute. It's good advice.

The sowing by the political organizations is nearly completed. Now the quetion is, "What will the harvest be?"

Both old parties claim a majority over all in the next House. What is your guess?

Premier Ferguson seems determined that all the attention shall not go to the Federal politicians and claims his share of front page space.

Have you bought your Ontario apples? No finer fruit ever grew anywhere than this province has produced this year.

The resident of Jersey, one of the Channel Islands, refuse to pay taxes to Great Britain. Which means that the Jersey cow refuses to give milk.—Brantford Expositor.

(reflect on this)

Imported goods lessen Canadian production, things that wear and make use of. The workers in low-wage countries do not spend earnings in Peterborough. Why buy such goods and help support workers abroad, whose work displaces dollar after dollar of Canadian-made goods.

A THOUGHT.

HIT IT HARD.

The beginning of a task is always more difficult than the finish. It's like writing a book; you know what to write about, and what you want to say, but you hardy ever know how and where to begin.

Many a race has been won in the get-away. Many a sprinter got out ahead by getting an unnoticed jump on the gun.

It's a lot of success you'll find in the beginning, so always hit the front end hard.

Efficiency isn't so much doing a thing in the shortest possible time as it is doing that thing when it is supposed to be done.

VOICE OF THE PEOPLE.

All letters bearing on the pending General Election or political questions must bear the authentic name of the writer for publication. No letter will be published without the writer's name. This step is taken to protect the candidates from anonymous attacks and to assure Examiner readers of the legitimacy of the expressions of opinion in the communications.

NOTE WELL

Owing to space limitations no letter can be published that contains more than 300 words.

FROM MR. MERRILL.

To the Editor of The Examiner.

Dear Sir—Would you kindly allow me to ask Mr. Gordon a question? How is it that he continues to slam Mrs. Fallis for a statement that Dr. Manion made and proved by Duns, also by The Globe, of a certain date? Is he realizing that the Liberal party in Ontario has not a man from the Honorable Chas. Murphy down that can touch the hem of Dr. Manion's garment for honesty, ability and statesmanship, and his change of views were not bought for two million dollars, but for the love of his country?

Thanking you, I remain, yours, &c.,
—W. H. Merrill.

FROM MR. GREENE.

To the Editor of The Examiner:

My absence from the City for several days has delayed my reply to the letter of H. R. H. Kener, re the operating cost of the Collegiate Institute.

Where Mr. Kenner gets the idea that I made certain quotations of cost for the year 1924, I do not know. I have never quoted any figures in connection with that year. Neither am I responsible for any typographica' errors that may occur in passing any information on to the public.

The year I referred to was 1925, and the enrollment at the Collegiate last January was 572, and the estimated operating cost for this year was $64,200, and these figures can be substantiated by the secretary-treasurer of the Board of Education. This cost averages $112 per pupil and not $116, which was the error in the report.

Further, I would challenge Mr.. Kenner to state one instance where I have ever been guilty in any way of attmpting to deceive or misconstrue facts during my thirty-three years of a citizen here. My thoughts and actions are as equally aboveboard and open to the public as his, and now that I have stated the period referred to, I think in common justice he could withdraw the inference or insinuation that my statements were misleading and of a deceptive nature.

I still maintain, the ratepayers have a perfect right to know why our Collegiate operating costs, from year to year, are so far in excess of other cities approximately the size of our own.

(Signed) J. M. GREENE.

Liberal Publicity Committee

OPEN LETTER NO. 31

RT. HON. W. L. MACKENZIE KING,
Prime Minister and President of the Privy Council,
Ottawa.

Dear Sir:

The farmer who wants to know definitely how much (if any) progress he has made during the year, must do more than look up his bank balance. He must do as the business man does—take stock! And in his inventory he must place a fair and honest valuation upon his farm property.

Small but steady appreciations in the value of his land may, in time, make even an inefficient farmer rich. Conversely, small but steady depreciations in the value of his land may, in time, make even an efficient farmer poor.

Now farm values are created by various factors, or sets of factors' Comprising one set are natural advantages—soil, water, freedom from drought and hail, etc. Comprising another set are improvements—house, barn, stable, fences, etc. Comprising a third set are what might be termed services—roads, proximity to railway and school, rural delivery, telephone, etc.

But back of all such things there is one big factor remaining, and that is marketing facilities! Is there, or is there not, close at hand an assured market, where the products of the farm can be sold at profitable prices?

There's no getting away from that fundamental value-producing element, is there? A farm might have wonderful soil, an abundance of good water, every conceivable improvement, and be on a good road in close proximity to a railway, but if it were out in the Peace River District, it wouldn't be nearly so valuable as a smaller one, with soil not so good and with fewer improvements, situated ten miles out of Winnipeg.

Every farm in Canada is dependent on some market town for the sale of its produce. As that market town grows, the value of the farm tends to increase. Should the market town for any reason shrink, the value of the farm will be adversely affected.

Taking Brandon as a typical market town, let us suppose something caused it to boom, so that in the next five years it were to double its present population. Would not every farm within a ten miles radius automatically become more valuable? On the other hand, let us suppose that something gave Brandon such a set-back that it were to lose half its present population. Would not every farm within a ten mile radius automatically become less valuable?

The surest way to enhance Canadian farm values is to adopt a tariff policy that will increase the number of Canadian customers for Canadian farm produce, and give those customers an earning power that will enable them to buy such produce in larger quantities, and pay better prices for it.

A sure way to depreciate Canadian farm values is to adhere to a tariff policy that is driving those who heretofore have been customers for Canadian farm produce away across the border, where their wants will hereafter be supplied by United States farmers.

Yours respectfully,

President.

Mr. Meighen Speaking:

"We can never have a high tariff in Canada.

"We cannot have a high tariff in Canada for the most obvious reasons.

"In the first place a high tariff is unsound in principle in that it tends to eliminate one of the factors of competition, namely, foreign goods.

"..... we must always have in this country nothing more than a moderate tariff under any conditions whatsoever."

Hansard, May 25, 1920

TO TAKE STEPS SAVE PROPERTY

BRISBANE, Australia, Oct. 27.—(Canadian Press).—It was estimated yesterday that there are hundreds of thousands of pounds worth of frozen meat and sugar aboard the steamer Mahia which is lying in the dock here with only enough coal in her bunkers to keep the refrigerator working until to-day. Farmers of the district have undertaken to load the steamer with a fuel supply if necessary. They state that they are not seeking for a fight but are determined not to lose their property. They are willing to wait until Wednesday for coal to keep the refrigerator operating in the hope that a settlement will be reached.

MACKENZIE KING DENIES RUMOR THAT MASSEY-HARRIS COMPANY WAS GIVEN GOVERNMENT MONEY

Payment Was Made in Compensation For Property Seized By Germans.

ENEMY SECURITIES.

Amount of Damages Was Fixed By International Court.

QUEENSVILLE, Ont., October 27—Ca .dian Press. — Premier King denied the rumor yesterday that this government had paid huge sums of government money to the Massey-Harris Company of Toronto. The rumor, it was claimed, was also to the effect that this had been the price of Hon. Mr. Massey's entrance into the cabinet.

The Premier explained that during the war the Germans had seized Massey-Harris property in Germany. Also the Canadian Government had sequestered German property and securities in Canada. Mr. King explained that following the war an international court had decided what damage the Massey-Harris Company was entitled. These damages had been paid in part out of the German securities which had been sequestered in Canada. The premier stated that not a cent of the Canadian taxpayers' money had been paid the Massey-Harris Company. The greater part of the payments had been distributed when Mr. Meighen was in power. The present government had continued these payments from the German funds in exactly the same manner as started by Mr. Meighen. Mr. King added that the report was simply another of those astonishing election rumors which no sane person could credit.

It had been a source of pride, said Mr. King, that the people of the constituency which had returned his grandfather had seen fit similarly to honor him.

"North York has always been the cradle of reform and the centre of political battles," he said.

GROCER HELD UP.

Thugs Asked For Cigarettes Then Produced a Revolver.

MONTREAL, Oct. 27 (Canadian Press).—Two young men entered the shop of Joseph Buckwell, grocer, on Bernard Avenue here yesterday and, after asking for cigarettes, held him up with a revolver and stole $140 from his pockets. According to the victim, they wore no masks and were well dressed.

School Girls Pull Off Stunt At White House

Three West Philadelphia High School girls got their pictures in the newspapers today on their trip to the White House with their classmates, but they also got themselves into trouble.

They became tired standing in line to shake hands with the President, so they perched on a step near the entrance to the executive office, produced corncob pipes from somewhere, and were photographed.

Just then Principal Parke Schoch arrived. "Break those plates or I'll write to the editor of your paper," he threatened one of the photographers.

"You'll have to write to about 200 editors," was the reply.

Most of the auditors thought it was funny, but the three girls look'd worried.

CHIEF JUSTICE AGAIN RAPS O T A

Says Sixty Per Cent. of Jail Inmates Are In For Breach.

NOT SATISFACTORY.

BELLEVILLE, Ont., Oct. 27. —(Canadian Press).—In court yesterday afternoon Mr. Justice Meredith took another oral shot at the O.T.A. In referring to local conditions in Ontario, His Lordship was pleased to announce that in this large county only one case of a very serious character was down for trial. That was a very good record. But every place I go, sixty per cent. of the cases in jails are persons who have been convicted on B.O.T.A., exclaimed His Lordship. "Here it is the same, there being six persons in the county jail. This is not a satisfactory state of affairs, to have healthy men in jail who should be earning a livelihood. It is to be hoped recent legislation or other legislation will correct this situation."

E YIP WAS ROUGH ON LITTLE WEY SON

Tired of Life, Chinaman Tried to Kill His Cousin.

MONTREAL, Que., Oct. 27. —(Canadian Press).—"I was sick of living so we both had to die." This was the only explanation the police could get from Yee Yip, whom they arrested yesterday afternoon after he had hit his cousin, Bey Son, with whom he roomed on Clarke Street, on the head with an iron bar. The injured man was taken to a hospital, where it was reported that he would recover. Yip is being held on a charge of assault.

Deaf 10 Years, Boy Hears Music Broadcast By Radio

FREEHOLD, N.J., Oct. 20. —Adolphus Hankinson, of 14 Mechanic Street is 20 years old and had not heard a sound since he was ill with scarlet fever ten years ago, but curiously last night he placed the headphone of a radio set to his ear while music was being broadcasted.

Suddenly those in the room saw tears in the young man's eyes. Then they saw his body sway and his face break into a smile as he made motions with his arms to indicate he was hearing a violin.

He could not hear spoken words yesterday, but he repeated over and over in telling of his experience, "Music, music."

THE MARKETS

TORONTO LIVESTOCK

TORONTO, Oct. 27—There was a small percentage of good to choice handyweight butchers on the market, and baby beeves were ready sellers from $9 to $11 a cwt. Butchers' cows were about unchanged, and there was a scarcity of choice cows. For four loads of Western feeders the prices ranged from $5 to $6 a cwt. There are far too many cattle in to be disposed of today, but there is no disposition to taken prices.

Calves continue easy and fairly good calves are selling at 11 cents a pound. Fancy calves will bring a cent to a cent and a half higher. Medium calves are 8 to 9½ cents and a deck of heavy lambs brought 12 cents for the ewe and 10 cents for the bucks.

With only 1,200 fresh hogs on sale today it was not expected that packers would be able to buy below $11.25 a cwt. f.o.b., although they refuse to bid above $11 and are making the bid $10.75 a cwt. for today's loadings.

CHICAGO WHEAT

CHICAGO, Oct. 27 (Canadian Press.—Enlarged buying of Canadian wheat for shipment to Europe had a stimulating effect on wheat values yesterday, and so likewise did reports that a great deal of Canadian wheat would probably be left over unthreshed until Spring. The wheat market closed strong, 2 3-8 to 3 7-8c net higher, new style, Dec. $1.46 1-8 to $1.46 1-4, and May 1.43 1-2 to $1.42 3-4, with corn at 5-8c to 1c decline; oats a shade to 1-4c up, and provisions unchanged to 30c down.

According to a late estimate, 1,250,000 bushels of wheat, chiefly Canadian, were purchased yesterday for Europe, the largest total in some time. The improvement in European demand attracted special attention coming simultaneous with unexpected higher prices at Liverpool and with a falling off in world shipments together with reports of severe damage by drought in Australia. Beside advices were at hand telling of inclement weather likely to delay the crop movement both in Canada and in Spring wheat territory south of the Canadian boundary. Announcement was also made of 2,501,000 bushels decrease in the domestic visible supply.

Notwithstanding interruptions due to profit-taking sales in the wheat market and to a material set-back in corn values, the upward swing of wheat prices continued throughout the day. One of the reasons assigned was an assertion that there is full 100,000,000 bushels of unthreshed wheat at present under the snow in Canada. It was current talk that a large part of this wheat would be but little if any better than chicken feed if held in this condition all winter. Gossip was also prevalent that owing to the prolonged wet weather the new winter wheat acreage will be smaller than was the case last year.

Increasing receipts of corn here led to an all-around new low price record for the season, despite wheat strength as well as further rain in the corn belt. Offerings of oats lacked volume.

Provisions were affected by corn weakness.

MONTREAL MARKETS

MONTREAL, Oct. 27 (Canadian Press).—Local grain exporters yesterday reported a good enquiry for Canadian spring wheat, but bids were unworkable. Some business was done in oats with the United Kingdom, while barley was quiet. The feature of the domestic cash grain market was the stronger feeling in Ontario and Quebec oats, and prices advanced 1-2c to 1 1-2c per bushel.

There was no important change in the condition of the market for spring wheat grades of flour, but the undertone was very firm. A strong feeling also characterized the market for winter wheat flour and prices were inclined upward owing to improved enquiry.

The tone of the market for millfeed was firm under an increased demand from local and country buyers and business was quite active. The market for baled hay was steady with fair amount of business passing.

Beans were quoted at from 2.40 to 2.50 per bushel.

In 1900 the total of all manufacturing in Canada was $600,000,000. There were 38,360 Bell telephones.

In 1924 Canada's manufacturing had increased to $2,439,843,766 (four times what it was in 1900), not including $276,261,000 Building and Construction.

How important a part the telephone played in this expansion may be judged by the fact that the number of Bell telephones increased over 14 times in the same period.

At the Parting of the Ways---

On Thursday, October 29th, 1925, the Men and Women of Canada will be called upon to decide this question—whether to continue the King Liberal Government or to have a definite Conservative Government such as Mr. Meighen proposes.

Seven weeks ago one of the best known men in the New England States informed me at the Union Station in Toronto that it was the opinion in the United States that the King Government had sold out to American Manufacturers. This man is well known to business men throughout Canada (name and address will be furnished upon request).

MAGISTRATE GETS WARNING FROM KKK

Interesting Features in Forgery Case—Judge Makes Experiment.

WOODSTOCK, Oct. 27 (Canadian Press).—Expressing the view that terms of imprisonment seemed to have little effect in making a reformation, Judge Wallace yesterday allowed Alex. Green of Woodstock to go on suspended sentence in County Court, when Green pleaded guilty to a charge of forgery involving a cheque for $125. Green admitted the act but, through his counsel, pleaded that he had been drunk at the time and did not realize what he was doing. The judge, in giving sentence, pointed out that although the accused had served prison and reformatory terms totalling 25 years, he did not seem to be any better and that as the Crown Attorney was not inclined to press for a severe punishment, he was going to try the effect of letting Green go on suspended sentence, with the understanding that he pay the costs of the case amounting to $50. Green has been in jail since August 31, awaiting trial before the judge. In connection with this case, Magistrate Ball, before whom Green had his preliminary hearing yesterday morning received a letter signed "K.K.K." charging him with letting Green off without a trial and warning 'to be careful."

ARRESTS FOLLOW CHICKEN THEFTS

Alleged Gang Rounded Up at Ingersoll Tried on Saturday.

INGERSOLL, Ont., Oct. 27. (Canadian Press).—Ross and Lawrence Taylor, together with Mr. and Mrs. John Karn, all said to be of Brantford, were arrested here on Sunday afternoon and given a preliminary hearing before Magistrate Patterson on a charge of chicken stealing in the case of the former two, and having received stolen goods in the case of the second two. They were remanded to come up on Saturday next, at Woodstock. They are believed to be part of a gang that has been working all over the country and are to be tried together with Mrs. Minnie Smith, Mrs. Annie Schram and Howard Bridgewater, who was arrested at Dutton on Sunday. They have been arrested as a result of activities of Chief Holmes of Ingersoll and County Constable Fred Hill of Woodstock. Constable Wharton of Middlesex made the Dutton arrests. A big string of charges will doubtless be made against the prisoners.

CANADIAN WOOLENS FIASCO NOT THE FAULT OF THE TARIFF

The statement of employees of the firm and Sir James Woods that Canadian Woollens is suffering depression because of the low duty on imports under the British preference is exploded by an investigation of the firm's financing and business during the past six years.

Watered stock and directoral sleight-of-hand have put the employees on half-time—not any fault in the tariff.

Read the indisputable facts and decide in what category to place the men who have repeatedly spoken in support of Mr. Peck, holding up this plant as the horrible example of the work o fthe Liberal Government.

The firm was organized in June, 1919, on the merger of the Auburn Woollen Company, Ltd., the Bonner-Worth Company, Ltd., and the Standard Woollen Mills Co. Ltd. Based on a war-time valuation, the total combined assets of the three companies amounted to $764,376.18. Note the facts—war-time valuation; total assets $764,000 in round figures.

The company was incorporated with $1,750,000 preferred stock and an equal amount of common stock, making a total capital of $3,500,000—a sum four times greater than the combined assets of the three concerns. Good-will was taken into the balance sheet at one million dollars, despite the fact that the business obtained was in competition with other Canadian concerns and that the lowest-priced goods obtained the preference with the retailers.

The sum of $423,276.12 was set down apparently to represent the value of patents and processes, although the patent and copyright office had no record of the company as a patentee or as an assignee.

STERLING EXCHANGE INVOLVED.

Notwithstanding the generous capitalization dividends were paid in 1920, 1921 and 1922. They were as follows: In 1920, June 30th, $122,500; 1921, June 30th, $166,250; 1922, June 30th, $122,500.

In 1921, when the biggest amount of all was paid in dividends, the books of the company showed a loss of $351,526.57.

In the years under review, two officers of the concern alone received in salaries the sum of $80,782.02—approximately equal to 10 per cent. on the original assets.

According to the directors' report for 1925, the operating profit amounted to $77,127.00; a sum more than sufficient to pay 10 per cent. interest on the orginal asset. The reserve fund for depreciation of plant and equipment amounted to $708,174.97; a sum almost equal to the original assets. Processes, trade-marks and good-will are valued at $1,440,937.81; a sum equal to twice the orginal assets.

In their report, the directors state: "Apparently the change from success to failure is due to the increase in the British preference, and to the ability of countries like France, Belgium and Czecho-Slovakia to dump goods into this country because of their low paid labor, and their greatly depreciated currency."

It was pointed out by one of the company's operatives that during the boom year, when big dividends were being paid, British sterling stood at a 20 per cent. discount in Canada. He pointed out that this actually gave the British manufacturer an additional 20 per cent. preference in Canada.

"At the present time, British sterling stands at practically par, he said, "and they expect us to believe that the 5 per cent. reduction in the tariff has wiped out that additional 20 per cent the British manufacturer enjoyed under Mr. Meighen. We Know better."

THAT IS THE TRUTH ABOUT CANNADIAN WOOLLENS. PAYING DIVIDENDS ON WATERED STOCK IN SPITE OF LOSSES; PAYING EXORBITANT SALARIES TO OFFICERS; LISTING AS ASSETS PATENTS AND PROCESSES OF WHICH THE PATENT OFFICE HAS NO RECORD.

That is the firm Mr. Peck holds up to public gaze as the principal reason why Peterborough people should vote for him and his protection of Big Interests policy. Mr. Peck waxed eloquent in denouncing the Government he said had ruined this paragon among city factories. He sympathised with this Sir James Woods in his loss of profits ,and preached up and down the hustings the necessity of keeping our girls at home. For what? In order that THEY MIGHT BECOME THE SLAVES OF THE BIG INTERESTS PERSONIFIED BY SIR JAMES WOODS.

Don't be misled by catch phrases. Examine the causes for which a man fights and judge his worth accordingly. Mr. Peck is openly campaigning for the BIG INTERESTS personified by the Canadian Woollens and Sir James Woods.

HIGH PROTECTIONIST who made his pile in the world war forces sales women in Hall Store to work longer hours—will Peterboro protect a profiteer or its own girls?

Chivalry has no place in the great soul of Sir. James Woods, who has been attacking Hon G. N. Gordon with misplaced zeal for the welfare of the Canadian Woollens. A man who is worth several million dollars acquired during the world war, HE WORKS LONGER HOURS the girls who serve behind the counters of the Hall Store. Protectionist for himself and his money bags, leading Meighen cohorts in an assault upon Liberalism, he outrages the age-human instincts of chivalry and protecttion for women by forcing the girls in his newly acquired business to work longer hours every day.

It is just one more example of the grasping hand behind the Meighen machine. It is merely the shadow of the Big Interests thrown across the stage. But it shows up the moving spirit in all its ugly greediness. "Ourselves alone" is the slogan they carry as they trample on the liberties and rights of the common people in their march to greater wealth.

Sir James Woods is unmasked. He and others of his stripe have been spreading the message of gloom that has disheartened many a good Canadian and sent him across the line to seek refuge from the everlasting death chant. And he is behind Meighen in asking you to vote for him greater protection so that he can pile up vaster wealth and acquire more businesses where he would have more Canadian girls working longer hours to add to his millions.

Peterboro people must arise in wrath and smash the heartless machine. This is an industrial centre, the people of Peterboro are workers and they must protect their fellow workers from the grasping power of such men.

The only way to do it is to beat Peck, behind whose candidature this swashbuckling representative of the big interests stands.

PECK'S HENCHMEN OPENING THEIR LAST AWFUL ASSAULT

Whispering here and there at the street corners and in homes throughout the city, with a little spare time work in stores and restaurants and a really intensive campaign at the committee rooms, Mr. Peck's resourceful helpers have been spreading calumny after calumny about G. N. Gordon. Yesterday they had him charged with some offence in connection with the Toronto Harbor Commission; today they say he has brought from the dead a notorious ballot fixer to win his election.

The first story was blasted last night by Mr. Gordon himself, when he explained the entire transaction in a way that showed the foolishness of the hordes of whisperers, and as for the ballot plugger, he dropped from social contact twenty years ago and had not been heard of until his name sprang to ready lips to-day as a way to injure, perchance, G. N. Gordon.

The rumor that Mr. Gordon had accepted a thousand dollars from the Toronto Harbor Commission to use his influence as a minister to put through certain legislation regarding the viaduct agreement was spread throughout the city yesterday, and it was said that a complete expose would be made, accompanied by photographs of the cheque which had been abstracted from the Commission's files.

"Bribery and corruption," whispered the schemers, "let us combine to ditch him."

And What is it all about?

Here is Mr. Gordon's explanation:

"I make no claim to any special ability, but I ask you to judge me as my Conservative friends have judged me. Before I was appointed a member of the cabinet, a Conservative member of parliament—Tommy Church—asked me to act for the Toronto Harbor Commission. I was asked to act in an advisory capacity after the viaduct plan had been put through parliament—a question involving twenty-seven millions of dollars. Mr. Church was good enough to tell me that I was chosen because of my experience and success in tackling big problems. I am proud to say that the matter was put through successfully, and I received a thousand dollars for my services."

Mr. Gordon spoke to his constituents regarding the duties of a cabinet minister. "I am absolutely opposed to a member of the government engaging in any sort of business," he said.

"For my own part I have not touched a brief since I have been a minister. All my time, all my energy, whatever ability I possess, belongs to the country.

As a matter of fact, here is what one of the Harbor Commissioners thinks of our G. N. Gordon:

"In my opinion, he is one of the most able lawyers in the dominion, and that opinion was endorsed by the members of the commission. When the viaduct question came up it was Mr. Church who suggested Mr. Gordon. He was retained because we knew he was experienced in tackling big problems. He is aggressive and forceful; he has the ability to get things done—and that is what we wanted.

"In the negotiations regarding the viaduct he justified our judgment. He interviewed the solicitors of the two railway companies; he was in constant touch with me, and he threw all his energy into the task. It is hardly necessary to say that he accomplished what he set out to accomplish."

Another attempt has been made to drag religious issues into the campaign. Certain of Mr. Peck's closest associates have spread the new that if Mr. Gordon is elected he will work agains tthe Roman Catholic Separate schools. Peterborough knows G. N. Gordon better than to credit that product of a diseased mind. Mr. Gordon has declared specifically that he never made such a statement or intimated such a plan, or formed such a programme. Mr. Gordon's Roman Catholic friends knew that in seeking the good of the community he is not swayed by religious factions or prejudices.

Mr. Peck's followers realize to-day that their game is up and that they have lost. Mr. Meighen was a disappointment on Saturday. He did not bolster up the weak case made out by Mr. Peck; he had not a single, solitary, new idea; he had no inspiring ideal; only a speech of platitudes that sent even his party followers away with a sensation of emptiness.

This talk of higher tariff sounded well to some for a time, but it is impossible to fool all the people for very long. Peterborough people do not follow the crowd, they think for themselves; and this time their thinking has brought out the inherent weakness in the only plan Mr. Peck has—higher tariff for the protection of the wealthy.

The people of West Peterborough cannot see their way clear to pay for that, privilege though Mr. Peck may consider it.

EXCITEMENT AT CAMPBELLFORD MEETING WHEN PEOPLE QUESTION STATEMENTS MADE BY SPEAKER

MANUFACTURERS.

Messrs. Weston, Bell and Rollo Questioned the Speaker on Tariff.

CAMPBELLFORD, Oct. 27.—The meeting held Monday night in the Regent Theatre, in the interests of Fred J. Slade, the Liberal candidate, in Northumberland county, had all the elements of excitement of the old time joint sessions of the two parties. Everything went along smoothly until Sam Clarke, M. L. A. referred to the speech made at the Conservative meeting Friday night by R. C. Weston, local shoe manufacturer, who complained of the present fiscal policy as it applied to his business, and which he said limited the operation of his factory to four days a week.

Mr. Clarke said that a manufacturer who could not succeed under the protection which had been given the shoe manufacturers for the past 50 years, in addition to the local assistance which they had received, he should try something else, or go somewhere else.

Mr. Weston Explains.

Mr. Weston, who was present, rose from his seat in the rear of the hall, and asked that he be permitted a word of explanation. He was invited to the platform and was given the floor.

Mr. Weston said that he had never claimed that the tariff affected the price of shoes. What he did maintain was that if the duty were removed Canadian manufacturers could not make shoes much, if any, cheaper, than they are doing to-day, and that they would be swamped by importations from the United States. He then submitted three questions which he asked Mr. Clarke to answer, as follows:

Why are so many Canadians going to the United States to look for work?

If protection is bad, why have 67 countries raised their tariff rates since the war?

Why are so many manufacturers failing?

Mr. Clarke's Answers.

Mr. Clarke answered these questions categorically. There are spoon-fed manufacturers started up in small towns by companies who got loans or whose bonds are guaranteed, and who get other local concessions as well. Anybody could start business on such terms. They run a while and fail, often leaving the municipality in the lurch. The barrel factory at Hastings was cited as an example.

These factories drew the young men from the farm, and when they failed the employees did not care to go back to the land but went to the United States to look for work. There was only an imaginary line between the two countries, the people spoke the same language, and immigration to the United States was closed against all other countries in the world. Canadians only were admitted and that fact spoke volumes to the credit of Canada and her people.

The United States with its diversity of climate is a world in itself. Canada has practically one climate. It is a producer of natural products. The trouble is that it has been for 50 years trying to produce peaches, oranges and other semi-tropical fruits in a climate never designed for their growth. To grow cauliflower under a pine roof is a costly experiment. Mr Clarke's answer to the first question contained the information that was sought for in the third.

Woollen Mills Heard From.

Mr. Clarke's statement that the King tariff had not been injurious to Canada precipitated another tempest. J. H. Bell, local manager of the Campbellford Cloth Company, who was brought from England 2½ years ago to fill that position objected to this statement, and he, too, was invited to the platform. He said that the British preference had been lowered in 1924, and that thirty million yards of cloth had been imported into this country in one year. Wages in England and Germany are half what they are in Canada and the imported cloth could be sold at a lower price than that of Canadian make.

"When you go to buy material, dyes, machinery and the like," said Mr. Clarke, "you would go to the cheapest market, would you not?"

"So would you," replied Mr. Bell.

"Of course I would," was Mr. Clarke's reply, "and that is what I always want to do."

Mr. Bell said that the present Government had given a preferential tariff to Belgium, Spain, France, Italy and other countries two and a half per cent. lower than the general schedule, but Mr. Clarke regarded this as a mere bagatelle.

Another Mill Man.

Alex. Rollo, accountant for the local cloth company, at this point broke into the discussion, and he, too, attributed the present difficulties to the British preference.

The hall was crowded, and the Conservatives in the audience cheered lustily everything uttered by their spokesmen; the Liberals being just as vociferous in their appreciation of Mr. Clarke. That battle-scarred warhorse appeared to enjoy the controversy and spoke with all his old time fire and vigor.

"We have heard men charge the Liberals with disloyalty," he said. "But I have lived in this world for 70 years and I have not met half a dozen men who were not patriotic, Grits or Tories. The very men who howled when the King Government proposed to put a small distinguishing mark on the flag are the very ones who object to Britain being given a small preference in the matter of trade. I believe in that preference as practical patriotism. Britain is our father and our mother and if we were in trouble to-morrow she would come to our aid at once." I am glad that this gentleman (Mr. Bell) was frank enough to confess that he would go to the cheapest market for anything he wanted to buy, and I see no reason why we should not all have that privilege."

Mr. Clarke held the floor, without apparent weariness, for nearly an hour and a half.

Mr. Slade Asks Support.

A. J. Meyers presided, and said that it gave him especial pleasure to preside at a gathering held in the interests of the Liberal party. He invited the following to take seats on the platform with the speakers: Mrs. L. B. Glover, Mrs. A. J. Richard of Warkworth, Mrs. W. S. Wiggins, Mrs. D. W. Douglas, Mrs. J. Nelson Stone, Mrs. Meyers, D. J. Lynch, J. M. Ferris and Dr. W. Douglas.

Mr. Slade, who was the first speaker, affirmed his allegiance to the principles of the Liberal party. The Government had been in office for four years, and no charge had been ever made against the Premier or any member of his Cabinet.

One reason why the people of Northumberland should support the Liberals was that Hon. G. N. Gordon, a native of the county, would if the Government was sustained, be in the Cabinet, probably as Postmaster General and he could be depended upon to look after the interests of the riding in which he was born. Another near local Cabinet possibility was Hon. Vincent Massey running in the adjoining county, and in these two men Northumebrland would have two powerful men at court.

"The Liberal party," said Mr. Slade, "is not for free trade. We are for a moderate tariff that will preserve in unity of all sections of the Dominion. As to the C.N.R. I have just learned that for the first nine months of this year it earned one hundred and seventy million dollars more than in the corresponding period of 1924.

R. R. Hall, K.C.

R. R. Hall, K.C., of Peterboro, who made his first address in Campbellford last night, said that Mr. Meighen is gloomy and lacks the optimism which a political leader should possess. Canada has a heavy war debt but the debt per capita is exactly the same as that of England after the Napoleonic wars. England recovered from that burden and so will Canada, the latter, with all her wealth of natural resources having a better chance to do so.

Mr. Hall quoted figures to show that the finances of Canada had improved within the past four years, and that the Government by careful management had been able to reduce the debt and show a surplus. The trade balance was in Canada's favor and the Canadian dollar was at a premium.

Mr. Hall predicted that the Liberal government would have a majority over all. The Liberals will win at least 60 seats in Quebec and break even in the Maritime Provinces, for the recent elections in the latter disposed of local issues only.

"Then vote for Mr. Slade," said Mr. Hall. He is well spoken of everywhere. Why send a man to sit in the cold shades of opposition when you have a chance to elect a member who will be on the government side and in a position to do something for you."

Addressed the Ladies.

Mrs. Richards, who is engaged in her first political campaign, and who is winning the confidence of the people wherever she appears, urged the ladies to exercise their franchise and to support the Liberal party. She showed in her address that she is familiar with the political and social problems of the day. The Liberals, she said, had taken office with a majority so small that it was predicted that the government would not last six months, and yet during its term of four years it had never once been embarrassed for lack of support. That, the speaker said, was evidence that the country had a business administration and was an outstanding reason why it should be sent back. Hon. G. N. Gordon, by opposing a proposed increase on flour, oatmeal and its by products had won the plaudits of consumers from one end of the country to the other.

A solo by Herbert Leonard varied the programme and the popular vocalist was obliged to respond to an encore.

You'll Get Rid of Blackheads Sure

There is one simple, safe, and sure way that never fails to get rid of blackheads, that is to dissolve them. To do this, get two ounces of peroxine powder from any drug store—sprinkle a little on a hot, wet cloth—rub over the blackheads briskly—wash the parts and you will be surprised how the blackheads have disappeared. Big blackheads, little blackheads, no matter where they are, simply dissolve and disappear. Blackheads are a mixture of dust and dirt and secretions that form in the pores of the skin. The peroxine powder and the water dissolve the blackheads so they wash right out, leaving the pores free and clean and in their natural condition.

TORONTO GREETS MEIGHEN WITH OVERFLOW MEET

Arraigned Fiscal Policy in No Uncertain Terms—Scathing Denunciation.

LOG-ROLLING TACTICS.

Policy of Forefathers Applied to Needs of the Present Day.

TORONTO, Oct. 27.—(Canadian Press).—"The policy upon which our forefathers decided in 1878 applied to the needs of the present day — a sound and truly Canadian policy, when the faces of Canadians will be turned up once more, when the door of industry will be open to our exiles, and the door of opportunity to all—the policy which will make the tariff on all goods we make, or ought to make, in this country high enough that industry will function whether that industry be farm, factory or mine." Such was the platform on which the Right Hon. Arthur Meighen, leader of the Conservative party in Canada, appealed to the electors at Massey Hall last night.

One of the largest political gatherings in the history of the city met to hear the pronouncement. Long before the doors were opened the auditorium was besieged by a throng of people whose numbers appeared to remain undiminished after every available seat had been taken, and Victoria Hall filled for an overflow meeting.

A scathing denunciation of the King administration, Mr. Meighen's speech was began in tones so low as to be almost inaudible, even in the first few rows of seats. Holding up the record of the Government for examination, he arraigned its fiscal policy in no uncertain terms, charging to "the log-rolling tactics on which the tariff is based," the closing of factories in every part of the Dominion and the exit of thousands of Canadians to the United States.

Hon. G. Howard Ferguson, Premier, who was one of the other speakers of the evening, also appealed for protection for the home markets.

PROCEDURE VARIES IN POLLING DIVISIONS

In Rural Parts Names May Be Added to List Under Oath.

OTTAWA, Oct. 27 (Canadian Press)—Procedure at the polls on Thursday wil differ according to whether the polling division is an urban or a rural one. Urban polling divisions are those contained in incorporated cities and towns having a population of 5000 or more or included in certain other areas in which the population is so dense or so transient that the Chief Electoral Officer has directed that urban procedure should apply. In such polling divisions no one whose name does not appear on the list may vote, even if he is qualified, but in rural polling divisions the omission of a qualified voter's name from the list does not prevent him voting in the polling division in which he is residing on polling day. He may go to the poll with some other resident of the polling division whose name is on the list, and upon his taking the oaths of qualification and being vouched for as qualified by the other voter, his name may be added to the list and he may vote.

CHINESE TARIFF CONFERENCE IN WINTER PALACE

Proposals Made That Customs Autonomy Be Restored.

PROGRESS MADE.

Rioting Outside Hall as the Students Seek to Gain Admission.

PEKIN, Oct. 27. Canadian Press.—Delegates of 12 powers, besides China assembled in the picturesque winter palace in the old forbidden city of the Emperors yesterday for the opening of the Chinese Customs Conference and heard China's spokesman propose that the powers restore to her compete control of her customs tariff, withheld for 80 years by her foreign treaties.

While smooth progress was made within the conference hall, where the foreign delegates made sympathetic replies to China's requests, there was disorder outside. Two thousand students, carrying banners reviling the provisional government, held a demonstration outside the winter palace enclosure, demanding entrance. When this was refused they battled the police with sticks and stones, killing one policeman and seriously wounding a score more. Several students were injured and others arrested.

The keynote of the powers' replies was struck by John V. A. MacMurray, the United States Minister, who said the United States was prepared to consider open-mindedly and generously any reasonable plan with a view to realizing China's aspirations.

The statement of the rather Conservative Japanese attitude was given by Yki Hioki, who reminded the Chinese that Japan had won the tariff autonomy only after a struggle of 53 years, and that China would expect to reach her goal only by successive stages. He asserted that tariff autonomy presupposed the existence of a strong, unified government and the removal of restrictions impending on foreign trade.

Sir Ronald Macleay, British Minister, said that Great Britain was prepared to discuss tariff autonomy either at this conference or a later one.

COAL DEMONSTRATION.

Canadian Coal Carbonizing Co. Demonstrated Apparatus Yesterday.

The Canadian Coal Carbonizing Company of Canada, the concern which is engaged in the conversion of ordinary slack coal into a fuel which may be used in range or furnace or grate, after having by a special process, had its elements of oil and gas removed, has secured a temporary demonstrating station in connection with the big furnaces at the Peterboro Milk Products plant on Aylmer street. Here the conversion of this soft, oily black product into a fine lumpy coal may be witnessed, in the process which is called a demonstration of "super-heat" by the company. The method is very interesting showing the means used in carrying off the oils and gases and leaving the coal in its converted state.

"CHARLIE DUNNING IS A COLLEAGUE OF MINE IN THE CABINET."

Hon. G. N. Gordon in the Opera House last night.

Mr. Gordon was guilty of a serious slip in the statement. Mr. Dunning is not a colleague of his, and is not likely to be. Mr. Dunning is PREMIER OF SASKATCHEWAN AND IS NOT A CANDIDATE in this election. The reason is not hard to find.

Mr. Dunning's opinion of the King Government's ability to carry the country is not sufficiently optimistic to justify him in taking a chance. He's not going to throw away the bone for the shadow.

He'll come into the cabinet afterward if the government is sustained, but the outlook is not bright enough for him to toss away a SURE PROVINCIAL PREMIERSHIP for a DOUBTFUL FEDERAL PORTFOLIO.

Mr. Dunning is contributing nothing but his voice to the Government in this campaign and there are two things that stand in the way of his becoming a colleague of Mr. Gordon's.

First, Mr. Gordon would have to be elected, and second the King Government would have to be sustained.

As there is no chance of the first and little chance of the second happening, the Dunning-Gordon partnership is only a myth, even if Mr. Gordon is now voicing Mr. Dunning's free trade policy.

PETERBOROUGH CHURCHES

AT KNOX.

At the morning service the sacrament of the Lord's Supper was dispensed and new members were welcomed into the fellowship of the church. The minister preached on I Cor., 11: 26, emphasizing the real purpose of the sacrament, to show forth the Lord's death till he come. The central truth of the Gospel is the sacrificial death of God's Son. It is not enough to remember His teaching. He did not say that His teaching, His miracles or His manner of life would draw all men unto Him, but that His being lifted up would. "and this spoke He of the death that He should die." Following Jesus, His disciples placed the cross first. "First of all," says Paul, "how that Christ died for our sins." "God forbid that I should glory save in the cross of our Lord Jesus Christ." True to this New Testament conception, the bread of the sacrament is broken and the wine poured out to symbolize the suffering of Christ on Calvary.

But His death was no mere martyrdom. He chose to die for men, and His death was His own accomplishment at Jerusalem. He came not merely to teach, but to redeem men, not merely to enlighten men but to deliver from sin. And it was on the Cross that the deliverance was effected. If we forget this we forget the heart of the sacrament. Let us hear the sermon on the Mount, but let us go then to the cross upon the Hill. In the words of Matthew Arnold spoken after hearing "Ian Maclaren" preach on "The Shadow of the Cross," "Yes, the cross remains, and, in the straits of the soul, makes its ancient appeal."

In the evening a special service was held with a ladies' choir and a lady speaker representing the Women's Missionary work of the United Church. The speaker was Mrs. B. M. Johnston, of Toronto. She presented a very comprehensive and interesting survey of the W.M.S. work, showing most remarkable growth in the last fifty years, from 100 to 100,000 members in the Presbyterian Church alone, and a budget last year amounting to half a million dollars. It must have amazed those not in touch with the Women's work to learn the vast extent of their varied undertakings in the Home and Foreign fields, and a new interest in the cause must certainly follow upon Mrs. Johnston's visit to Peterborough.

AT ST. PAUL'S CHURCH.

It was a wonderful word picture that Rev. Wm. Allen unfolded before a large congregation in St. Paul's Presbyterian Church, Sunday evening from an incident in the life of the Lord. Week by week, Rev. Mr. Allen is showing himself to be an unusual student and teacher of the Scriptures and the increasing interest in his addresses indicates the appreciation of those who have been following his work since his arrival in Peterboro'.

The subject of Rev. Mr. Allan's sermon was "A night when every man went home." It was based on the last verse in the 7th chapter of St. John, which reads "And every man went into his own home." The Feast of Tabernacles was to be observed. Jesus knew the enmity against Him of the Chief Priests, the Scribes and the Pharasees. He knew that they plotted to kill him. He hesitated to go up openly to the Feast for fear they might be surprised into an attack upon Him before His work was accomplished. He, therefore, sent up His disciples and followed them afterwards, as it were in secret, in order that His advent might not be so noticeable. Because the common people had felt the oppression of the religious leaders of the Jews they admired all the more the fearless manner in which Jesus had unmasked their hypocrisy.

It is significent that where the Feasts are spoken of in the Book of Leviticus, they are mentioned as the "Feasts of the Lord," but these feasts had been so manipulated by the Jews that the Feast of Tabernacles is referred to in the Gospel of John as "The Jews' Feast." Man always is inclined to abuse God's gifts and in this case the feast had been robbed of its glory and divine characteristics. In this respect it was not unlike what is taking place in many pulpits today where religious leaders no longer confine their attacks upon the Scriptures to the Old Testament, but centre them upon the Deity of the Lord. There are two great sacraments of the Christian Church, Christian Baptism and the Lord's Supper. Neither of these sacraments have any significance where the Lord has been robbed of His Deity.

Christ stood in the midst of the people. This was where he belonged. Unless he is the centre of our lives, of our homes, of our business, of our church worship, they are not what they should be. He assured the people that if they would drink of the water which he would give them from within them would flow rivers of living water. He did not refer to wells where water might grow stagnant, nor to a river of water, but to rivers of living water. This promise has been fulfilled in the lives of many Christians, notably in the lives of such men as Rev. Chas. Spurgeon, Dwight L. Moody and others.

At the close of the feast we read that every man went unto his own home. They had been in touch with the living God. They had had a wonderful opportunity to drink of the living water. Such is true of people who attend Divine services where God's Word is faithfully forthtold. Yet it is quite possible that we may fall under the same condemnation as the Jews by returning to our homes untouched by the word of life preached in our hearing. Rev. Mr. Allan closed by inviting all present to drink of the living wine.

A large mixed adult Bible Class under Mr. Allan's teaching is meeting every Sunday afternoon and the attendance at the weekly Wednesday night prayer meeting has grown so large that it is taxing the accommodation of the large Guild Room. On Wednesday evening of this week there will be a congregational social to tender a welcome to Mr. and Mrs. Allan, and to extend farewell greetings to Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Madill, who are leaving the city to reside in Toronto, after being residents of Peterboro' for thirty-four years.

AT ST ANDREW'S

Special services were held at St. Andrew's Church Sunday, both morning and evening.

The Women's Missionary Society had charge of the morning service, the speaker being Mrs. B. M. Johnston of Toronto. Mrs. Johnston's clear, quiet voice and eager, energetic manner of speech was easily heard everywhere and the whole of the important field of work being carried on by the W. M. S. was carefully covered in an intensely interesting address. The choir provided special music in keeping with the occasion.

The evening service was devoted to the singing of familiar hymns. At times the congregation sang alone, unaccompanied by either choir or organ and demonstrated that St. Andrew's folk can sing and love to sing. Again, choir and congregation alternated in singing the verses of a hymn, while all joined in singing the chorus. Mr. Hugh Niven and Mrs. Ford Turner sang "Jesus Lover of My Soul" as a duet, and Mrs. Park sang "I've Found a Friend." The choir sang, unaccompanied, "Oh Love That Will Not Let Me Go," and "Now the Day is Over."

The organ numbers by Mr. Crane were all selected from the hymnal, as were all the choir selections. Mr. Gordon gave a brief talk on "Jesus Lover of My Soul." It was a real service of worship throughout and quietly inspiring and enjoyable. Such Sunday evening services of praise and worship will be repeated from time to time.

ST PETER'S CATHEDRAL

Taking his text from the Epistle of St. Paul to the Ephesians, the sixth chapter, the tenth to the seventeenth verses, Rev. J. Finn, speaking at the morning Masses at St. Peter's Cathedral Sunday, elaborated on the theme chosen by the great Apostle to the Gentiles, when he likened the armor worn by a Roman soldier to the spiritual armor that should be worn by the true Christian.

St. Paul, writing to those early converts of Ephesus, strove to lift their minds and thoughts from the warfare of the world which is the lot of every individual. Satan, said the reverend speaker, once having gained entrance to the soul, tries with all his might to prevent his victim from turning back to God in a repentant spirit, strives to keep him from confessing his sin, and in this way makes sure of the eternal damnation of that soul.

The armor of God recommended by the writer was the helmet of salvation, epitomizing the Christian virtue of hope and the breastplate of justice was emblematic of the virtue of charity, not the narrow concept of charity which rests only with giving to the poor, but the larger meaning of the word which sees in every soul the image of its Maker.

The shield of faith was necessary to withstand the fiery darts of the Evil One. These things constituted the defensive armor of the Christian and to these was added only one offensive weapon, "the sword of the Spirit," the word of God.

This sword of the Spirit, the word of God, was contained in the Books of Holy Writ, and the Catholic Church grants an indulgence to the daily readers of the Scriptures.

TWO MEN HURT IN CAR CRASH

Down Brothers Were Rendered Unconscious in Accident.

ROSENEATH, Oct. 27.—Two young men of Roseneath, Louis and Leslie Down, sustained a painful accident on Friday evening last, when the Pord runabout in which they had intended taking a journey to Toronto, collided near the subway at Port Hope with a Studebaker touring car driven by Mr. Kingsley, of Cobourg. The young men claim that Mr. Kingsley was on the wrong side of the road. Both were picked up in an unconscious condition and taken to the hospital at Port Hope, where an examination showed them to be badly cut and bruised. A number of stitches were taken in their wounds and they were able to return to their home in Roseneath on Sunday.

W M S MEETING HELD

Returned Missionary From Formosa Told of Work There.

BURNBRAE, Oct. 27.—The Burnbrae Unionist W.M.S. met at the home of Mrs. Geo. Hay, Menie, on Friday evening last. The Rylstone Auxiliary were guests of the evening and gave a short programme. Miss Glacie, a returned missionary from Formosa, was present and addressed the gathering. She gave a splendid description of the work for Christ in that far-distant land. Rev. C. Daniel, of the Seymour Circuit, also gave a short address. Lunch was served at the close of the programme. The offering amounted to $11.75.

Communion Service.

Communion services were held at St. Andrew's Church on Sunday. The heavy rain during the forenoon prevented as large an attendance as usual.

Burnbrae was well-represented at the fowl-suppers held at St. Andrew's Campbellford, and Tabernacle Church, English Line last week, as well as at Stirling United Church on Monday of this week

George Rutherford.

There passed away on Friday last a highly respected resident of Rylstone and one who was well-known to Burnbrae people, in the person of George Rutherford. Deceased had been ill for several months. Funeral services were held at Rylstone church on Monday at 2 p.m., with interment in Rylstone cemetery

Election Again.

Farmers here have been much too busy to worry over national, politics and as a result there has been little excitement over the election. Indications point to a smaller vote than usual being polled at local stations.

Mr. Chas. Milne, Menie, had the misfortune to strain the ligaments of his arm while cranking his car last Friday evening.

Mrs. Bisonette and Miss Hume, of Stirling have been visiting relatives at Burnbrae and Menie.

Mr. John Rannie, who has been seriously ill of pneumonia, is improving slowly.

MAKE PRESENTATION.

Evening Spent in Games and Music Enjoyed By All.

BETHANY, Oct. 27.—On Thursday evening the members of the Young Ladies' Mission Club of the United Church held a social evening at the home of the Misses Jackson. The time was spent in games, contests and music. During the evening, one of their number, Mrs. Leslie Challice, nee Miss Irene Staples, was presented with a number of very dainty gifts as tokens of the esteem with which she has been held by her fellow-members of the club. After the presentations were made, refreshments were served. The evening was greatly enjoyed by all.

HUGE ENGINE UPSET.

Backing Down Gangway When it Overturned—Driver Was Unhurt.

BETHANY, Oct. 27.—While Wm. McMaster was moving his threshing outfit into the barn of Ernest Fallis on Friday evening, a peculiar accident happened. It seems that the gangway into the barn is built on a curve with a drop of about eight feet. McMaster was successful in getting the separator safely into the barn but in backing the traction engine down the gangway it overturned, landing wheels uppermost. Mr. McMaster was fortunate in being able to jump clear of the engine, and so escaped injury. The engine, when righted, was found to be only slightly damaged.

ADVERTISE IN THE EXAMINER

October 27th, 1925.

TO THE FARMERS OF ONTARIO:

Dear Sirs:

On every platform from Halifax to Vancouver, I have declared in identical language the Conservative Platform of a National Policy of Protection for farmer and factory-worker alike.

The farmers of our country are shut out of the United States' market by a prohibitive tariff, while American farm products, on a low Canadian tariff, are dumped into your own home market in unfair competition with you.

As a result there were imported into Canada in the fiscal year ending 31st March, 1924, to be sold in competition with you $149,201,231 of farm products and these include only such farm products as are raised in our own country. (See Trade & Commerce Reports p 1420).

The Conservative party is pledged to protect you, and that pledge will be carried out to the letter by placing on farm products entering this country from the United States a tariff equal to theirs. Furthermore, the Conservative party is pledged to assist you in well-considered schemes of co-operative marketing.

In short, the National Policy, as declared by the Conservative party, is to foster the farming industry of this country by Government assistance in the provision of adequate tariff protection, and by dealing on generous lines with the difficulties now experienced by you in marketing your products at stable and remunerative prices.

Wishing you every prosperity, I am,

Yours sincerely,

(ARTHUR MEIGHEN.)

Rev. Father Bretherton, the present clergyman, acted as chairman and extended a hearty welcome to all present, both of his own parish, and those of the other churches. CAILLAUX VICTOR AGAINST MAJORITY Obtained Consent To Institute Criminal Proceedings Against Speculators.

PARIS, Oct. 27. — (Canadian Press.)—Finance Minister Caillaux faced an opposition majority in the council of ministers yesterday and won a victory, at least temporary.

Faced with the demand that he either compromise in his opposition to capital levy or resign, he not only refused and made the ministers agree to consider his financial programme, but he demanded and obtained their consent to criminal proceedings against big speculators whom he attacked in his speech in Sarthe. He was strengthened in his attack on the French bankers by wild speculation, which knocked the bottom out from under France when the Bourse opened yesterday.

TWO KILLED IN CROSSING WRECK

Coupe Containing Three Persons Was Struck By Fast Train.

CAR DESTROYED.

ST. THOMAS, Ont., Oct. 27.—(Canadian Press) - Carl Coyle, aged 21 years, a school teacher, and Miss Ethel Jamieson, aged 17, a telephone operator, both residents of Springfield, Ontario, were instantly killed about six o'clock Sunday night when an automobile in which they were riding was struck by a fast Michigan Central Railway train at the first crossing east of Springfield, 30 miles east of this city. The train, which was made up of deadhead equipment, was travelling at a high rate of speed. It was in charge of Conductor Norman Murray and Engineman Thomas Oddy, both of St. Thomas.

There was a high wind blowing at the time of the accident, and it is believed that rain on the windshield prevented Coyle from seeing the approach of the train. The impact was terrific, the car was smashed to pieces and the occupants hurled into the air. Coyle is survived by his wife. He was in the coupe on his way to Springfield to get a sister and gave a "lift" to Miss Jamieson, who was on her way to work.

NEW SOUTH WALES PARLIAMENT SESSION TO BE STRENUOUS ONE

To Re-introduce Proposal of Forty-four Hour Working Week.

INSURANCE SYSTEM.

Problem of Facing Bitter Atmosphere With Such Desirable Concessions.

SYDNEY, N.S.W., Oct. 27 (Canadian Press).—The first working session of the present parliament of New South Wales, which has just been opened, promises to be a strenuous one, and if all the proposals submitted by the Labor Government be given effect, it will be a notable one also. The programme contained, in addition to important industrial proposals, ameliorative measures relating to primary producers, economic correctiveness—especially in the direction of reducing the great difference between the prices paid to primary producers for their products and those paid by the consumer, as well as social improvements, and the vigorous application of a development policy as affecting both primary and secondary industries.

The most important of the industrial proposals is the re-introduction of the 44-hour working week, and the setting up of a State system of unemployed and social insurance. With regard to the former, Hon. T. T. Lang, the Premier, claims that the State's previous experience of the shorter working week had shown clearly that the fears expressed by political opponents had not been realized, and that on the contrary the progress of New South Wales had been just as sound and vigorous as ever. In support of that, he has quoted comparative official statistics, prepared by an unbiassed authority, which shows that in both primary and secondary production there were marked increases, while the 44-hour week was in force before.

"The only trouble," Premier Lang remarked in a recent interview, "is that desirable concessions of this character have to be forced very often in an atmosphere of bitterness, when the ready recognition and voluntary granting of them by the employers would be of inestimable benefit, not only to employes but to the employers themselves, as well as to society in general.

"There are instances not only in the United Kingdom, but in United States and in New South Wales, where employers have voluntarily given special consideration to the health, comfort and financial prospects of their employees, and in return are receiving the most energetic and loyal service of which the staffs are capable. Unfortunately for general industrial efficiency and harmony such cases are rare. There would be less bitterness, less talk of revolution, and greater individual effort if employers as a whole paid more attention to the human and less to the selfish and grasping side of their business."

The abolition of capital punishment, extension to women of eligibility for appointment to the Legislative Council, and a change in the electoral system by a reversion to single seats are outstanding proposals. Although while in office on previous occasions, Labor governments have exercised the executive prerogative of mercy in cases where the death penalty had been pronounced by the Court, the law itself has never been altered. The passage of the amending bill this session will, therefore, constitute an historical change in the criminal law of the State.

Equaly historic will be the advent of women in the Upper House, for the establishment of eligibility is sure to be followed by the appointment of one or more women to the Legislative Council. Such action would be in accord with the public wish in view of the return at the last election of a woman member to the elective branch of the legislature.

The proposed abolition of proportional representation marks the end of a practical experiment in a system which is considered by the great majority of members of Parliament, and possibly of the people, to have been wanting because of its intricacy.

The measures framed to remove disabilities under which settlers on the Murrumbidgee Irrigation area and settlers in general have been placed are welcomed in the country districts. Their passage through Parliament will, it is confidently expected, lead to more effective occupation of the land and stimulate settlement. The Government's proposal to call a conference of producers and consumers with a view to evolving a scheme of marketing beneficial to both, is regarded as a practical step towards the solution of one of the most difficult economic problems.

The provisions of pensions for widows in necessitous circumstances has been generally applauded, although a few critics have questioned the Government's ability to find the necessary funds for the purpose. Premier Lang, who has made a close study of the finances since his return to office, does not, however, an-

TERRIFIC WINDS KILLED 21 ALONG ATLANTIC COAST

Buildings Were Destroyed in Two Bad Storms on Sunday.

SEAPLANE WRECKED.

Trans-Atlantic Liners Held Up and Coast Ships Badly Damaged.

NEW YORK, Oct 27.—(Canadian Press).—Two devastating wind storms struck the Atlantic coast states yesterday and last night, resulting in at least 21 deaths and heavy damage to homes and shipping in Pike and Barbour counties, Alabama. A tornado sweeping in from the Texas coast killed sixteen persons, injured more than a score and levelled dozens of homes.

The second storm roaring in from the Atlantic, passed from the Maryland and Delaware coasts through New York and into New England.

Off Rockaway Point, New York, two fishermen were drowned and another fatality was reported by Woburn, Mass., where 500 houses were damaged and town thrown into darkness. National guardsmen were called out to protect property from looters.

In Baltimore, 17 navy sea planes assembled for manoeuvres in connection with the Schneider seaplane races broke from their moorings. Seven of them were completely wrecked and others badly damaged.

An expectant mother in New York City was killed when pulled out of window, when the wind twisted a clothes line around her. The child died after a caesarian operation had been performed.

The wind in New York is said to have attained a velocity of 85 miles per hour.

Transatlantic liners were delayed by the buffeting seas and smaller shipping along the coast was left in tangled confusion as the wind passed.

CHILDREN WARNED TO KEEP OFF POLES

Peterboro Utilities Commission Take Steps to Prevent Fatalities.

Recognizing the dangers involved in the presence of high tension lines and the proneness of people to disregard these dangers, the Peterboro Utilities Commission has seen fit to distribute warnings to the citizens. In a small poster entitled "Keep Off The Poles," the dangers are set forth, dealng particularly with the practice of kite flying and attaching radio aerials or wires of any kind to the high-voltage poles.

It is remembered that in Toronto this year, two fatalities occurred which could have been avoided if the people had known of the positive menace in the apparently innocent wires.

Parents are asked to warn their children of the danger of climbing the poles, not alone because of possible injury from shock, but also because of the damage to life and limb which would follow a fall.

R. J. FLEMING DIED THIS MORNING

Short Attack of Pneumonia Was Cause of Ex-Mayor's Death.

WAS 71 YEARS OLD.

TORONTO, Oct 27.—(Canadian Press).—Robert J. Fleming, former Mayor of Toronto and for many years General Manager of the Toronto Street Railway, died here yesterday morning after a brief illness from pneumonia.

The late Robert Fleming was a prominent figure in public life of the City of Toronto for nearly forty years. He was born in what is now the wholesale warehouse district of the city on November 23, 1854. As a boy he spent a few years in public school but the necessities of life sent him to work early. He developed an early aptitude for business life and made a success of the retail trade. He became heavily interested in Toronto real estate and made, lost and remade two or three fortunes in the course of his life.

In 1886 Mr. Fleming entered the City Council as an alderman. In 1892 he was elected Mayor and served four years in that high office. In 1897 he was appointed commissioner of assessment and held that post until 1903 when he accepted the position of general manager of the Toronto Street Railway, one of the many interests of the late Sir William Mackenzie.

Bear Selling Halts Surge But Motors Stem the Tide

NEW YORK, October 27.—[illegible] izing sales and bears selling assumed larger proportions in to-day's stock market, checking advance in a number of issues. Motors continued to surge upwards. Hudson soaring six points, Chrysler mounting to a new high level at 223 3-4, and General Motors touching a new peak at 138. While there was nothing in the day's news to influence the selling movement lightening of long accounts was suggested by several of the larger commission houses on the cry that the market was entitled to at least a technical reaction after the recent sustained advance. Some of the liquidation undoubtedly was also inspired by stiffer call money rates.

Mr. Gordon Apparently Has No Defence To Offer

Mr. Gordon has chosen to ignore the charges that have been brought against his political career and record.

He is dumb as to his failure to implement his promises of 1921—no explanation apparently to offer as to his failure to carry out the pledges he made then.

He is dumb as to his reasons for not lining up with other Liberal members from industrial centres who tried to save the country's industries from the Western free traders.

He is dumb as to his reasons for ignoring the City Council's resolution asking for protection for Peterborough's industries.

He is dumb as to his reasons for not giving the people of West Peterborough a true statement as to his portfolio and for launching immigration policies when he was only filling in as Minister of Immigration.

6 QUESTIONS:

1. What is Mr. Gordon's answer to the charge that in the campaign of 1921 he condemned the Meighen Government for not collecting the taxes of the Riordan Paper Company and promised that if a Liberal Government were placed in power the taxes of wealthy corporations would be collected "right off the bat," and that after he was elected he never stirred a finger to have this promise carried out?

2. What is Mr. Gordon's answer to the charge that in the campaign of 1921 he pledged himself to root out profiteers and that after he was elected he never stirred a finger to have this promise carried out?

3. What is Mr. Gordon's answer to the charge that although in the 1921 campaign he promised that no legitimate industries would suffer, he ignored a resolution from the City Council urging Protection for Peterborough's industries, treated his own pledge as a scrap of paper and refused to make a stand against tariff reduction?

4. What is Mr. Gordon's answer to the charge that while he allowed the people of West Peterborough to believe that he had been permanently appointed Minister of Immigration and further deceived them by launching a scheme to bring British settlers into Peterborough County, he admits that there was an understanding between the Premier and himself that the Immigration portfolio was to go to Hon. Mr. Dunning and he was to get another portfolio.

5. What is Mr. Gordon's answer to the charge made at St. Catharines on Friday night by Boyd Caldwell, well-known manufacturer and former Lib. candidate Lanark, that Mr Gordon had asked him to use his influence and have the woollen industry withhold bulletins on the condition of the industry "until after the election, when everything would be fixed all right."

6. What is Mr. Gordon's answer to the charge that in his newspaper advertising on Saturday night he allowed his press bureau to say that industries that cannot carry on business at the present tariff scale are not worth keeping?

These are six points upon which the electors of West Peterborough are entitled to an explanation from Mr. Gordon, six matters arising out of his last campaign, his term in office and the present campaign.

These are matters of public interest, and in appealing for another expression of confidence we submit that Mr. Gordon cannot ignore them.

FASCISM WILL STILL CARRY ON

Mussolini Proclaims an Unflinching Stand For Movement.

ADVERSARIES SPLIT.

ROME, Oct. 27th (United Press) — Fascism intends to carry on unflinchingly and unfailingly to achieve its goal.

Issuing a proclamation to commemorate the third anniversary of the Fascist march on Rome, Premier Mussolini, its moving spirit declared that in the ranks of Fascism's adversaries there was confusion and defeat.

"The third anniversary of the move," said the proclamation, "starting the revolution which we shall carry on to its unfailing goals, finds your ranks as close as at the beginning and also stern in discipline and ready to sacrifice.

"Confusion is prevailing in the ranks of your adversaries, the leaders of which admit their defeat and impotence. The old semi-liberal regime is buried for good, while the real Italian people give the Fascist Government a wide and local consent as they did on the eve of our insurrection. This is the gratifying truth after three years.

"In its third year, the Fascist revolution, proceeded far ahead of the foundations, the Fascist state originally laid in its originized system.

"We are about to carry out the fundamental principles of our doctrine. All working masses are lined up beneath the emblem of the Fascist State supreme. There is a balance synthesis of all forces and interests and this constitutes the original creation of the Fascist revolution.

FINE PROGRAMME AT GEORGE STREET

Jean Fowler Entertainers Pleased Large Audience Last Night.

The first of a series of three concerts which will be held this season under the auspices of George Street Church choir was given in the Sunday school hall of the church last evening, before an audience of over three hundred people, who appeared very appreciative of the fine entertainment afforded by a trio of very clever musicians and readers, the Jean Fowler Entertainers of Boston, Mass., with members in the Misses Fowler, Smith and Spaulding. Readings of serious and humorous import, dances, instrumental numbers on piano and violin and songs, formed the programme, which was interesting from start to finish. The entertainers were introduced by the choir leader, Mr. J. H. Renwick.

Miss Fowler, a very fine elocutionist, gave a number of readings. The most impressive was the Peter B. Kyne story of the outlaws who take to the desert after being shot in a bandit raid, find there a dying woman with a tiny infant, and decide to redeem their lives.

Another odd bit was the somewhat sombre reading of "Nobody," the recital by the one for whom nobody cared, and who cared for nobody. "You don't know what you're missin'" was a reading in duet, and was followed, as were the other selections, by humorous encores. A whimsical number was the tale of the talkative lady suffering from nueralgia, given, as were the other selections, in appropriate costume.

The vocal numbers by Miss Smith, possessor of a lovely soprano voice, and the exceptionally clever violin playing of Miss Spaulding, were much enjoyed. Miss Smith sang, among other numbers, the pretty "Come to the Fair," with an encore in "Tipperary Mary," and Miss Spaulding, besides furnishing violin obligato to several of the numbers, played a fine setting of Gypsy Airs, with an encore in "Juanita," a muted string rendition of "Traumerei," followed by an arrangement of Old Irish Airs.

The trio of entertainers gave a graceful gypsy dance, with tambourines, a little Dutch skit, entitled "The Little Wooden Shoe," and its encore, in "Jeannette," and finished a splendid programme with "Songs of Long Ago," showing the difference between the sweet songs of other days and those of modern times, also illustrating the difference between the stately minuet of bygone days.

The second of this series of concerts will be given on November 4th, when the Royal Holland Bell-Ringers will give the entertainment.

ILLUSTRATED TALK AT GOSPEL HALL

Mr. Billester Told of Conditions at Mission in Russia.

Mr. M. Billester, formerly pastor of Bethany Tabernacle here, gave a very interesting lecture on present-day conditions in Russia, with particular reference to the work of the Mission with which he is connected, before a good-sized audience in Bethany Tabernacle last night. Mr. and Mrs. Billister have spent the past year and a quarter in Russia and Latvia, engaged in missionary work among the people, and the address last evening was illustrated by a series of interesting lantern slides.

Mr. Billester spoke of the action of the Soviet in striving to drive out all religion from Russia, and in destroying the churches and the sacred images in them. The people, however, he declared, were now seeking for religion once more, and were eager and anxious to hear the word of God. They would come for miles to hear the Scriptures expounded, and would listen for hours to sermons given them by the Mission workers.

Mr. Billester spoke of the large field open for such endeavor in Russia at the present time, and of the crying need for workers and funds. He, with Mrs. Billester, is making a tour of Canada and the United States in the interests of the cause.

PETER RYAN OF TORONTO DEAD

Well Known Politician Died Last Night After Long Illness.

A FINE SPEAKER.

TORONTO, Oct. 27 (Canadian Press) — Peter Ryan died shortly after six o'clock last evening in his 84th year. Mr. Ryan was siezed with a severe illness in July last and had been bedridden ever since that time.

Peter Ryan of Toronto Ont

Peter Ryan had lived an inconspicuous life so long before his death that only those who recall the stirring times of the seventies and the eighties realize that one of the brightest political debaters that has appeared in Canada has just passed away. The late John Ross Robertson, founder of the Toronto Telegram once said that Mr. Ryan was the finest public speaker who had ever been heard in Ontario, with the single exception of the Hon. William McDougall, a Highland orator.

Stories without number have been told about Mr. Ryan's ready wit. One of the best concerns his impromptu appearance on the platform of the Toronto African church, when this city had a "colored district." He rounded up the "colored vote" for an Irish candidate by referring to hem as the great warrior race who, like the Irish had been enslaved. He had himself he said seen statues of England's greatest warrior, "The Black Prince," and also Scotland's illustrious war hero, "The Black Douglas."

Peter Ryan was born in Carlisle, England, of Irish parentage on Augst5 23, 1843. Thrown on his own resources at the early age of 14 he found his ready flow of language an asset as an auctioneer and salesman at English country fairs. Later he went to sea and the American civil war period found him selling contraband of war to the South. He came to Canada in the late sixties.

RUMANIA INTERVENES GRECO-BULGAR SCRAP

M. Carapanos Makes Announcement at Meeting of League Council.

A naval demonstration before Athens is a possible League of Nations move, should the Government of Premier Pagalos decline to bow to the League Councils' decision that it must cease all hostilities and remove all Greek forces from Bulgarian soil. It was learned in authorative circles today that the advisability of a naval blockage has already been discussed privately by the Council.

M. Carapanos explained that the agreement was really in anticipation of yesterday's action by the League Council.

M. Briand, President of the Council, intervened to remark that he was glad to hear this news, but wished to emphasize, that the agreement as outlined indicated certain reserves from the decision taken by the Council.

He insisted that both Greece and Bulgaria conform exactly to conditions laid down by the Council. To this the Greek spokesman replied that the agreement between Greece and Bulgaria contained no conditions.

Briand again interrupted to say this disclosure pleased the Council but that nevertheless its information was that guns still held the stage of the frontier and he asked the Greek minister to give new assurances during the day that the Council's "conditions would be accepted without reserve."

The Council then read explanations of both parties regarding the dispute that caused the conflict. After having heard the spokesmen for both parties, the Council adjourned shortly after noon, until tomorrow morning to await Greek and Bulgarian reports regarding withdrawal orders to be given the troops.

THE GLOBE'S CONDEMNATION

The Toronto Globe, for many years the chief organ of Liberalism in Canada, cannot support the King Government in this campaign. No later than Monday of this week it stated its position as follows:

"It is a matter of real regret to this paper that it finds itself at the close—as at the beginning—of this campaign UNABLE CONSCIENTIOUSLY TO COMMEND on many counts the position of those who, for the time being, direct the destinies of the Liberal Party. The Administration of the Right Hon. W. L. Mackenzie King has been clean, and is free from the charge of corruption. It has exercised reasonable economy, and has done something to lessen the heavy burden of obligation it inherited from its predecessor. It has failed to justify its claims to represent the principles of Liberalism, not because of what it has done, but because of what it has left undone, or half-done—and fails to give indication of doing. IT CANNOT EXPECT SUPPORT OF A POLICY OF POLITICAL DRIFTING which involves the evasion of issues that should be faced courageously. The Globe has waited day by day during the progress of the campaign with the hope that in at least some of the issues to which it directed attention at the outset — issues that are undeniably in the public interest and for the welfare of the people as a whole—there would be forthcoming a ringing word of assurance, of leadership, of action. Repeatedly it has invited such a pronouncement. But still— three days from polling—there is silence.

"PLEASANT AND PLATITUDINOUS PROFESSIONS CANNOT TAKE THE PLACE OF HONEST, PURPOSEFUL GRAPPLING WITH PROBLEMS."

Consider Well

The most important act of your life this year will be the marking of your ballot on Thursday, October 29.

Your decision is more vital than you think. The consequence will affect in some way, not only yourself, but every human being in the country. If you are a wage-earner, a property owner, a man with investments, you are now standing at the cross-roads. A turn in the wrong direction means a continuation of the policy of inaction, of compromise, which has marked the administration of the King government and has been so fatal to the welfare of Canada and her citizens.

July 1 was our 58th Birthday and—we are still struggling along with 8 1-4 million people in a country as big as the United States.

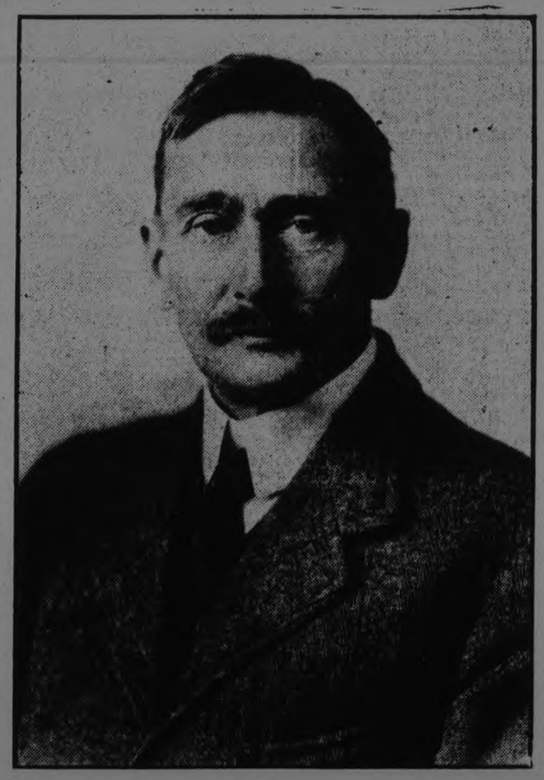
We have a smaller population than we had in 1921.

Since the King government came into power and lowered the tariff nearly half a million Canadians were forced to go to the United States to find employment.

Are we to continue to permit the best of our manhood to seek employment in the United States, or are we going to build up home industry, give our cities a chance to grow, provide work for all our people and for the millions who would enter this Canada if the future were one of hope and not one of dismal doubt, as at present?

Has Canada been prosperous during the last four years Have you improved your position since the Liberals began their policy of tariff tinkering, with an eye to the free trade demands of the Progressives?

Do you want your fellow-man to live by honest, well-paid work?



Do you want political leadership of a sane and an honest kind?

Of course you do.

Many will vote for the first time. They can make no mistake by voting for the supporters of the Conservative government, whose policies are clearly defined and planned in the best welfare of the whole country, and for no particular group of interests.

The prosperity of Peterborough and district is interwoven inseparably with the Conservative policies. That is the outstanding and undeniable fact.

Your vote on Thursday may spell ruin or bring renewed prosperity to Peterborough.

LOWER FOOD COSTS

G. N. Gordon scored a real victory when the Minister of Finance announced that the tax on oatmeal, rolled oats and cornmeal, whether in packages or in bulk, had been removed. Mr. Gordon registered strong protest against these taxes, declaring at the time that it would ruin the package industry if the tax was maintained. MRS. FALLIS HAD WRONG FIGURES

Cost of Living Has Declined During Present Administration, Official Report Shows.

We wish to take this opportunity of correcting some misleading figures quoted by Mrs. Howard Fallis in several addresses in and near Peterborough recently, including one on Saturday last. Mrs. Fallis has doubtless obtained these figures, relating to the cost of living, from some unreliable source.

At Saturday's meeting Mrs. Fallis said the cost of living had increased under the present Government, and quoted figures relating to the cost per week of a family budget of staple foods, fuel, lighting and rent, compiled from reports in sixty cities in Canada.

The truth in the matter is that the Labor Gazette, the official recorder of the facts, shows the cost of this budget per week in 1925 to have been only $20.70 against $21.53 in 1921 and $26.92 in 1920.

Other figures given by Mrs. Fallis purported to be the index of the cost of living, and showed a rise in the four year period. As a matter of fact the index in 1921 was at 139 and dropped to 139. An interesting commentary is found in the difference between this record and that of United tSates, where the index number of the cost living only dropped from 150 to 144, still five points above the Canadian cost of living.

THE BIRTH RATE NO PROBLEM AT ALL

France Has Greater Infant Mortality—Lack of Sanitation.

LONDON, Eng., Oct. 27 (Canadian Press Despatch).—When it is interesting to find that so exalted authority as the Lord Mayor of London asserts there is really no problem at all about the matter. Sir Alfred Bower, who is about to relinquish the Lord Mayoralty, is an enthusiastic admirer of everything connected with the city of which he has been Chief Citizen for the last twelve months. He declares no place in the world can equal London in the matter of sanitation.

"The so-called birth-rate problem in France is really a sanitary problem," declares his lordship. "In 1923, the birth-rate in France was 19.4 per thousand, that of England and Wales was 19.7, hardly any difference. But whereas our death-rate was 11.6 that of France was 17 per thousand, the difference being due to infant mortality. I know a good many Continental cities, and none of them can touch London for looking after the health of its population. Not long ago I visited abattoirs in Islington, and I was struck then by the supremacy of London in such matters. Certainly if France had avoided the war of 1870-2, and instead of paying Germany 200,000,000 francs had spent that on the sanitation of its towns and villages, the French people would have no more of population problems than we have. I am sure London puts ten years on everybody's life by drainage alone.

"I regularly take exercise for fresh air by walking the Embankment as often at midnight as in the daytime; Southward Bridge, backward and forward, from end to end, is another favourite walk of mine."

On the subject of London City's great charitable expenditure, Sir Alfred remarks that the Lord Mayor is the president of over 100 charitable insititutions, and that during the ten months of his present term of office he has raised money for 42 of these.

DREAMING CINDERELLA By Juanita Hame

From the richest to the poorest, from prince to pauper, from rags to riches—there's one thing we all have in common—our dreams. Wouldn't life be empty without them? What would the little shop-girl, or the dreariest slavey do were it not for her wonderful day dreams of the prince who would some day rescue her from her poverty and give her riches and love and happiness forever after? They're the finest things in life and sometimes the only things that keep us contented and satisfied with our lot. For no one can deny them to us. Our dreams are our very own, jealously guarded and kept in the innermost places of our hearts. And they teach us the way to love and happiness perhaps not just as we have dreamed, but eventualy to each of us comes the supreme moment of Love for our very own for always.

There was a splendid show of exhibits in the tent and the sports and driving contest was splendid. There were several entries in the driving contest and it was splendid. Owing to the whooping cough a large number of pupils from the different schools were absent.

ADVICE TO GIRLS

By Annie Laurie

DEAR ANNIE LAURIE:

I am writing you this question asking for your advice. When I am out with any of my boy friends I find it hard to keep up a conversation. Would you please tell me some subjects or things to talk on? Thank you.

BOBIE.

BOBIE: The main thing about a conversation, Bobie, if you wish to be the entertainer, is the faculty of being a good listener. If you can find out in some way just what subject your companion is interested in, and then get him to talk about that subject, he will think you are a wonderful pal. You don't really have to know much about it. A few exclamations of interest, or a question or so, interjected at the proper intervals, will keep him going. It doesn't matter whether it happens to be the proper mode of dancing the Charleston or a conversation about the Einstein theory, just let him talk about it, if he wishes to and you can stand it. Of course, someone has said it is wonderful to be a good listener, but it is not so wonderful when two good listeners get together. Perhaps that is your difficulty. In that case, you had better coach yourself on a few things, such as the tactics adopted in the last baseball game, or the latest picture at the movies, or the way your sister is making her new dress, or just why So and So has broken up her engagement with Somebody Else. A description of your trials with your music lessons, if you happen to take lessons in music, would be in order, or the last meeting of the young people's society at the church, or what your father said when your mother asked him why he stayed out so late last night. Get the idea? Just let your tongue run along with anything that happens to pop into your head. If he doesn't answer you, and appears to be bored, change your line, but if he appears to be bearing up under your flow of conversation, keep it going. Men always expect women to talk a lot and they are disappointed when you don't run true to form in this respect.

WEDDING BELLS.

ORR—BALLANTYNE.

(Contributed.)

St. Luke's Church was the scene of a very pretty wedding on Wednesday, October 21st, at one o'clock, when Flossie Luella, oldest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James Ballantyne, 277 Armour Road, was married to Charles Orr, son of Samuel Orr, of this city. Rev. G. J. Bousfield conducted the ceremony, while Mr. Thompson played the wedding march. The bride who was given away by her father, looked charming in her wedding gown of poudre blue, cut velvet, trimmed with georgette, and hat to match. She carried a bouquet of ophelia roses. The bridesmaid, Miss Mable Morrison, a cousin of the bride, wore a gown of henna [illegible] with hat to match. She carried [illegible] quet of Columbia roses; a brother [illegible] bride, Mr. Ray Ballantyne, acted [illegible] best man. After the ceremony, a dainty luncheon was served at the home of the bride's parents. The young couple received many useful and beautiful gifts, among them a handsome mantel clock given them by the employees of the C.P.C., where Mr. Orr is an employee. The gift from the bridegroom to the bride was a bracelet of sapphires and brilliants, to the bridesmaid, pearls, and to the best man a pair of kid gloves.

Mr. and Mrs. Orr left on the Canadian Pacific afternoon train for Toronto. On their return they will reside in this city.

MR. PECK PECKS AT PACT!

Follows His Leader in Attempt to Blast Empire Trade!

"Under the treaty made by the King Government with Australia the Canadian farmer has been sacrificed."—Mr. Peck at Villiers.

MR. PECK IS AFRAID THAT FRESH VEGETABLES, FRESH BUTTER, FRESH EGGS AND FRESH MEAT SEVEN WEEKS OLD WILL PUT THE CANADIAN FARMER OUT OF BUSINESS.

Is Mr. Peck one of those who will call into a George street store and ask for "a dozen Australian eggs, not more than two months old"?

Or does he prefer butter that has matured on a sea voyage of several weeks to the produce of West Peterborough farmers?

IS MR. PECK SERIOUS IN HIS FEAR THAT CANADIAN MARKETS WILL BE FLOODED WITH AUSTRALIAN PRODUCE UNDER THE NEW PACT? If he is, then he is merely misinformed and mistaken.

OR IS HE FOLLOWING MR. MEIGHEN'S LEAD IN DEMANDING COLD ABANDONMENT OF BRITAIN AND THE EMPIRE IN TRADE PREFERENCES? If he is, then he is disloyal and unpatriotic.

Presumably Mr. Peck concurs in the declaration made in the House of Commons last session by Mr. Meighen, aimed directly at the Motherland. Here is what he said: "I do not see any reason why we should continue to give preference to anybody unless we get preference in return. My principle is to give advantage for advantage, but do not give it without."

In other words, at the very time when Britain is endeavouring to re-establish her trade after a life-and-death struggle with the enemy, and at the very time when she is afflicted with unemployment such as Canada has never known, Mr. Meighen would cut off the British preference unless he could wring reciprocal favors from the Mother Country, which already admits Canadian goods far more freely than Canada admits British goods under the preferential arrangement.

MR. PECK SHOULD RECALL TO MIND, BEFORE ATTACKING EMPIRE TRADE, THAT IN PETERBOROUGH CITY THERE ARE OVER 20,000 PEOPLE PROUD TO CALL THEMSELVES BRITISHERS. THEY AND THEIR SONS FOUGHT WITH THE MOTHERLAND, AND BESIDE MEN FROM AUSTRALIA AND THE REST OF THE EMPIRE.

They Say "Hands Off The Empire"

Of course, it is Mr. Meighen, Mr. Peck and other orators in support who are loudest in proclaiming loyalty to Canada today. But as a British orator once said: "When you hear men shouting like that, don't watch their mouths. Watch their hands."

Mr. Peck did not tell his audience that under the Australian treaty Canadian exporters will be advantaged by millions of dollars through the opening of a new market. No serious thinking man would suppose for one moment, unless for party purposes, that the imports of Australian produce will hurt Canadian farmers. After supplying the home market, Canada last year had an exportable balance of 2,890,000 dozen eggs; 13,648,000 pounds of butter; $23,500,000 worth of cheese; 6,000,000 bushels of fresh vegetables and $22,600,000 worth of fresh and smoked meats.

THE TREATY CONCLUDED WITH AUSTRALIA WILL BUILD UP A MARKET FOR CANADIAN PRODUCTS WITHOUT HURTING THE CANADIAN PRODUCER—IT WILL FOSTER EMPIRE TRADE—IT WILL INCREASE THE SHIPPING FROM CANADIAN PORTS.

ARTICLE No. 4

Is it more difficult to play the dummy hand against two opponents or for the two opponents to play against the declarer? That question has been the cause of much discussion but to the writer there seems only one answer. It is much more difficult for the opponents of the declarer. The latter can see his twenty-six cards and should know the best way of combining them to the best advantage. He is not in the dark as are his opponents, for they must guess as to the other's holding and they are just as apt to guess wrong as right. Also, in the opening lead, the opponents of the declarer are at a disadvantage. If partner has not bid, what should be the opening lead? This is a question that puzzles the experts at times but the average player can greatly overcome this difficulty by the careful study of a good table of leads. In playing against the declarer, try to convey as much information as possible to your partner by use of conventional leads and discards. Watch your partner's play and that of the declarer very closely. Try not only to make every play of your own convey information to your partner, but try also to learn something from every play of your partner and of the declarer.

Hearts — Q, J, 8
Clubs — 7, 4, 2
Diamonds — K, 10, 7, 4, 2
Spades — J, 4

The dealer bid one spade and all passed. What is the correct opening lead with the above hand? The correct lead is the queen of hearts. Any other lead with this hand would have lost game. The player who held it opened the four of diamonds, a very bad lead. Never open a suit containing the king against a suit bid, if there is any other possible lead. It is nearly always a trick loser.

The writer has occasionally mentioned the Law of Symmetry in these articles. This Law is, in effect, a theory that there is a symmetrical relation existing between the distribution of the four suits in any one of the hands and the distribution of any one of the four suits among the four hands. This symmetrical relation is well exemplified by the distribution of the following hand which came up recently in actual play:

	Hearts — Q Clubs — K, J, 7, 4 Diamonds — A, 8, 7, 6, 2 Spades — 5, 4, 3
Hearts — J, 9, 6 Clubs — Q, 10, 8, 6, 5 Diamonds — Q, J, 9, 5 Spades — 7	Y A B Z	Hearts — K, 10, 7, 5, 3 Clubs — 2 Diamonds — K, 10, 3 Spades — J, 9, 8, 2
	Hearts — A, 8, 4, 2 Clubs — A, 9, 3 Diamonds — 4 Spades — A, K, Q, 10, 6

No score, rubber game. Z dealt and bid one spade. All passed and A opened the six of clubs. Z won the trick with the nine of clubs and proceeded to look the hand over. What would you figure as to probable distribution and correct play of the hand? Z should note that his own hand and Y's were divided 5-4-3-1. He also noted that A opened the six of clubs and that B played the deuce. If B had held two clubs, he would have started an echo to show his partner that he could trump the third round of clubs so his play of the deuce indicated a singleton. Z, therefore, figured that the clubs were divided 5-4-3-1. He holds five spades and his dummy three so that if A also held a singleton, it must be in spades. Therefore the spades must be divided 5-4-3-1. His heart and diamond holding and that of the dummy also indicated a possibility that these suits were divided 5-4-3-1. Z, therefore, decided to play accordingly. At the second trick he led the ace of hearts and then a low heart trumping in dummy. He then led a low club which B trumped. On this trick Z played his ace of clubs so that he could finesse the king jack later. No matter what B now plays Z must make a small slam. Figure it out. The hand is remarkable in that after the first lead the distribution of all four suits can be so accurately determined. It is also a remarkable illustration of the Law of Symmetry. All of the four suits and all of the four hands have the same distribution, 5-4-3-1. It is the first time that the writer ever has noted such a unique hand.

Answer to Problem No. 2

	Hearts — Q Clubs — Q, 9 Diamonds — A, 8 Spades — 8, 5
Hearts — J, 10 Clubs — 10 Diamonds — K, Q Spades — Q, 9	Y A B Z	Hearts — 8 Clubs — 7, 6, 3, 2 Diamonds — 10 Spades — 10
	Hearts — 9, 5 Clubs — J Diamonds — 7, 5 Spades — K, J

There are no trumps and Z is in the lead. How can YZ win all the tricks against any defense? Z should lead the deuce of clubs and win the trick in Y's hand with the queen. Y should then lead the nine of clubs on which Z should discard the five of diamonds. A is now up against a discard. If he discards a heart, Y will play the queen of hearts and lead a spade so that Z's nine of hearts will be good. If A discards a diamond, both of Y's diamonds will be good. If A discards a spade, both of Z's spades will be good. Any of the three discards, therefore, will lay A's hand open to a loss of a trick. Suppose he discards a heart, Y plays the queen and then plays the five of spades. Z wins the trick and leads the nine of hearts. What can A now discard but a spade or a diamond? If the former, Z's spade is good; if the latter, Y's diamonds are good so that YZ must win the balance of the tricks.

WHAT HAPPENED TO LITTLE BILLY WALKING STICK

Billy Walking Stick was a wee little reen Walking Stick, who lived with his daddy and mama and brothers and sisters out in the great big meadows. They made their home under a pile of brush and Billy Walking Stick should have been very happy playing with his brothers and sisters, but he wasn't.

For hours at a time he'd sit perfectly still by the side of the brook and watch the waters dancing over the pebbles on their way to the river.

Come along, come al ng," they would seem to call to Billy Walking Stick. He waited until his Mama and Daddy and brothers were all away over in th meadows on a picnic. Then Billy Walking Stick crept down to the very edge of the brook. The wind had blown a weed over so that it hung its head right over a broad flat leaf that danced on the water.

Billy Walking Stick thought this would be a lovely place to play, so up the stem of the weed he ran and dropped off on the green leaf island.

Everything went well for a long time. Billy Walking Stick ran from one side of the island to the other having the time of his life, but as evening approached he grew hungry and tired.

He tried to reach the weed to get back to shore, but the wind had take it the other way, and there he had to stay. He crawled under one edge of the leaf that had curled up and tried to go to sleep.

He Dropped on the Island

Something struck the green island and tore it down its stem and away it went down stream, carrying the homesick little Walking Stick.

Oh, what will I do, what will I do?" sobbed Billy Walking Stick. I wish I had never ventured off the meadow grass. I want to go home." But the green leaf island began to whirl around and around and Billy Walking Stick grew so dizzy he had to shut his eyes.

Well," he sobbed, if ever I get home again, I'll content myself playing with my brothers and sisters. I'll never run away from home——"

Just then there was such a bump, Billy Walking Stick was knocked over to the very edge of the green leaf island and when he picked himself up, he discovered the green leaf island had floated close to shore.

Billy Walking Stick reached out with two front legs and caught hol of a weed on the bank and swung himself over. Just then green frog spied him and quick as a wink, he opened his mouth, but Billy Walking Stick gave a leap and landed on the bank out of the green frog's reach, minus two of his pretty green legs.

It serves me right," Billy Walking Stick sobbed. I'll never run away again if I ever et home."

It took him several days to get home and his green suit had turned brown. His brothers nd sisters didn't know him, but his mother did. She tucked him in bed and fed him on warm soup until he grew some new legs. That was the very last time Billy Walking Stick ever ran away rom home.

Tomorrow's HOROSCOPE

By Genevieve Kemble

THURSDAY OCTOBER 29

A rather dull and unimportant day is forecast from the minor lunar and planetary configurations. There may be obstructions and delays in the best directed effort and all initiative and attempt at new enterprises may be beset with difficulties or disappointments. It is suggested that important projects be postponed until more favorable planetary conditions. A somewhat similar state of affairs is foreseen for all social, domestic and affectional affiliations.

Those whose birthday it is may find the ensuing year one of setback and thwarted effort. It may be difficult to make much progress under the prevailing rule, which favors the routine and ordinary in both business and personal activities. A child born on this day is likely to have a rather listless and indifferent nature and may have a quiet and mediocre career.

WHERE WOMEN ARE THE PORTERS.

"Darjeeling" is a name to conjure with, to inspire the thoughts of poets. And the other name of this magic city of India is equally entrancing. It is called "Place of the Clouds."

The name is justifiable, too, for the city rests in a sea of clouds. In the morning, they are light fluffy bits of clouds. As the day grows older they expand into great billowing waves. Sometimes they form a deep, gray fog that almost smothers the city.

The town itself is a cheerful, red-roofed affair, built in a semi-circle. The houses are of stucco and concrete, elaborately decorated with tracings and ornaments of various sorts.

Traveling about Darjeeling is no such simple matter as it is in those cities which boast of trolleys and trains. There is, of course, a train that takes you up to the city in the hills, but it is not what one might call an express train. It usually travels about twelve miles an hour, puffing and panting, stopping and starting.

But the traveling about the city itself is accomplished in rickshas drawn by three or four coolies. The rickshas are clumsy and heavy and it is quite a task to draw them about.

But by far the most unusual sight, to Western eyes, is that of the women and even children, who carry heavy trunks and baggage of various sorts up the mountainside on their backs. When you descend from your train at Ghoom, there is a run of four miles into Darjeeling. At the station of Ghoom, porters of the feminine sex, pounce upon the baggage and load it onto their backs.

The Women Carry Baggage.

This city of the mountains and the clouds, with its impressive setting of natural beauty, is a meeting place for the English, the Swiss, the Mongolians and the Indians. On Sunday mornings, one may meet people of all of these nationalities thronging the bazaar, in exotic costumes. The scene is colorful and brilliant enough to fit in amidst the magnificence of the natural scenery.

AROMA OF THE FALL.

When the crust surrounds the pumpkin,
And the beans are in the pot,
And the apple cider's foamin',
And the taffy's piping hot,
And old Hallowe'en is comin',
And there's frost at early morn,
And the woods are turning browner,
And the folks are popping corn,
There is one thing to remember:
Red October gives us these,
Though it closes up the flowers,
And undresses pretty trees.

Amber clouds from fires rolling,
Great Aroma of the Fall!
Leaf incensed, we go astrolling;
How we love and live it all.
—W. H. R.

If anyone in Canada has an idea that October is the month of dying things, that half asleep party had better take a spade and go out into the orchard and dig a big hole and bury himself up to the knees, then go to sleep standing there, to await the coming of Spring.

Life is not a matter of dying Octobers or Novembers either. It is a matter of pep and enjoyment, provided we know just how to go about it. Understanding of the rules of the game is the only way to know how to play. Knowing a little about Nature's ways is the only way to enjoy and appreciate the Seasons.

To-morrow, Nature Lore will tell a little story about how a sick little girl became the centre of life for all the other children living near.

come from an abundance of vital energy that is the rightful heritage of us all. If you are nervous and the least little thing makes you jump, if you have restless nights, if the sight of food sickens you, read the reasons for this and just how you can help restore your health.

Medical research has definitely proved that one of the causes of a run down condition of the body is a shortage of certain mineral elements, including iron, potassium, calcium, sodium and phosphorus, and until a sufficient supply of these minerals is restored to the body, good health is impossible. Wincarnis contains every one of these elements in addition to other health giving ingredients, and in a form in which they are most rapidly absorbed into the blood and carried to every part of the body to be converted into vital force.

Wincarnis has been recommended by over ten thousand physicians in cases of nervousness, anaemia, sleeplessness, and the general debility that accompanies a run down body. For fifty years this strength giver and nerve restorative has brought new life and happiness to weakened men and women.

YOUR HEALTH

By Royal S. Copeland, M. D.,

CATARRHAL DEAFNESS CAN BE AVOIDED.

Deafness is an uncomfortable affliction. Every affliction is uncomfortable but deafness is a distracting and embarrassing ailment. You hate to admit you can't hear well and you can't bear to ask more than once that a statement be repeated.

Unfortunately, deafness is a common trouble. Indeed, as we grow older all of us appear to suffer some impairment in hearing.

There are many types and many causes for deafness. The most frequently met form is usually described as "catarrhal deafness." This is the deafness which follows long continued catarrh of the nose.

The mucous membrane which lines the nasal cavities does not limit its boundaries or confine itself to this region. It extends up the passageway, known as the Eustachian tube, to the middle ear. The mucous membrane lines the tube and the ear cavity. It makes an intimate covering for the tiny bones of the ear.

One of the bones is called the "stirrup bone" for the reason that it is shaped like the stirrup of a saddle. It is very, very small, of course, but plays an important part in the mechanism of hearing.

The little bones form a chain across the cavity of the middle ear. They are jointed together and freely movable. The outer bone is attached to the ear drum and the foot-plate of the stirrup, fits into an opening in the skull. Beyond this window is a cavity filled with fluid in which floats the ends of the nerves of hearing.

You will see that the movements of the drum are transmitted through the chain of bones to the foot-plate of the stirrup. This swings freely in the opening, in and out, agitating the fluid of the cavity and the ends of the nerves.

This is a brief description of how waves of sound make their movements felt by the nerves of hearing, which, in turn, carry the messages to the brain.

But what happens if the footplate of the stirrup bone becomes fixed in its place and refuses to move back and forth like the clutch of an automobile?

This is the condition in catarrh of the middle ear. The membranes becomes thickened and hardened and, in consequence, the free movement of the stirrup is retarded. Only the louder sounds are capable of getting it under way. The softer notes are lost because they are not strong enough to agitate the stirrup.

To prevent deafness, you must prevent catarrh of the middle ear. To prevent middle ear trouble you must escape the dangers of nasal catarrh, with the probability that the catarrhal condition will creep up the tube to the ear. The best suggestion to be made regarding catarrhal deafness is to prevent it by guarding repeatedly against colds and chronic nasal catarrh.

IN NORTH YORK.

Says No Government Ever Faced Difficulties Which He Encountered.

MOUNT ALBERT, Ont., Oct. 27 (Canadian Press) — Premier King opened his three day intensive campaign in North York here yesterday afternoon. Mr. King will address ten meetings bfore Wednesday night in this Constituency.

Speaking at Sutton last night the Premier said: "Mr. Meighen is changing his ground. He is running away from high protection and saying what is needed is a stable tariff. He is admitting defeat on high tariff.

"Mr. Meighen has not dared to go into Quebec in this whole campaign. That is one reason why Mr. Meighen could not govern this country. It is not a question of tariff stability, it is a question of national stability," said Mr. King.

"Who would Mr. Meighen have with him? Mr. Patenaude from Quebec as his right bower and Bob Rogers from the West as his left bower," he added. "No government in Canada has ever been faced with the difficulties with which this government was faced," he said. "In national debt and railway obligation the government had unprecedented problems which made economies difficult. The government had cut down the expenditure by $110,000,000."
